MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Waggon Load of Grain Passes over a Man's Legs—Neither are Broken

Mr. Wright, of the firm of Wright & Payton, pump makers, Peterborough, evaded getting both of his legs broken on Wednesday evening by a combination of circumstances which he himself cannot explain.

He was near Rose's, brickyard, a mile or two from town, when he saw Mr. Matchett coming along with a load of grain. It was wheat that was on the waggon and the load consisted of four tiers of bags. Mr. Wright went up and Mr. Matchett reined in his horses. The waggon had not quiet stopped when Mr. Wright put one foot on the hub and gave a spring on the waggon. He slipped and fell with both legs before the moving wheel. It passed over the left leg a little above the ankle and up the calf and on the knee of the right. The wheel was then backed off. Mr. Wright was certain that both of his legs were broken, but was glad to find that when he tried he could stand and walk as usual. On coming to town he was examined by Dr. Kincaid. It was found that the flesh above the left ankle was cut to the bone and that on the other leg was also severely cut, but that there was not the sign of a fracture. The wounds were dressed and this morning Mr. Wright is able to walk around.

IRELAND.

The Queen has conferred an Earldom of the United Kingdom on Cornwallis, Viscount Hawarden, under the title of Earl of Montall, of Dundrum, in County Tipperary.

John Tohill has been arrested, charged with having set fire to a granary and shot a horse belonging to a relative of his named Hugh Tohill, at Culnagew, county Derry.

Mr. Tuke has distributed £5000 worth of seed potatoes on the west coast of Ireland. Lord Aberdeen gave Mr. Tuke a guarantee for a large amount, and funds have flowed steadily in.

Produce shipments from Dublin have of late been very considerable. Over 12,000 firkins of butter reached the North Wall in one week from Limerick, Tipperary, Cork, Wicklow and Cavan; 1000 boxes of eggs were exported; 600 bales of bacon from the south, and 500 from Dublin and Wicklow.

An application has been made to the Lord Chancellor, at Dublin Castle, on behalf of the Belfast Royal Hospital, for a special grant from the Government of £800 to defray the expenses of treatment of those wounded in the recent riots. The Lord Chancellor promised to lay the whole matter before the Chief Secretary.

The Royal Hotel, Armagh, has been seized for rent, and a bailiff left in charge. The boots, a man named Loughran, resented the presence of the bailiff, and desperate fight ensued between them. The boots came off worst, as he was struck on the forehead with a tumbler, which inflicted a fearful wound. The Bailiff whose throat was scarred and had his fingers cut, was arrested.

The fall of the Albert Bridge at Belfast on September the 15th has not occasioned such a loss of life as was at one time apprehended. Only one body, that of the watchman, has been recovered, and since no enquiries have been made for missing relatives, it is now thought only one death occurred.

ENGLAND.

Tobacco has been successfully cultivated on a farm in Kent this year.

Joseph Spencer and Charles Crump, wholesale jewellers, Birmingham, have been committed for trial, charged with stealing £3888 worth of diamonds.

Mme. Patti Nicolini is to sing on the 27th inst., at the Albert Hall, London, prior to her departure for America. She will receive £700 for that occasion.

The negotiations for the revision of the Commercial Treaty between Great Britain and Japan still continue, but so far no definite understanding has been come to.

At the Jersey Royal Court recently a Frenchman named Bretel pleaded guilty to the charge of passing fictitious 1000-franc Bank of France notes, and was sentenced to three months' hard labor and five years' banishment.

Another outbreak of pleuro-pneumonia is reported in the Monkland district of Lanarkshire, viz., at little Dumgray, in the occupation of John Watt, farmer. The farm has been declared an infected place under the Act.

The Scotch Liberal members have decided to assemble on the day preceeding the opening of the next session, for the purpose of deciding what measures affecting Scotland should be introduced and pressed upon the attention of Parliament.

The Rev. James Mackie, of Manchester has got into trouble again with one of his elders, Mr. Carswell. He was brought up at the City Police Court on September 20th, charged with inflicting bodily injury on Mr. Carswell with a butcher's steel.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proven that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents and removes dandruff, cools and soothes the scalp, and stimulates the hair to renewed growth.

The amount of tea which has already arrived at Vancouver and been distributed over the Canadian Pacific Railway is 3,428,033 lbs. There are yet four vessels to arrive, which will bring up the total for the season to 7,878,033 lbs.

Track-laying on the main line of the Manitoba and North-Western Railway has been completed across the bridge over the Assiniboine river. Grading on the Saskatchewan and Western Railway has been completed from Minnedosa to Rapid City.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate,
In Seasickness.

Prof. Aldolph, New York, says: "I used it for sickness, during an ocean passage. In most of the cases the violent symptoms which characterize that disease yielded, and gave way to a healthful action of the functions impaired."

Some Miraculous Results

Have followed the use of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic." It has saved many from becoming bald, and has produced good heads of hair on bald heads where the roots are not all gone. It has relieved hundreds of per son, from dandruff, and restored crops of gray and faded hair to their original color. A. Dorenwend, sole manufacturer. For sale everywhere. J. D. Tully, agent for Peterboough.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites,

Is prepared in a perfectly agreeable form, at the same time increasing the remedy Potency of both of these specifics. It is acknowledged by leading Physicians to be marvelous in its curative powers in consumption, Scrofula, Chronic Coughs and Wasting diseases. Take no other.

FROM ALL OVER.

Mr. Gladstone is still unable to leave his bedroom. He is suffering from fever, and his condition is believed to be worse than is publicly announced.

ARE you made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For sale by Ormond & Walsh.

Much destruction to property has been caused by prairie fires throughout McIntosh county, Dakota. Many families lost everything.

Mr. F. C. Capreol, projector of the Northern Railway and long and prominently identified with the Huron and Ontario ship canal scheme, died on Tuesday night at his residence in Toronto, aged 84 years.

A peculiar virtue in Ayer's Sarsaparilla is, that while it cleans and purges the blood from all corruptions and impurities, and thereby roots out disease, it invigorates the whole system, and makes one young again.

Twenty-eight miles of the Hudson Bay Railway have been located, and the line will be located to the south end of Shoal Lake by Thursday.

ESCAPE FROM SIBERIA.

Alarm Amongst Russian officials—A Famous Prisoner Free Once More.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Sun's St. Petersburg special says:—Despite official secrecy the police have received full confirmation from Siberia of the reported escape of M Degaieff, the famous Nihilist conspirator who planned and assisted in the murder of Lieut.-Col. Sudelkin, Chief of Police, and one of his staff, three years ago. The police traced Degaieff to Geneva, and vainly endeavored to wheedle the Swiss Governmen into extraditing him. The police are getting nervous over the frequent escapes from Siberia this year. A few who ventured to return to St. Petersburg have been recaptured and returned, but the majority made their way to Geneva and London. Plotting against the Government has been renewed with redoubled terror. Since June at least twenty Siberian prisoners have escaped, including two cavalry officers and several students, some of them escaping by the way of Cambodia. The precautions which are observed throughout Sbieria, are so stringent that the Government is persuaded that escapes could not have been effected without connivance with the prison officials. A commission has been sent to Siberia to enquire into the matter and reorganize the entire system of prison government. A number of high officials under whose charge the escaped prisoners were have been suspended. Some officers who were either criminally negligent, or else assisted in releasing the prisoners, have been arrested and thrown into prison. The refugees report the Siberian prisons and mines crammed with exiles; desease is rampant, scurvy being especially severe, and the mortality frightful, prisoners dying off like sheep with rot. The Nihilists are greatly excited and rejoiced over the many escapes, but declare they will not strike again until they are sure of their mark.

DIABOLICAL MURDER.

A Young Bride Shot Dead in Bed Beside Her Sleeping Husband.

HOUSTON, Mo., Oct. 13.—A diabolical crime was committed on Big Creek, six miles east of this city, last Friday morning, at three o'clock. Mrs. Williams, the bride of Rolfe Williams, was lying asleep by the side of her husband, when some unknown person entered the bedroom, placed a pistol against her forehead, and sent a bullet through her brain. No possible motive can be assigned for the deed, except that some disappointed lover of the bride took this means of revenge. Mrs. Williams, before her marriage, was the belle of the county, and bore an irreproachable character. The couple, who were children of wealthy and respected farmers, had been married but two months.

Another Insurrection in Mexico.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 14.—A special despatch received here reports the assassination of ex-President Gonzales in an interior town of Mexico. The report, however, is not generally believed. It is rumoured that the Mexican Government is struggling to suppress a new insurrectionary movement.

A Mammoth Hotel at Banff.

WINNIPEG, Man., October 14.—A party of Canadian Pacific Railway directors intend forming a company and creating a mammoth hotel at the Banff National Park. Preliminary steps have already been taken towards its creation.

STORMS IN THE STATES

A POPULOUS TOWN OVERWHELMED BR THE GULF TIDAL WAVE.

Whole Families Swept Away—The Entire Population Devoured by the Flood—A Terribly Destructive Gale.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14.— Sabine Pass was totally destroyed by the overflowing of the Sabine river on Tuesdry night. It is known that sixty-five persons were lost. During the overflow an hotel containing 15 or twenty persons was swept out into the bay, and all the occupants were drowned. Not a house is left in that whole section; every living thing was drowned. A relief boat has gone from Orange with provisions and clothing for the destitute. At Orange the Roman Catholic Church was blown down, and considerable other damage done. The telegraph wires are all down, and it is impossible to get information from the stricken towns.

LATEST DETAILS.

ORANGE, Tex., Oct. 14.— Details of the destruction by the storm at Sabine Pass and Johnson's Bayou come in slowly, and are yet indefinite, though all agree that there has been a great loss of life and property. Two brothers named Pomeroy were picked up by the schooner Andrew Baden in Sabine lake. They had been in the water thirty-six hours clinging to their capsized yawl. Their mother and sister and Mrs. Capt. Junker, her son, and a little girl of the party were lost. The Pomeroys report that fifty lives were lost at the Porter house, where the people had collected as the best place of safety. It went to pieces at nine o'clock. Many persons are missing, and greater loss is reported from Johnson's Bayou. Whole families were swept away, and not a house was left standing within five miles of the lake. Parties were organized last night and left on the steamers Lamar and Emily P. with provisions and bedding. They are expected back tonight.

LOSSES ALONG THE COAST.

LAKE CHARLES, Oct. 14.—The loss of property along the Cameron Parish gulf coast for some distance was of Sabine Pass, by the storms of Tuesday night was fearful. The mail boat was from Cameron Parish reports that the water at Calcasieu pass was eight feet deep at the lighthouse, and that the entire country east and west was submerged drowning thousands of cattle and ruining the crops. The following lives are reported lost at Johnston's bayun, La.:—The entire families of Alfred Lambert, Marion Lukes, George Striver, Charles Blanchet, Radford Berry, and two families by the name of Franeswar, besides many others whose names are not ascertained.

BUFFALO ISLAND SUBMERGED.

BUFFALO, Oct. 14.—The most terrific gale known for years set in this afternoon, and at midnight the wind was blowing 65 miles an hour. "The Island," inhabited by squatters, is completely flooded, and huge waves are now rushing over it. Twenty-nine houses are wrecked, rendering 100 persons homeless. The family of Charles Lambert was drowned before the eyes of a party of rescuers, and several others are reported to be missing. The people are moving their household effects to the mainland. The basements of all the houses on Canal street are flooded, and their inmates are taking refuge in saloons on the upper floors. All the lumber yards on the island are wrecked. The dammage to shipping is very great. Several barges are floating over Evans' dock, and a number are reported to have gone to pieces. The roof of the Western Transportation house is blown off and blocks the Lackawana railway track. Main and Michigan streets are flooded for 700 feet from the dock. Ohio street is completely flooded. The damage will be enormous, and it is feared the loss of life will be greater than that already reported.

THE STORM IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The storm is very severe, and is growing in intensity. Meagre reports are being received, that the wires are down in all directions. The city streets are deserted. A number of houses in the suburbs have been torn down by the wind. The telegraph officials state that the storm has given more trouble than any for five years.

MR. PARNELL CONDEMNED.

More Vigorous Methods Advocated by New York Nationalists.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Municipal Council of the Irish National League met last evening and indulged in a hot debate. A resolution was introduced censuring Branch No. 130 and withdrawing its charter, because at a meeting of the branch in Oct. 3 its members had expressed a decided disinclination to comply with the requests for aid for evicted tenants made by Parnell, and had advocated the use of "more vigorous measures" than Ireland's champion thinks advisable, This, the resolution declared, was "revolutionary." A stormy discussion followed, and more than one member declared that Parnell was altogether too slow, and that it would be better to use the league's money to prevent evictions by force than in supporting longer the victims of English tyranny. Mr. Dyer said it was just as well for one branch to drop the cloak of hypocrisy and come out boldly in favor of dynamite, but President Delaney promptly sat down on him with force The whole matter was finally laid on the table, an the Council passed a resolution calling for contributions for the eviction fund. During the evening there was a reference to Mr. Fitzgerald, president of the national organization "as one who had got his office the devil knows how," and the discussion was carried on for some time after the meeting adjourned- but President Delaney finally got the members out of the hall.

Terribly Destructive Prairie Fires.

SHERMAN, Tex., Oct. 14.—Late advises from Indian Territory state that the most extensive and destructive fires ever known in that territory are sweeping over the prairies. Millions of acres of rich grazing lands are now barren charred wastes. Large numbers of cattle have been burned to death, and immense quantities of fodder destroyed.

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—Lord Randolph Churchill and Right Hon. W. H. Smith dined yesterday with Sir Augustus Paget, the British Minister. Lord Churchill will go to Rome on Friday.

ARREST OF NIHILISTS.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Odessa papers report numerous arrests of Nihilists in southern Russia. Twenty-eight have been imprisoned in Posen and sixteen in Odessa and Nicolaieff.

PRESS BUREAU AT THE VATICAN.

ROME, Oct. 14.—The Pope intends to establish a press bureau within the Vatican. Mgr. Agliardi will be nominated director.

THE LAST EGYPTIAN LOAN.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Sultan will promulgate an irade sanctioning the last Egyptian loan of £9,000,000.

RUSSIA'S PROPOSALS.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Post's Vienna correspondent asserts that Turkey rejected Russian overtures for joint action against England and Austria. The inducement offered was re-occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Turkey, Russia to proclaim a protectorate over and to occupy Bulgaria. Egypt to be occupied by mixed French and Turkish garrison, under supreme command of a French general, and Greece to be given back her lost territory. The proposals also referred to the Russian campaign against India. France strongly supported Russia, and offered financial assistance to Turkey.

A SABBATH FOR THE SOLDIER.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—General Boulanger, Minister of War, has issued a decree making Sunday a day of absolute repose and holiday wherever possible for French soldiers.

OUTRAGES FEARED.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—There is little doubt that the police expect a revival of the Irish or Anarchists' outrages in London shortly. Sir Charles Warren, Chief of Police, has matured a plan for guarding public buildings, which is likely to prove infinitely more effective than Colonel Henderson's small attempt a short time ago. Under the new plan the bulk of the guarders are dressed in plain clothes, and a special code is supplied to each of the constables, instructing them how to act in case of emergency. The guarders are forbidden to leave their posts under any pretence, the ordinary police patrols attending to fires, accidents, etc.

A FRENCH DEMAND.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The French Government has demanded that China shall not restrict the trade in opium in Yun Nan and Tonquin.

EMPRESS OF AUSTRIA.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Empress of Austria, whose ailments, since she abandoned her hunting, fencing and gymnastics, have increased, has left Vienna for the Mediterranean, where she intends passing part of the winter, with her daughter Valerie as a companion.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 14.—Archbishop Croke writes to the Dublin newspapers that it would be deplorable if the temperance societies in Ireland, under the pretext of political neutrality, should succeed in impeding the progress and retarding the triumph of the National cause.

WAR AGAINST FOREIGNERS.

CAIRO, Oct. 14.—An Arabian paper has information from Massowah that the king of Abyssinia is inviting his vassals to prepare to join in a war against foreigners.

THEIR COMPLICITY CONFIRMED.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Oct. 14.—The complicity of Karaveloff and Isanoff in the plot against Prince Alexander has been amply confirmed. They will be tried, but will not be punished in view of their exclusion from a political career.

BULGARIA'S FIRM STAND.

SOFIA, Oct. 14.—The Bulgarian Government in reply to the Russian note, denies the right of any authority, other than the National Assembly, to condemn the acts of the Government. The validity of the elections the Government holds, can be tested only by the Bulgarian constitution. The Russians themselves, the Government adds, were responsible for Sunday's riots. Gen. Kaulbars, under the circumstances, telegraphed to St. Petersburg, asking whether he shall proceed on his journey or not.

SOCIALIST PLOTS.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The Belgian Government has asked the aid of the detective agents of Berlin, Leipsic and other Socialist centres in tracing the ramification of the Socialist plots discovered in Brussels and Antwerp. The Belgian authorities accuse the German Anarchists with inciting the workmen in Hainault and Charleroi to further outbreaks. The miners at Charleroi have ceased working. They demand the pardon of the workmen sentenced for complicity in the recent riots and threaten reprisals.

ON THE MOVE AGAIN.

VARNA, Oct. 14.—Gen. Kaulbars left here this morning on a special train for Rutschuk. His departure was sudden and unexpected. It is believed he is going to Tirnova.

THE WORKING CLASSES.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—M. Lockroy, Minister of Commerce, will introduce in the Chambers a bill to institute state loan offices for the working classes. The agricultural department is preparing two bills, the first dealing with agricultural unions and the second with the organization of agricultural credit on a state basis. The latter bill will be first submitted to the council of state.

A RUSSIAN VIEW.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 14.—The Journal de St. Petersbourg denounces the manner in which the elections in Bulgaria for members of the Great Sobranje were conducted. It accuses the Government party of terrorizing the minority with stones and cudgels and asserts that the Regency prevents the circulation abroad of news showing the true situation of affairs. This, however, and the results of Gen. Kaulbars' mission, the Journal says, will be eventually known, and it will be shown that Gen. Kaulbars has acquitted himself with devotion and self-abnegation worthy of the cause whose triumph he seeks.

AUSTRIA'S ADVICE.

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—The official journals warn Bulgaria against electing a prince until the Powers have agreed upon the most suitable person to select. They also counsel her to abstain in every way from provoking Russia. Diplomats here believe Russia has selected Prince Alexander of Oldenburg as her candidate for the Bulgarian throne.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1886.

THE CREEK.

At the last meeting of the Town Council the question of the right of the Corporation to deal with the creek running through our town was referred to the Town Solicitor. This is certainly a very proper step so far as it goes, but now the matter is broached it should not rest there. If the motion, and it is rather vaguely worded, does not cover the whole creek from its entrance into the municipal area to its outlet at the river, it should be made to do so, and the Solicitor should also be consulted as to the means of acquiring the necessary right if it does not already exist.

And as soon as this preliminary question is settled, it would be time and money wasted unless recourse is had to the services of another of our Municipal officials. The town engineer should be instructed to submit a plan for dealing with the whole question. Piece-meal action, with work done at different points without any reference to each other and thus having to be partially undone because they are found to conflict with each other, is a foolish and wasteful system of which we have had enough with our streets without repeating the error. There is no necessity for undertaking the whole work at once, but some settled plan should be adopted, so that whatever is done may contribute towards the result that is determined upon. Some day a complete system of drainage will have to be constructed, and it would be well to consider in advance whether it may not be advisable to utilize the creek as part of this system. Even if this is not expedient in an engineering point of view, some methodical plan of dealing with the creek should be adopted. At present it is a constant source of no small expense in the aggregate, for building and repairing bridges, removing ice, clearing a channel, guarding against damage, &c. Straightening or deepening one part only increases the evil at another, encroachments are being made, and any property that may have to be acquired is increasing in value. It is very probable that legislation may be necessary to enable the corporation to deal thoroughly with the matter, and it is likely that the value of the land reclaimed in some places would contribute materially towards the cost of the improvements.

It is folly, not economy, to postpone timely dealing with such questions. We have an instance of this shortsightedness in another matter that came before the Council, and on which they have at last taken action. Crescent street having almost disappeared beneath the waters of the Little Lake, it is now poposed to take steps for the protection of what is left of it. It will be found to be a somewhat costly operation, though if the work had been done by degrees long ago it would have been comparatively inexpensive, and if there is much longer delay we will have to purchase the ground to make a new street.

Now that the creek is being dealt with, the whole question should be considered and a general plan should be adopted at once, so that anything that is done may aid in carrying it out.

THE Globe informs us that Mr. Mercier stands on a platform which the people of Ontario can generally approve. It proceeds to state that a foremost plank of this platform is:—"Complete decentralization and extension of municipal powers." If the Bielite organ at Toronto approves of this plank how is it that it does not censure Mr. Mowat, whose policy is to centralize to the utmost, to curtail municipal powers, and in short to seize whenever practicable upon the patronage, the funds and the powers of the municipalities and local authorities? The Globe, however, only gives Mr. Mercier's platform for the English-speaking minority; it omits to mention Mr. Mercier's other platform, which is simply "Vengeance for the execution of our martyred brother Riel."

AGAIN a cry of anguish goes up from the Globe office as it laments over the lost Speakership of the House of Commons. Heartrending are the cries of grief that there is no longer a "Liberal" administration with power to hire a Speaker by a gift to him of public money under the fraudulent pretence that he has a job printing office and can do job work, but which it is understood he should sublet, so that the hired Speaker, the actual printer and the contractor all have to draw pay for the same job. Terrible are the lamentations that there is no present opportunity for such political prostitution.

ENGULFED IN A COLLIERY.

Startling Discovery in a Cellar—Huge Cave in the Basement of a Dwelling.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Oct. 13.—About eight o'clock this morning a girl named Hennessy, residing on West Coates street, went into the basement of the family residence, and seeing at the foot of the stairway what appeared to be a bar of iron she attempted to pick it up. The bar turned out to be a lead pipe which conveyed the family supply from the water main to the rear of the house. She then opened a door, and when the light shone in she found herself standing on the brink of a cave eighteen feet in diameter, and perhaps a hundred feet deep. The whole bottom of the basement had fallen into the workings of the Oakdale colliery. The house is still standing, but fears are entertained, not only for its safety, but for the safety of other buildings in the neighborhood, and the people of that section of the town are terribly excited.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for Diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

JESUS TO BE CRUCIFIED.

DR. JOHN HALL'S NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson III of the International Series for Sunday, Oct. 17—Golden Text, "Then Delivered He Him Therefore Unto Them to be Crucified."—Lesson Text, John xix, 1-16.

It is proper to remind the pupils that the four evangelists each give the details of that dreadful morning on which Christ was crucified, in his own way, not closely repeating one another. So it occurs that some things are recorded by one, not by others. This is natural and as it would be in our own life. We can put their narratives together and see how Pilate sent Jesus to Herod as a piece of polite policy, and Jesus was silent before him, how Pilate's wife warned her husband (Matt. xxvii, 19), and how the Jews pressed the point that to let off one who set himself up as a rival to Cæsar would put Pilate in a bad light before Cæsar. This was their strong point. These are three lines of study we may take as we see Jesus in the hands of sinful men, Pilate being for the time prominent. Pilate is, first, trying a compromise; this fails and he is frightened, and in the third stage he yields.

I. The compromise.—Not admitting that Jesus has done anything worthy of death, he will practically own that he may have broken Jewish law, and may be so far punished; so he "took Jesus and scourged him," possibly thinking that this would satisfy their rage. An offender about to be scourged was bound by the hands to a post, or something fixed, and beaten with cords made sharp and heavy with bone or lead fastened on them, to the torture, and loss of much blood, flesh, and even it is said, at times the eyes of the victim. The doing of this by the approval at least of the governor, who was the highest authority there, emboldened the soldiers, who, it is probable, resented the idea of any king but Cæsar. They proceeded, as the cruel are apt to do, from bad to worse, till the climax is reached with blows. Beginning with a mock crown of the prickly shrub nubk, which is found around Jerusalem still, they proceed to robe him in a garment in imitation of that worn by a king or general; then they make mock salutes by bending their bodies before Him and calling out, "Hail, King of the Jews!" Then, as if they were bringing Him gifts in their hands, they strike Him blows! Pilate tries on the prosecutors the effect of this. He brings Jesus out, in obvious suffering and indescribable humiliation, with the crown and purple robe on Him, and says in effect, "See! I have brought Him out thus to you. You deem Him dangerous. Well, if so, He is punished enough, and I want you to know that I find no reason for putting Him to death." Even his language seems to imply an appeal to their pity—"Behold the man!" He is not quite disregarding their wishes; but he sees no reason for a sentence of death.

He thought he knew much, but he did not understand all the case, nor the depth of wild fury to which wounded pride, revenge and fanaticism can carry those whom they "possess." Whatever feeling the common people had, the "chief priests and officers" made them cry out (v. 6) for his crucifixion. They have gone farther than in refusing his release. "Evil men wax worse." He is partly indignant and partly scornful: "Take him yourselves and crucify him." It is not a sentence on Jesus; it is an angry mockery of their rage and their impotence. It is not uttered by him as judge (see v. 30.) He adds, "I find no fault in him." Then why let him be scourged and cruelly mocked?

V. 7. The Jews now bring in another element: "He made himself the Son of God." (See Lev. xxiv, 16). Even bad men can be superstitious, and their fears can be played upon. The idea of something unusual in Christ must have been raised already in Pilate's mind. The idea of a "son of God" would not be foreign to a Roman. If he had received his wife's warning now, he must have felt the solemn mystery about the matter yet more. He was more perplexed and alarmed. He went again into the judgment hall and set about cross-questioning Christ; but in vain (v. 9), for (1) Pilate would not understand, and (2) he had already done or allowed great and cruel wrong, and his aim now was not to do what was right, but what would be safe for himself. He had not the single eye.

V. 10. He remonstrates against this silence, alleging that it was the interest of Jesus to speak to him who had power to release or crucify. But Jesus had already spoken. The case was no stronger against Him now than at first. If Pilate found no fault in Him, was not that enough? Crucify after that avowal! Silence was dignified, just, a proper protest against the weak and cruel concessions of Pilate to the passions of the Jews.

V. 11. Jesus now sets him right, and again (as John xviii, 36) puts the fault where it lay: "Thou couldst have no power," etc. He means, as he often said elsewhere, if it were his Father's will to save him he could have no power. It was the Father's will that he should drink of this cup; but that did not lift responsibility from the parties. Pilate would be guilty; those who persecuted still more so, for they knew more than Pilate did. They were nominal worshipers of the God of Israel, readers of the Scriptures, approached by conclusive evidences, having the light and yet loving the darkness.

Deeper still is the impression now made on Pilate's mind, and he would fain (v. 12) release him; but a new argument is now uttered by the prosecutors: "If thou let," etc. This was plausible. It appealed to Pilate's fears At this stage of the Roman empire corruption was very bad. A rival or an aspirant for Pilate's place could easily make use of a report like this to his ruin. He was himself conscious of many a charge that could be brought against him. Some, in fact, had been brought. The phrase "Cæsar's friend" had become honorary, and was given to successful Roman governors. He probably hoped for it. Old Roman simplicity had now vanished. Pride, show, plunder, power and degrading pleasures took its place.

This new aspect of the case Pilate recognized. He knew the hostility of Jews and Samaritans to him. He saw the passionate fury of the prosecutors of Jesus. His diplomacy had failed. He sees nothing for it but sentence of death. He had "sought"—repeatedly sought the word implies—to get the approval of the people to his design of sparing him and in vain. He yields.

V. 13. He brought Jesus forth. A tesselated pavement, we learn from authorities outside of Scripture, was always deemed proper for a judgment seat. This is one of a number of interesting unimportant side points merely mentioned by the evangelists, but exactly harmonizing with what we know of Roman usages, so confirming the truth of the history. This place was called "the Pavement" in Greek, in Hebrew or Arramaic Gabbatha, a hill or high spot of ground.

The time is noted in v. 14, and has been the occasion of much discussion, as it seems to contradict the reports of the evangelists to the effect that the Passover was the night before. The word "Passover" seems to have lost its exact meaning, and to have been used generally for the stay at Jerusalem. A host of critics take "the Passover" to mean the whole paschal week, and the "preparation" here named the preparation for the coming Sabbath. (See Haley's "Alleged Discrepancies of the Bible.") It was about the sixth hour, according to the method of reckoning time in this Gospel—about 6 o'clock.

(V. 15.) Pilate's conscience was ill at ease, but his political interests were the main thing in his mind. Angry with himself, he is angry with them too, and his anger and scorn find vent against the Jews. He says to them: "Behold your King!" He means to mock and insult them. Their reply is a renewal of their clamor for His crucifixion, and when he says in scorn again: "Shall I crucify your King?" the very lowest depths to which, as the representatives of a nation, they could descend is reached by them. Once owned as the people of God, with no king but Jehovah, again and again delivered from foreign kings by marvelous interpositions of Jehovah, the nation is here, by its representatives, declaring its bondage, and that to a foreign and a Gentile yoke. "We have no king but Cæsar." They hated Cæsar much, but Jesus more, and are willing to parade their bondage to the former that they may get the latter crucified. The renunciation of Jesus and the confession of subjection to Cæsar, Pilate fittingly follows with the formal sentence delivering Him unto them to be crucified.

We may see—(1) How conscience can be approached. Pilate felt the purity of Christ; he knew the absurdity of Jews professing zeal against a rival of Cæsar. He had warning from his wife, from Jesus—all felt by him, but overruled.

(2) We see how supposed interests can drown the voice of conscience. The main thing he feared was standing badly with Cæsar. The right of the case he overlooked in his deeds, though trying to clear himself by washing his hands.

(3) In a sense Jesus stands at the bar of the soul of each of us. It may be against our inclination, our pleasures, our supposed interests, to receive Him. We may make out a case throwing the blame off from us, but it will not stand. The misery and humiliation to which not only tradition but history tells us Pilate came is slight compared with the woe of eternity for rejecting the Son of man.

Marriage in High Life.

GREELY, Col., Oct. 13.—Lady Maud Ogilvy, daughter of the Countess of Airlie, was married here yesterday to Theodore White, a wealthy ranch owner, of Estes Park, Colorado. The Countess of Airlie, Lady Griselda Ogilvy, and a distinguished company were present. There was a very rich display of presents.

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis
And all mankind turn with it, heads or tails
And live and die, make love and pay our taxes,"

is the way Byron looks at it; but "it is not all of life to live." A healthy life is the only one "worth living for," and that depends on the liver. If the liver is put in good working order, pimples, blotches, skin disease, scrofula, catarrh, and a long list of dangerous diseases result. "Make love, pay taxes," but above all get Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," and free your system of all impurities of the blood by restoring your liver to healthy action. By druggists.

Presbyterian Missions.

At the meeting of the Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the committee on the augmentation of the ministers' stipends considered the claims of the various Presbyteries for the past six months, the amount ordered to be paid to the Peterborough Presbytery being $488.50.

Distinguished Visitors.

On Tuesday next Bro. Elliott, High Chief Ranger of the Canadian order of Foresters, and Bro. Gammage, High Secretary, will visit Peterborough to pay a visit of inspection to the local Courts. A meeting of all the Courts of the district will be held in Court Peterborough's hall to receive these distinguished visitors.

Sir Richard Again.

Sir Richard Cartwright, the Reform leader who is searching for a constituency and for whom Mr. Blake asked a "safe seat," was in town again on Thursday and was met by local Reformers. Sir Richard could not expect a safe seat in this vicinity, but it might be a case of "any port in a storm."

Highly Recommended.

The Lindsay Post says:—"Mr. A. F. Hoover of Peterborough, teacher of the pianoforte and harmony, has formed a class at Lindsay for tuition and will visit Lindsay once during each week. Mr. Hoover comes highly recommended as a clever musician and pianist, having studied at the royal conservatory of music, Leipzig, Germany."

Died on Her Journey.

The Port Hope Times of October 14 says:—"The body of Mrs. Geo. Nye, of Bobcaygeon, who was brought off the Norseman on Tuesday very ill, and who died yesterday morning at the Royal Hotel, was taken to the G. T. R. depot this morning to be taken to her son's residence at Holyoke, Massachusetts, from which she was returning from a visit."

We are offering extra good value in every line of General Groceries. Call and inspect. MORROW, TIERNEY & Co.

Eastport in Flames.

EASTPORT, Maine, Oct. 14, 5 p. m.—A fearful fire is raging here. Five sardine factories and several dwellings and stores have already been burned. The whole business part of the town will likely be distroyed. The fire apparatus is inadequate.

A WIND STORM.

It Snaps the Chemong Lake Bridge and does Sundry Other Damage.

A heavy gale passed over Peterborough on Thursday night. At about eleven o'clock it blew fast and furious, but so far as is yet known no very serious damage was done.

Chemong Lake was unusually rough, so much so that the floating bridge was snapped in two places.

There was no damage of any extent along the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific lines in this vicinity. Beyond the tangling up of the wires no inconvenience was suffered. The North-western Company's wires were, however, completely broken by a falling tree north of Hilliard's mills.

In town no damage to any extent is reported. Mr. H. Grundy's kitchen took flight and lit on another man's lot; several trees were blown down, including a large willow in Mr Cox's grounds, but no further casuality occurred.

POLICE COURT.

D. & D.

FRIDAY, Oct. 15.—Matthew McDonald, the man who said he was perfectly sober the other day when charged with being drunk and disorderly, changed his mind this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was fined $2 and costs.

SCOTT ACT.

The case of the Queen vs. Snowden was resumed at the Court this morning. The defence consisted of a lease being put in by the defendant which stated that the bar and bar fixtures were rented to Arthur Garlick at $30 a week. On cross examination several flaws were found which led the Magistrate to believe that the lease was a ruse. The first offence being proved against the defendant a fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

CAMPBELLFORD.

GOOD SPORT.—On Monday last Mr. Robt. Dinwoodie went out into the woods in the the neighborhood of the village, and had the good fortune of shooting nine partridge before taking his breakfast. On Wednesday morning he make another trip and killed nine more. He is an expert at partridge hunting, and if there are any birds to be seen he generally makes a mark.

A LARGE HAUL.—During three nights of last week the three Veteran frog catchers residing in this neighborhood, relieved the Trent river of nine hundred pounds of dressed frog. In skinning the amphibious creatures these men exhibit wonderful dexterity. Recently they "peeled" 3,000 of he them in four and a half hours. Mr. John Bradey remembered the editor of this paper with half a dozen of the carcasses. The leg of one of them measured eight inches.

ACCIDENT TO A THRESHER.—A steam thresher belonging to Messrs. W. & J. Fry, was badly damaged on Tuesday evening of last week. It was in charge of Mr. W. Nealon, who was proceeding with it after the day's threshing, to the firm of Mr. Henry Owens. Near Mr. Nealson's place is a hill which he was going down, and before he reached the bottom one of the lines broke, and the horse suddenly turned half way around. The steamer turned also, rolled over, and was badly damaged and broken. The loss will amount to between $150 and $200. By good management Mr. Nealson succeeded in holding the team, and thus averted what might have been a more serious accident.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE FIRE.—The burning of the grist mill has revived the dormant fire protection question, and it is to be hoped that now the general feeling is so strongly in favour of protection, it will be taken hold of and pushed ahead. A public meeting has been called for next Monday evening to discuss this question, and I trust something definite will be decided upon. It is admitted on all sides that had this fire occurred during the dry months of summer the chances are that the principal part of the village would have been consumed. Even as it was had it not been for the pump and hydrants put in last spring by Messrs. R. & G. Strickland, Baptie's plaining mill, the woolen mill and the council chamber would have shared the fate of the grist mill, and had those three buildings caught fire there is no saying where it would have stopped. We have had two narrow escapes this year, the first when the house occupied by Mr. T. Dinwoodie caught fire last spring. The village will be wise not to wait for the third fire before doing anything in the way of protection or it might be a case of locking the stable door after the horse was stolen.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.—A Council meeting was held on Oct. 11th. Present the Reeve in the chair, Councillors Isbister, McWilliams and Moore. The application of D. McLean asking for remission of taxes on grist mill was received and laid over to be considered at next meeting. It was moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Isbister, That a Hook and Ladder and Bucket Company be formed in this village and that this Council grant $100 for that purpose, and that Councillors Moore, McWilliams and Cox be a fire committee to make all necessary arrangements.—Carried. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

Geo. Cochrane, selecting jurors, &c	$ 6 00
Village Clerk, postage, &c	2 88
Village Clerk, selecting jurors, &c	6 00
Reeve, selecting jurors, &c	3 00
S. Henderson	4 75
Isaac Watson, wages	21 60
T. Dunaford, "	4 37
Wm. Smith, "	4 37
A. Morey, "	8 75
J. Rodgers, horse hire	3 50
J. Cooper, cartage	50

It was moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Isbister,—That the Village Clerk be instructed to get 50 feet of hose and coupling for village use.—Carried. Moved by Councillor Isbister, seconded by Councillor McWilliams,—That in accordance with the desire of a number of ratepayers a public meeting will be called for Tuesday, the 19th, to discuss better fire protection.—Carried. The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

The Result Still Uncertain — Large Rielite Gains.

The returns for the general election in the Province of Quebec are still incomplete, but the Rielite gains have been numerous, and so far the Reform-Rielite conspiracy to trade on a desire to avenge the execution of the murderous rebel has been successful.

The following are the returns that have come to hand:—

	BLEU.	RIELITE.
Argenteuil	Owens
Bagot		Pilon
Beauharnois	Bergevin
Bellechasse		Langelier.
Bonaventure		Cyr.
Brome	Lynch
Beance	Blanchet
Berthier	Robillard
Chambly		Rocheleau.
Chateauguay		Robidoux.
Champlain		Trudel, Dr.
Charlevoix		Morin.
Compton	McIntosh
Drummond	Church
Dorchester	Larochette
Gaspe	Flynn
Huntingdon	Cameron (Ind.)
Hochelaga		Champagne
Iberville		Demers
Joliette	McConville
Jacques Cartier		Boyer
Kamouraska		Gagnon
L'Assomption		Forest
L'Islet		Dechesne
Levis		Lemieux
Laprairie	Charlebois
Laval		Gaboury
Lotbiniere	Vallee
Missisquoi	Spencer
Motcalm	Richard
Maskinonge	Caron
Montmagny		Bernatchez
Montreal Centre		McShane
" East		David
" West	Hall
Napierville		Lafontaine
Ottawa County	Cormier
Pontiac	Poupore
Quebec County	Casgrain
" Centre		Rinfret
" West		Murphy
" East		Shehyn
Richmond & Wolfe		Picard
St. John's		Marchand
St. Hyacinthe		Mercier
St. Maurice	Duplessis
Sherbrooke	Robertson
Two Mountains		Beauchamp
Temiscouata	Duchene
Three Rivers		Turcotte
Vaudreuil	Lapointe

This gives an apparent Rielite majority so far, of 3, but these reports are not final, and there may be some changes to make.

Of the fourteen constituencies not in the above list twelve were represented in the last legislature by Conservatives and only two by Liberals.

MARRIAGE OF MIDGETS.

An Interesting Ceremony on the Stage of a Bowery Variety Hall.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A wedding occurred on the stage of the Alexander Kosoe, on the Bowery, last evening. The bride was the Princess Lucy, 19 years old, 27 inches in height, and 23 pounds in weight. The groom was Gen. Rheinbeck, who weighs 40 pounds, is 36 inches in height, and 21 years of age. The pair stood on a small table in the centre of the stage. The bride, who is bright-looking and quite pretty, wore a train of white silk with a lace front. On her head were the regulation bridal veil and orange blossoms. At her left hand stood the bridesmaid, Miss Annie Bell, a professional stout lady whose abundance of flesh made the bride's little figure look very tiny indeed. The little bride seemed to enjoy the novelty of the ceremony. She smiled in an amused manner and indulged in a slight blush when the pastor told her she should bring up her children as "good Republican citizens of the United States."

The Potato

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The potato crop of the Eastern states and provinces, the section from which Boston, New York and the tributary markets derive their supply, averages upon the whole about as last year, according to 600 reports received by the New England Homestead this week. The crop of New England and New York is considerable less than last year, and is not large at the West, but this deficit is largely made up by the big yield in Canada. All through the potato-growing sections of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, where the crop was almost a total failure in 1884 and but half a crop in 1885, the production this year averages 92 per cent. of a full crop, or about 165 bushels per acre, against 85 last year.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

NORTH-WEST COUNCIL.

Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney's Opening Speech —Agricultural Development.

The North-West Council was formally opened at Regina on Wednesday. Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney made a long speech. He congratulated the members on the contentment generally prevailing in the Territories. After alluding to the drouth he said:—"Out of 137 townships heard from, I find there are 71,951 acres under cultivation, of which 32,114 are in wheat, 26,021 in oats, 8,933 in barley, and the remaining 4,233 acres in roots. Within this area, about 1,400 acres of new land has been already broken." The growth of the cattle industry in the West is alluded to, as also railway progress, and the fact that the territories received a fair portion of Western immigration. Satisfaction is also expressed with the result of the Ottawa delegation, more particularly with regard to the judicial system of legislation promised.

EDUCATIONAL.

The school ordinance, which occupied so much of the time during the last session, has met with very general approval throughout the territories. On the first of January last there were 48 Protestant and 11 Roman Catholic schools established in the territories, in all 59 schools. To-day there are 76 Protestant and 14 Roman Catholic schools, in all 90, showing an increase of 31 schools. The 76 Protestant schools represent a school population of 2,253, and the 14 Roman Catholic schools 533, in all 3,786 pupils. In addition, five petitions are now pending for the erection of new districts with an estimated school population of 140. A redistribution of seats is recommended, with the view of giving more complete representative character to the council. The hope is expressed that the council will urge the Dominion Government to secure the permanency of the Colonial exhibition. Reference is made to the visit of Dominion Ministers, and more particularly the visit of Sir John Macdonald, and also to the sending of Indian chiefs east.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The following reference is made to Indian affairs:—"I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the present condition of Indian allies and to assure you that there never was a time when the Indians were more contented, cheerful or better disposed to their white brethren than at present. The feeling of uncertainty which in consequence of the late rebellion, existed when we last met, has entirely subsided. The few rumors which have been circulated of late indicating the existence of a rebellious feeling among Indians across the line have been wrongly attributed to the Indians of our territories. Measures are being taken to prevent such confusion of identity recurring. It is observed with pleasure that many of our Indians are beginning to evince a sincere attachment to the pursuits of civilization. Their successful endeavors in agriculture have been demonstrated at the exhibition held in this town a few days since."

OMEMEE.

ACCIDENT.—While driving into the country on Saturday evening, Mr. S. Laidley, met with a painful accident. In going through a gate he left the horse standing till he closed the gate, the horse started off and Mr. Laidley catching one line caused the animal to jumb sideways upsetting the buggy and breaking the cover and seat off and inflicting a severe cut on the young man's head and otherwise bruising him.—Herald.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

The Result Still Uncertain — Large Rielite Gains.

The returns for the general election in the Province of Quebec are still incomplete, but the Rielite gains have been numerous, and so far the Reform-Rielite conspiracy to trade on a desire to avenge the execution of the murderous rebel has been successful.

The following are the returns that have come to hand:—

Manistee Oil Fever—Flowing Wells and a Rush of Speculators.

MANISTEE, Oct. 15.—An oil fever similar to the craze which was formerly common in Pennsylvania has broken out here and is raging violently. Speculators are pouring in, property has advanced in price rapidly within ten days and the people are greatly excited. Oil has been struck in seemingly large quantity. The discovery was made accidentally, and the people were unprepared for their good fortune. R. G. Peters began work on a well in the centre of his 400 acre piling and mill grounds, thinking that salt might be underlying it, as that mineral was being found around him. The well had reached a depth of several hundred feet when an accident made repairs necessary. The tubing was drawn and shortly after a rushing noise was heard at the well, when astonishment was excited by seeing a stream of crude petroleum flowing from the hole. The flow increased in quantity and force until the output was 600 barrels per day. Another well was at once started and has reached a depth of 552 feet. Oil is flowing in large quantities. Operations on an extensive scale have been begun. The news reached the ears of several Pittsburg experts, who came here at once, and have been leasing land in the vicinity of the town, at what is known as an "oil lease," all other minerals to be controlled and owned by the holder of the land. The excitement in the city is growing in intensity every day. The lumber interest made Manistee a rich town, the recent discovery of salt added greatly to its prosperity, but the oil find has completely changed the village into a phenomonally booming city.

WARSAW.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—Mr. and Mrs. George Payne, English line, Dummer, celebrated their golden wedding last Tuesday by giving a grand dinner to his near relatives, who numbered about eighty. Mr. and Mrs. Payne received some valuable presents, among which were a pair of gold spectacles each. They were very much affected at parting with their friends, as they never expect to see them all gathered together again, as they are getting old.

PERSONAL.—J. A. Couch, M. D., our popular young doctor, has been very busy this summer having by his skilful treatment and moderate charge worked up a large practice. We were very fortunate in getting such a good doctor settled amongst us.

NEW RESIDENCES.—Mr. Wm. Wason, merchant, has just finished building a fine brick residence on Peterborough street. The cost is estimated at about $1,100. Mr. Ben. James, jr., has built a very pretty fence around his lot on Front street and intends building a brick cottage next summer.

BUSINESS.—We are glad to learn that there is a new baker started in Warsaw. Tin is also booming rapidly; there is no less than three persons in the business at present. It has already brought the prices down to a very low figure. Business is thriving in general.

ILL.—We are very sorry to hear that Mrs. David Rose, of Dummer, is not improving in health. She has been confined to her bed for the last two months and is getting very weak.

GAMBLING AT FAIRS.

ANYONE who has attended any number of fall exhibitions this year, especially those held near a through line of railway, must have been astonished at the number of men who were at those fairs with devices for drawing money from the pockets of all whom they could induce to become their victims. Indeed, there would seem to have been a bold effort made—an organized effort even—to demoralize these fall exhibitions. At several of the fairs in this neighborhood there were men who carried on a very questionable business unmolested, a business which was a very thinly disguised kind of gambling.

One of these devices is the "peek-a-boo," thimble-rigging, as it is called. This is unadulterated gambling, and the Directors of the Norwood fair did right to promptly eject them as soon as they saw them. Another is a device sometimes called "bucking the tiger," in which the operator tries to shield himself from the law by selling an article, sometimes worth a cent, for a dollar, while at the same time giving the purchaser a "chance" to win a prize on the wheel; but when the selection on the wheel is made the "game" becomes one of "bluff," and generally a prize winner gets only a fraction of what he has drawn. There were besides the wheel of fortune, a game similar to "nine pins," and men with shooting galleries. In addition to these there were at the fairs several selling packages and single articles, and side shows.

Now, it must be at once obvious that if these men with the gambling devices are allowed to operate through the country the fairs will become an agent for the demoralization of the people instead of a means of education. The directors of the exhibitions should recognize this danger, and draw the line sharply at anything with an appearance of evil. The directors at Norwood certainly did eject those who were carrying on straight gambling, as soon as they were aware of their presence, but not before many had been "fleeced," one young man parting with $25 to the "peek-a-boo" man, and another with $15, while many more may have been relieved of sums of money. These men travelling through the country—those operating the straight gambling or the disguised gambling—are a danger to the country, especially to the young men, not only on account of the money that is lost, but also on account of the evil practices that young men are led into. The number of them who were on the road this year, and operating especially at the fairs, was astonishing and should put the managers on their guard. Next year a sharp watch should be kept for them, and officers should be appointed whose special duty it would be to look out for them, and all tricks, whether pure gambling or disguised gaming, should be kept off the grounds and promptly put off if they succeeded in getting in. The officers of justice should also be on their guard, as probably next year the same means of making money easily will be tried again.

It has been said, and it looks probable, that several of these men were agents of one company, who made a business of sending men out with the various "fleecing" devices to the fairs and other places where people congregated. The importance of watching for the gamblers is shown by the fact that they only require a few minutes to do considerable harm, as at the fair where the thimble-riggers were put off the grounds a few minutes after they commenced operations they carried away with them more money than could be earned by several days of honest labor. These men sometimes appear to be losing money, but when one sees one or two men who appeared to be taking money from them going away on the train with the operators, and settling up their accounts for the day, the secret—if secret it is to anyone—becomes known. It is to be hoped that hereafter arrangements will be made at all fairs in the country to prevent any one even commencing operations with any gambling device, and to keep the grounds clear of anything with an appearance of evil or the least demoralizing tendency.

THE ingenious Globe has discovered another crime of which Sir John has been guilty. It seems that he has omitted to legislate that ladies should continue to wear lustre dresses, so that the demand for and price for the particular kind of wool used in their manufacture might be maintained.

BELLEVILLE.

A NEW PASTOR.—A meeting of the John Street Presbyterian Church was held last night to extend a call to a new pastor to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of the Rev. David Mitchell. There were two candidates before the meeting—Rev. Mr. George, Ottawa, and Rev. Mr. Murray, of of Kincardine. On a vote being taken a majority of the congregation supported Rev. Mr. George, and the Presbytery will be invited to moderate a call to this gentleman. Rev. Mr. George is at present stopping in Ottawa, but he has no congregation at present. He first studied for the ministry at Albert College, but some years ago joined the Presbyterian Church.

APSLEY EXHIBITION.

Annual Exhibition of the Burleigh and United Townships Society.

The annual exhibition of the agricultural society took place on Wednesday, Oct. 6th, and was a complete success. The weather being favorable, the turnout was larger than on any former occasion. The grain exhibited, both for sample and variety, would have been a credit to a central fair. The vegetables and cereals could not easily be surpassed. The show of cattle was large and of an excellent grade. Mr. Howden, from Peterborough, was present, and some other buyers, and quite a number changed hands. But the carriage horses were the centre of attraction, and a great deal of interest was manifested as to which of the teams on exhibition merited the first prize.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis
And all mankind turnwith it, heads or tails
And live and die, make love and pay our taxes,"

is the way Byron looks at it; but "it is not all of life to live." A healthy life is the only one "worth living for," and that depends on the liver. If the liver is not in good working order, pimples, blotches, skin disease, scrofula, cattarrh, and a long list of dangerous diseases result. "Make love; pay taxes," but above all get Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," and free your system of all impurities of the of the blood by restoring your liver to healthy action. By druggists.

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A BITTER RESOLVE.

All the evening Jenny had remained in her room, and had but now, at this hour of ten, which was even tolling, said good-night to her mother, parting with her after a long and close embrace, and with a prayer that God would bless her for her love. Then did she lock her door, and sit and listen; and presently heard both father and mother come to their bedroom, and the murmur of their voices.

In those old times there used to be in fashion a little traveling box, light to carry, with a strap across the lid that the arm might sling it, and much used by country folk.

One of these boxes stood on the floor, and the packing of it, with many a long halt for a sobbing fit, and active protest and hopeful reassurance, had been Mrs. Strangfield's occupation for a part of the evening. Presently rising, Jenny went to the box and tried its weight. Light enough it was—with a single change of apparel only; yet she took a turn with it about the room (treading on tiptoe) as if to make sure that it was not a burden above her strength.

She was restless and could not remain quiet. Now she would draw out her purse and count the money that it held; now she would approach the glass and gaze at the spectral, mournful beauty of her white face; anon, and with no more sound than a mouse creeping, she would pace the room; until the fever in her waned, and the passionate spurring of thought ceased to lacerate and drive. Whereupon she extinguished the light and took a place at the window, and surrendered herself to contemplation of the stars.

Manifestly she meant to take no rest that night, or was very long in going to it.

One would have had no need for sharp eyes to look at Jenny's face and know her as a girl on the eve of some wild business. To-morrow morning was she to be carried a long and sorrowful journey by her father, and when in London, from church to church they were to wander; and all the while her heart was to burn in the fire of his wrath, and her sacred purity to be blackened by his thoughts of it. Her ignorance of matters which, had she but foreseen all this, would have been easy to learn and remember, was so deep that even her mother had groaned over her that evening. The very neighborhood wherein Cuthbert had hired lodgings during his holiday in London [illegible] she was to go to him. He had come to Sydenham and met her by an appointment planned before they left Greystone, and all their arrangements were verbally concerted with never a hitch of weather to disappoint them, and that was why no letters had passed.

So, then, the London parish in whose church they were united was unknown to her. No light could she give, beyond taking God's holy name in witness that she spoke the truth, which only her mother believed.

But the uselessness of the journey, and the fear of his father's anger if failure should attend their search, were not the first causes of her present resolution.

That night, she resolved, would be the last she should ever pass in the old wooden house. Call her mad if you please—and few such desperate resolves but have madness at bottom; but there was courage, too, a virtuous audacity, and of a most womanly sort, acting without reflection; that is; influenced by the present that was driving her, and taking no thought of the future upon which she was rushing.

The church clock was striking the half hour after eleven, when with a shiver she rose from her chair at the open window, and, stealing to the bedroom door, opened it noiselessly, and listened. The deep breathing in the adjacent apartment where her parents lay, the fall of an ember in the kitchen grate, the loud ticking of a clock, were the only sounds audible.

Leaving the door ajar, she put on her hat, to which a veil was attached, threw a shawl over her shoulders, and raised the little trunk. There was clear moonlight abroad now, and light enough reflected to give distinctness to all objects in the room. On tiptoe she descended the staircase, and, the better to make her exit soundless, went through the kitchen. In a few moments she had lightly drawn the bolts of the back door, and stood in the moonlight.

The night was soft and sweet with dew, and the mild stars shone lustrously. Now, was it that the cool air and the deserted length of the High street, and the black shadows of the soaring town, brought to her an unutterable sense of homelessness, and the chill and terror of the lonesome state. She came round to the front of the house, and under the gloom of the bay tree paused and reflected, not daring to lift her eye to her parents' bedroom window.

She crept softly out of the darkness and crossed the road and went up the street, hugging the shadow of the houses. When abreast of the market place, again was she seized with a numbing sense of helplessness and a great agony of spirit. The sympathy of a human voice—some one to tell her story to and take advice from, she wanted, and perhaps the very last person whom it would have entered her head to apply to under any other circumstances she now resolved to seek.

This was Mrs. Mead, who had shown her some kindness that morning, and the sort of sympathy that was not likely to thwart if it did not profit her.

So she flitted like some restless spirit through empty stalls and vacant, silent gloom, and, hesitating a moment before Mrs. Mead's door, knocked lightly.

Although there was no light in Mrs. Mead's window, the old woman was not asleep, having not two minutes before Jenny's arrival extinguished her tallow candle and got into bed. Hearing a sound that resembled a knock at the door, the old woman lifted her ear out of the pillow and listened. After a little interval the knock was repeated, and there being no mistake about the ride this time, Mrs. Mead, greatly wondering, darted her withered legs out of bed, struck a light, swathed her old form in the counterpane, which she plucked from the bed, went to the door and opened it, holding the candle over her head.

She instantly recognised Jenny, and uttered a cry of astonishment.

"Michael Strangfield's girl! At this time o' night! Seekin' of me, too! Lord, Lord! what is the matter?"

THE PRESENCE OF THE LORD JESUS.

"Lo I am with you always," Matt. xxviii, 20.

"When I awake," the Psalmist
Says, "Lord I am with Thee,"
And raptured seers respond with,
"I never will leave Thee."
By many a precious promise,
He hath vouchsafed beside.
To dwell with those whose prayer
Is "Lord with me abide."

Christ told his grieved disciples
To leave them would be gain,
For through his Spirit ever
With them He would remain.
And many have this promise
Rejoiced in as their own,
And have by sweet experience
The Saviour's presence known.

But many who though trusting
In Jesus cannot say,
"He's near who intineth
Me both night and day."
And thus they miss the brightness
And holy joys serene,
That fill the soul where Jesus
Is present though unseen.

What light in midst of darkness,
What tranquilness in strife.
What ease in painful moments,
And calm when storms are rife,
When every re creation,
And deed, and word, and thought,
With Jesus into loving Fellowship is brought.

How circumspect, how needful,
Of watching unto prayer,
Lest we should lose the Saviour's
Presence unaware.
In pastimes and amusements
The crucial test should be
The Christain's, will the Saviour's
Presence go with me.

What though to follow closely
May be a heavy cross,
His presence will a thousand
Fold repay all loss.
Disdain, scorn or reproaches,
In various forms diguised,
Is joy to bear, when for His
Dear sake 'tis realized.

And when our sole dependence
On Him is center'd, He
In loving accents whispers,
"Fear not, I am with thee."
With tireless eye He watcheth
Our footsteps safe to guide;
O'er all life's ever-changing
Scenes He doth preside.

Kind friends may consolation
And sympathy impart,
But who is there but Jesus
Can heal the wounded heart?
Omnipotent while sharing
Each pang the heart can know,
His power and love to succor
And cheer He doth bestow.

They are the truly happy
Who with decision, leave
The world, and with full purpose
Of heart to Jesus cleave.
And who for ties of friendship
Among his followers seek,
Whose every day deportment
The mind of Christ bespeak.

And more and more the Saviour
Himself will manifest
To them whose hearts accord Him
The place of honored guest,
Who living with and for Him,
His glory all their aim,
Will to His likeness growing
Bring honor to His name.

As when the sun through rifted
Clouds sheds more gladdening rays,
So graciously the Saviour
Draw nigh on darksome days.
Dear Saviour every moment
We would in Thee confide,
Come now, and ever, ever
More with us abide.

A peculiar virtue in Ayer's Sarsaparilla is, that while it cleans and purges the blood from all corruptions and impurities, and thereby roots out disease, it invigorates the whole system, and makes one young again.

The Canadian Pacific Railroad has been compelled to put on extra forces of men in their car shopes in Cobourg, Perth, and elsewhere in order to meet the increasing demand for cars caused by the enormous growth of traffic on their line.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proven that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents and removes dandruff, cools and soothes the scalp, and stimulates the hair to renewed growth.

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Restores the color, gloss, and youthful freshness of the hair; stimulates a rich and luxurious growth; thoroughly cleanses the scalp; prevents dandruff and humors; and is the most cleanly and effective preparation for the hair ever offered to the public. Rev. J. W. Davenport, Illinois Bend, Texas, writes: "Ayer's Hair Vigor, used in my family for several years, has no equal as a dressing, nor for preventing the hair from falling out or turning prematurely gray. It ranks among the first luxuries of our house." Miss Kate Rose, Ingersoll, Ontario, writes: "While keeping my head clear of dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, Ayer's Hair Vigor has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as could be desired." The wife of Dr. V. S. Lovelace, Lovelaceville, Ky., had very bad tetter sores upon her head, causing the hair to fall out. Ayer's Hair Vigor healed the sores, and in less than twelve months produced hair a foot long.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

No More Bald Heads.

To produce a new growth of hair on bald heads, in the case of persons advanced in years, is not always possible. When the glands are decayed and gone, no stimulant can restore them; but, when they are only inactive, from the need of some excitant, the application of Ayer's Hair Vigor will renew their vitality, and a new growth will result. L. V. Templeton, Newbern, N. C., writes: "After a protracted illness, with fever, my hair all came out, leaving me entirely bald. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, before I had used all its contents, a thick growth of hair, nearly two inches long, covered my head." L. D. McJunkin, Perryville, Md., writes: "Baldness is hereditary in my family. Five years ago the hair on the top of my head was becoming weak and thin. I procured Ayer's Hair Vigor, the application of which invigorated the hair roots, and sent out a new growth of young hair. To-day my hair is as thick and vigorous as ever. I still use the Vigor occasionally to keep my scalp in a healthy condition."

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in mating up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

Inspect our stock.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Missionary.

Mrs. Greavis, a Missionary to the Hindoo Women, will hold a meeting in St. John's school-house, on Monday next at 8 p. m. Oct. 16. All are cordially invited to attend.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Three Days' Campaign.

The Salvation Army three days' campaign commences this evening, when at 8.45 p.m. the [illegible] of Toronto will arrive in town. It consists of ten pieces. The band will march to headquarters for tea and then will parade through the town to the Opera House.

Art.

Mr. T. Workman, artist, shows a part of his Central Exhibition display in the north window of Mr. A. Clegg's furniture store. There are three: a sunset scene at sea, an e opoment on the grand canal, Venice, and a portrait of Mr. Wm. Cumming, of this town. They are all very creditably executed.

A Novelty.

The ladies of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church will hold "A Dairy Maid Social" in the school room on Thursday evening, the 21st inst. Every effort has been put forth to make this entertainment as attractive as novel. The most eminent local talent have kindly promisted their assistance. Admission, refreshments included, of which the latter will be superior, 25 cts.

Porter's Prize.

Mr. Chas. Porter, of the firm of Porter Bros., carriage makers, has returned from the Millbrook fair where his display, consisting of a car load of buggies, phaetons, etc., carried off four first prizes and one second prize. Mr. Porter combined business with pleasure by effecting several sales. Mr. A. L. Davis has purchased the New York phaeton, which attracted so much attention at the Peterborough exhibition.

The Lindsay Market.

The Bobcaygeon Independent stirs itself on the Lindsay market question as follows: "Lindsay is disgruntled over its grain market and is agitating for a new grist mill. There seems to be an impression, just what you would notice, you know, especially on Saturdays, that there is a sort of a gum game going on, to keep down the price of grain. Lindsay will have to build another railway, that's what is the matter. Lindsay wants to be the centre of a railway system and then, trade will pour into it, like soap-suds down a gully hole. Lindsay must build railway connection with Bobcaygeon, and the north-east corner of Lake Scugog, and then it will be the hub, grain will go away up, and trade will boom."

Improvements.

Among the improvements which have been made to the streets of Peterborough during the past season none is important than the building of boulevards. In every quarter of the town fine stretches of green sward at the sides of the well travelled streets are to be seen. Mr. John Doherty has taken the lead in this sort of enterprise this season. Altogether he built about 2,000 feet of boulevards, extending from near the corner of Charlotte street, on Rubidge street, to near the corner of Brock street. He also supervised the construction of a line up Simcoe street from the corner of Stewart street to the corner of Rubidge street and another stretched still further on Simcoe street. Next spring it may be expected that everybody will go into the business of planting trees and building boulevards, so as to make them own property more valuable and the town more beautiful.

We are offering extra good value in every line of General Groceries. Call and inspect. MORROW, TIERNEY & Co.

A Writ.

Mr. Stone, Counsel for the defendent in the Queen vs. Snowden case, is going to apply for a writ of certiorari, as a preliminary step in an attempt at reversal of the Magistrate's judgment.

The Supply.

The Committee on Appointments has selected Mr. T.E.Rowan, an honor graduate of Toronto University, to take charge of the English Department at the Collegiate Institute till Mr. Earle's recovery.

Selling Out.

Mr. Jas. Fanning, of the People's Laundry, has about completed the sale of his business to Mr. W. S. Forsey, of the Troy Laundry. Mr. Fanning leaves on Monday for St. Thomas, where he has bought out a fine cigar and tobacco business.

ATKIN & SON'S Panel, Hand and Rip Saws are fully warranted. GEORGE STETHEM.

Personal.

Mr. Martin Hoover, of Toronto, is in town visiting his brother, Mr. A. F. Hoover.

Mr. Richard Cook, of this town, who was so seriously wounded in the left leg at the Battle of Batoche, is now making rapid progress towards a complete recovery. He went to Stoney Lake a couple of months ago with a crutch but now he gets along very well without the aid of that serviceable implement. Mr. Cook was one of those who left a very valuable situation to uphold his country's honor. It is earnestly to be hoped that he will completely recover and that he will bear no other mark than that of an honorable scar.

The Market.

The market was well attended this morning. Wheat was moving slowly; but several thousand bushels of barley was, as usual, marketed. Potatoes were remarkably scarce. Only a bag here and there was to be seen. Judging from the offer on the market, potatoes appear to be far short of a good crop and higher prices may be expected. Apples were plentiful. Beef and pork by the quarter are commencing to come in, the former selling at from 6 to 8 cents per pound, and the latter at 7 to 8 cents per pound. Chickens brought from 25 to 45 cents per pair; ducks, 60 to 70 cents per pair; geese, from 65 to 85 cents each, and turkeys, from 85 to $1.25 each. Butter in prints brought 20 cents per pound, and eggs 17 cents per dozen.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.—The regular services at St. John's, Church of England. Holy Communion at 8.30 a. m.; Morning Prayer, Litany and Holy Communion at 11 a m. Evening Prayer with sermon at 7 p. m.

ST. PAUL'S.—The Rev. Mr. Torrance will preach at both the morning and evening services.

BAPTIST CHURCH, Murray Street.—The pulpit will be occupied in the morning and evening by the Rev. Mr. Trotter of Port Hope.

METHODIST CHURCH. George Street.—Services will be conducted in the morning in the school room by the Rev. I. Tovell In the evening the Rev. F. H. Wallace will preach.

METHODIST CHURCH, Charlotte Street.—The services will be conducted in the morning by the Rev. F.H. Wallace. In the evening the Rev. I. Tovell will preach.

METHODIST CHURCH, Mark Street, Ashburnham.—The usual services will be conducted. The pastor, the Rev. J. Wilson will preach the sermons taking for his subjects in the morning, "The anxious mother" and in the evening, "The Prodigal's departure," the first of a series. Pews free to all.

ST. ANDREWS CHURCH.—The usual services will be conducted.

SCOTT ACT.

Two More Fines for Violations Committed.

This morning at the Court Henry Rossiter charged Robt. Hamilton, jr., with having sold liquor between August 1st and October 15th, being contrary to the provisions of the Scott Act.

He pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Edwards appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Stratton for the defence.

Several witness were examined, but no evidence was educed till a witness named Moore swore that he got Moxie. It was not whiskey and could not say that there was whiskey in it, but he knew there was intoxicating liquor in it.

Being cross questioned he stated that one glass of it would "set him off worse than half a dozen of common stuff."

The first offence being proved a fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

A similar charge was preferred by Henry Rossiter against Wm. Collins, of Ashburnham, a holder of a druggist's license. He pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Edwards appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Moore for the defence.

JOHN TURNER swore that he got liquor there.

The defence put in was certificates from Dr. Collins, authorizing Turner to get what whiskey he wanted for medicinal purposes.

Turner acknowledged that he had not been under medical treatment, and that he had got liquor there without a certificate.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Dr. Amos McCrea, of Keene, Dies Suddenly—An Active Life Closed.

On Friday afternoon the village of Keene was startled by the news that Dr. Amos McCrea had died suddenly at his residence in the village. The doctor was down street as about four o'clock, and appeared to be in even better spirits than usual. After returning home, he went out on the verandah and sat down on the steps, where he was suddenly taken sick and fell over. He was carried into the house, and medical assistance was sent for, but he expired just as Dr. Shaw arrived. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Dr. McCrae was 65 years of age. He was born in Merrickville, Ont., and graduated at Queen's College, Kingston, about 37 years ago. About 35 years ago he came to Keene, succeeding Dr. Might, and commenced the practice of his profession in that vicinity, in which he was very successful. Calls came for him from many portions of the eastern part of the county, and he worked hard, travelling night and day to minister to those who sought his aid.

About four years ago Dr. McCrea removed to Peterborough and resided here two years and a half, when he returned to Keene and practically retired from professional duties.

The deceased lived an active life, and was foremost in anything that was for the benfit of the village or township. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and a teacher in the Sunday School. He was one of the oldest members of the Masonic fraternity in Keene and was Treasurer of Keene Lodge No. 374. Originally a Baldwin Reformer in politics, of late years he was a stanch supporter of the Conservative party. Having a large and successful practice in his profession, the doctor accumulated considerable property.

Dr. McCrea leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters. His eldest son, Mr. J. R. McCrea, recently had a drug store in Peterborough. The family has passed through severe affliction, Mrs. McCrea's sister, Mrs. George Read, and her neice, Miss Read, having died very recently, and there is sickness in the family of Dr. James McCrea in Campbellford. The family has the sincere sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

A kind husband and father, a good neighbor and a public spirited citizen, Dr. McCrea will be greatly missed.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

Died.

After weeks of patient suffering, borne with the fortitude of a brave heart, Mrs. Sawers died at ten minutes to eleven o'clock. Not only did she suffer great pain from the broken and dislocated limbs, but from the sores which broke out on the back. These latter were so troublesome and painful as to render rest almost impossible. During the past few days she showed signs of losing the strength which did her so great service all the time since the accident, and a gradual sinking took place till she was released this morning. The deceased was a little over 33 years of age. She was Mr. Duncan McLeod's eldest daughter.

THE THREE DAYS FIGHT

THE ARMY GENERALED BY SPECIAL CAPT. PHILPOTT AND D. O. MORTEN.

The Peterborough Corps, Reinforced by District Soldiers, Lead in the Attack —The Staff Band's Martial Music— Arrival of the Big Guns.

The Salvation Army commenced a three days campaign in Peterborough on Saturday night. In the evening the band from headquarters, Toronto, arrived in town and played stirring music to the headquarters. After tea the local corps assembled, and, led by the band, had a march out, after which all went to Bradburns Opera House, where soldiers and officers crowded the stage.

SATURDAY EVENING.

The meeting on Saturday evening was conducted by special Captain Philpott and Divisional Officer Morten, of the New Brunswick division. It opened with singing followed by prayer.

D. O. Morten read from Luke xviii commencing at the 35 th verse commenting as he went on.—And it came to pass as he was come nigh unto Jericho a certain blind man sat by the wayside begging and hearing the multitude pass—"

"The multitude." The multitude followed Jesus and no man objected to it. But because the multitude followed the Salvation Army there was a big howl kicked up about it.

"He asked what it meant. And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. And he cried, saying, Jesus thou son of David have mercy upon me. And they which went before rebuked him that he should hold his peace.

Yes; that is always the way. If a poor blind sinner conscious of his guilt cried out for help there is a set who tell him to go home and shut himself up in his closet.

"But he cried so much the more. Thou son of Devid have mercy upon me."

That is the true spirit. I like that. I have that spirit myself. The more these people tell me to hold my peace the more I cry out for the Lord. There are some who say "If the Salvation Army would only act in an orderly manner, we would not object.'. I did things up in an orderly manner once in my life. I went to Church twice a day and was what might be called a respectable Christian. But my heart was black with guilt. I cried out unto the Lord and he heard me.

"And Jesus stood and commanded him to be be brought unto him: and when he was come near he asked him, saying, what wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And Jesus said unto him "receive thy sight:" Thy faith hath saved thee. And immediately he received his sight."

I'll spell this word and in case somebody don't understand it—i-m-m-e-d-i-a-t-e-l-y. My friends it doesen't take four years nor four weeks to receive spiritual sight. Have faith in God and you will get it immediately.

"And followed him glorifying God and all the people when they saw it gave praise onto God."

He didn't go off home and sit in his arm chair and sigh, "Oh, I'm so glad that I am saved," but he followed in the path of righteousness and led others with him. There are some who come to penitence, feel the saving power in their hearts, and then, knowing they are saved, seem willing to let all the rest of mankind go to hell if they like. That is the spirit of hundreds of people. May God bless the reading of His word.

Then followed a number of songs and experiences and the meeting closed in the usual way.

On Sunday a well attended knee drill was held in the barracks at 7 o'clock; at 10.30 there was a march out; at 11 o'clock, a holiness meeting in Opera House, and at 3 o'clock a free and easy meeting in the Opera House.

ON SUNDAY EVENING

there was another general meeting. The Opera House was crowded to the doors.

The meeting was opened as usual. It was announced that the members of the Staff band would relate their experiences.

Capt. ASHTON was the first. He said that six years ago he was what was a respectable Christian, but he knew he was a sinner as black as it was possible for him to be. He was blind in sin: but he thanked God that the Salvation Army had been the instrument to restore his sight.

Candidate MALONEY has an Irish name, but he is a genuine Englishman. He told his story in the broad northern dialect of how he went off to sea, how after he boarded a man-of-war and was up to all the sailors' tricks, how he sailed to Nova Scotia, how the the other sailors skipped out, how he dodged the mate and did also, how he worked around stables, how they gave him wniskey to put on horses feet, how he drank it himself, how he went to Miss Carr's and the rest of the laughs, how they used to kick up dog with the Salvation Army, and how at last the Salvation Army cooled him down, satisfied him and made him a Christain.

Lieut. GOULS was a respectable sinner like Capt. Ashton. He experienced Christ's call and was happy in the Christain life.

Capt. KIRBY was what might be counted on as a bad boy. He grieved his parents in many ways. He was into all sorts of devilment and was blamed for what was done whether he did it or not. He too used to go to church. A few texts seemed to stir him, but he soon forgot them, When he saw a friend's corpse lowered into the ground and heard those words "earth to earth and ashes to ashes, dust to dust," he a tremour struck him and he began to think about his soul's welfare. But sports and worldly pleasures had too good a hold on him. He always went back. It was not till the Salvation Army came that he was saved. As he was leaving the barracks one night he heard a speaker say "what if you were to die now" He wished that that speaker had kept his mouth shut. These words haunted him till at last he settled the matter by giving up his life to God.

Capt. Meston went to hear the first volley fired when the army came to Guelph. Hundreds were there besides, and both he and hundreds had reason to thank God that the Army ever did come there.

Capt. Sweetman, Capt. Connett, Special Capt. Southwell and Special Capt. Calhoun also gave short experiences, and the meeting closed with singing.

A HARVEST OF DEATH.

Over Four Score Southern Settlers Swept to Their Doom.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—A special despatch from Johnson's Bayon says the storm wrought awful havoc in the settlements of Johnson's Bayon and Radford, located in Cameron parish, on the Louisiana shore, six miles east of Sabine Pass. They are built on ridges, 19 miles in length, varying from one to four miles in width. The ridges face the gulf and are 13 feet above the sea level. In the rear is a dense and impenetrable marsh. The population of the settlement last Tuesday morning numbered twelve hundred, to-day eighty-five of that number are dead. Forty of their bodies have been recovered and consigned to graves, while the decomposing corpses of the remaining 45 lie festering in the marshes.

THE BLOW IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The gale and floods which began Thursday night along the south and west English and Irish coasts, continue, having extended far northward. Many reports have been received of bridges and buildings being swept away. In Ulster, Ireland, the storm and floods seriously interrupted railway traffic. Many small vessels have been wrecked, but the loss of life has not been great.

The British barque Bellaport has been wrecked off Skelligh's Island, on the southwest coast of Ireland. She was being moved by the tug Game Cock when the hawser parted, and the barque was thrown on the rocky shore and destroyed. All of her crew perished.

OTHER DISASTERS.

The troop ship Tyne, which is 30 hours over due at Plymouth, has been shipped off there laboring terribly in the storm. The greatest anxiety had been entertained concerning her for 24 hours. The British ship Teviotdale, which sailed for Cardiff, Wales, on Tuesday was wrecked on Carmarthen bar. There were on board 18 persons. The lifeboat rescued 9 passengers; 19 others, among whom were the captain and officers, left in one of the ship's boats, and but two succeeded in reaching the shore alive, the others having perished in the waves.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The latest reports show that the effect of the recent storm in the south and west coasts were terrible. A Norwegian bark foundered off Tintagee. Wales, and her entire crew consisting of 15 persons, perished. Ten bodies have been washed ashore on the Glanmorgan coast.

SIXTY PERSONS DROWNED.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Reports have been received from all points of the Kingdom telling of the disastrous effects of the hurricane. The British ship Mallery was wrecked in the British channel and twenty persons were drowned. The shore is strewn with wreckage. The bodies washed ashore have been stripped of valuables by wreckers.

The Norwegian bark Fredrekstad, from Musquash, N. B., for Swansea, was wrecked of Padstow, and nineteen persons were drowned.

The bark Alliance was also wrecked off Padstow, and four lives lost. The other persons on board were saved by a life boat.

Another large bark was seen to be in terrific distress. The crew were hudled together on the deck. The vessel foundered this morning, and it is believed that from a dozen to twenty persons were drowned. The gale prevented the people on shore from rendering assistance. The cries of the doomed men were heard distinctly by those who were watching the vessel from the shore.

IN IRELAND.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A Belfast despatch says the low lying lands of Ulster are submerged. The gale on the Irish coast continues unabated, compelling all vessels to seek shelter. Limerick advises say the Mulcair river drainage works burst, flooding the adjacent district and destroying valuable crops.

SHALL WE BE VASSALS?

The general election in the Province of Quebec, whether it results in a small majority for the Administration, or the Opposition, has been characterized by the enormous gains made by the Rielites. Though a Provincial contest in form, it is by no means a merely Provincial question that is thus raised. The question thus forced upon the attention of the people of Canada is whether the Province of Quebec is to be allowed the right of veto upon the judicial punishment of its criminals; whether they are to be permitted to attack the authorities of the country and drive them from office if a demand for impunity for crime is unheeded. This privilege for those allied with Quebec by race or creed is pushed to the utmost possible extreme in this instance. Riel was only of their nationality by having a small portion of French blood in his veins, though he was chiefly descended from another race, and was the subject of another country. He was only of their creed as having sought peace with the church under the shadow of the scaffold, though for a time he had been a murderer of priests, a renegade from the church and a blasphemous impostor. If Riel is held by the people of Quebec to be free to commit a series of crimes with impunity what privileges would they not advance for a genuine French Canadian and a faithful son of their church?

That to the Riel question is wholly due the change of votes in Quebec constituencies is certain. Before a French audience and in the French journals it was the one subject treated by the Rielite leaders. All the independent journals with one consent admit this to be the one cause of the loss sustained by the Administration. The Rielites openly avow that they attacked the local Administration because it would not make common cause with them in endeavoring to punish the Canadian Administration for allowing justice to operate in the case of a French Roman Catholic criminal. They openly avow that this is only a first step in their campaign against the constitutional authorities of the Dominion.

The Rielite-Reform journals of Ontario show their complicity in this criminal and treasonous design by their shrieks of joy over the partial success of their allies, whom they have been aiding to the utmost of their power. Mr. Blake and his lieutenants have degraded themselves by participating in this disloyal conspiracy, lured by the promise of the assistance in return of the criminals to help them to power. Mr. Mowat and his colleagues, placing partizanship before patriotism, have also fallen into line, setting up as their standard bearer Pacaud, the vile slanderer of our gallant volunteers, defending rebellion and murder in the Legislature, and suggesting a statue in honor of the rebel leader.

It is a grave crisis that is forced upon the great majority of the people of Canada, upon the great majority of the Provinces and Territories of the Dominion. The question at issue is whether we are to be allowed to exist in this wide country only on suffrance conditionally upon our not daring to treat the people of Quebec as our equals before the law. The all-important issue is whether the English-speaking people of Canada are to become mere vassals of the French Canadians, so slavish as not to dare to resent our wrongs if any man with a drop of French blood in his veins, or occasionally submitting to their established church, takes it into his head to murder missionaries and officials, to seize the public land and offer it for sale, or to shoot down our young men if they venture any opposition.

The claim of these "Nationalists" is so preposterous that, though mischievous enough to call for prompt suppression, it would be of little lasting consequence if they relied only on themselves. The danger of their pretensions for the lasting unity, peace and prosperity of this country lies in the baseness of those politicians who would give their countenance and assistance to treason and the invasion of our common rights, in the hope of thereby climbing to power.

The situation is too grave for loyal, honest, patriotic Reformers thus to tamper with their own rights and those of their children for the aggrandisement of a few selfish leaders. Without regard to politics they will do their duty in the face of this invasion, and unite with all the spirit of their freeborn ancestors in repelling it.

GRIEVANCES.

With silly iteration the Rielite journals urge that the half-breeds of the North-West had "grievances." No one disputes their having had grievances, but the question is whether they were such well founded grievances as to afford any excuse for rebellion. Most men have grievances; for instance the Globe has the very sore grievance that the people of Canada will not entrust its friends with the administration of their affairs, nor pay them for mismanaging them. But if the Globe took up arms instead of contenting itself with stirring up others to do so, it would soon find that such a grievances would not save it from the rope.

The chief grievance of the halfbreeds of the Northwest territories is represented as being that they had not received the same grants of lands or scrip as had been given to the Halfbreeds of Manitoba, and which they therefore claimed as a right. Now, we decline to admit that a man has a right to claim a gift, though it is not unnatural for him to feel vexed if he sees another receiving a present without his participating in it. If the London Advertiser and the Ottawa Free Press were presented with leather medals as champion slanderers, the Toronto Globe might well feel sore if its talents and industry in the same line were not similarly acknowledged, but that would not justify the Globe in suing for the medal or seizing it by force. Even if we admit for the sake of argument that the Northwest Halfbreeds had such a right, this does not afford the slightest excuse for the rebellion. Riel's lieutenants and councillors, the leaders of the rebellion almost to a man, were Manitoba Halfbreeds who had already received their land or scrip in that Province and having moved into the Territories dishonestly claimed to have a right to be paid over again as the original inhabitants of that country also. The fact is they were thieves as well as murderers and rebels, and therefore had an additional hold upon the sympathies of the Globe.

The chief cause of the outbreak was that the Globe and its friends stirred up these Halfbreeds and the Indians to rebel in order that the people of Canada might be made to suffer, and that they might be induced by their sufferings to grow impatient with the Administration of the day.

DEATH BY THE STORM.

Relief Parties at Work—How Sabine Was Submerged.

Beaumont, Tex., Oct. 15.—The relief party which went from this place to Sabine Pass are at work there succoring the destitute people. The train could not get within 12 miles of Sabine, but the party had brought along a dozen boats and quickly made their way to the spot. A relief committee of 70 had gone down on the steamer Lamar on Wednesday night from Orange and Beaumont. About forty of them returned last night. They report that 101 persons are missing, ninety of whom are known to be drowned. Thirty-five of the victims are whites and 55 colored. The steamer brought up 91 starving and destitute victims of the flood and storm. These were quickly housed and cared for by the citizens of Beaumont. They are nearly all sick and prostrated by exhaustion and hunger. Dr. Calhoun, Mayor of Beaumont, was one of the relief committee. He states that of more than 150 houses in the village of Sabine Pass less than six are standing, and they have been moved from their foundations. Corpses have been picked up at a distance of thirty miles from the scene of the disaster.

The hurricane of last Sunday in the West Indies blew the waters with great violence towards the Texas coast. This hurricane wave was first noticed on the coast on Sunday morning, making its maximum on Tuesday afternoon and was maintained at a high point to the impetus of the waters behind. The hurricane itself did not reach this coast at all, as scarcely a breath of wind was stirring when the tidal wave first touched the coast. When its maximum was reached on Tuesday afternoon, however, a fierce northwestern gale sprung up along the whole coast, and at Sabine this gale blew the waters out of Lake Sabine and drove them towards the gulf, where the lake waters were met by the great swell caused by the hurricane. This resulted in driving the lake waters over on the little town, submerging the country for miles around without a moments notice.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Perilous Position of Five Men in a New Brunswick Forest.

Five men, who left this city about a week ago to work in the woods for Mr. Timothy Lynch on the southwest Miramichi, says the Fredericton Gleaner, have had a pretty rough experience of it. The men were under the guidance of Mr. P. Sproule, who is well acquainted with the woods in that region, but to reach their destination they left the portage road to take a short cut through the woods. In doing so Mr. Sproule lost his way. They had a pair of horses with them which the men alternately mounted, but the further on they traveled their situation became more imperilled. When about famished with hunger two of the men, Kincaid and Holmes, who belong to King's county, resolved to retrace their steps, which they did, leaving the other three men, Sproule and his brother and a man named Straight, to journey on with the horses. The two men who returned had not travelled far when Kincaid became exhausted with hunger, having been without food for three days and three nights. He lay down on the ground telling his comrade to go on and leave him there to die. His comrade left him but to return shortly after with a partridge that he had killed with a stone. A fire was built, the partridge roasted, and the scanty meal revived their strength and ambition until they succeeded in getting to the clearings, which they accomplished on the fourth day. The three men who went on with the team, have not been heard from, but it is believed they have succeeded in finding their way. Mr. Lynch, though, has not heard anything from them yet, except that they have not reached the camps they started out for.

COBOURG.

Accident.—On Wednesday evening of last week as Mr. Isaiah Hickey, accompanied by his wife and child, Mrs. Hickey's sister and Mr. W. Downing, were returning home from Grafton, they met with a serious accident a short distance this side of the village. A pit in the road caused the neck-yoke to slip from the pole, and the latter striking against the horses' legs caused them to kick and plunge, upsetting the vehicle. Mr. Hickey had one knee cap broken, Mrs. Hickey a shoulder dislocated and several bruises, Mrs. Hickey's sister was cut about the face and head, Mr. Downing had some ribs fractured, while the child escaped unhurt. We believe Mr. Hickey's injuries will confine him to the house for some weeks.—Sentinel-Star.

Wrecked on Lake St. Louis.

Valois, Que., Oct. 16.—During the storm of last Thursday night, the sailing ship Iris was wrecked while running before the gale under bare poles. The crew were saved after hard efforts on the part of the villagers. The Iris at present lies in the bay here, and efforts will be commenced today to raise her.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

BLAKE AND HIS FRIENDS.

Does any intelligent English speaking Canadian believe that the justice of that execution would ever have been called in question if Riel had been English? We do not believe that any considerable number of French Canadians would have felt aggrieved by the execution had not their race prejudices been stirred up by crafty and designing office seekers.—Montreal Star (Indep).

A RACE AND RELIGION CRY.

In the name of common sense let there be no prating about the result of yesterday's election as a victory for "honest government" or any respectable political principle. Suffice it that the Government has received a fatal blow and the country has sustained a serious misfortune. The Province has been swept as nothing but a race and religion cry could have swept it. The Government has been punished because it refused to join in the condemnation of the Dominion Government for allowing the law to take its course in the case of Riel.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

SOLID WITH RIEL.

The victory won by the Liberals under Mr. Mercier in Quebec province yesterday is one of the most brilliant ever won by a political party.—Ottawa Free Press (Reform.)

A QUEBEC REFORMER.

A year ago the Herald was denouncing Mr. David for his violent appeals to his French-Canadian countrymen to drive the English out of the province of Quebec. To-day it will be rejoicing over his election to the Legislature. Mr. David has not, we believe, changed his views; it is the Herald that has swallowed itself.—Montreal Gazette

THE RIEL ISSUE.

As far as the returns are in at the time of writing, the Rouges are in a fair way either to defeat the Ross Government, or at least to crowd it so close as to make it totter. The defeat of the Attorney-General in Montreal East by David, the red-fire Parti-Nationale spouter of the Champ de Mars, shows that the Riel issue was uppermost. One thing at least has been proven by the Rouge gains:. Quebec will go against Sir John in a general election.—Toronto News (Indep.)

ITS ONE FAULT.

The Ross-Taillon Ministry is the best that the Conservative Party has given to Quebec; its one fault is that it refused to join in the condemnation of the Dominion Government for allowing the execution of Riel.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

Are you made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For sale by Ormond & Walsh.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

"Let me come in and speak to you, Mrs. Mead," said the girl in a low whisper. "I am leaving father and mother for good, but have no strength to walk all the way to Winston without a living voice to give me a word of comfort and advise me."

"To Winston! This time o' night! But come in, come in!" cried the old woman, lowering her voice with involuntary relish of this new mystery that had come to her very door, and looking backward at the staircase to make sure the tailor was not listening.

"Leaving father and mother for good!" said she, leading Jenny to a chair, and pushing the candle close to her that she might see her face. "Whatever are you doing that for?"

"Because father suspects me of speaking falsely," answered Jenny: "and I cannot bide with him to be thought sinful, and spurned at by the people."

"And for that your are leaving home!" exclaimed the old woman, who showed no symptom of sleepiness. "And you are going to Winston! What to do there, Miss Jenny?"

"My cousin, Bridget Lloyd, lives at Marples, and the coach passes Winston at eight in the morning. To Marples I am going, to ask Bridget to give me shelter until I can find my living."

"Well, indeed! And do ye mean to walk five mile to-night? Why, ye says t' coach doth not pass before eight, and where will ye stay till it comes?"

"I have not thought," answered Jenny with a heavy sigh. "But I will not stop in Greystone to be mocked. Oh, Mrs. Mead! to-morrow morning father would take me to London to show him the church where I was married, and this I cannot do. What then will he think? But it is not only because I cannot prove myself my dearest one's wife that I am leaving home. Because father thinks me a wicked sinner and a liar I am running away, and because all the town who have not a father's heart for me will think worse things of Jenny. Oh, may God lend me wisdom to know the right thing to do, and forgive me the sorrow I this night cause my mother!"

She bit her lip cruelly to restrain her tears, for she feared that the sight of them would move Mrs. Mead to hinder her desperate resolution.

"Before you move a step or say another word, ye shall have something to mend your spirits with," said the old woman, briskly, and entered her bedroom, whence in a few moments she returned, with a gown and shawl on, and, going to a cupboard, produced a little flask of cherry cordial, of which she obliged Jenny to swallow a glassful.

"It is a strange thing for you to do," said she, resuming her chair and twisting her scant gray tresses into a knot at the back of her head. "Doth your cousin, Mrs. Lloyd, know you are coming to her?"

"No," Jenny answered. "I did not make up my mind to leave home till father told me to get ready to quit for London with him in the morning. I should fear to be with him if we could not find the church. If he does not think me truthful then I am a sinner to him, and not fit for his house; and that is why I am leaving him forever!"

Her eyes flashed as she spoke, and the hard look of her mouth might have reminded Mrs. Mead of the deacon at his sternest. But the anger melted away, and she cried piteously, "You will tell my poor mother that you have seen me, and why I have left her? Father's harshness to me is breaking her heart, and what will she do when she finds her pretty one gone?" and she panted again to battle with her tears.

"Miss Jenny, if ye are wise, ye'll go home," said Mrs. Mead, nodding her head. "Why, what'll folks say when it's known you've roon away? Sure enough they'll call ye a guilty weuch, and you would not like that."

"They will call me that if I stay—why should they not, if father thinks it!—and never could I go into the street, nor meet human eyes, with this shame upon me!" she cried, despairingly.

"It's hard to know! it's hard to know!" groaned the old woman. "Would ye wish your mother to hear where you are?"

"No!" she answered quickly. "So that I am living and with friends, as you must tell her, Mrs. Mead, she will not despair. But no one must know where I am—not one, Mrs. Mead. Promise me that! Swear it!"

"I'll swear it if you please, Mrs. Jenny," replied Mrs. Mead, sympathetically giving the girl her wifely pretty. "But before ye make me take an oath just think awhile. If I swear, they may drown me and not get the truth. Suppose Mr. Cuthbert——"

"Ah!" exclaimed the girl, with a short, passionate cry, "if he should come—why, why, Mrs. Mead, you would tell him instantly; he would be eager and mad to find me, and I to be with him. O, heavenly Lord! if thou wouldst but give him to me now!" she cried, raising her clasped hands, while her voice died away into a soft, exquisitely musical plaintive note.

"I don't like this business—truly I would rather have no hand in it," said Mrs. Mead, slowly turning her face from side to side. "Thy father would come and burn my house down if he knew I had helped you to leave the town."

"You need not help me, I will go away now, Mrs. Mead, and leave you to your rest."

"That you shall not," cried the old woman, jumping up and laying her skinny hand on Jenny, who had risen. "Sit down, sit down, my pretty. Why, how long will it take ye to walk to Winston? Two hours, will it! And so you shall come to the village at three i' the morn, and have five hours to count the daisies in afore th' coach comes! Sit down! sit down! Ye'll not leave this house yet a bit, I'se warrant."

"But I will be on my way before the light comes and the people are up," answered Jenny, still standing.

"So ye shall, but not afore the light comes. Sit, mistress. Lord save your heart, 'tis easier nor standing, and I for one niver can think on my feet. Nowheers like bed for thinkin', say I, and then you're flat. Ye'll be changing your mind, I doubt, if ye'll sit and ponder."

Acquitted on One Indictment.

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 15.—Hand has been acquitted on the first indictment charging him with having caused the explosion at McCrae's house. The trial of the other indictments is postponed and the prisoner has been admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000.

FALL PLOUGHING.

If your land is a heavy clay it would be greatly benefited by fall ploughing. This would especially be the case where land has been in wheat for two or more years in succession, as is frequently the case in southern Indiana. The ploughing of such lands would bring to the surface the larvæ of many of our insect enemies, and expose them to the mercies of the birds and frosts, whereby a great many will be destroyed.

These are not by any means all the benefits that would accrue from fall ploughing; for by ploughing your land in the fall you can turn the weeds under that have sprung up in stubble before their seeds have matured, and thereby destroy a large number of seeds of noxious weeds which, if allowed to mature, would render the cultivation of the future crop much more difficult.

These remarks, of course, apply with equal force to any lands, whether stubble or sward, that is intended to produce a crop the following season.

In order to effectually turn the weeds under, your plough should be provided with a weed-hook, or have a chain adjusted to the end of the double tree and to the beam of the plough in such a manner as to drag the weeds down, so the plough would turn them under more perfectly.

This, in addition to destroying the seeds of noxious weeds, will provide young land with a good crop of green manure, which is an item worthy the consideration of any enterprising and widawake farmer.

There are other benefits to be derived from fall ploughing that should not be overlooked.

By exposing the soil to the action of the frosts its particles are more thoroughly separated and the whole mass reduced to a finer tilth than can be effected in any other manner.

There are still further important advantages to be derived from the practice of fall ploughing. In consequence of the strong attraction which exists between clay and those gases that are contained in the atmosphere, rain, snow and due, and the soil being turned up and exposed to them, it seizes up the ammonia, carbonic and nitric acid which they contain and holds them for future use.

The strong affinity which clay has for manurial gases almost effectually prevents any waste, by evaporation, of any it may contain. This seems to be sufficient to demonstrate to any thinking farmer the great advantage from fall ploughing.—Plowman.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Council met in Warsaw on Saturday, Oct. 2nd. The Reeve was absent till 2.30 p.m. at a school arbitration in Peterborough. In the meantime Mr. Kelly was appointed chairman. A claim made by Richard Gallagher, sen., respecting a road, was laid over till next meeting. The Clerk was instructed to put on Collector's roll 2½ days statute labor against Wm. H. Wilson, and 2½ days against Samuel Sherin. On motion it was resolved that for the future the Council will not hold itself responsible for the keep of Alexander Slavin. The consideration of closing a portion of road on lot 29, con. 6, was laid over to next meeting. The Clerk was instructed to write to the School Inspector respecting the formation of a union section. Orders granted—To E. Rorabeck, refund for clothes furnished A. Slavin, $5.75; to E. Rorabeck, keep of A. Slavin, 7 weeks, $21.00; to Duncan Ferguson, keep of A. Slavin, one week, $3.00. By-laws passed—One to establish a road on W. ½ lot 28, con. 5, and one to close a road on W. ½ lot 28, con. 5. Council adjourned till Saturday, the 6th November next.

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only preparation in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

☞ Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

Inspect our stock.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Personal.

Dr. Sawers, brother of Mr. C. W. Sawers, came over from Rochester to attend Mrs. Sawers' funeral. Mr. C. W. Sawers went back to Rochester with him this morning for one week.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Still in Demand.

Two more of Bolton's celebrated patent hot water boilers were sent out to-day, one to Messrs. F. & F. Whitlaw, plumbers, Queen street, East, Toronto, and the other to Mr. F. Mason's new greenhouse, town. A patent roller shaking grate was also shipped by Mr. Bolton to Messrs. Redfern & Lepan, hardware merchants, Owen Sound.

Accident.

On Saturday afternoon a young man named Mr. McAuliffe had his right hand nearly snipped off by a saw in Sperry's shingle mill. He was at work at a jointer, the saw of which is all encased except the top. His attention was diverted for a moment by something which was going on in the mill. He went to resume his work with his eyes still turned away, when he laid his hand on the rapidly revolving saw. The index finger was cut off near the top and the thumb and second finger were badly torn. Dr. King dressed the wounds.

THE CHOICEST and most serviceable assortment of Gent's Furnishings to be found in Peterborough at A. McNEIL's Habiliment Hall.

Legal.

The following case, which came up in Toronto on Friday, is thus reported in the Mail:—"Re Peterborough Real Estate and Investment Co. v. Patterson.—Argument of special case on the construction of a will. Poussette, Q. C., for the plaintiffs, R. C. Clute and W. Nesbitt and Edmison (Peterborough) for the adult defendants. J. K. Kerr, Q. C., for the infants. The clause in the will for construction reads, 'I give and devise to my selected children, Alexander Patterson and Mary Patterson, and their children and children's children forever, certain property. * * * Provided always that the aforesaid Alexander Patterson or Mary Patterson shall not be at liberty at any time or for any purpose to convey or dispose of the property, as it is my will that the same be entailed for the benefit of their children.' Alexander and Mary Patterson mortgaged the property to the plaintiffs, and the question is what estate were they possessed of at the time of the making of the mortgage. Reserved."

Orange Blossoms.

We find in the Brantford Courier the following account of the marriage of a lady, who, with her family, has many friends in Peterborough, who will unite with us in best wishes for her happiness:—"The marriage took place on Saturday, October 9th, at the residence of the bride's father, of Mr. Samuel Fuge, B. B. N. A., son of the Late Rev. Mr. Fuge, England, to Miss Mary Orde Rubidge, eldest daughter of W. B. Rubidge, Local Registrar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. C. Mackenzie, Rector of Grace Church, in the presence of relatives. Miss G. Rubidge, sister of the bride, acted at bridesmaid, and Mr. C. Chapman, B. B. N. A., as groomsman. The bride, who was attired in her travelling dress, was given away by her father. Mr. Fuge was for some months stationed in the Brantford branch of the North American bank and has many friends here, while the bride is universally known and beloved, and hearty wishes will be general that Mr. and Mrs. Fuge may live to long enjoy mutual happiness. The happy couple have left on a few days sojourn to Toronto, prior to taking up their residence in Hamilton, where Mr. Fuge is now stationed. The presents were more than ordinarily handsome and numerous, and good wishes were showered from every hand."

SCOTT ACT.

A Fine of $50 Imposed—R. N. Roddy up for the Third Time.

At the Court this morning W. H. Chamberlain was charged by Inspector Cochrane with having committed an infraction of the Scott Act. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

R. N. Roddy was charged by Inspector Cochrane with having committed an infraction of the Scott Act between August 1st and October 15th, the charge being laid as a third offence.

He pleaded not guilty.

Several witnesses were examined.

JOHN PERKINS swore that he got Moxie in Roddy's. It was not whiskey, but he thought there was whiskey in it.

The DEFENDANT—Did you get any drinks in my house in any shape or form since the last trial?

The MAGISTRATE—Now, Mr. Roddy, you must not interrupt the witness. You may ask all the questions you like at the proper time.

WITNESS continued—I was at Roddy's. What I got there was intoxicating. I felt the effects of it. It was paid for.

The MAGISTRATE—Now, Mr. Roddy, you may question him.

Mr. RODDY—Were you in my house since the last trial?

WITNESS—Oh, yes.

Mr. RODDY—Did you get anything to drink?

WITNESS—Yes, sir.

Mr. RODDY—Who did you get it from?

WITNESS—The bartender.

Mr. RODDY—Did you ever get anything from me?

WITNESS—No, sir.

Mr. RODDY—Did I order you out of my house and refuse you liquor several times?

WITNESS—Yes.

JOHN BUTCHER swore that he was at Roddy's a week ago Saturday. He went in to get a glass of beer. He got it. It was ordinary malt beer. In reply to Mr. Roddy he said that he received no pay for coming here. He was sorry to appear against him. He was brought here quite against his will, but being here he had to tell the truth.

At Mr. Roddy's request he tasted a glass of Calcutt's ginger ale. He said it was not that which he got at the hotel.

The MAGISTRATE asked for the defence.

Mr. RODDY stated that he had none to put in.

Mr. Wood closed his case.

Mr. RODDY—I'll ask for an adjournment for a week, your Worship.

The MAGISTRATE—I don't think I can grant an adjournment when the charge is brought home to you so clearly.

Mr. Roddy here stated that he never kept a hotel in this town, and everybody knew it.

The MAGISTRATE—But, Mr. Roddy, you assumed the responsibility publicly in this court.

Mr. RODDY—I assumed the responsibility of leasing the bar to another party. The present lessee is in Rochester to see his sick sister. I have nothing to do with the running of the bar. I simply want time to bring him back to prove what I say.

The MAGISTRATE—Well, Mr. Roddy, seeing that if convicted this time it will be a serious thing for you, I shall give you every opportunity to put in all the defence you can. What you say puts another face on the matter. I shall comply with your request for an adjournment. I shall adjourn it till Thursday.

Gough's Pumpkins.

The Gough pumpkin exhibition is progressing first rate. It promises to be a complete success. Already quite a number of competitors have come forward to fit on the overcoat. The prize pumpkin of the Peterborough exhibition and the prize ditto at Norwood are deposited at the store, but a man from the rural districts has come in and knocked both out with a stupendous specimen. It will now be in order for some one to go one better.

The Big Jubilee.

The Salvation Army are having a big time of it to-day. Meetings have been held throughout the day. Every train brings corps and contingents from different places in the Midland district. At half-past two o'clock this afternoon there was a march out, headed by the staff brass band. General Booth and suite are to be received with open arms when they get off the C. P. R. express this evening. A march will be made up town, and at 8 o'clock another big demonstration will be held in the Opera House. Corps and contingents will be here from Lindsay, Lakefield, Port Perry, Millbrook, Campbellford, Omemee, and other places.

ATKIN & SON'S Panel, Hand and Rip Saws are fully warranted. GEORGE STETHEM.

Success.

It is a pleasure to note the progress and rapid strides being made on every hand by keen, shrewd business men in competing one with the other for supremacy in their respective callings. Success in business means a great deal. It not only helps to make a contented and happy man out of the business man, but the success that he has had will secure for him in more ways than one the respect and confidence of the general public. If a farmer has been careful in the tilling of the soil, in sowing the golden grain, and in constantly keeping a watchful eye on everything in connection with the cultivation of his farm, he will assuredly (assisted by a kind Providence) reap a rich harvest, and consequently will be successful. Success means a great deal. For instance, if your tailor has been unsuccessful in fitting you with a nobby overcoat or winter suit, why don't you try A. McNEIL, Habiliment Hall? No fear of an unsuccessful attempt being made to please anyone there. "As you prove us, praise us!"

CLEVERLY CAPTURED.

A Burglar and Burglaress Caught this Afternoon.

This morning Mr. A. A. Goodfellow who keeps a general store at Frazerville, arrived at his place of business to find that burglars had paid him a visit during the night.

He toook a hasty look around and then resolved on a plan. He was "gone through" four weeks ago in a similar manner, and he thought it high time to prevent any future recurrence of the kind if he could possibly do so. The steps he saw imprinted in the soft earth convinced him that a woman who bought some trifles in the store on the previous evening had something to do with it.

He despatched his father on the way to Millbrook, another was sent to scour the country along the gravel road line, while he himself, effectually disguised, boarded the 8.30 train and came to Peterborough, keeping a sharp lookout along the line as the train sped forward.

He got off the train a short distance from town and walked back down the line a way, and sure enough he came across the man who accompanied the woman to the store on the evening previous. Believing that he was now on the right track he passed quickly on, and when the "gent" was nearly out of sight turned and followed him.

Mr. Man came on up to town and Mr. Goodfellow followed at a convenient distance. In town the latter hired a boy to track his man till he put the police on the trail. This done the man was shadowed till this afternoon when he went south. With the assistance of Mr. J. R. Goodfellow's rig a member of the force was driven down while others followed on foot. At about two miles from town the man disappeared into the bushes. The officers here closed in and found the woman comfortably reclining on an improvised couch. A quiet arrest was made and P. C Pidgeon brought the pair to town. A quantity of the stolen good was recovered. The examination of the prisoners will take place to-morrow morning.

Thomas in Trouble.

Thomas Beavis, Esq., has got entangled in the meshes of trouble. Even his depth of legal lore has been found inadequate to the occasion. On Saturday night his mare jumped over the yard fence, or some one let her out, or something to that effect. At all events she got out and roamed the streets. P.C.'s Pidgeon and McGinty seized her as lawful prey and escorted her off to one of the dens where stray animals are usually kept. This morning Mr. Beavis mixed up a most toothsome bran-mash for the equine, but when he got there the yard was all bare and so the poor mare got none. Mr. Beavis says that $5 would not induce him to again perform the pedestrian feat he performed this morning. After traversing almost the whole town he found that the P. C.'s had impounded the stray. Mr. Beavis closetted himself with his lawyer, and when he came out he resolved to issue a replevin.

"Imitation is the Sincerest Flattery."

If the above quotation is true, then Dr. R. V. Pierce ought to feel highly flattered on account of the many imitators of his popular remedy, the "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," for they have scores of imitators, but never an equal, for the cure of sick and bilious headache, constipation, impure blood, kidney pains, internal fever and all bowel complaints. With a bottle of the sugared granules in the house you can dispense with the family doctor and his often nauseous medicines

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1886.

GEN. BOOTH'S ADDRESS.

ABOUT THE GREAT RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT OF THE PRESENT AGE.

He Defends the Methods of the Salvation Army—He says Its Object is to Save the World.

Monday was an eventful day in the history of the Peterborough corps of the Salvation army—a day in the life time. The father of an orgazination carrying on the work of the Master in its own way in nineteen countries, preaching to people in twenty two languages,—the general of an army having four thousand officers, paid Peterborough a visit.

All day the soldiers and officers from points in the district kept arriving; and not only these but private citizens anxious to see the organizator of so great a movement.

He arrived on the 6.42 train over the Canadian Pacific railway. He was accompanied by a staff composed of Col. Dowdle North England; Staff Capt. Vint, London Commissioner Coombs and Staff Capt. Eadie, Canada. A great crowd of people were at the station composed largely of Salvationists. The staff brass band played a welcoming air as General Booth alighted from the coach. A march was formed, and the General and staff was escorted to the residence of Mr. John Douglass for lunch, while the others marched back to the Opera House.

At eight o'clock the electric lamps looked down on an enthusiastic gathering. The hall was filled to its outside capacity, many having to accept standing room. The brass band ranged along in front of the stage, which the stage itself was crowded with smiling lassies and uniformed Capt's and Lieut's of the sterner sort. There were about a hundred on the stage.

Special Capt. Philpott extended an invitation to the reverend gentlemen who were present to come to the platform, adding that he would not tell them to take up their beds and walk but he would request them to bring their chairs with them as there was a scarcity of seats up on the stage. The Revs. L. Tovell, E. F. Torrance, F. H. Wallace and G. H. Davis went up.

A few minutes afterwards the General preceeded by the numbers of the staff entered and were received with deafening acclaim—drumbeating, blowing of cornets and base horns, waving of handkerchiefs, and shaking of tambourines. The members of the staff returned the salute. The General gazed silently with his arms folded. After this was subsided Commissioner Coombs said "let us all pray," calling upon Col. Dowdle to offer prayer. The latter prayed standing up with his arms and eyes lifted upward.

Then the hall was made to resound with "We're marching on to glory." The soldiers and officers, sang it and the band played it till the building was almost made to shake.

The General knelt and sung another song. The soldiers and officers knelt and joined it it. Col. Dowdle prayed again after which Commissioner Coombs introduced the man of many towns, Staff Capt. Vint, the man who worked among organ grinders and ice cream sellers.

The captain sang a song about how he joined the ranks of the army and brought his wife with him.

Col. Dowdle, a well built man of about 50, was introduced as not being a member of the Starvation Army. He addressed a few words to the audience, expressing faith in the Salvation Army as an instrument to do the work allotted to it. He gave instances of souls being saved when at the last extremity—when all hope seemed gone and how whole families had been gathered in by God's use of a single covert. He himself had experienced the blessed results of being saved. He could say that he loved God's work. He loved God with every passion of his soul. He loved God with all his heart, and soul, and might and his neighbor as himself. He knew God's spirit to produce in him satisfaction and peace and joy.

A song and chorus "We'll fight till we die and never run away" was sung.

General Booth is what might be called a spare man of sixty winters. His figure is on the slight side, he has a prominent nose, keen sharp eyes, a flowing black beard well streaked with the silver threads and hair of the same color and condition. When he is speaking he leans forward, makes a judicious use of gesticulations, and charms with his not unpleasant voice and remarkably exhilarating wit, and by his marked earnestness and fullness of sympathy.

GENERAL BOOTH, before commencing his address, went down from the stage and stood on a chair in front of the audience, observing that in both love and war it was better to be near than far away. He wanted to be near enough to shake hands with the people; he wanted to be friendly with them, and he wanted them to be friendly with the Army. It was because people did not understand the Army that they were against it. He [illegible] the operations of the Army so that they would understand it. People might say: "Well, that's a big blast from your trumpet to begin with," but he thought so, and he was going to say that he thought. He believed in the Salvation Army. (Shouts of Glory be to God). The class of people whom they had the most difficulty to explain the working of the Army to were the church people. The drunkard, the heathen, and the thief understood it immediately, but those who had got into different ruts and usages could not seemingly understand them. Now he was not going to say one word, even by implication, which would tend to lower anybody's estimate of the church people. All he had to say was that they had great difficulty in persuading the church people to understand the Army. He wanted the good will and prayers of the people present for the Army. It would do them no harm and it would do the Army a great deal of good. He was going to give reasons why an organization like the Army should be in existence. One morning a Welshman was coming down a mountainside when through the misty distance he saw an object which he knew not. At last he came to the conclusion that it was the very devil himself. Mustering courage he went up and found the object to be his brother. So with the Salvation Army; if Christian brethren would only clear the mist from their eyes they would find the Army people to be their brethren in Christ. He spoke to christian people now. Those who believed that men and women must be saved,—who believes in the Bible and immortality,—who believed in the alleviation of human misery through Christ Jesus,—who believed in the Judgement Day,—who believed they are responsible for the salvation of mankind. The population of the world is 1,500,000,000 and two thirds of that number were yet in darkness. It was true that the missionaries had succeeded in connecting 20,000,000 during the last century but during that time the worlds population had increased 200,000,000. The bulk of this increase was among the Heathens. But even in this civilized land there was abundant room for missionaries. In Chicago he was told that 95 out of every hundred never went across the threshold of a church. There all the damning influences were sending men to hell as fast on Sunday as on any other day. Everybody would agree that something should be done. The Salvation Army had come out in a honest attempt to do something—to grapple with the great sin of the world. One day as he looked on the misery, vice and degredation of the east end of London his heart cried within him "Cannot something be done for this people." He believed the Holy Ghost sounded in his very bowels—do something for these dying millions. Missionaries had been sent to foreign lands to convert the Heathen, but he said to himself here are Heathens to convert. He made an attempt to do something. This is now the Salvation Army originated. He knew if he could open the ears and hearts of this people to Christ's message he would be sure of success. It was because they did not think that they were lost. They rang the bells and rang and rang and rang till thousands responded and quenched their thirst for another life. Some people object to the Army because of the uniforms; but they did not wear these odd clothes because they liked to. These were merely the bait to catch their fish. It was, as he said, an honest attempt to save the sinner. Gordon's name was revered because he made an honest attempt to save the slaves at Khartoum; he was unsuccessful but the Salvation Army were completely successful. He told a story of a philantrophic gentleman in the old country who objected to the odd uniforms, but with his criticism sent a cheque for $5,000. They could stand lots of criticism like that, but they never would give up their color—the red—the color emblematic of the Lord Jesus Christ's suffering. But the Salvation Army had been a great success, and if he could make a procession of the thousands of drunkards who had been reformed, the thousands of wives who had again been made happy, the tens of thousands of ragged children that were now comfortably clothed, and the tens of thousand of sinners who had found Christ—if he could make the procession pass by everybody would say who saw it, "God bless the Salvation Army." (Chorus of amens). A friend of his—a skeptic—but who had a warm heart toward humanity, leaned his head on a mantle piece and said to another, "What are we doing, Bradlaugh, and the rest, for the uplifting of the race?" Another writer had said in cold blood that the drunkards would have to be abandoned to their doom, as there was no hope. But the Salvation Army said "No, no, no! let us have them; we can save them."

The Army was now 21 years old, it having celebrated its majority last year, when nationalities from the red Indian to the Chinese came to celebrate the majority. There never was such a meeting since the days of the Apostles. Eight years ago the Army was like a bird about to take her flight. She poised herself, wheeled around, took her bearings, and then shot off in a straight line for the salvation of mankind. Eight years ago there were 25 corps (a corps is a self-managing, self-sustaining organization); to-day there were 1,650. Eight years ago there were 35 officers; to-day there were 4,000 leading this mighty host. The Army had invaded 19 different countries and the Gospel was preached in 22 different languages. Invasions of Italy and Jamaca would shortly take place. The War Cry, the organ of the Army, was printed in nine different tongues, and its circulation was $500,000 a week. He asked them to look what God had done. The General then went on to defend the modes and methods of the army. It was no more harm he argued to beat a piece of parchment than to pound a piece of metal. Churches rang the people in and they drummed them in. He forgot to say what a great blessing the army was to the churches. In South Wales one minister was baptising all day Sunday and another all Sunday and Monday the converts they received through the Army. A secular paper observed that it hoped the reverend gentlemen would not have the rheumatics. The Army did not oppose those who were in God's service. About dress he stated that those who received such great strength from the Army sometimes objected to what the soldiers wore and the music they played. But, said he, turning to the bonnets and caps behind him, "We'll wear what we like, won't we?" (Shouts of yea, yea.) Yellow, if we like, continued the General. He drew a vivid picture of a house on fire. A man rushed up and cried out, "My wife's in there." All the people tried to do what they could. A ladde was brought and the brave fireman mounted it. He entered the window. The people stood with bated breath. At last he brought out the wife and one by one the children. After all was over a man comes up and says; this fireman did not dress himself becomingly while he was saving that woman and those children. He wore a red shirt and his boots. Now, what would the people say to such a man as that? They would tell him to go to the lunatic asylum or some where else. And yet this was a parallel case with the salvation Army. They were bound to save no matter how they were dressed. As far as music was concerned it all belonged to the Lord. If the devil got hold of a good tune he had no right to it. The devil's portion was discord, nothing else. Once he was moved to tears while he and his soldiers were singing a hymn to the tune of "Champagne Charlie." He did not know what tune it was then. In answer to statements that he had seen he had not an income of £80,000 a year, that he did not eat out of a silver dish, that he did not live in great state in London at the Army's expense. He had never taken a copper of Army funds for his personal use. (Hear, hear.) He made a strong appeal for help to prosecute the great work, and said that if all Christians would consecrate themselves to God he was convinced that the world would be converted in not much more than 12 months.

The meeting closed with prayer.

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS.

Terrible Report From Tonquin—The Vatican Asks the Aid of France.

ROME, Oct. 17.—Reports have been received here of the most barbaric cruelties inflicted upon Catholic Christians in Tonquin While missionaries were killed as well as their native converts, the ingenuity of torture was reserved for the latter. Harrowing details have been received. In one community five hundred Christians were cruelly put to death. The old men and women were thrown into deep trenches and burried alive. The infants and children were disembowelled in the presence of their parents. And the old and the young having been thus disposed of, the remainder were put to death native fashion. Upon some was inflicted ling chi, which means that the victim must be cut into a thousand pieces, the executioner selecting the least vital portions until death finally results, after incredible pain, from loss of blood. Others were flogged to death with scourges dipped in boiling oil. Others had their legs and arms amputated, while the trunks were thrown to one side, while some were fastened between planks and sawn asunder. All that fiendish ingenuity could suggest was done. The Vatican appeals to France for aid and counsel in the work of putting a stop to these inhuman practices.

Cattle Ranching Business.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18.—Moreton Frewen, the well-known Montana cattle man, is in the city. He speaks very highly of the advantages Canada possesses for ranching over the United States, and thinks that a great business will be done by supplying the English market. He is very confident as to the success of the Hudson Bay Railway enterprise, whose financial interest he has been engaged in forwarding.

Slaughter of Infected Cattle.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The slaughter of 2,200 quarantined distillery cattle began yesterday in the usual way. The State veterinaries conducted the post mortem in each case. Only one infected animal was found. The meat of the others was pronounced superb. It is understood that all the meat except that of the animal condemned was disposed of to local butcher shops.

"Imitation is the Sincerest Flattery."

If the above quotation is true, then Dr. R. V. Pierce ought to feel highly flattered on account of the many imitators of his popular remedy, the "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," for they have scores of imitators, but never an equal, for the cure of sick and bilious headache, constipation, impure blood, kidney pains, internal fever and all bowel complaints. With a bottle of the sugared granules in the house you can dispense with the family doctor and his often nauseous medicines

DETECTIVES AND DECOYS.

When a hotelkeeper of the name of Hands was charged with having procured the dynamite explosion at Mr. McCrae's house in Sarnia, Reform journals asked why the Conservative press did not object to the employment of detectives in this case, when they so strongly condemned the steps taken by Mr. Mowat to detect the alleged attempt to bribe members of the Legislature.

We pointed out then the wide difference between detectives and decoys. The trial has now taken place, and the proceedings throw still more light upon this difference. An atrocious crime was committed at Sarnia; of that there is no doubt, but the jury seem not to have considered it safe to convict upon the evidence laid before them. Now we do not propose to place ourselves in the position of a court of appeal from the verdict. The jury heard the evidence, they heard the addresses of counsel and the judge's charge, and were therefore better qualified than ourselves to form an opinion, which we must suppose they did conscientiously.

The principal witness for the Crown, a detective, swore that he lied to the prisoner to gain his confidence. The next most important witness swore that he obtained money from the prisoner's wife under false pretences. The jury evidently thought that the evidence of such men was not worthy of implicit credit, otherwise they must have returned a verdict of guilty. Now detectives of this class are not greatly esteemed, just as a hangman is not much respected, though they are necessary for the ends of justice. But, however little admiration we may feel for this detective, Greer, and his methods, we have no right to suppose that he would have sunk so low as Mr. Mowat and his colleagues, as Mr. McKim and his brother decoys. In the Sarnia case the wrong had been committed and the detective endeavoured by immoral methods to find out the guilty party and obtain his conviction so as to receive the reward. In the alleged bribery case, Messrs. Mowat, McKim & Co. went much further than this. No offence had been committed, but they exerted themselves to the utmost by lying, by begging and by persuasion to procure the commission of an offence in order that they might be rewarded for exposing their accomplices. And the decoys were no worse than their employers, who were acquainted with, and, indeed, suggested this iniquity, with the same object of serving their own personal ends. Greer would have descended to the same level as Mowat, McKim & Co. if he had endeavoured to persuade Hands to blow up McCrae's house in order to secure his own gain by the conviction of his accomplice and victim. Greer is certainly not a nice man, but it would be unjust to suspect him of being as bad as that.

HELP FOR MR. MOWAT.

In the London Advertiser we find the following editorial note:—

"Mr. Laurier is shortly to deliver an address in the county of Essex, and there is some talk of inviting him to stop off at London and address a meeting in the Princess Rink. We think the crowd that would rush to listen to this talented Canadian orator and statesman would test our flexible rink to the utmost."

It will be remembered that this man, who is thus welcomed to Ontario by a leading journal of the Reform-Rielite combination, is an avowed rebel and a perjured man, false to his oath as a member of the Privy Council, whose roll his name defiles. This Mr. Laurier has been one of the foremost in the agitation to reduce the English speaking people of Canada to the condition of political slaves of the Quebec Frenchmen. He is the advocate of the right of any man of his race and creed to shoot down our young men without fear of punishment for his crime. He claims that a Government daring to punish a Quebec man must be dismissed, though supported by all the other Provinces of the Dominion. And this is the man that is welcomed to Ontario by a Reform organ. His errand in Essex is to assist Mr. Mowat's friend and candidate, Pacaud, the base slanderer of our brave volunteers and of the Canadian authorities, for Mr. Mowat has also joined this French conspiracy against the rest of the Dominion.

GIVE THE FACTS.

In an editorial note the Toronto Globe says:—

"It is true that the high taxation policy has succeeded admirably in raising the prices of what the farmer has to buy, but it has failed miserably in raising the prices of what he has to sell."

We will not now discuss the terms in which the Globe expresses its deliberate falsehood, uttered with the diabolical design of injuring its country, but we would ask it to come down to simple facts. We defy it to name any two things which the farmer has to buy, that are higher in price than before the adoption of the National Policy. It will not accept our challenge, for it knows that its statement is a wilful falsehood, and it dare not allow this to be tested by giving particulars, which an enquiry of any dealer would show to be unfounded. It will admit its disregard for veracity by silence, and after a time will impudently repeat its falsehood.

DEATH OF STONEWALL JACKSON.

An Eye-Witness Describes How He Was Shot Down by His Own Troops.

When Jackson had reached the point where his new line now crossed the turnpike, scarcely a mile west of Chancellorsville, and not half a mile from a line of Federal troops, he had found his front line unfit for the farther and vigorous advance he desired, by reason of the irregular character of the fighting, now right, now left, and because of the dense thickets, through which it was impossible to preserve alignment, says Capt. James Power Smith, describing the great rebel commander's last battle, in the Century. Division commanders found it more difficult as the twilight deepened to hold their broken brigades in hand. Regretting the necessity of relieving the troops in front, General Jackson had ordered A. P. Hill's division, his third and the reserve line, to be placed in front. While this change was being affected, impatient and anxious the general rode forward to the turnpike, followed by two or three of his staff and a number of couriers and signal-sergeants. He passed the swampy depression and began the ascent of the hill toward Chancellorsville, when he came upon a line of the federal infantry lying on their arms. Fired at by one or two muskets (two muskets balls from the enemy whistled over my head as I came to the front he turned and came back toward his line, upon the side of the road to his left. As he rode near to the confederate troops just placed in position, and ignorant that he was in the front, the left company began firing to the front and two of the party fell from their saddles dead—Capt. Boswell of the engineers and Sergeant Cunliffe of the signal corps. Spurring his horse across the road to his right he was met by a second volley from the right company of Pender's North Carolina brigade. Under this volley, when not two rods from the troops, the general received three balls at the same instant. One penetrated the palm of his right hand. A second passed around the wrist of the left arm and out through the left hand. But a third ball passed through the left arm halfway from shoulder to elbow. The large bone of the upper arm was splintered to the elbow joint and the wound bled freely. His horse turned quickly from the fire through the thick bushes, which swept the cap from the General's head and scratched his forehead, leaving drops of blood to stain his face. As he lost his hold upon the bridle rein he reeled from the saddle and was caught by the arms of Capt. Milbourne, of the signal corps. Laid upon the ground there came to his succor Gen. A. P. Hill and members of his staff. The writer reached his side a minute after, to find Gen. Hill holding the head and shoulders of the wounded chief. Cutting open the coat-sleeve from wrist to shoulder I found the wound in the upper arm, and with my handkerchief I bound the arm above the wound to stem the flow of blood. Couriers were sent to Dr. Hunter McGuire, the surgeon of the corps and the General's trusted friend, and for an ambulance. Being outside of our lines it was urgent that he should be removed at once. With difficulty litter-bearers were brought from the line near by, the general placed upon the litter, and carefully to the shoulder, I, myself, bearing one corner. A moment after artillery from the federal side was opened upon us; great broadsides thundered over the woods; hissing shells searched the dark thickets through, and shrapnels swept the road along which we moved. Two or three steps further and the litter bearer at my side was struck and fell, but as the litter turned Major Watkins Leigh of Hill's staff happily caught it. But the fright of the men was so great that we were obliged to lay the litter and its burden down upon the road. As the litter-bearers ran to the cover of the trees I threw myself by the general's side and held him firmly to the ground as he attempted to rise. Over us swept the rapid fire of shot and shell—grape shot striking fire upon the flinty rock of the road all around us, and sweeping from their feet horses and men of the artillery just moved to the front. Soon the firing veered to the other side of the road and I sprang to my feet, assisted the general to rise, passed by arm around him, and with the wounded man's weight thrown heavily upon me we forsook the road. Entering the woods he sank to the ground from exhaustion; but the litter was soon brought, and again rallying a few men we essayed to carry him farther, when the second bearer fell at my side. This time, with none to assist, the litter careened and the general fell to the ground with a groan of deep pain. Greatly alarmed I sprang to to his head, and lifted his head. As a stray beam of moonlight came through the clouds and leaves he opened his eyes and wearily said: "Never mind me captain; never mind me!" Raising him again to his feet he was accosted by Brigade Gen. Pender: "Oh, general, I hope you are not seriously wounded. I will have to retire my troops to re-form them, they are much broken by this fire." But Jackson, rallying his strength with firm voice said: "You must hold your ground, Gen. Pender; you must hold your own ground, sir!" and so uttered his last command on the field.

STRANGE STORIES.

Artistic Gems Gathered in by the Best Liars in the Country.

Talk about the nineteenth century! In Corea the other day an old man, his wife, two daughters, grandchild and son's wife were hanged because they belonged to the family of a Corean soldier who took part in the conspiracy of December, 1884.

Most people think a somnambulist is never injured in a sleep walk. G. Brown, a New York somnambulist, got out of bed a few nights ago, walked to the window of his room on the second floor of a building, stood there a moment and then jumped off into space. He brought up on the sidewalk badly injured and screaming like a madman.

A Mississipi woman had her tin-type taken, and as her husband fondly gazed at it he discovered that she had the biggest mouth he ever saw on a human female. His assertion led to a sharp retort, and in the row that followed the photographer was stabbed, and the husband hit by a bullet, and the wife had her arm broken. She ought to have known better.

Anna Hawley, whose father lives near Portland, Vt., has romantic ideas. She is just 18 and is very beautiful, and has been carefully educated. Tuesday she cut her hair, dressed herself in male attire, stole one of her father's horses, and left for parts unknown. A note from her was found which said she would never return to her father's house.

When they hear the loons crying, the Passamaquody Indians think it is a sure sign of a hard wind. If the feathers are thick on the partridges legs or the bears den early, they believe a long, cold winter is coming. If they see a beaver carrying a stick, a storm is approaching. It is a sure sign of death to have partridges hovering about the house. If the dog barks in the night, a stranger will come next day.

Some enterprising people in Belgium have applied the telephone to a novel use. Little bells are supplied and fitted to the beds of all who desire to rise early in the morning, but connot do so of their own accord. A certain time is fixed and communicated to the central station, and at the precise moment agreed upon the current is turned on and the bells commence to ring, and continue doing so until the slumberer awakes, leaves his couch and informs the head office that he has had enough.

John Robbins, a barber of Lafayette, Ind., found the bartender asleep in a saloon that he frequented, and thought it would be a good joke to take the cash drawer and hide it, and thus scare him. But the sleeper happened to awake just as John had the drawer in his hands, and, not seeing any joke, had him arrested, and the jury that tried him was also deficient in humor and convicted him, and he was sentenced to a year in prison. His friends are trying to get a pardon, as it is pretty clear he had no idea of stealing the money.

The business of killing deer for their skins is still carried on in Oregon. In every direction in Coos, Curry and Jackson counties the camps of these skin hunters are found, and around them are the carcasses rotting on the ground. Two hunters will start out with a pack-horse, each loaded with provisions for two weeks, and at the end of that time return with their horses loaded with 100 to 150 deer skins. For these they get about fifty cents each.

A Buffalo newspaper tells of a young man, the usual well known young society man, of course, who wrote to a pretty girl in the east whom he had met and admired, asking her in the course of the letter a good many questions. She answered promptly, not the questions, but the letter, and asked some questions on her own hook such as these: "What kind of tooth powder do you use? Who gave you this name? Do worms think? What do you think of the pre-Adamitist theory? Are the Jews going to return to Russia? If you are discovered, are you found?" The young man thinks that she's making fun of him.

HUDSON BAY ROUTE.

A United States View of the Use of It—A Short Route.

When this line of railway is completed, should the navigation of Hudson straits prove as easy as is now anticipated, it will produce some startling results. Winnipeg is now in the very centre of this continent, but the railway will bring it within 3,500 miles of Liverpool, or only 400 miles further than New York. As against Montreal, it will show a result almost as favorable. This means the saving of more than a thousand miles of railway haulage for the European bound freight of all the territory in the Canadian and American North-West beyond the longitude of Winnipeg, that is to say, for Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho, as well as for Manitoba and the whole north-west of Canada. That the grain and cattle of this vast region will go to Europe by way of Hudson Bay and not by New York or Montreal during the summer is a proposition that needs no demonstration. The short route will be certain to win in the end. —Brooklyn (N.Y.) Eagle.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winislow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

THE ENGLISH COUNTIES.

The English counties nobly responded to the appeal to maintain in power a Ministry that has restored the finances to a sound condition, and has resolutely set its face against the attempt to excite race prejudice and religious intolerance, not a single Liberal Protestant having been returned, while the Government English supporters number nine.—Montreal Gazette.

RIEL AVENGED BY MONTREAL EAST.

Mr. David's friends gave him quite an ovation yesterday evening. A large procession, headed by the Harmony Band, left the St. James market about 8 o'clock and marched through the principal streets of the East End and the centre of the city. Several transparencies with appropriate mottoes were carried in the ranks of the procession, and in the rear came a carriage drawn by four grays and bearing the M.P.P. elect. A pyrotechnic display was made on the square in front of St. James Church, where a scaffold had been erected with the inscription, "Riel Vengé."—Montreal Witness (Reform).

A PARTY CRY.

The National cry was a powerful weapon; but it would have made more ravages if it had not degenerated into a party cry.—La Presse (Riellte).

JUSTICE DENOUNCED AS TREASON.

The Ross administration is a thing of the past. The traitors to the Canadian nationality have been beaten along the whole line, and the Hon. Mr. Mercier will before long be the leader of the truly national administration of the Province of Quebec.—La Patrie (Reform).

THE RIELITES REVENGE.

The struggle is over and the Province may breathe freely. It has lived under the sorry pendard regime. Quebec felt the blow it received on 16th of November. What a revenge we have had! How thorough too! How happy the patriots were last night!—La Patrie (Reform).

FRENCH ASCENDENCY.

Mr. Ross may weather the storm, but the race and revenge party have nevertheless given proofs of their power which cannot be disregarded by any Quebec politician and must have serious results on the welfare of the Dominion. There be no doubt that a considerable majority of the new Quebec Legislature will be filled with the sentiment of French ascendency in Dominion affairs.—Toronto World (Indep.)

DUTY OF EVERY CITIZEN.

As the World desires the development of Canada's greatness by Canadians, under a Canadian Government, it enters a decided protest against French rule, whether it is presented by Liberal or Conservative. French Canadians must of course be treated justly and fairly like any other class, but if a Frenchman twice rebels, many times murders and calls the Indians of the North west to rob and murder the unoffending settlers on the prairies, the World believes that he should be punished as the law directs. To do otherwise would be to acknowledge the French people to be like absolute rulers of the country, to be above the law. In the interests of internal peace, of the safety of property, of Canadian union, we say that it is the duty to every citizen to aid in putting down this revolutionary movement.—Toronto World (Indep).

PROTECT THE IRON INDUSTRY.

At the present time Nova Scotia needs more protection. We have coal mines and iron mines, among the richest in the world. With a protective tariff which would virtually prohibit the importation of foreign iron, millions of capital would be immediately invested in the development of our mineral resources. Since confederation there have been imported into Canada, for home consumption, iron, steel, rail, castings, hardware, etc., to the amount of $343,-[illegible]. Place a prohibitive tariff on these foreign products and Nova Scotia will become the Pennsylvania of the Dominion, while every form of iron manufacture will spring up in our midst. Nova Scotia needs protection and more of it.—Halifax Herald.

OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Our public school system is one of which we boast. It has done and is doing a vast work in training our youth, eradicating ignorance and disseminating knowledge. But on the other hand it is as surely alienating the tastes of young men from the agricultural pursuits which it is desirable that most of them should follow. We have reached a state of things in which the young men of the rural districts will not stay on the farms their fathers tilled. Say what we may the education of the day breeds dislike for manual labour. The farms go wanting their needed culture while the farmers' sons crowd the ranks of clerkships, the overcrowded professions, or the equally thronged avenues of business skill[illegible] or seek for petty government offices, or leave the country. Where will the end be?—St. John, N. B. Daily Telegraph.

MORE MARINE DISASTERS.

Further Particulars of the Storm on the British Coast—Several Vessels Wrecked.

LONDON Oct. 18.—The following additional particulars of the recent storm have been received. The British steamer "Artos," Capt Whittles, from New York, September 29, for Borceaux, has been lost on Point de la Coubre, at the northern mouth of the Gironde. Wreckage from the steamer and part of her cargo is washing ashore. The British steamer "Kate," Capt. Durkee, from Savannah, September 29, for Liverpool, has arrived at Queenstown disabled. She shipped immense quantities of water and broke twenty-five steam pipes. Her decks are much damaged. The Norwegian barque "Ornen," Captain Nielsen, from Mobile for Goolbon, has been towed to Cowes. She lost her sails. Three of her crew died of ague, and others are suffering from the malady. The British barque "Rutland," Captain Casey, from Quebec for Greenock, has been abandoned off Lundy Island. The mate and carpenter were drowned, and other members of the crew rescued and landed at Falmouth, some of them injured.

The Columbia Coasting Trade.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 18.—Captain Irving, of Victoria, B. C., arrived here yesterday He is en route for Montreal to consult the Canadian Pacific officials relative to the coasting trade between the terminus and the Sound ports, as well as a service to Victoria. He wishes to get their support to a scheme to place on the Victoria route a fleet of rapid steamers that will accomplish the journey in about four hours' time.

Progress of Kingston.

KINGSTON, Oct. 18.—During the past year buildings to the value of $175,000 or $200,000 have been erected. Skilled labor was never better in greater demand. During the past ten years, while the population has only increased about 2,000, the value of property has now advanced from $5,411,894 to $6,924,075.

MOWAT FOR RIEL.

The Premier of Ontario Congratulates the Advocates of Rebellion.

The Reform Montreal Witness publishes the following message of congratulation received by Mr. Mercier, the Quebec leader of the advocates of rebellion and murder by Frenchmen, from Mr. Mowat, the Attorney General of Ontario. How do the loyal people of Ontario like to be represented by a Premier who allies himself with the cry of the right of French Canadians or their half-breed descendants to shoot down the young men of Ontario without punishment?

The following is Mr. Mowat's vile expression of treason to his own Province:—

"To the Hon. H. Mercier, M.P.P., 88 Berri street:

"PENETANGUISHENE, Ont., Oct. 16.—Have just received here the joyful news of your great triumph. I congratulate you and all our friends on your important victory, may your premiership be a long one and full of advantage to your Province and the Dominion, and of honor to yourself.

"O. MOWAT,
"Prime Minister of Ontario."

A peculiar virtue in Ayer's Sarsaparilla is, that while it cleans and purges the blood from all corruptions and impurities, and thereby roots out disease, it invigorates the whole system, and makes one young again.

The Cobourg Board of Assessment Commissioners show an increase in assessed value of property of about $700,000 since last year.

The St. Petersburg Nouoe Vremya says the time is now auspicious for France to raise the Egyptian question, and declares Russia will not hinder her.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proven that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents and removes dandruff, cools and cleanses the scalp, and stimulates the hair to renewed growth.

Mr. Moretou Frewen, the well-known cattle-raiser of Montana, declares the Canadian North-West to be far superior for ranching to the United States.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Restores the color, gloss, and youthful freshness of the hair; stimulates a rich and luxurious growth; thoroughly cleanses the scalp; prevents dandruff and humors; and is the most cleanly and effective preparation for the hair ever offered to the public. Rev. J. W. Davenport, Illinois Bend, Texas, writes: "Ayer's Hair Vigor, used in my family for several years, has no equal as a dressing, nor for preventing the hair from falling out or turning prematurely gray. It ranks among the first luxuries of our house." Miss Kate Rose, Ingersoll, Ontario, writes: "While keeping my head clear of dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, Ayer's Hair Vigor has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as could be desired." The wife of Dr. V. S. Lovelace, Lovelaceville, Ky., had very bad tetter sores upon her head, causing the hair to fall out. Ayer's Hair Vigor healed the sores, and in less than twelve months produced hair a foot long.

For sale by all Druggists.

No More Bald Heads,

To produce a new growth of hair on bald heads, in the case of persons advanced in years, is not always possible. When the glands are decayed and gone, no stimulant can restore them; but, when they are only inactive, from the need of some excitant, the application of Ayer's Hair Vigor will renew their vitality, and a new growth will result. L. V. Templeton, Newbern, N. C., writes: "After a protracted illness, with fever, my hair all came out, leaving me entirely bald. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, before I had used all its contents, a thick growth of hair, nearly two inches long, covered my head." L. D. McJunkin, Perryville, Md., writes: "Baldness is hereditary in my family. Five years ago the hair on the top of my head was becoming weak and thin. I procured Ayer's Hair Vigor, the application of which invigorated the hair roots, and sent out a new growth of young hair. To-day my hair is as thick and vigorous as ever. I still use the Vigor occasionally to keep my scalp in a healthy condition."

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine "Coraline," we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods. Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

GO!

It is remarkable how u Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

Inspect our stock.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Holland Bulb.

Two barrels of Holland Bulb just arrived at Mason's Seed and Plant House.

Personal.

Mr. J. M. Quinn, of the firm of C. L. Mallory & Co., Toronto, called on us to-day. He is down closing up an estate in the vicinity of Keene.

Immense Bargains!

Such is the exclamation of anyone who visits the Bon Marche sale now going on. Although the goods have been selling fast, the stock is by no means diminished, for new goods are continually being added.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Foresters, Attention!

Messrs. Gammage and Elliott, Grand High Chief Ranger and Grand High Secretary, will be here this evening. A meeting of Foresters will be held at 7.30 o'clock, in Court Peterborough hall, after which an adjournment will be made to Daly's Restaurant, where a dinner will be served. Delegates will be in attendance from Norwood and Lakefield.

A Novelty.

The ladies of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church will hold "A Dairy Maid Social" in the school room on Thursday evening, the 21st inst. Every effort has been put forth to make this entertainment as attractive as novel. The most eminent local talent have kindly promisted their assistance. Admission, refreshments included, of which the latter will be superior, 25 cts.

Mikado Social.

All arrangements have been completed for the Mikado social to be held in St. John's School House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 27th and 28th Oct. The room will be handsomely decorated in Japanese designs and brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns. The managing committee are saving neither trouble nor expense in order to make it a success. A musical programme has been prepared under the direction of Mr. L. Seward. Several ladies in Japanese costume will preside over a booth at which will be sold fancy articles, fans, etc., Japanese tea, koko and refreshments. Proceeds in aid of the organ fund. Tickets, 25 cents. Doors open at 7.30 o'clock. Concert at 8 o'clock.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Water Company was held in the Company's office, Hunter street, on Monday afternoon. There were present a full meeting of the shareholders. The President, Mr. John Burnham, presented the annual financial report, showing that the Company was in a prosperous condition, and that the works were progressing favorably. It stated that the earnings were sufficient to meet all working expenses and the interest on the capital invested for the first time since the introduction of the system. Mr. Henderson, the Superintendent, presented his report, giving a statement of the condition of the works, and what had been done this present season. His report showed that about eight miles of pipes had been laid, of which there were about a mile and a half laid this season. The pipes laid this year are principally eight inches in diameter. It showed also that there were 47 hydrants in working condition, and that the average daily consumption was about three hundred and fifty thousand gallons per day. It also stated that the capacity of the works was two and a half million gallons per day. The election of directors was then proceeded with, with the following result: Messrs. J. Burnham, R. A. Morrow, R. P. Boucher, G. W. Hatton and Chas. Stapleton. At a meeting of the Board held afterwards the following officers were elected:—

PRESIDENT—J. Burnham.
VICE-PRESIDENT—R. A. Morrow.
SEC.-TREAS.—G. W. Hatton.

ZENANA MISSION.

Address on Missionary Work in Hindu Homes.

A well attended mission meeting was held in St. John's School House on Monday evening to hear an address from Mrs. Greaves, formerly engaged in mission work in India, on behalf of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society.

The RECTOR, after a few explanatory words, opened the meeting with prayer.

The hymn "From Grendland's Icy Mountains" was then sung.

Mrs. GREAVES described the work of the Zenana missions, the surroundings and life of the Hindu women, and the difficulty of gaining access to them. This she illustrated by stating that one means by which they had been aided in obtaining access to these interiors was through the liking of the Indians for fancy work, which they had often been able to use as a means of introduction and if the establishment of intimacy. She gave a description of their very successful school work, pointing out its great importance as giving influence over the young at an impressionable age, and also for a special reason connected with the educational system in India. There was no religious instruction provided in the Government Colleges so that the young natives were very apt to lose their own creed without acquiring a new one, to become not Christians but godless. Hence the great benefit of their mission schools, and their efforts to establish and extend them. Official recognition was given of the importance of this education by the Government grants given in aid of their schools, which were subject to Government inspection. She also described the work of the medical branch of the Society, qualified ladies gaining access to the homes and securing the confidence and friendship of the Hindu women, and thus being enabled to proceed from the care of their bodies to that of their souls. She explained that they were not alone in this work; other missionary organizations were also carrying on work in the Zenanas, but there was a very wide field with room for all. To give an idea of the appearance of the Hindu women, she decked Miss Rackham as a Hindu bride, with flowing white garments, jewels, nosering, &c. She concluded with a warm appeal to her hearers to aid this important mission work with their prayers and their contributions. If her words should stir up one of her hearers to take a personal share in the work of teaching the Gospel to these Hindu women she would feel amply repaid for the long journey she had taken to plead their cause.

A collection in aid of the Zenana Missions was taken up.

The Rector, having thanked Mrs. Greaves on behalf of himself and of the meeting for her interesting address, closed the proceedings with prayer.

The Doxology was sung and the meeting broke up, many remaining for a short time for personal conversation on the subject with Mrs. Greaves, who cheerfully gave further details when asked to do so.

Remanded.

The Frazerville burglars who were to be examined at the court this morning were remanded at their own request for three days. They were taken to gaol.

The Gun.

A regular meeting of the Gun Club was held on Monday afternoon in the Riverside Park. The scores were as follows:—

Judge Weller	0 1 1 0 1 0 1 0 1—5
H. Calcutt	1 1 1 0 1 1 0 1 1—7
R. W. Muncaster	0 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 0—6

Sunday Schools.

Sunday and Monday being specially set aside for intercession by the Church of England Sunday School Institute of London, England, to be observed by the Sunday schools of the Church, a service was held for the purpose in St. Luke's Church on Monday evening. The Rev. Mr. Bradshaw delivered an address to the Sunday school teachers and others present.

Success.

It is a pleasure to note the progress and rapid strides being made on every hand by keen, shrewd business men in competing one with the other for supremacy in their respective callings. Success in business means a great deal. It not only helps to make a contented and happy man out of the business man, but the success that he has had will secure for him in more ways than one the respect and confidence of the general public. If a farmer has been careful in the tilling of the soil, in sowing the golden grain, and in constantly keeping a watchful eye on everything in connection with the cultivation of his farm, he will assuredly (assisted by a kind Providence) reap a rich harvest, and consequently will be successful. Success means a great deal. For instance, if your tailor has been unsuccessful in fitting you with a nobby overcoat or winter suit, why don't you try A. MCNEIL, Habilliment Hall? No fear of an unsuccessful attempt being made to please anyone there. "As you prove us, praise us!"

We are offering extra good value in every line of General Groceries. Call and inspect. MORROW, TIERNEY & Co.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

IRISH NATIONAL LEAGUE.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The report of the Irish National League of Great Britain, which has been prepared for submission to the convention in Liverpool, beginning on November 6, shows a very large increase of funds contributed and in hand, and an enormous augmentation of membership. The report expresses the deepest gratitude of the League to its kindred branches and others in America for their generous and timely assistance. The deliberations of the convention will be presided over by Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M. P.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Hanlan, in the Sportsman, after reciting his attempts to get a match from Beach, claims, on the latter's retirement, the championship of the world. He says: "As Beach has declined to row me, and now retires, I claim the title of champion sculler of the world, and am prepared to uphold the title by rowing any man in the world from Putney to Northlake for £500 a side. The deposit I left for the purpose of rowing Beach is still lying at the Sportsman office as a proof of my bona fides, and if no one comes forward I claim the title, which I am prepared to defend by rowing in America."

SPAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

MADRID, Oct. 18—The Cabinet will to-day consider President Cleveland's proclamationin relation to Cuban imports. It is hoped the conflict will be smoothed out, but there is an unanimity of opinion here that Spain should be firm in support of the interests of Cuba. La' Opinion says; President Cleveland's decree originated in the intrigues of the North American Steamship Company, which was annoyed because the Spanish trans-Atlantic line from Barcelona, cut it out in the carrying trade between Cuba and Mexico." The writer believes America will not sacrifice the general interests of the bountry for the sake of any particular enterprise, but he holds that if the Convention of 1884 be really broken in this peremptory fashion, Spain will have more than sufficient justification for putting all American products in the fourth column of the Customs tariff.

MR. BEECHER'S FAREWEEL.

LONDOE, Oct. 18.—There was a scramble for places to hear Mr. Beecher's farewell sermon yesterday. Several prominent persons were present. At the conclusion of the sermon, Dr. Parkes publicly thanked Mr. Beecher for the aid he had rendered to the churches in England. Their thanks were all the warmer, he said, when they remembered that Mr. Beecher's services had been rendered without fee or reward. He envied Mr. Beecher his reception when he returned to Brooklyn. Mr. Beecher would leave behind him so many memories of inspiration and gratitude that they would long to see his face again.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A meeting of notable persons was held to-day for the purpose or organizing a movement to erect a Memorial Church in honor of the completion of the fiftieth year of Queen Victoria's reign, which will be completed on June 20, 1887. The meeting was addressed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and by the Bishops of London and Carlisle. An executive committee was appointed to manage the business appertainining to the movement and to select a site. Mr. Gladstone declined to permit the use of his name as a member of this committee.

BEACH TO RETIRE.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Beach's backer, Deeble, states that Beach has decided to retire to private life and rest on his laurels as the champion oarsman of the world. His private affairs now occupy and claim so much of his attention that he must resign the pursuit of sculling. He also realizes that he is getting old and does not care to continue the ordeal of strict training. He thinks it right to leave the field to younger men.

TURKEY'S ADVICE.

SOFIA, Oct. 18.—Gadban Effendi, the special envoy of the Porte, is en route to Sofia from Constantinople. It is asserted that he has been instructed by the Turkish Government to advise Bulgaria's compliance with Russia's demand that the assembling of the Grand Sobranje be indefinitely postponed. It reported that General Kaulbars has advised the Czar to either occupy Bulgaria or sever all connection with that country.

TO WORK A REVOLUTION.

SOFIA, Oct. 18.—It is stated that General Kaulbars is trying to win over the garrisons at Varna, Shumla, Widden and Tirnova, hoping that, acting under the supreme command of the military authorities at Rustchuk, they will work a revolution in favor of Russia.

DAMAGE IN FRANCE.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Much damage was done by the hurricane on the northwest coast of France. Many steamers were compelled to postpone their departure.

A TAX ON SPIRITS AND INCOMES.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The Budget committee has approved of M. Wilson's proposals to increase the spirit duties and to impose a one-half per cent. tax on incomes above 3000 francs.

FORGERIES.

LISBON, Oct. 18.—Two Americans named Austin and Staffield have been arrested at Oporto for uttering forged Bank of England notes. They both have made confessions, stating that they have been supplied with the notes by an agent of a large syndicate in London engaged in the business of manufacturing and circulating them. From this agent the prisoners obtained sixteen £50 notes and six £500 for one-fifth of their face value, and managed to get rid of them at their face value by making payments with them intermingled with good French notes.

MORE HOPEFUL.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—A more hopeful peace feeling prevails in official circles. There was animated buying on the Bourse today and reaction in favor of Russian securities.

FEARS A CONSPIRACY.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Oct. 18.—In consequence of a statement made by Macedonians recently arrested for revoltion at Eskizagra, alleging that a conspiracy existed among Russian partizans to overthrow the Bulgarian Government, the streets are constantly patrolled by soldiers. The military have been kept on the alert and police vigilance redoubled.

DRUNK.

SATURDAY, Oct. 16.—When Capt. Cooper said that Geo. Reynolds, Sr., had been drunk, the latter did not deny it. He complied with His Worship's demand for two cents, then went down stairs.

INSULTING LANGUAGE.

TUESDAY, Oct. 19.—T. Joyce was charged by G. Weir with using grosly insulting and abusive language towards him.

The defendant pleaded not guilty.

A lot of evidence was gone into both for the prosecution and defence.

The MAGISTRATE found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $2 and costs.

Delegation from Norwood.

A delegation from Norwood, consisting of Messrs. W. H. Stephenson, Reeve, W. E. Roxburgh, Thos. Fraser, Robt. Wilson, Jas. Raddon, W. H. Mullens and John Finlay, passed through town on Monday morning to Omemee, to inspect its fire extinguishing apparatus. They were so well pleased with the outfit that they purchased the engine, hose, etc., for the fire department of Norwood, an acquisition with which the villagers will, no doubt, be well pleased. In the evening the deputation returned to Peterborough and inspected the Peterborough Electric Light Co.'s station, with a view to introducing electric light to Norwood. It is proposed to utilize the power, if possible, at Mr. John Finlay's Steam Hub and Spoke factory to supply the necessary motive power.

Wedding Bells.

This forenoon at ten o'clock a whole procession of carriages, carrying a wedding party, started off from the American Hotel for St. Peter's Cathedral. The contrators were Miss B. Halpin, eldest daughter of Mr. M. Halpin, and Mr. J. Ryan, head bookkeeper in Messrs. Thompson & Son's Mammoth House dry goods establishment, Toronto. The bridsmaids were Miss N. Halpin, sister of the bride, and Miss B. Halpin, cousin of the bride, while the groom's supporters were Messrs. J. Ryan and J. Sullivan. The other carriages contained a number of the groom's friends who came down from Toronto with him and a number of the brides relatives. At the Cathedral there were several hundred people present to witness the ceremony. The bride and bridsmaids were all elegantly attired. The Rev. Father Conway conducted the nuptial ceremony, and after words delivered a short address to the newly wedded and to those present. The wedding party returned to the hotel where a most sumptuous dinner, prepared by the well-known caterer, Mr. Wm. Bowman, awaited them. The bride received a profusion of wedding presents among which were: Four silver mounted pickle stands, a beautiful ebony cased clock, a beaten silver fruit dish lined with gold, a siver salver with decanter and wine glasses, a silver sugar bowl and spoon holder combined, a red glass sugar bowl ornamented with silver and gold folistions, a silver water pitcher, two silver cruets, a toilet set, three complete sets of China, an elegant hall lamp, napkin rings, fancy work, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan leave this evening for a trip through the New England States. They will visit Boston, New York and other points.

WEDNESDAY. OCTOBER 20, 1886.

THE HIGH OFFICERS.

The Reception Tendered Them by the Local Foresters.

On Tuesday evening Bro. R. Elliott, High Chief Ranger of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and Bro. A. E. Gammage, High Secretary, arrived in town for the purpose of inspecting the local courts. They were met at the Canadian Pacific Railway station by a deputation and escorted up town.

Later in the evening they paid a visit to Court Peterborough's court room, where the members of that court and Little John were assembled. The visitors were received with marks of distinction. They were formally presented to the assembled Foresters by Bro. McNeil, High Vice-Chief Ranger of Court Peterborough.

After the business of the evening was over the gathering adjourned to J. J. Daly's restaurant for lunch. About seventy sat around the tastily decorated tables. Bro. McFarlane, H.C.R., of Court Peterborough, in the chair, had to his right and left the guests of the evening, while Bro. McNeil, V.H.C.R., occupied the vice-chair.

After enjoying a recherche repast the brethren were called to order by the chairman, who proposed the toast "The Queen." The orchestra played the National Anthem. "The Army, Navy and Volunteers," was the next, to which a response came from the orchestra in the form of "the Red, White and Blue." Bro. McNeil then proposed the toast "Our Sister Societies," adding that he was pleased that they had with them to-night the oldest Society man within a radius of a hundred miles, and a man who had done a great deal toward Peterborough's growth and development—he referred to Mr. Cluxton.

Mr. CLUXTON returned thanks on behalf of himself and the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows. He traced the history of Otonabee Lodge from the time of its organization 40 years ago down to the present. when the Lodge was organized he was a young married man and a young merchant. When he became an Oddfellow he rode the goat with ease, escaping broken bones and all that sort of thing. (Laughter). Then the lodge was carried on in a magnificent scale. The regalia was superb, and everything connected with it was particularly rich. The lodge built a hall for itself, which was now standing and occupied by Mrs. Nicholls as a residence. But the young lodge ran so fast that it came to a halt through sheer exhaustion. After lying dormant for many years it was resuscitated and was now a prosperous institution. During his reply Mr. Cluxton attempted to get at the origin of the terms, Mason, Oddfellow and Forester. Of course they all knew the long lineage of Masonry, it being claimed that the pyramids were built under their instructions. He respected Masonry, and looked up to it as the mother of all secret societies. Oddfellow he thought might have originated from the fact that those belonging to that society are different from common humanity inasmuch as they helped one another. As to Forestry, he did not know anything about it save the popularity of Robin Hood and his merry men. Perhaps the distinguished visitors would say something about that.

Mr. CLEGG, replied on behalf of the Sons of England. After thanking the company in the usual manner, he gave some statistics as to the Order to which he belonged. The Society laid special stress on the sick benefits they paid. It relieved those who were in want or distress, the short time it was in existence it having paid out the sum of $600,000. It also paid out to the widows of deceased members quite an amount. Last year there were about 400 people lifted above want.

Mr. E. J. TOKER, replied on behalf of the Masons. The benevolent societies all worked for the great common purpose—that of relieving distress, or at least, giving social encouragement and support. It had been said that Masonry was the parent of all other secret societies. If that was the case Masonry had good reason to be proud of her progeny.

Mr. E. E. HENDERSON replied briefly in behalf of the Oddfellows. He was glad to see such harmony and good will existing among the benefit societies of this town. It was as it should be and he hoped and trusted that it would continue.

The orchestra furnished music.

The health of the guests was then proposed and drank amid applause. Bro. McFarlane in proposing the toast said that the fact of both having been repeatedly elected to the offices which they held was ample proof that they performed their duties satisfactorily.

Bro. ELLIOTT fully concurred with the remarks made as to the desirability of good feeling among benevolent societies. The Foresters did not pride themselves as the ancientness of their history—as far as he was concerned he had not taken the trouble to enquire about its origin. It was simply a branch of a society which was in existence here 8 or 9 years ago. The Canadians had been compelled to pay equal rates with those living in the south where deaths were of so much more frequent occurence. The Canadians objected, seceded and founded a society of their own. It was the only purely Canadian Society doing the same work. During its seven years of existence the Order had paid out $103,000 in insurance and $50,000 in sick benefits. They appealed to the Canadian people to help them in this good work. The Foresters did not claim to have a better Society than any other but in one point they prided themselves on superiority, that of the endowment plan of insurance or a provision for the future. They had now a siking fund established, and already there was $23,000 in it. A proof of the success of the Order, and the care exercised by the official physicians, lay in the fact that nothing over the usual fee of 50 cents per month had been requested to meet death claims. The death rate was but a trifle over 4½ per thousnd. He was glad of there being such good feeling among the members of benefit associations here. All aimed at the same thing and there was no reason why they should not join hands it doing it.

Bro. GAMMAGE also replied. In his address he stated that on the rolls of benefit societies on this continent there were 2,500,000 names. At the regular rate of calculation this represented about 10,000,000 people who depended on these societies for insurance, and to some extent for held when in distress. Societies were a good thing for a country and governments should encourage them. One important principle which these societies inculcated was frugality; a very desirable thing.

"The press" was drank with the usual demonstrations. Mr. E. J. Toker reponded for the REVIEW and Mr. F. R. Yokome for the Examiner.

The health of Bro. Dench, of the Lakefield Court, was proposed. Mr. Dench responded with one his characteristically witty speeches, keeping the table in a roar from the time he got up till he sat down.

Mr. E. E. Henderson proposed the prosperity of Court Peterborough, to which Bro. McNeil and Bro. McFarlane responded briefly.

A neat speech from Mr. Daly, in responding to "The host and hostess," brought the programme to an end.

"Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen" were sung and the company dispersed.

Fire in New York Factories.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Six factory buildings in Goerck street owned by ex-Alderman Peter Kehr, and adjoining the five story brick workshop of Kehr's American desk manufacturing company, was burned last night. The buildings were occupied by L. Ottmam & Co, table manufacturers, and the Sternberg & Unger cigar box makers; loss $200,000.

Sam Jones' Revival.

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Rev. Sam Jones preached to over 2,000 women this morning in the Metropolitan church. His discourse being directed to mothers, advising them to watch there homes, train their children properly and show them a good example. A good mother's example was more powerful, he said, than all the other means of grace put together. At last night's meeting over 200 men and women professed conversion.

ENGLAND AND GERMANY.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The Cologne Gazette says: "The policy of Germany for many years toward England has been by no means to check or weaken her powers in Europe. On the contrary, Germany has taken great interest in everywhere strengthening and fosterting her powers, and advancing her position as a great power."

ONLY A COMPLIMENTARY VISIT..

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 19.—It is officially stated that the visit of Prince Dolgorukoff to Copenhagen is purely complimentary, and not connected in any way with the proposed selection of Prince Waldemar for the Bulgarian throne.

MARQUIS OF AILESBURY DEAD.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Marquis of Ailesbury, Sir Ernest Augustus Charles Brudennell Bruce, Privy Councillor, is dead. He was born on the 8th January, 1811, and was Vice-Chancellor to the Queen, from 1841 to 1846 and again in 1852 to 1858.

ALEXANDER SHUT OUT.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 19.—All the powers, including England, have formally assured Russia that they disfavor Prince Alexander's return to Bulgaria, and will not approve of his re-election to the Bulgarian throne.

FIGHTING IN BURMAH.

RANGOON, Oct. 19.—A large force of insurgents Nyngyan in Burmah, but were repluse by the garrison. During the conflict a small force of the British column was driven back into the town.

BULGARIA SATISFIED.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Post says:—"The Bulgarian Government is satisfied with the result of the elections, and is inclined to negotiate with Russia regarding the election of the Prince."

A GENEROUS AMERICAN.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Chronicle's Vienna special says: "A wealthy and highly esteemed American resident of Paris has placed at the disposal of the Bulgarian Government a loan of $2,000,000 without asking the smallest security."

APPEAL TO SOCIAL DEMOCRATS.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The officers of the Social Democratic Federation having expressed their intention to form a procession of members of that organization on the occasion of the inauguration of the Lord Mayor and cause it to march in the rear of the inaugural cavalcade. General Sir Charles Warren, Commissioner of Police, has written to them advising them to abandon the project, which, he says, would be likely to lead to disorder of the grayest character. The Liberal press are unanimous in appealing to the Social Democrats to forego their intention to parade. It is thought the leaders of the organization will see the wisdom of heeding their advice.

A CHEEKY SOCIALIST.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Executive Committee of the Socialist Federation has decided to hold the contemplated procession on Lord Mayor's Day, Nov. 9, in spite of the warning of the police. The leaders estimate that 10,000 persons will take part in the demonstration. Champion, one of the leaders, has written a letter to the Chief of Police saying that if he cannot guarantee peace the Socialists themselves will be prepared to maintain order provided they be given control of the police.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Prime Minister de Freycinet at a cabinet meeting to consider yesterday's defeat of the Government, explained that the adverse vote affected the responsibility of the whole ministry. Thereupon M. Sarren, Minister of the Interior, and M. Sadei Carnot, Minister of Finance, withdrew their resignations. The cabinet decided to await a fresh debate and vote in the chambers to ascertain distinctly the feeling of the majority toward the Government.

THE IRON MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—There is an excited boom in the Middlesburgh pig iron market. Thirty-two shillings and six pence per ton is freely offered but refused, 33s. 6d. being firmly asked. This is a rise of five shillings on the late minimum for warrants. Steel is stiffer owing to an advance in hematite.

The Permit System.

We have again and again condemned the permit system, and we have been astonished at the remarks our comments have called forth.

We say the clause in the Act which throws the burden on the Lieutenant-Governor of the day of issuing permits is conducive to anything but temperance. It leads to drunkenness. People "stay with a permit," as the phrase goes. It leads to men trafficking in contraband liquor, by which they make large sums. As our correspondent Calabes has more than once complained, a permit makes the detection of the illicit sale of liquor difficult. Vile stuff, worse even than whiskey or brandy in its effects on the system, is sold. When we have a Legislative Assembly, the people can deal with this question. Meanwhile we think the Council should take some action to minimize the evil.

As to the Lieutenant-Governor, whoever he may be, whether Mr. Laird, or Mr. Dewdney, his task is a most uninviting one. Here is an application from a hard case, but properly recommended. What is he to do? Refuse. Here is one from a respectable man, but not in form. Refused and reason given. Here is one from a man in good position and properly recommended, but the wife of the applicant has written privately and in confidence to the Governor to refuse. Refused. Result, this man insulted. When to grant and when to refuse—the burden of this odious task is on the shoulders of whoever is Governor under the present law. Meanwhile in many towns liquor is sold openly.—Regina, N. W. T., Leader.

Canadian Cattle Shipment.

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.—Exports of live stock from the port of Montreal from the opening of navigation to date were 55,533 head of cattle and 72,413 head of sheep, against 59,668 cattle and 36,847 sheep in 1875.

"Imitation is the Sincerest Flattery."

If the above quotation is true, then Dr. R. V. Pierce ought to feel highly flattered on account of the many imitators of his popular remedy, the "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," for they have scores of imitators, but never an equal, for the cure of sick and bilious headache, constipation, impure blood, kidney pains, internal fever and all bowel complaints. With a bottle of the sugared granules in the house you can dispense with the family doctor and his often nauseous medicines.

THE REFORM-RIELITE COMBINATION.

We have already given the congratulatory messages sent by Mr. Mowat, Premier of Ontario, and by Mr. Edgar, personal representative and mouthpiece of Mr. Blake, to the Rielites on the occasion of their successes in the Province of Quebec. We will now give a few more telegrams paraded by the Rielites as having been sent to them by their Reform allies:—

To Hon. H. Mercier:

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 15.—The Liberals of Ottawa, without exception, congratulate you heartily on the glorious victory you have achieved.

P. J. COFFEY,
Secretary Liberal Association.

To Hon. Mercier:

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Oct. 15.—Accept congratulations upon your splendid fight against such odds. Hope to see you Premier very soon.

A. P. COCKBURN, M. P.

To Hon. H. Mercier:

LUCKNOW, Ont., Oct. 16.—The Young Liberals of Ontario congratulate you on your magnificent victory, and our sister Province on her release from the shackles of Toryism.

D. E. CAMERON,
Vice-President.

To Hon. Mercier:

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 16.—In the name of freedom and honor North Essex thanks you and all for redeeming Quebec from the grasp of Sir John's rampant mercenaries.

GASPARD PACAUD.

To Hon. Mr. Mercier, M.P.P.:

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 16.—We heartily congratulate you on the grand success achieved by the Liberals of the Province of Quebec.

K. WILLIAMS,
Secretary Hastings Reform Club.

To Hon. H. Mercier, Montreal:

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct., 15.—Liberals of Ottawa send congratulations to Quebec's new Premier. Great rejoicing here.

"FREE PRESS."

To Hon. Mr. Mercier:

RIMOUSKI, Que., Oct. 16.—Our most sincere congratulations.

DR. P. FISET AND THE NATIONAL PARTY.

These are a number of similar messages from French Reformers, but we need not give them space, as it is generally understood that the French Reformers, with a very few honorable exceptions, are in favor of the right of Frenchmen to murder mere English-speaking intruders, and to rebel against the alien Government of the Dominion. We have therefore contented ourselves with giving the message of Dr. Fiset because there is an interesting reminiscence connected with it. He was the supporter of the Mackenzie-Blake Administration who introduced Riel, when he signed the roll of Parliament, under Mr. Blake's nose, after Mr. Blake had attained his end of making political capital by the offer of a reward of $5,000 for bringing Riel to justice.

The messages which we republish above show how thoroughly the leading and official Reformers are implicated in this plot to revenge the execution of Riel for rebellion and murder by punishing the Dominion Government and even the Quebec Government for refusing to join in the conspiracy. We find the Reformers of Ottawa, North Ontario, West Bruce, North Essex and Hastings authoritively brought into line with those of Toronto, and, indeed, of the whole Province of Ontario, by the hand of Mr. Mowat, as rejoicing in the success of a cry for vengeance for the execution of a criminal who was of the race and creed of the people of Quebec. This is the official Reform platform in Ontario as boldly avowed by their leaders, who expect Ontario Reformers to follow them. The people of this Province are asked to become the mere serfs of Frenchmen and Crees, who are to have the power of life and death over us without responsibility to the law.

It will be quite in vain for these rejoicing Reform leaders, when they recover their senses a little, to claim that their joy was merely over the defeat of Conservatives, not over the success of the claim to hold even the scum of the French Canadian race superior to the whole of the rest of Canada. If Sir John Macdonald were knocked on the head by one of these new allies of the Reform party, men who are infamous enough to send such treasonous messages to the advocates of murder would no doubt rejoice, but they would hardly telegraph their thanks. By so doing they would accept the means as well as the end, and so they have done by their felicitations to the Rielites. They know well what were the means employed, for every Rielite politician on the platform, every Rielite journalist through the press, has cried with one voice for the punishment of the "hangmen" who dared to bring to justice their friend Riel for his crimes. Side by side with the congratulatory messages of these recreant Ontario men in the Quebec journals are cries of joy at their victory over the Canadian authorities on behalf of their blood-stained, and, therefore, beloved criminal. As a sample of the foul mass we will give a quotation from La Patrie, the recognized organ of the criminal party:—

"The struggle is over and the Province may breathe freely. It has lived under the sorry pendard regime; now we will have the National regime. The Province of Quebec felt the blow it received on the 16th of November. What a revenge we have had! How thorough, too! How happy the patriots were last night!"

The struggle was to get rid of the pendards, the hangmen, that is the instruments of justice inflicted upon a murderous rebel; to avenge the execution at Regina on the 16th of November. It was to establish the National regime, that is the rule of the most degraded of Frenchmen over any despised English-speaking intruder into their old territory. These "patriots" are therefore happy, "how happy!" and the Reform leaders of Ontario, from Mr. Mowat down, are happy with them.

THE RIEL-REFORM CONSPIRACY.

Complicity of Reform Leaders in the Race and Creed Plot.

The London Advertiser publishes the following messages of congratulation implicating official Reformers in the Rielite attempt to punish the authorities for not interfering between the rebel leader and justice:—

"LONDON, Oct. 15

"To Hon. Wilfred Laurier:

"The Young Liberals of London heartily congratulate the people of Quebec on their emancipation from Tory thraldom. A new era is dawning, and we will be pleased to welcome in London the statesman whom we regard as the one above all others able to present all sides of a question.

"W. M. BEGG,"

The following was also sent:

"To Hon. Mr. Mercier:

"Ontario is with you. The majority is good enough for us. The Young Liberals of this section would welcome their comrades of Quebec. Come up here, and bring Laurier. Local by-laws prevent bonfires, but the material is ready. Let everybody hurrah.

"W. H. BEGG,
"Sec. Young Liberal Club."

THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING MINORITY

To pass from Sir Hector, whose executive ability and solidity of character command the respect of those who dislike his opinions, to J. D. Edgar, the go-between in the alliance made by a wing of the Ontario Liberals with the Rielites of Quebec, is quite a jump; but a recent letter of his can be best treated in this connection. Mr. Edgar's letter is a sort of open one "to the English Protestants of Quebec," and opens with certain autobiographical details which are of more interest than value. He tells us that "by birth I am one of them," which, we may be permitted to say, is his only connection with us, and that we duly deplore that accidental circumstance, for he is not one of us in sentiment or sympathy. He goes on to say that for fifteen years he has been more or less in public life in Ontario, which may account for the good he derived from his respectable place of birth being so completely neutralized. "I have always felt," he says, "that the Ontario Reformers were the natural allies of the English minority in Quebec." So they are and so they would be if not misled by men like Mr. Edgar, who, in order to defeat Sir John, make alliances with Fenians and Saskatchewan rebels and persistently misrepresent to the rank and file of the Liberal party in Ontario the situation in Quebec. For this man, who sent this telegram on the Rielite victory in Chambly, to pretend friendship for us is disgusting:—

"TORONTO, July 30.—The Liberals or Toronto congratulate you on your splendid victory. Welcome to our colleague.

"J. D. EDGAR."

Whoever welcomes the election of a follower of the Parti National is an enemy of the English minority of Quebec, and therefore Mr. Edgar throws all his fine phrases about "sympathy" and "assistance" and "abiding faith" away. His impudence ranks with his disloyalty when he says:—

"Rest assured that the Ontario Liberals look with deepest interest for the success of Mr. Mercier on 14th October. We hope that the English electors of your province will give their votes to secure the downfall of the corrupt and incapable Administration at Quebec, which is merely a donkey-engine for the large machine at Ottawa. To judge from the feeling in Ontario, the days of Sir John Macdonald's Ministry are numbered, and his friends still cling to the hope of carrying Quebec for the local in order to strengthen his position at the Dominion elections. The defeat of the Ross Government will be the beginning of the end, and will herald the early advent to power of the Liberal party of the Dominion under its great leader, Edward Blake."

The downfall of the Administration at Quebec and the numbering of the days of Sir John's Ministry are not events of indifference to the Quebec Liberals, but they prefer the donkey-engine and the large machine to Governments based on the lines of race or creed, and if there are no other means (which they do not believe) of the Liberals coming into power save by uniting with the Parti National, they consider it better they should remain where they are. Mr. Edgar fights for power, and regards getting into office as the end to be aimed at; other Liberals fight for principle, and would look upon victory obtained by compromising their principles as a defeat.—Huntington Gleaner (Ref.)

SOME honest and loyal Reformers, shocked by the action of Mr. Mowat in linking himself with the friends of murder and rebellion, express their amazement at such a fall in one whom they had regarded with respect. We cannot pretend to share their astonishment. Mr. Mowat, for his own political and personal ends, placed one thief upon the Bench and another in an office of trust and emolument. We cannot expect him to regard the sixth more than the eighth commandment if he has anything to gain.

Russian Aggression.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Post says that although no explicit agreement has been concluded, England, Austria, Germany and Italy are mutually determined upon opposing Russian aggression in Bulgaria. Sweden has also declared her opposition. It is no wonder then that Russia has positively assured Austria and Germany that she does not mean to occupy Bulgaria.

The Chicago Strike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—There is no change in the situation in the packing house district this morning. Armed guards now number 500. The Armour firm has 800 men at work, and began slaughtering cattle in a small way, but have not yet attempted to commence operations in the pork packing branch. Later—The great strike at the stock yards is practically settled.

A Sad Death.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 18.—While in a delirium of fever, Miss Eliza Morton yesterday jumped from a window in the city hospital, and although she sustained no broken bones the shock and exposure resulted in her death fifteen minutes later. Deceased was the daughter of Mr. Thomas Morton and had only been ill a week. She was beloved by all the town.

Asbestos in Hastings County.

Mr. Robert Weddell, of Trenton, contractor for superstructures over the Murray canal, recently found on his property, in the township of Lake, County of Hastings, a deposit of pure asbestos, which has been submitted to an analytical test and pronounced to be of a superior quality.

FENELON FALLS.

FIRE PROTECTION.—The fire meeting held in the council chamber last Saturday evening was rather a stormy one, and the captain and secretary resigned and others were elected. There have been nine fires in the Falls during the present year; and we are pleased to be able to say that, by the time the next occurs—if it do not happen too soon,—the village will probably be much better provided with fire-fighting appliances than it has hitherto been. It will depend largely upon whether the council act with judicious liberality or adhere to the old "penny wise and poundfoolish" policy which the Gazette has always condemned.

A SURPRISE.—The Methodist parsonage in this village was taken possession of on Thursday evening by a large number of friends and adherents of the Methodist Church. About 8 o'clock the visitors gathered and marched in procession to the parsonage, and, greatly to the surprise of Rev. Mr. McAmmond and his wife, fairly packed the house. The party numbered about 90. Very soon the tables were spread and the baskets emptied of their contents. Every one did ample justice to the good things set before them. The evening was spent in social "chit chat," interspersed with some choice selections of music. During the evening the pastor and his wife were made the recipients of a purse containing between sixty and seventy dollars. Such an expression of appreciation must certainly be very gratifying to the Rev. gentleman, who has so lately come amongst us. The party dispersed about 1 o'clock.—Gazette.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DAMAGE BY THE GALE.—Immediately after the breaking up of our rain storm on Thursday last, a fearful gale set in from the southwest, which continued with unabated fury during the night. On Friday the wind changed to the northwest, still continuing to blow with only a little less force, levelling fences and trees and leaving about seven tenths of our fine crop of apples on the ground. On Thursday night the Mud Lake floating bridge was broken in two places by the gale, which wil considerably interfere with travel until it is repaired again.

The Grand Trunk.

The report of the Grand Trunk railway, which was issued on Monday, shows an increase in the gross receipts for the half-year of £133,000. After providing for deficiencies in the next revenue, a credit balance of £25,000 remains. The report says the harvests have been satisfactory and business is apparently reviving, both in the States and in Canada.

Committed for Trial.

Judgment was delivered at the Toronto Police Court on Monday in the alleged coal conspiracy cases, five of the defendants, Messrs. Patrick Burns, Johnston, Venables, McInerney and Quartermaster Swanson, being committed for trial at the assizes commencing November 1st.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

"Do not say that, Mrs. Mead. I have already left home, and it is as bad as if I were a thousand miles off. I will not go back, indeed. Bid me good-night, and be sure my heart is warm to thee for thy kindness."

"Ah!" cried Mrs. Mead, forcing her, but not untenderly, into her chair, "ye come from an obstinate father, and argiments, as I've always said, is wasted on sitch. If ye mean to go, I'll not stop you—and who should know best but you! But the job needn't be worse nor it is. I'm one," said she, going to her cupboard, "as loves cratur comforts. Cratur comforts," she continued, producing a couple of cups and saucers, a loaf of bread, some eggs, and a strange looking vessel of tin in which was some tea, made precious by the price of it in those days, "is a true voice of consolation to the afflicted, to my way o' thinking. Niver did I attend a buryin' or go a nursin', or help to lay a body out, but first I laid in a meal o' food. Niver doth the mind do duty on an empty stomach. If it's but a crust o' hard bread and a spoonful o' gin, let me have it, I says, before I go to work. There's no sperrit in fasting."

And so she rattled on, in a subdued voice for fear of disturbing the tailor and his wife overhead, all the while kindling a fire, and preparing the table, and ceasing her gabble only to go and draw a kettle of water from some back place.

There was a dispatch in the old woman's method of going to work, and a quiet, too, were it not for the subdued, eternal cackle of her tongue, that would have made a sick man love her. She produced another candle and brightened up the room, and presently the kettle was blowing out its filament of steam.

"Now, mistress," said she, "here be a dish of tea which all Chaney, where the herb grows, as I've heard, couldn't match. Just a shred of bread, with this fine new butter, 'll give that egg a relish as ye'll niver cease to remember. Come, come! sin' we mun both keep awake, there's naught like tea—or tay, as my mother used to call it; and that's the right word, though in these queer times a body hath no liberty. Well, will ye not laugh over this feast some day! I reckon Mr Shaw 'll make ye see a joke in it, for I niver knew a blue eye like his that didn't mean a merry heart; and this will I say of your husband, mistress, that since the days when poor Will Hacket coorted me i' silk stockings, I've niver seen a prettier lad than Mr. Cuthbert Shaw. Crack the egg, my dearyan' if ye shall tell the inside of it from cream, I'll swallow the shell. It's middling late for supper, but as thy father once said to me fifteen years ago, when I saved a blue ribband as the boy yelled now, we're all animal creatures, voted to the devil's lunch. Why shouldn't a body eat i' the middle o' the night as well as the morn? Come, come, make a beginning, or I'll not go along wi' ye."

"But I do not want you to come along with me, Mrs. Mead. Indeed, I should not allow you to leave your house after keeping you from your bed—no, truly, though I love you dearly for your kindness," exclaimed Jenny.

"Do you think I should let a pretty young woman walk alone to Winston at this time o' morn, with her box and her sweet face to court ivery smock she may come across!" cried Mrs. Mead, poising a saucer on a level with her nose, and straining her eyes at Jenny over it, "What is a summer's morning walk to me! If I can't hinder thee from leaving home, I'll see thee safe in t' coach anyways, and that'll be something for me to tell thy mother."

The need of companionship was strong in Jenny. All the way to Winston, with a long waiting for the coach, was a weary undertaking, and what society should she have but bitter thoughts! Besides, a little touch of comfort there was in the feeling that her mother would know that no harm had befallen her, if Mrs. Mead gave the story so far as her promise of secrecy permitted. But there was that in the old woman's face which helped Jenny to prompter acceptance of the offer than otherwise her sweetness would have sanctioned. Mrs. Mead was clearly determined, and ready to quarrel, that her will should have its way. So the lonely hearted girl, with the saddest smile on her white face, went up to the dame and thanked her with a kiss upon the ripples of her forehead; and had she been a man, a favor more delightful the old woman could not have made it seem. But oh, what a contrast when the faces were together!

Now slowly, as they sat in these small hours—outside the solemn stillness of the night, and within, no sound but the humming of the kettle to thread the melodious complaining notes of the girl and the creaking tones of her sympathetic listener—the faint and mystical light of the new day, creeping from the infinite abysm into the towering chambers of the western heavens, stood palely on the window glass, and little twitter of birds broke abruptly from invisible places.

Until the light had broadened, Mrs. Mead refused to heed it; and Jenny, with her back to the window, and telling the long story of her love and marriage and sorrow to her companion, did not see it. Then the girl, pausing with feverish eyes, after words of bitter wonder that Cuthbert should have left her, and a wild cry that he might not be dead, Mrs. Mead held up her finger.

"Mistress," said she, "before it is too late, think well of what you are about to do. Hush! If ye were my own child I should not say more to thee."

"I have thought! I have thought!" moaned Jenny, rocking herself to and fro. "My cousin Bridget will give me a home; and she and her husband only shall know my story. But what will the talk be here, whether I stay or go! Never could I stir abroad, and at home my father could not bear to look at me. Should God send my husband back, then father will hang his head to think of the wrong he has done his girl. And thou shalt tell mother where I am. But, until Cuthbert comes, I will keep hidden. I have sworn it to myself; and if I should be forced to stay here I would kill myself—indeed I would!"

"Well, truly!" muttered the old woman. "To see your beauty, like a kitten's, and such soft smiles as ye greet with, who'd think ye had so much spirit? I don't say ye aren't right. You're taching some folks a lesson as'll profit 'em; and when you're righted, the people here'll make a queen of ye—see, now! Doth not the Lord say, 'It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs?' Yet his own child's bread hath your father taken, and niver are dogs wanting when there is a crust to gnaw. Turn your head now, my pretty. Do ye see it's day?"

With a sharp glance at the window, Jenny jumped from her chair.

"I must go quickly," she cried. "There will be people abroad, and if I am seen they will run to father."

"There'll be no one abroad for another hour yet—not even the market folk," replied Mrs. Mead. "But I'll not keep ye scared."

She fetched her shawl and bonnet from the bedroom, and while she put them on she said:

"There's Sallie Walker, as kapes the Greyhound at Winston. I nursed her mother, and was at her funeral; and niver doth Sal come to Greystone without droppin' in to see if Mother Mead be still alive. We'll have her up, mistress, though she be snoring, and she shall give thee a couch for two hours' rest. For d'ye think you're made o' wire and parchment like me, that you can set through a whole night without a nap? At seven there'll be summat to break thy fast wi', I'se warrant—if I kill one o' Sally's pigs myself for the daintiness o' chitterlings. Then into the coach ye'll get, and may the Lord send ye happiness!"

So saying, she laid hold of Jenny's box, and with muffled tread and without speech they both of them went into the gray morning light.

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

Great German Hair Magic!

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods sorted with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coralines, we warn the ladies against such Imposition by directing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

GO!

It is remarkable how fu Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

Inspect our stock.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Holland Bulb.

Two barrels of Holland Bulb just arrived at Mason's Seed and Plant House.

Ommitted.

In the list of presents received by Mrs. Ryan, noted in the REVIEW, that presented by the groom was ommitted. The groom's present was a set of diamonds.

About Even.

During the last month there were twenty-eight cases before the Police Court. Of these there were thirteen charges for drunkenness and 12 charges for the violation of the Scott Act.

Immense Bargains!

Such is the exclamation of anyone who enters the Fur Mantle sale now going on at [illegible]. Although the goods have been selling fast the stock is by no means diminished, for new goods are continually being added.

Gough's Pumpkins.

The Gough pumpkin exhibition is still growing. Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle, of Smith, just capsized all other exhibitors this morning by producing a specimen of the pumpkin breed weighing 127 pounds.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Forestry.

Bro. Elliott and Bro. Gammage, of the Foresters, left town this morning for home, Listowel and Brantford, respectively. They have been paying official visits to the Courts in Perth, Smith's Falls, Brockville, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, and Quebec during the past week. Bro. Elliott is the editor of the Listowel Banner and Bro. Gammage is editor of the Canadian Forester.

Mikado Social.

All arrangements have been completed for the Mikado social to be held in St. John's School House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 27th and 28th Oct. The room will be handsomely decorated in Japanese designs and brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns. The managing committee are saving neither trouble nor expense in order to make it a success. A musical programme has been prepared under the direction of Mr. L. Seward. Several ladies in Japanese costume will preside over a booth at which will be sold fancy articles, fans, etc., Japanese tea, koko and refreshments. Proceeds in aid of the organ fund. Tickets, 25 cents. Doors open at 7.30 o'clock. Concert at 8 o'clock.

Scott Act.

The Queen vs. Cavanagh case was dismissed at the Police Court on Tuesday afternoon, there being no evidence to support the charge. This morning Capt. Cooper charged John Condon and James Condon with violations of the Scott Act. Jas. Condon appeared and pleaded not guilty. David Moore swore that he got intoxicating liquor at Condon's within the time specified in the information. James Condon disclaimed ownership of the hotel, stating that his son owned everything about it. It was found that James Condon was assessed for the property; that he signed a mortgage covering the effects; and that he and his family lived at the hotel free of charge. The Magistrate said that a breach of the law had been committed, and that either the father or son was responsible. He concluded that a thorough understanding existed between the two, and that perhaps both were liable. However, he would dismiss the charge against John Condon, as he did not want to make two convictions for the same offence. He imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Edwards took place this afternoon. It was largely attended.

Curling.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Representative Committee of the Ontario Branch R.C.C.C., held in Toronto on Tuesday, Peterborough was represented by Dr. Boucher. Mr. J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, was elected President. Keene and Bobcaygeon were among the new clubs admitted. In the allocation of Royal Canadian district medals Bobcaygeon and Keene were placed against each other. Peterborough Club was appointed umpire of group 8 for the Ontario Tankard, this group consisting of Brockville, Odensburg, Belleville, Cobourg, Lakefield, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby, Lindsay, Keene, Bobcaygeon, with Peterborough as umpire.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Bridge Works, has been laid up with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, resulting from a cold contracted while superintending the setting up of bridges in Western Ontario.

Mr. C. D. Macdonald, Town Clerk, has resumed his duties again, having recovered from his recent illness.

Mr. Ale Elliott, who has been suffering from an attack of congestion of the lungs, is recovering.

Mr. Thos. Munro, of Belleville, formerly of this place, is in town to-day.

Mr. W. Middleton left town this morning for Vancouver, B.C.

Miss Brundrette.
3 Solo and chorus...."Goodnight—Farewell."
"God Save the Queen."

Doors open at 7.30. Concert to commence at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

THE CHOICEST and most serviceable assortment of Gent's Furnishings to be found in Peterborough at A. McNEIL'S Habilliment Hall.

The Market.

The delivery of grain during the past week has been on the light side. There are two apparent reasons for this—the weather is fine and the farmers are busy with fall ploughing, and the price being low, they have likely come to the conclusion that they would not risk much by waiting a week or two. The wheat market has improved during the past few days. The regular price runs at 75 and 76 cents per bushel, but choice samples have brought as high as 79 cents. Barley remains in about the same situation, there being little to note. Oats have risen a cent or two, with a prospect of a firm market. From 25 to 28 cents is paid on the Peterborough market. Peas remain stationary at 55 cents. The new features in the past week's markets are the appearance of tub butter and meats by the quarter. The former sells at from 13 to 16 cents per pound. Eggs have taken a jump up in price, 18 cents being now paid.

Success.

It is a pleasure to note the progress and rapid strides being made on every hand by keen, shrewd business men in competing one with the other for supremacy in their respective callings. Success in business means a great deal. It not only helps to make a contented and happy man out of the business man, but the success that he has had will secure for him in more ways than one the respect and confidence of the general public. If a farmer has been careful in the tilling of the soil, in sowing the golden grain, and in constantly keeping a watchful eye on everything in connection with the cultivation of his farm, he will assuredly (assisted by a kind Providence) reap a rich harvest, and consequently will be successful. Success means a great deal. For instance, if your tailor has been unsuccessful in fitting you with a nobby overcoat or winter suit, why don't you try A. McNEIL, Habiliment Hall? No fear of an unsuccessful attempt being made to please anyone there. "As you prove us, praise us!"

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 20.—R. Nicholl and T. Ritchie were charged by P. C. Adams with being drunk in a public place on Saturday night. They both pleaded guilty but were let off.

Queen's University.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 19.—Sir Richard Cartwright made an address last evening at Queen's University opening, when he strongly opposed any scheme by which the colleges of Canada could be centralized. He favored individuality of action and independence of thought, and this could only be secured by maintaining the present educational system. Principal Grant has asked for $25,000 to place Queen's on a footing to successfully complete with the colleges in the country. Within a few days, an unknown person has promised $10,000 to the university.

Highway Robbery.

NAPANEE, Oct. 19.—Charles Gibson, aged 18, and Thomas Henry yesterday started to walk from here to Deseronto on the railroad track. They had gone but a few miles when Henry asked Gibson if he had any money. Gibson told him he had, when Henry knocked him down, and, drawing a knife, threatened to kill him if he did not disgorge. Gibson became frightened and gave Henry his pocketbook containing $23. They walked on to Deseronto together and the highwaymen was arrested.

FIRED ON THE CROWD.

An Outcome of the Chicago Strike—Pinkerton Men Did It.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—Armour & Co's imported workmen, some 300 or 400, went out this morning. They had made up their minds that they did not care to remain any longer if the old hands were to come back. The report of their fears were communicated to Mr. Cudahey, who assured them of protection if they desired to stay. They had concluded, however, that the other butchers would ultimately make it so unpleasant for them that they had better quit at once. A train was telegraphed for and before twelve o'clock the last non-union man had left the premises. The men were in a Lake Shore train, the butchers on the front cars, the guards in the three at the rear. The latter had their rifle muzzles pointing out of the windows. There was a stop at Halsted and Fortieth streets to attach other cars, and the train was switched back some little distance. A crowd of curious people had assembled, and as the inmates of the train were recognized there were some jeering remarks made. As the train repassed this point a Pinkerton man pushed his rifle out, aiming at the crowd, and fired his weapon. Terry Begley fell mortally wounded. The noise of the explosion caused excitement in and outside of the cars. In a moment it was followed by a regular volley from the other riflemen and the crowd which was largely composed of school children fled in a panic. In the flight a man fell and was hastily carried away by his friends. He was also wounded. The train then steamed on.

When the train reached Twenty-second street it was boarded by a detachment of Chicago police who placed all the specials under arrest.

Begley, who was taken to his home at Emerald avenue and Forty-second-street, was still living late this afternoon, but his death was almost momentarily expected. He is an employing teamster engaged about the yards, has a wife and family and took no part in the strike. The Pinkerton men say the strikers made the assault first with stones and then with revolvers and that they made no attack until they had been fired upon. Capt Markey says, however, that the Pinkerton men did the first shooting and without any provocation.

Bigness of the Empire.

The first and overpowering impression which the visitor receives who wanders through the endless courts and halls of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition is the measureless extent of the British Empire. It must be admitted that the inscription at the entrance, "British Empire, superficial area, 9,126,999 square miles; population, 305,387,929," is not to be taken literally, for who has measured the icy deserts of the most northern parts of America to the very mile, and who has ever counted each individual Kaffir or native of other colonies. It must also be acknowledged that some countries are represented at the Exhibition which do not belong to England. Cyprus, for instance, is no British colony; Nepaul is an independent State, and the dependency of Cashmere is limited to the tribute of its Sovereign to the Empress of India of one horse, twelve goats, and six shawls. These small exhibitions, however, do not alter the massive fact of the extent of this Empire, beside which the Roman Empire seems small. This fact we have always before our eyes as we walk through the buildings.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The "Mail" Threatened.

A despatch from Toronto to the Montreal Star on Saturday says:—The Mail printing company has received over sixty threatening letters within the last few weeks from persons expressing indignation against the paper's changed attitude toward prohibition. In consequence of distinct threats to resort to dynamite or fire the Mail building, the managers are put to extraordinary precaution. Every load and shoveful of coal for their furnaces is carefuly examinee for explosives, and the night guard on the building has been doubled.

In reference to this despatch the Toronto World says:—"The World called on Manager C. W. Bunting of the Mail last night. Mr. Bunting had not seen it before and as he read it he smiled. Then he said: 'It's all a lie, not a word of truth in it. Instead of receiving threatening letters we're getting scores congratulating us upon the stand we've taken.'"

An Evil Eye.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—A strange story comes from Stockton, which to-day is apparently confirmed by a preliminary investigation. Willie Brough, a boy of 12 years, is reported to have an eye which sets fire to whatever object he looks upon. He is held responsible for the destruction of much property. He has been expelled from school because of his sinister faculty. Five fires were reported by him in one day, and it is believed he caused them all. The people are greatly excited. Leading business men testified to the alleged facts. Threats against the boy are heard. No one there seems to regard the matter as the work of superstitious imaginations.

A Plauge in Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 17.—Two hundred and seventy-five cases of fever are reported at Biloxi, Miss. The state of things has been kept quiet, bodies being buried at night. An order has been issued forbidding the entry of passengers or freight from Harrisdn County, Miss., into Louisiana, pending investigation.

Killed in the Woods.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 15.—Yesterday afternoon two Germans from Welland, named John Heysel, and Anthony Deitrich, were cross-cutting a log on Aylmer Townsend's farm, 3rd, concession, Blandford, when the forks of a tree, blown down by the wind, struck both of them, killing Heysel instantly and terribly injuring Deitrich.

A Toronto Mystery.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—The inquest on the body of Jane Clark, found in the bay on Thursday morning, was opened last night, but had to be adjourned till Monday night, to secure the attendance of a witness who stated to a policeman that on the night before the body was found he saw two men dragging it along the beach.

Doll in Canada.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Investigation has revealed that the stealings of R. M. Doll, confidential bookkeeper of Weller & Co., who assigned last week, amount to $60,000. He used fraudulent warehouse receipts. Doll is in Canada.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

The doctors allege that corns are the result of downright callousness.

To extinquish kerosene flames, if no cloth is at hand, throw flour on the flames. Flour rapidly absorbs the fluid and deadens the flame.

Galvanized iron pails for drinking water should not be used. The zinc coating is readily acted upon by water, forming a poisonous oxide of zinc.

To remove the tops of fruit-jars that cannot be started by hand dip a cloth in very hot water and apply to the outside of the cap. This will cause it to expand.

Ironing holders are pretty when made of Brown linen, bound with scarlet braid, and finished with a loop to hang by. If a letter is worked in red, it is an improvement. The holders should be made of thick material, and the covers of brown linen should be made to slip off to be washed when necessary.

A Thousand Deaths a Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Advises received state that cholera is still raging fiercely in Corea. No idea can be found of the extent of the scourge. It has more than decimated the capital, where out of a population of 200,000 the death rate rules at the frightful average of a thousand per day. Corea is described as an appalling pest depot.

Diphtheria on the Sardinian.

QUEBEC, Oct. 19.—Three cases of diphtheria two men and a boy, broke out on the SS. Sardinian on her passage to this port. The vessel was detained two hours at the Grosse Isle quarantine station where the cases were landed.

AN OUTRAGE.

THE destruction of the property of Mr. Flavelle by a cowardly midnight attack has excited a general feeling of indignation. There is no room for reasonable doubt that the outrage was committed upon him on account of his exertions in behalf of the enforcement of the Scott Act. On this question of the liquor traffic there may be difference of opinion, but it cannot be tolerated that men holding one opinion should resent that of others in the shape of attacks upon person or property. This law, like others, must be enforced as long as it stands upon our statute books. Lawless attempts to oppose it by violence, to intimidate those who support it, or wreak vengeance upon them must not only be discountenanced but sternly repressed.

The only mitigating circumstance pleaded on behalf of the perpetrators of such acts of violence and destruction, that the liquor dealers have had the value of their property destroyed without compensation, is in no sense a justification. In this as in other matters we utterly repudiate the mischievous idea, of which we have heard so much lately, that because men have a "grievance" they are warranted in taking the law into their own hands, in waging private war as in the dark ages. Such a theory can only result in a reign of anarchy, and in placing civilized communities at the mercy of violent and lawless men. Any grievance under our constitutional government should be met by an appeal to the law, or if the law does not afford redress, by constitutional efforts for further legislation. By our chosen representatives we make our own laws, and as long as a law is unrepealed it must be taken as embodying the will of the community, and must be respected accordingly. No set of men can be allowed to oppose by violence any law because they allege it to be unjust.

For the credit of our community and for the safety of our people it is to be hoped that the commission of this outrage will be brought home to its perpetrators, and that they will receive the condign punishment they so richly deserve.

The Coal Trade.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Coal Trade Journal in its issue to-day says:—"Price remain unchanged, for the anthracite meeting on the 15th wisely deferred advancing circular rates until the market is fully up to these figures. It is absurd to invite adverse criticism by paper advances, even if higher tolls and wages, which naturally follow, were left out of the question. The demand for coal is active, and the output this year will exceed that of any preceding. The question of allotment for November has already received some attention. It is possible that 3,500,000 tons will be the figure agreed upon, as the demand is active and likely to continue so."

The War on the Boodlers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Inspecter Byrnes this morning arrested Jake Sharp, of Broadway railroad notoriety, at his house, on an indictment fouud against him by the grand jury for bribing the Boodle alderman to vote for the Broadway railway franchise. James Richmond, President of the Broadway railway, was also taken into custody charged with the same offence. Jas. W Foshay, ex-President of the Broadway rail road, was also arrested.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

TURKISH OCCUPATION MOOTED.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—St. Petersburg papers are beginning to prepare public opinion for a Turkish occupation of Bulgaria.

KAULBARS SATISFIED.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—General Kaolbars declares that he is satisfied with the result of his trip through Bulgaria. He considers that the sentiment of the greater part of the people is favorable to Russia, but that it has been perverted or suppressed by the regency clique. Gen. Kaulbars has sent a strong protest to the Bulgarian Government against the persecution of the people who are friendly to Russia.

NO MISCHIEF MAKERS.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—An order has been issued by the Ministry of Justice to seize all papers and reviews containing articles tending to excite discord among the nationalities of the country.

AN APPOINTMENT FOR HENEAGE.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—George Blucher Heneage, ex-member of the Commons for Lancashire, has been gazetted Attorney-General for Western Australia.

MORE EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Violent Shocks of earthquake have been felt in Alsace, the Vosges and Blackforest, the movement being invariably from north to south.

ANOTHER IRISH COMMISSION.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Royal Commission of Enquiry to investigate the harbor accommodations of inland navigation, railways, etc., has been gazetted. The commission comprises Sir James Allport, James Abernethy, John Barry and James Pim.

JOURNALISTS IN TROUBLE.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Louis Cohn, editor of the Breslau Law Reporter, has been arrested on a charge of making insulting remarks with reference to the Emperor William four years ago. The charge was preferred by the editor of an opposition paper, the New Law Reporter. Public opinion condemns the action of the latter. Herr Fellerer, editor of the Bavarian Amperbole, has been sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment for making antiministerial comments at the time of the death of King Ludwig. The Wurzberg Court has sentenced a journalist named Memingen to two months' imprisonment for a similar offence.

AN EARTHQUAKE.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Severe and prolonged shocks of earthquake occurred in Serinagur, Cashmere, this morning. There were frequent tremors during the night, lasting till sunrise. The shocks created a panic amongst the people. The extent of the damage to property is not known.

A PRINCESS MISSING.

DRESDEN, Oct. 20.—The Russian Princess Gallatzin, who has been sojourning here, recently left the city suddenly, since which time nothing has been heard of her. She is supposed to have committed suicide.

RUSSIAN AGENTS ARRESTED.

SOFIA, Oct. 20.—Nineteen Russian agents, who were detected in the act of inciting Bulgarian peasants to revolt against the Government have been arrested at Philippopolis.

A RUSSO-TURKISH AGREEMENT.

SOFIA, Oct. 20.—The interview of Gadban Effendi, special envoy of the Porte, with the Bulgarian ministers, which took place today, discloses the fact that a complete agreement regarding Bulgaria exists between the Governments of Turkey and Russia.

A CONSERVATIVE OPINION.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Standard says:—"Mr. Gladstone's latest contribution is not calculated to strengthen his position. Nobody denies that the Irish Parliament of 1810 was bribed; but that is no reason for abandoning Ireland now to the tyranny of the League and American conspirators." Referring to the coming struggle on the rent question, between the League and Lord Clanricarde, the Standard says:—"There would be little occasion for regret if the League resolved to precipitate a conflict that would be certain to end in its own defeat."

PRUSSIAN SOCIALIST CONVICTED.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Cologne Gazette says a Prussian Socialist, named Krebs, was recently convicted in Italy of inciting workingmen to violence and ordered to leave the country.

NATIONAL LIBERAL FEDERATION.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The emergency committee of the National Liberal Federation met here yesterday and decided to transfer the headquarters of the Federation from Birmingham to London.

COUNTESS VON ARMIN'S DEATH.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The medical report of the autopsy on the Countess Von Armin tends to prove that she was murdered. Another theory accounting for the marks of violence upon her person is that she fell on the rocks while wandering in the night. She was a sister-in-law of the celebrated diplomat of that name. She had been missing for ten days, and her husband had offered a reward of 10,000 marks to anyone discovering her whereabouts.

ALL ARRESTED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 20.—A tenant named Hurley, assisted by a band of neighbors, successfully resisted eviction at Clonakilty, County Cork, yesterday. To-day the whole band left the house to enjoy their victory at a neighboring tavern. The police, who had retreated into ambush, put themselves between the abandoned house and its defenders and succeeded in arresting all of the latter. The police subsequently seized a quantity of dynamite near Hurley's residence.

AN UNDERSTANDING.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The Journal Des Debats says that the three empires have come to an understanding on the Eastern question on the following basis namely, that Russia shall not occupy Bulgaria and that Austria and Germany shall not recognize either the regency or the prince elected by the Sobranje without the assent of Russia.

THE EMPEROR WILLIAM.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Private advices from Baden gave the lie direct to the bulletins concerning the Emperor's health which are constantly being received here are conspicuously published. These bulletins represent the Kaiser in robust health, taking walks, rides and vigorous exercise daily, while private letters says he is feeble, unable to mount a horse and is never for a moment lost sight of by his attendants lest he should fall from sheer weakness. Recently, these accounts says, he has had several attacks of syncope and prolonged drowsiness and recently was in a semi-comatose state for twenty hours and his medical attendants were unable to rouse him. His condition, it is said, is aggravated by chronic disease of the bladder. It is also said upon authority of these writers, who for obvious reasons request the suppression of their names, that the emperor's life cannot possibly be prolonged more than a month or two, even with the most careful nursing.

HARMONY NOT RESTORED.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—John Bright, who was invited to attend a presentation to Mr. Schnardhorst at Birmingham, writes that he greatly approves the services of Mr. Schnardhorst, and the manner of marking them, but asks to be excused from attending the ceremony because, as he would be expected to speak, he does not wish to cast blame upon former friends, and therefore thinks it best to remain silent until the former harmony of the Liberal party has been restored.

EDUCATION IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Oct. 20.—Archbishop Walsh, in an address to the Christian Brothers of the Archdiocese of Dublin, said it was impossible for England to deal successfully with the problem of Irish education, and that an Irish Parliament alone was capable of dealing properly with the question.

GEN. MACPHERSON DEAD.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—News has been received here of the death of Major-General Sir Herbert Taylor Macpherson, after two days' illness, from jungle fever. Sir Herbert was commander of the British army of occupation in Burmah at the time of his death, and while his conduct of the expedition against the dacoits has not escaped adverse criticism, competent military authorities admit that he managed an enterprise of extreme difficulty with equal bravery and sagacity. Sir Herbert was born in 1827, and entered the army when 18 years of age. He was knighted in 1881, and obtained the rank of Major-General the following year.

THE TURKISH AGENT.

SOFIA, Oct. 20.—Gadban Effendi, the Turkish representative, has informed the Bulgarian Ministry that he has been instructed to act in concert with Gen. Kaulbars, the Russian agent. He strongly advises the Bulgarians to concede the Russian demands and postpone the meeting of the great Sobranje to elect a successor to the Bulgarian throne. As soon as Gadban Effendi's information had been received a special Cabinet was held to consider what he had presented. Gadban Effendi was informed that the Bulgarian Government would no more brook Turkish than it would Russian interference, but would resist both with the comforting conviction that any misfortunes likely to overtake Bulgaria would never compare in seriousness with the retribution awaiting the infatuation of Turkey.

ENGLAND'S ARMY.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Gen. Lord Wolseley, Adjutant General, has issued a circular to the officers of the English army intimating that the Duke of Cambridge, Commander-in-Chief, is dissatisfied over the small progress made in their military training during the recent inspection. The circular states that the Duke observed that many officers of all ranks evinced much want of knowledge of the duties vitally important to military efficiency, and he strongly insists that the officers shall devote more time and attention to the instruction of their troops.

RITES OF THE CHURCH REFUSED

To a Soldier in Halifax Who Dies from the Effects of Drink.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 20.—Considerable interest exists here over a misunderstanding between the Catholic chaplain of the Garrison and the military authorities. On Saturday night, Private Gallagher, belonging to the York and Lancaster Regiment, recently from England, went on a spree with two companions belonging to the Royal Irish Rifles. A free fight ensued. The two riflemen escaped, but Gallagher was picked up unconscious, and died the next morning. The corner's jury returned a verdict of "suffocation while intoxicated." No efforts was made to find Gallagher's companions. The funeral was announced for yesterday. The deceased was a Catholic, but the Catholic Chaplain, Mr. Carmody, refused to allow him to be buried in consecrated ground, or to read the church service over his grave, on the ground that it was against the rules of the Catholic church to give Christian burial to a man who dies drunk or from the effects of drink. The military authorities refused to bury Gallagher in the unconsecrated portion of the Catholic cemetery, and without a church ceremony, so that the funeral did not take place. The military authorities announce that they will bury Gallagher in the military cemetery (Protestant), this afternoon, when the funeral service will be performed by the Protestant chaplain. This is the first public occasion on which the rites of the church have been refused to a man dying from drink in Halifax, and the affair causes much comment.

Accident Caused by a Bull.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 20.—A construction train on the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad was thrown from the track nine miles southwest of Fairfield yesterday afternoon. The whole train was precipitated down an embankment twenty-five feet, and six cars were totally wrecked. Five men were killed outright, and nine more or less seriously injured. The killed are: Robert H. Marvin, Dewes, Neb.; George Burke, St. Louis; Paul Connor, Weston, Mo.; Robert Collins, England; and an unknown man still under the wreck. John Fitzgerald, President of the Irish Land League, the contractor in charge of the work, was slightly injured. But one of the injured was dangerously hurt. The wreck was caused by the engine running over a bull.

The alleged Counterfeiters.

ST. THOMAS, Ont. Oct. 20.—George Clissold who was implicated in counterfeiting in this city, was found guilty on a charge of the robbery of a cash box from Palmer's bakery on the night of the 24th July last. Sentence was reserved. On a charge of passing counterfeit money, he was remanded until the 26th, Carry was then examined on a charge of making and passing counterfeit money, and was committed to stand his trial.

The Chicago Strike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Everything is quiet at the stock yards this morning. A few packing houses are open and running in a small way, but there has been no general resumption of work. The yards are filled with workmen.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1886.

FARMERS, BEWARE!

Not long ago we called attention to an article in the Toronto Globe advocating the confiscation of the property of our farmers and other land owners, and suggesting that the people of Canada should be educated into believing in this robbery. This process of education seems to be progressing. At the last meeting of the Toronto Young Men's Liberal Club, Mr. W. A. Douglas, one of the officers of the Club, read a paper in which he advocated this idea of depriving landowners of their property in the soil. What do our farmers think of this very "liberal" idea of thus robbing them of the enjoyment of their farms, which they or their fathers hewed out of the forest with so much toil?

According to the theories of the Globe and other Rielite organs, they would be justified in raising an armed rebellion, for we are told that the Halfbreeds of the Saskatchewan were justified in rebelling because somebody said that somebody else wanted to take the Halfbreeds land away from them. Of course we utterly repudiate any such idea, for we do not believe that men, whether on the Otonabee or on the Saskatchewan either, are justified in rebelling because there is only talk of taking their land, and while there are still the laws and the courts for their protection. But we do seriously advise our farmers to vote against those who would educate the people into confiscating property in land. If these advocates of robbery were trusted with power they would have greater facilities for educating the people to be as dishonest as themselves, and then our farmers might really find themselves in danger of losing their farms.

Even theoretical robbers, who do not want to rob just yet, are better kept at a safe distance from the property they covet. It would be well for our farmers, and for every owner of a little house and lot to refuse to place robbers and their friends in a position to do mischief.

THE OFFICIAL PLATFORM.

The London Advertiser, a leading Reform journal, has the following editorial paragraph:—

"Now this is a secret, and we hope our esteemed contemporary, the Peterborough REVIEW, will not be prevailed upon to give it away: We defeated the Government in Quebec by holding our own and gaining seats from the other party."

The silly childishness of the style of this effusion is too obvious to need much remark. They did not hold their own seats, for they lost in the English-speaking constituencies, where Reform electors of that tongue refused to vote in favour of the right claimed for French-speaking men of shooting them down, if so inclined, without punishment. The method in which the seats were gained was by raising a cry of "race and creed" against the constitutional authorities of Canada for daring to oppose murder and rebellion and to bring murderers and rebels to justice. But we wish to call special attention to the fact that the almost official organ of the Reform party boasts that "we" defeated the Government of Quebec. As far as the London Advertiser can do so, it places the Reform party of the Dominion alongside Mr. Mercier on the Regina scaffold as the party platform. Will loyal, honest Reformers allow themselves to be so placed?

A RIELITE journal in Ontario, commenting on denunciations of the Canadian French claim to be above the law, says:—

"This is simply demagogic balderdash. Are not the laws carried out against French Canadians in Quebec who commit crime?"

Even if this were true it is not quite sufficient to satisfy English-speaking Canadians. It may be very satisfactory to French Canadians who are robbed or murderously attacked that the laws are carried out against French Canadians who have committed the crime. But the English-speaking people of Canada, the great majority of its inhabitants, cannot accept this as a full satisfaction of their right to be protected by the law when French Canadian criminals injure them. The objection is to the claim that it is meritorious in a French Canadian to imprison, rob and murder English-speaking Canadians because he thus gives evidence of his "national" feeling. We want the same law for all, and equality before the law.

AMONG the messages of congratulation to the Quebec Rielites is one from Pacaud, the friend, the paid servant, the chosen standard bearer in North Essex of Mr. Mowat. This man vilified our brave volunteers, described them as murderers, ravishers and thieves, and Mr. Mowat rewarded him for so doing. Many Reformers had friends among these volunteers who lost life or limb at the hands of the Rielite Reform faction; will they cast their votes for such man or such a master?

Revolution in Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19.—A special from Nogales, A.T., says: A revolution in Mexico of no mean proportions is considered imminent. Popular oppinion is that the plans include a scheme to consolidate the adversaries of the present administration and create a new political party, or, in other words, to forcibly overthrow President Diaz. A new Congress will then be elected and a constitution formed. Many friends of President Diaz, it is said, are among the agitators of the scheme. Their intention is to make the President Dictator of the republic for a term of ten years, so that sufficient time may be had to give the new plan a fair trial.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at 10 cents a week.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

PATENTS OF PEERAGE.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Lord Rosebery, speaking at Newcastle last night, suggested that patents of peerage be granted to lords on the same principle as is observed in granting a decree nisi in a divorce court, subject to revocation at the expiration of six months, instead of one month, as at present.

THE POLICY OF BLAKE AND MOWAT.

The portents just now seem to indicate a determined advance of French and Roman Catholic forces, aided by the party which for thirty-six years has steadily resisted their march. The final result of these movements no one can forsee.—Toronto World (Ind.)

THE VERDICT OF QUEBEC.

The returns from Quebec show, without a doubt, that the Ross Government has sustained defeat. There is no question that the principal factor in bringing about the overthrow of an administration sustained by so strong a majority in the Legislature was the Riel issue. The revulsion of feeling in the constituencies is too widespread and too general to be attributed to any other cause. No cry in favor of purity, of economy in Government, progressive legislation, or anything of that sort would have made itself felt among the masses of the French Canadians so effectively as the appeal to their emotions and the race susceptibilities has done. The Rouge majority is plainly due to the desire on the part of the French Canadian electors to avenge themselves on Sir John Macdonald's Government and party for the execution of the half-breed leader.—Toronto News (Ind.)

RACE AND REVENGE.

Having the Riel cry and the Castor Jesuit support, it is not wonderful that Mr. Mercier should have won. So competent an authority as the Montreal Witness praises the policy of the Ross Government, and no one expects any improvement under the regime of Mr. Mercier, who is a clever but by no means scrupulous politician. The Riel cry and the Jesuits have gained the victory, and not a single point of vantage is gained for honest or economical government. Race and Revenge are triumphant, and the Quebec majority, aided by the English professing Liberals, are about to move upon the works of the Ottawa Government with "No punishment for French rebels and murderers" inscribed on their banners.—Toronto World (Indep.)

A SLAP IN THE FACE.

But, unfortunately, the result means also the ascendancy of narrow, race-hatred, a sentiment decidedly anti-English, and a triumph of demagogism which is a menace to Canadian national unity. No doubt Mr. Mercier will drop the cry upon which he won the elections, but it cannot be forgotten that he succeeded almost solely because he contended that Louis Riel's execution was a martyrdom, that the law ought not to have been carried out in the case of one guilty of treason, and that Riel's fate was the cry of race. The verdict is, therefore, partly a slap in the face of the English.—Ottawa Journal (Indep.)

BY THE RIEL CRY.

As we predicted some time ago, the combination party, headed by Mr Mercier, has swept the Province by means of the Riel cry In every constituency, French or English, that has been the dominating issue. Where the deciding vote has been English the candidates who did not take a decided stand on the Riel question have almost without exception, been defeated. In the French country, constituency after constituency has been wrested from the Bleus and has been captured by the Nationalists. The Government has probably been defeated, though that is not quite certain.—Montreal Witness (Reform).

RAISED THE STORM.

Mr. Mercier evidently believes that good may be brought forth from evil; he has raised the storm of vengeance and race prejudice and now he promises concord.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

THE LIBERAL PLATFORM SECESSION.

The Ottawa Free Press says:—"Did not the whole Province of Nova Scotia declare for secession?" No, not quite. About fifty-five per cent. of the votes cast were for the Liberals, and the Liberal platform was secession, but in several constituencies which returned Liberals secession was not made the issue, the candidates of both parties declaring themselves to be unionists. Very nearly half the voters declared themselves in favor of union.—Montreal Star (Indep.).

"PENDARD" IS THE CRY.

This change of feeling is not the result of any corruption or maladministration on the part of Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues; it is simply the result of an appeal to the passion and prejudices of the French people. The appeal is not, it is fair to say, against the English-speaking people, but against the Government of the day, against Sir John Macdonald, Sir Adolphe Caron and the Hon. Mr. Chapleau, who allowed Riel to be executed. "Pendard" is the cry against each member or supporter of the Government.—Montreal Witness (Reform).

SERIOUS FIRE IN TORONTO.

Elliott & Co.'s Wholesale Drug Store Completely Gutted—Loss, $100,000.

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—At three o'clock this morning dense volumes of smoke were seen issuing from the second story of Elliott & Co.'s wholesale drug house at No. 3 Front street. A heavy mist was hanging over the city at the time, and it was with difficulty that the firemen could begin operations. The building is four stories high, and was heavily stocked with chemicals, drugs and explosives. For fifteen minutes nothing but great volumes of blinding smoke were visible. At 3.15 the firemen were endeavoring to reach the exact seat of the flames, which seemed to be spreading in two or three directions. At 3.25 a general alarm was sounded. Shortly afterwards a number of explosions took place, and one of the men from the Court street fire hall was blown from the ladder, being badly hurt. The firemen did splendid work, but notwithstanding their exertions the building was gutted. The adjoining buildings, occupied by the Canadian Rubber Comyany and Davidson & Hay, escaped injury. The loss will probably reach $100,000: insured for $75,000.

MARINE DISASTER.—One of the barges which the Sunbeam was towing with gravel for the dam, upset in the lake during the storm last Thursday.—Star.

P. McAbe Fay, head of the house of McAbe, Fay & Co., grocers, Dublin, failed to appear on Sept. 28th in the Dublin Police Court on a charge of forgery at the instance of the Bank of Ireland. The Magistrate ordered a warrant to be issued for his apprehension, and directed the usual steps to be taken to estreat the recognisances, which amount to £2,000, of which £1,000 fall on two sureties.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

BAILIEBORO CENTRAL SHOW.

The United Townships Fair—Unfavorable Weather.

The third annual exhibition of the townships of South Monaghan, Cavan, Hamilton, Hope and North Monaghan Agricultural Societies was held at the village of Bailieboro, South Monaghan, on Thursday and Friday of last week. The weather was very unfavorable, being wet and cold, but the exhibition turned out well, the number of entries made 940, being an increase over last year.

In the hall there was a good display. Roots, vegetables and grain were represented by well developed specimens, and of fruit, especially apples and pears, there was a fine display. The home manufactures class was well filled, and there were several well-executed exhibits in fine arts. The display of ladies' work was a splendid one, both of useful and fancy articles.

The outside exhibits were well worth inspection. There were some good cattle shown, but the horses attracted the most attention. There were a number of horses shown and the competition was keen. Pigs, sheep and poultry also showed up very well.

The mechanics' department was not so well filled as it would have been had the weather been more favorable, yet there was a very good display. Mr J. W. Lucas, of Bailieboro, showed waggons, buggies, harrows and other articles. Mr. R. Butler, of Bailieboro, cutters, Mr. R. Parker, of Bailieboro, very fine sets of harness, Mr. A. Egelson, harrows, Mr. H. Jewsin, a collection of agricultural implements, Mr. D. Ferguson, a sod plough, and Mr. Peter Hamilton of Peterborough, was present with machinery from his agricultural works.

The attendance was large, considering the state of the weather, and might have even been counted fair on a better day.

A lacrosse match was to have been played by Millbrook and Bensfort clubs. On the forenoon of the second day they faced each other, and a lively game seemed assured. The first game was taken by the Bensfort club, but the second game was cut short by rain and the match was not completed.

The Bensfort boys played well for the game they took, and although the Millbrook team played pluckily, the odds were against them.

"Imitation is the Sincerest Flattery."

If the above quotation is true, then Dr. R. V. Pierce ought to feel highly flattered on account of the many imitators of his popular remedy, the "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," for they have scores of imitators, but never an equal, for the cure of sick and bilious headache, constipation, impure blood, kidney pains, internal fever and all bowel complaints. With a bottle of the sugared granules in the house you can dispense with the family doctor and his often nauseous medicines.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, and Constipation, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Restores the color, gloss, and youthful freshness of the hair; stimulates a rich and luxurious growth; thoroughly cleanses the scalp; prevents dandruff and humors; and is the most cleanly and effective preparation for the hair ever offered to the public. Rev. J. W. Davenport, Illinois Bend, Texas, writes: "Ayer's Hair Vigor, used in my family for several years, has no equal as a dressing, nor for preventing the hair from falling out or turning prematurely gray. It ranks among the first luxuries of our house." Miss Kate Rose, Ingersoll, Ontario, writes: "While keeping my head clear of dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, Ayer's Hair Vigor has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as could be desired." The wife of Dr. V. S. Lovelace, Lovelaceville, Ky., had very bad tetter sores upon her head, causing the hair to fall out. Ayer's Hair Vigor healed the sores, and in less than twelve months produced hair a foot long.

No More Bald Heads.

To produce a new growth of hair on bald heads, in the case of persons advanced in years, is not always possible. When the glands are decayed and gone, no stimulant can restore them; but, when they are only inactive, from the need of some excitant, the application of Ayer's Hair Vigor will renew their vitality, and a new growth will result. L. V. Templeton, Newbern, N. C., writes: "After a protracted illness, with fever, my hair all came out, leaving me entirely bald. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, before I had used all its contents, a thick growth of hair, nearly two inches long, covered my head." L. D. McJunkin, Perryville, Md., writes: "Baldness is hereditary in my family. Five years ago the hair on the top of my head was becoming weak and thin. I procured Ayer's Hair Vigor, the application of which invigorated the hair roots, and sent out a new growth of young hair. To-day my hair is as thick and vigorous as ever. I still use the Vigor occasionally to keep my scalp in a healthy condition."

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

GO!

It is remarkable how cu Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

A corn festival, musical and literary entertainment will be held in the Opera House, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church, on Tuesday next, Sept. 26th. Full particulars will be given later.

Watch Winners.

On Tuesday a gold was watch raffled at the Little Windsor Hotel. W. Martin and Allen Gilbert, each paid $1, three Hall each threw 25. They agreed to divide the spoils. As dividing it literally is out of the question they have come to the conclusion to sell it and "snake" the receipts.

JOHN CLARKE & SONS' Celebrated Razors, GEORGE STETHEM.

Coming Again.

In the Opera House on Monday next, the 25th, at 8 p.m., a great farewell missionary meeting of the Hindo contingent of the Salvation Army will be held. The following will be present:—Major Hal Bhai, Sergt. Marsee Gopal, Capt. Fariam Dasako, the saved Mahomedan merchant, Nauroe Ali and four lasses and four lads from Canada and others from the States who are going to India, in Native costume. Admission 10 cents.

A Curiosity.

Mr. Wm. Spencely has brought us a vegetable curiosity grown in his garden at Auburn. It is a well grown horn carrot, shapely except that a little below the crown it is ringed by a bone, apparently one of the vertebræ of a pig. The young seedling must have sent its roots down through this small aperture, and as it grew it expanded till it attained the goodly dimensions of five and a half inches in circumference and six inches in length, thus showing the great adaptability of vegetable growth to surrounding circumstances.

Scott Act.

The Queen vs. Roddy case came up at the police court this morning. The reason given for adjournment on Monday was that a person then in Rochester could prove that Mr. Roddy had nothing to do with the bar. Mr. Roddy appeared in the court carrying a frame of licenses, and laying it on the table repeated his statement that he never kept hotel on Simcoe street. He asked the Magistrate to look at the signatures. Mr. Moore, appearing for the defendant, asked for another adjournment so as to get the absent witness. He had come from Rochester but this morning could not be found. Mr. Edmison also appeared for the defendant. An adjournment was agreed to till Friday, the case to come up in the morning.

A Coward's Act.

Some time during Wednesday night or this morning one of the large plate glass window's in the front of Mr. J.W. Flavelle's flour and feed store was smashed in. This morning a stone weighing about five pounds was found on the floor, it being the evident instrument by which the injury was done. There is scarcely any doubt that the window was broken through malice on the part of someone, as under the circumstance it is altogether unlikely that it was done by accident. Whoever it was that did the injury is a coward and worse than a coward; and anyone doing such a thing is capable of worse violations of the law. Fortunately the glass is insured, or Mr. James Stevenson, who owns the building, would have suffered a considerable loss, by this lawless outrage. The night operator at the Telephone office, heard the crash at sometime after midnight. The night police officers did not hear anything of it as at about the time it was done they were called on to subdue a street row in the west part of the town.

Social.

A social will be held under the auspices of the Mission Band of St. Paul's Church on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, November 18th. The musical part of the programme will be under the direction of Mr. Parker.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Big Bargains.

The Bon Marche will during this week sell at auction prices. All wanting bargains away down below par should take advantage of the opportunity. On Tuesday evening next an auction sale will be held. Special accommodation will be made for ladies.

A Heavy Transfer.

This morning Dr. Stephenson and Mr. E. B. Edwards negotiated the sale of Mr. J. Boyd's heavy draught team of mares, Mr. J. C. Edwards, of Montreal, becoming the owner. This team comes from Mr. Boyd's farm, near Port Hope, and they have won a reputation for themselves by winning third prize at the Toronto Exhibition. The price agreed upon was $525.00.

Singing.

Mr. L. Seward, organist at St. John's, has secured the commodious hall above China Hall, which he will use as class rooms. Mr Seward is now engaged in arranging two singing classes, a senior class and a junior class. He proposes to conduct these so that they will be of interest to all through the winter months, by aiming more at social improvement than merely at the dull routine of tuition. There is lots of latent talent in Peterborough and Mr. Seward's effort to "bring it out" is praiseworthy.

Dairy Maids' Social.

The following is the programme for the above social, which takes place this evening, Oct. 21st, in the Charlotte street Methodist Church School room:—

1 Solo and chorus "Home from the Wooland"
2 Solo....." A Little Maid Milking Her Cow."
Miss Daves.
3 Solo.....Miss Johnson.
4 Solo and chorus."The Cow Bells in the Lane."
Refreshments.
1 Solo and chorus....."Star of the Twilight."
2 Solo.....
Miss Brundrette.
3 Solo and chorus...."Goodnight—Farewell."
"God Save the Queen."

Doors open at 7.30. Concert to commence at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

Mikado Social.

All arrangements have been completed for the Mikado social to be held in St. John's School House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 27th and 28th Oct. The room will be handsomely decorated in Japanese designs and brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns. The managing committee are saving neither trouble nor expense in order to make it a success. A musical programme has been prepared under the direction of Mr. L. Seward. Several ladies in Japanese costume will preside over a booth at which will be sold fancy articles, fans, etc., Japanese tea, koko and refreshments. Proceeds in aid of the organ fund. Tickets, 25 cents. Doors open at 7.30 o'clock. Concert at 8 o'clock.

Wood.

The town's wood supply is derived from different sources from those of three years ago. Then the people of Peterdorough depended entirely upon the farmers living a few miles from town and upon the mills in Peterborough and vicinity for their supply of wood fuel. The town has now so grown that these sources of supply have become inadequate, and this season, as last, the bulk of wood fuel will come from outside places. About one thousand five hundred cords will come from north of Lindsay, picked up along the Victoria Railway; several hundred cords will come by the Canadian Pacific Railway from the vicinity of Havelock and the Central Ontario Junction; some will be scowed from Stoney Lake, and a few hundred cords has already come from Rick Lake by Calcutt's line of steamers. The price of hardwood this winter will range from $3.50 to $4.50.

Matrimonial.

As there are always a number of marriages on the tapis, the following will be found interesting:—"When a couple became engaged there is seldom any sensible reason why the world should not know it, and therefore the fashion of announcing engagements just before a local entertainment and having the ladies and gentlemen congratulated by their friends is to be commended. To be sure, if the engagement is afterward broken, the thought of these public congratulations would be embarrasing; but if the fashion tends to prevent promises of marriage being lightly given it will serve good purposes. The girl who might say yes, when asked to marry, with the mental reservation that if anything better comes along she will contrive not to keep her word, will think twice about it if she has to go through with such a form. Marriage engagements are frequently too lightly entered into and too lightly set aside. The engagement should be nearly as sacred a contract as the marriage itself, and it should be such an engagement that parties would be proud to have it known among all their common acquaintances. The young man should after the engagement, dress well, and should on the wedding day appear in proper attire. To do this, he should purchase a suit of A. MCNEIL'S bright and well made clothes—a suit becoming the occasion. Habliment Hall is the right place to get nobby suits or overcoats.

MOONLIGHTERS DENOUNCED.

Bishop Nulty, of Meath, calls them Ireland's Greatest Enemies.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Rev. Dr. Nulty, Roman Catholic Bishop of Meath, in a sermon in Dublin on Sunday denounced in the strongest terms the acts perpetrated by moonlighters and called them the greatest enemies to Ireland to-day. He said the outrages that they commited served but to perpetuate landlordism, which otherwise he declared was doomed. He asked the moonlighters to restore their arms and the other property they had stolen to the owners. "You can do this quietly," continued the Bishop. "You can make this restitution through me if you wish, or you can make it through your parish priests, who will not betray your secrets." Continuing Bishop Nulty said: "If the moonlighters fail to desist from their outrages I am determined to organize a committee to watch them and bring them to justice. I know many of these men myself. It is impossible for them to escape. Our country is on her trial. Her prosperity and happiness for centuries depend on the good behavior of of her people during the coming winter. As soon as Ireland shall have proved herself able to govern herself we shall have the whole English democracy on our side. Then Home Rule will be certain."

The Times says the Bishop's utterance was outspoken and vigorous, but it comes too late. It puts the whole matter on a true basis, setting morality and the repression of crime before all political changes whatever.

Drill.

Lieut. Brennan has consented to give the Separate School boys instruction in military drill, and has reviewed the lads several times already. This sort of exercise is an excellent thing. It is one of the few kinds of dicipline which school boys take to. It is a pity that the cadet corps in connection with the Collegiate Institute has been allowed to lapse.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

BY MR. CLUXTON.

WHEAT.—Markets are steady and the price is improving, both on this continent and in Europe.

BARLEY.—Deliveries by farmers in Lindsay, Omemee and Millbrook have been large during the week, and in Peterborough moderate. The price in Peterborough was higher yesterday, with sharp competi- [illegible] large deliveries. Owing to the low prices earlier in the season, farmers in the States and Canada held back, the malsters became anxious, and the market firmed up. Now, the chances are that the movement will be larger, and if accumulations increase we may look for a lull and less demand.

CLOVER SEED.—Lower in the States, with nothing doing so far in England.

CHEESE.—Rather dull and half a cent lower in Montreal and New York. Liverpool is steady at 55s. 6d. Factory men in Western Ontario are holding for higher prices.

Business in the States and in England is good, with fewer failures, and the future looks hopeful.

The Earth Said to be Sinking.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 20.—A theory is advanced that the Texas and Louisiana coast is sinking gradually, and that this phenomenon accounts for the disaster whice befell Sabine Pass. It is argued that the floods of former years werefully as severe as the recent one, yet the water did not reach such a hight, and from this it is inferred that the towns themselves must be lower than before.

Attacked by an Elephant.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The elephant Alva nearly killed its owner, Charles Hazleton, in Brooklyn last night, by dashing him to the pavement while he was leading it home after a private trick performance. It is alleged that the animal had been made drunk by the people at the hotel.

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1886.

MR. BLAKE has been giving his reasons why the present Dominion Administration should be dismissed from power. His principal reason is that under their rule there has been secession at one end of the country and rebellion at the other. This virtually means that because Mr. Blake and his friends stir up rebellion and secession Mr. Blake and his friends should be entrusted with power. Reasonable and patriotic men will come to the conclusion that rebels, secessionists and their advocates, by committing and encouraging such offences, have given another reason why they should not be entrusted with power in the place of those who oppose their misdeeds.

NORWOOD.

A RELIC OF WATERLOO.—Mr. Wm. McCracken, of Roseneath, has a carbine in his possession which was used by his father at the famous battle of Waterloo.

ENTERPRISING.—The firm of Finlay & Son are giving their Hub, Spoke and Bending Factory a complete overhauling. The previous 25 horse power is to be changed into that of 80. It is the intention to heat both storeys by steam, and for that purpose 1,200 feet of pipes are to be placed as soon as the boiler and engine are fitted. There will be sufficient power to run the saw mill and bending departments at once.

PRESENTATION.—On the eve of her departure from Norwood, Mrs. Thos. Burke, for many years a teacher in the Methodist Sabbath School and an active member of the Ladies' Aid Association of the Methodist Church, was the recipient of some token of esteem from a number of members of the association mentioned. On Wednesday evening, Sept. 29th, Mrs. Burke was entertained at the hospitable residence of Mrs. Hiram Reynolds, where all the teachers of the school mentioned, as well as a number of invited friends, met to show their respect for their guest. After a most substantial tea had been partaken of, the party was addressed by Mr. Thos. Buck and others, all of whom expressed their regret on losing a teacher who had taken a deep interest in the welfare of the Sabbath school, and always faithful in her duties as a Sabbath school teacher. On the following Saturday evening, several Sabbath school teachers, with the members of Mrs. Burke's class, called upon her at her residence, and after a short time spent in conversation, Mrs. Burke was very much surprised on being presented with a beautiful set of fruit dishes and the following kindly worded address:—

OUR DEAR TEACHER.—It was with unfeigned regret, we learned a short time ago that circumstances were such as would soon oblige you to leave us. During the past nine years you have been punctual in attendance to your Sabbath school class. Frequently were you to be found at your post when your health scarcely allowed it. Your affection and Christian earnestness will not soon be forgotten by us. Though we are to lose a faithful teacher, one who has always shown an extreme desire for our soul's welfare, yet we believe and trust that your exemplary character and many good advices will encourage us on in the "good fight." As a slight token of our esteem, we beg you to accept those fruit dishes, which we accompany by wishing you and yours very many happy days in your knew field of labor.

Yours, very affectionately,
SIGNED, in behalf of your class.

THE RENFREW TRAGEDY.

Confession of the Murderer.—Prepared to Meet His Fate.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21.—David Googlein, the German who committed the shocking murder recently reported from Raglam, Renfrew county, and who is now in gaol at Pembroke awaiting his trial, has made the following confession:—"Between 9 and 10 o'clock on Monday morning after quarrelling I ordered the woman and children to leave the house. The house was about thirty feet from my house and belonged to me. The woman's husband was there at the time I ordered them out. The husband then went away with a gun to hunt. About two hours after this I went to the barn to cut some straw. While I was doing this Mrs. Werckenthal was taunting and defying me to such an extent that I could stand it no longer; I then went to the house and odered the woman and children out. She told me she would not go, and used very indecent and insulting language. She then went into the house with her children and I then nailed up the door. I had turned to leave and had got as far as the corner when she broke open the door with an axe. I then thought the only way to get them out was to burn down the shanty, so I walked over to my house and got a coal of fire and threw it into their shanty. I then went around the corner of the house and the woman went in the opposite direction, and we met at the back of the house. She said, 'You devil! is this the way you intend to kill me?' And then she picked up a stick of wood to strike me. I also picked up a stick of wood and struck her on the forehead. She then turned her back and I struck her two more blows on the back of the head, and she fell to the ground. I then went to my house and said, 'Good-bye, wife and children, you won't see me any more. I am going to put an end to myself.' I then went to the bush to starve myself. On Monday and Tuesday I lost my way in the bush. After finding out my location I started for the Mississippi River with the intention to drown myself. After I got to the river and stood on the brink, I prayed to God to guide me. At this time two grey birds flew close to me and I took it for an omen not to drown myself, so I started back and struck the Palmer rapids and some men took men across the river and accompanied me to Rockingham, when I gave myself up. When I struck the woman I not intend to kill her. She was not dead when I left her. I did not know she was dead until I reached Rockingham. The reason I left was [illegible] of her husband, as he had [illegible] threatened to shoot me. If I had remained there, and the husband found his house burned, and that I had struck his wife, he, having his gun in his possession, would without hesitation have shot. If it is so destined that I should hang for the crime, I am resigned to my fate."

Googlien is a muscular man, dark complexioned, 44 years of age, stands 5 feet 8 inches, and weighs about 180 pounds.

FIXED AT MANSLAUGHTER.

One of the Carle's Convicted of Killing Robert Carr—Sentenced to Prison.

The trial of the three Carle brothers for the murder of Robert Carr, near Daytown, began at Brockville on Wednesday. B. M. Britton, Q.C., appeared for the prisoners and cleverly conducted the defence. The prisoners were fine looking fellows, well-dressed, and without the least semblance of viciousness in their countenances. Alfreda Carr, wife of the murdered man, was the first witness. She related the circumstances of the night. Richard Carle told the family "to surrender or I will blow your brains out." The men were dressed in white and carried guns. "I threw a stone," she said, "at Richard Carle, followed him up and tore the disguise from his face; the disguise was of brown paper. Richard shoved me away and I stumbled against Dan Carle. He ran up the road and I followed him. He had the gun in his hand pointed towards me, and I took hold of it when the gun went off. I got the gun. Richard Carle said, 'Give up the gun or I will blow your brains out.' I told him he dare not. I ran towards my husband and shouted, 'Burt, Burt, I have the gun.' The three ruffians followed and told me to give up the gun or they would blow my brains out. They took the gun from me and that was the last I saw of them. I walked up and down the road shouting for help. I knelt down and prayed to God for strength and when I raised my husband's head he was dead." Considerable evidence was presented on both sides, the defence claiming that the shooting was accidental. The jury evidently took this view of the matter, and, while they could not release the Carles from some responsibility, decided that the case was one of manslaughter. Herbert and Richard Carle were dismissed, and Daniel Carle, in whose hands the gun was when it was discharged, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.—Kingston Whig.

War Claims Commission.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21.—The War Claims Commission is still in session here. From 1,800 to 2,000 claims have been investigated and adjusted. Delays are occasioned by appeals, which in many instances cannot be heard until supplementary evidence has been received from the North-West. New claims continue to be received. Those of the Battleford settlers have been referred to the Interior Department for settlement by order of the Minister of Militia. Although the Commissioners have been considered generous in making their awards, it is estimated that they have accomplished a saving to the Government of over £387,000.

A Fight in Tonquin.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Advices from Tonquin state that French troops recently had a brush with about 2000 pirates near Hooloc, Tonquin. More than five hundred Annamites were killed, their fortifications and magazines destroyed and a lot of cannon and small arms captured.

The Evacuation of Egypt.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mr. Henry Labouchere telegraphs to the World: It is pretty clear that we shall soon be called upon to evacuate Egypt by the Sultan and the powers. We shall then have to clear or put ourselves in defiance.

The Mikado's Uncle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—The uncle of the Mikado of Japan, Prince Kornatak, accompanied by his Princess and a distinguished suite, arrived here yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.—The Czar has summoned Gen. Gourko, the military commander of Warsaw, to proceed to the Imperial palace at Gatchina to receive instructions preparatory to replacing Gen. Kaulbars as Russian military agent in Bulgaria.

NOTE FROM KAULBARS.

SOFIA, Oct. 21.—General Kaulbars has sent a fresh note to the Bulgarian Government, complaining that Russian subjects, acting in official capacity, have been persecuted and arrested by Bulgarian officials, and warning the Government that a repetition of these outrages will be attended by serious consequences both to the immediate offenders and their abettors.

RUSSO-TURKISH OCCUPATION.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.—It is stated that on Sunday next, on the occasion of the unveiling of the monument commemorating the Russo-Turkish war, the Czar will deliver an energetic speech, and will publish a decree announcing a Russo-Turkish occupation of Bulgaria and Roumelia.

ESTRANGEMENT ENDED.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The diplomatic estrangement between France and Russia has ended. General Davoul, Duke of Anerstadt, takes the place vacated by General Appert at St. Petersburg and Baron Mohrenheim returns to Paris.

FIRED AT BY MOONLIGHTERS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 21.—Shots were fired by moonlighters at Capt. Oliver's agent, Vandaleur, last night, on the Kerry estates of the former. Vandaleur returned the fire and succeeded in making his escape, although his horses were shot. No arrests were made.

THE EVACUATION OF EGYPT.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 21.—It is reported that Germany has joined France and Russia in urging England to evacuate Egypt.

CHURCHILL AND BISMARCK.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Chronicle's Berlin correspondent insists that Lord Randolph Churchill's recent conversation with Count Herbert Bismarck during the former's stay in Berlin.

RUSSIA'S INTENTIONS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.—The Journal de St. Petersburg says: "There is no real justification in the fall of Russian securities, and nervousness on the Bourse on the condition of the Bulgarian question. Peace will not be disturbed," adds the paper. "All powers recognize Russia's rights. The crisis is localized to Bulgaria. There is no reason why the numerous questions connected therewith should not be peacefully settled. The Bulgarian rulers know Russia's will. We hope they will recognize the necessities of the situation." The Journal is not aware of what means or action Russia will employ to make her views prevail, but her moderation is an additional proof of her resolution to attain her ends. She has guarantees enough of final success, and it is not necessary for her to disturb herself and precipitate events.

INDIAN PASSES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A traveller from Bokhara, who has reached Peshawur, reports that the Russians have completed the Merv and Oxus railway to within five miles of Sarakhs. He also gives the following information:—The Governor of Tashkend has summoned several Mohammedan officers for political purposes. The Russians intend to establish a military cantonment for 30,000 troops near Bokhara. Russian officers disguised as Usbeek merchants are actively engaged in Badakshan inspecting the citadel and passes to India. The traveller also reports that the Czar is displeased at the Ameer of Bokhara for refusing to enlist Russians among his troops.

THE CZAR'S UNEASINESS.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Rumors are current that a terrible state of confusion and alarm exists in the Czar's household, owing to hallucinations of imaginary dangers to which the Czar is subject. It is said that on seeing an adjutant walking rapidly toward him recently the Czar seized a revolver and shot the adjutant dead. Other accounts say that the adjutant made an attempt to kill the Czar, and the latter fired in self-defence.

ROYAL STOCK FOR AMERICA.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Two shorthorned bulls, a cow and a heifer have been shipped from the Queen's breeding farm at Windsor for America. They will be used for stud purposes.

URGING FRIENDLY RELATIONS.

ROME, Oct. 21.—Cardinal Jacobini, Papal secretary of state, following the Pope's instruction, has sent circulars to all the Papal Nuncios abroad directing their attention to the principal political and ecclesiastical question of the day, and urging them to cultivate good relations with the different Governments, with a view towards improving the situation of the Church throughout the world.

BULLER AND EVICTIONS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 21.—United Ireland, Mr. Parnell's organ, says that recently an appeal was made to General Buller by the Sheriff of Kerry for police protection while making evictions. General Buller declined the appeal until he had personally enquired into the nature and justice of the case. The paper urges the tenants to take combined action to resist the payment of rackrents.

IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—With the exception of some slight feeling of dissatisfaction in Australia, the idea of an Imperial Institute to celebrate the Queen's jubilee is meeting with general favor, and contributions from the colonies are arriving daily. It is stated here that Canada will subscribe £50,000.

CANADA RAILWAY STOCK.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Business in railway shares was inactive to-day. Grand Trunk stock opened heavy, as the combined traffic returns were smaller than expected. Afterwards there was a partial recovery. Canada Pacific stock also receded.

DISTRESS THREATENED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 21.—Inspector of Fisheries Hayes reports that the recent storm on the Irish coast caused the loss of £40,000 to the fishermen on the Wicklow coast. Many of their boats were wrecked. Great distress is imminent unless money for the relief of the sufferers is forthcoming at once.

FACE THE RESPONSIBILITY.

THOUGH the Quebec elections seem to show a small majority for the advocates of murder and rebellion when committed by a man having French blood in his veins, there is as yet no certainty of the exact result. In one constituency the election has not taken place, and in other constituencies, with small majorities, there has not yet been an official count. The criminal party, therefore, shows a very indecent haste to grasp at power, by signing round robins to the Lieut.-Governor, and uttering scarcely veiled threats against him if he does not instal them in office. The newly elected members have been chosen to serve in the Legislature, and it is there that they must constitutionally announce themselves. It is true that there are recent precedents for a defeated Administration resigning before the session, but it has been when the defeat was signal, uncontested and certainly fatal. In this case neither the Conservative supporters of the Government nor the Reform supporters of the Opposition have a clear majority, a large comparative portion of the representation consisting of Rielite-Conservatives, Anti-Rielite Reformers and Independents. It is, therefore, impossible to predict with certainty what would be the result of a motion of want of confidence on any particular point. It is also advisable that the Rielite-Conservatives and the Independents should have thrown upon them the responsibility of defeating the Administration, if they have the power and the will to do so. The issue has been distinctly raised by the Opposition leaders on a Dominion question, and therefore the people of the Dominion should have an opportunity of judging of the nature of the situation.

We hope that the Ross Administration will not resign before meeting the Legislature, and then we will have the constitutional means of ascertaining whether the alliance between the Reformers and the criminals is to be carried out to the bitter end, whether the Province of Quebec, by its chosen representatives, maintains its claim of the superiority even of its criminals over the law-abiding and loyal men of the rest of the Dominion.

There should be no opportunity given of misrepresenting the Quebec election as an unaided victory for the Reform party. They and their allies should be forced to declare themselves explicitly. Then the people of the Dominion will know what they have to face.

SECESSION AND REBELLION.

THE congratulations of the Reform-Rielite chiefs to the leader of their Quebec wing still continue. Among the latest of these messages is the following:—

"To the Hon. H. Mercier:

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 18.

Please except my hearty congratulations on your magnificent victory in the provincial elections.

(Signed) HON. MR. FIELDING,
Prime Minister Nova Scotia."

Here is another proof of the complicity of Reform leaders in the attempt to make political capital for their party out of the "Race and Creed" cry, out of the claim of Quebec that the punishment of their criminals is to be avenged on the authorities who administer equal justice.

It will be remembered that this Mr. Fielding is the Premier of Nova Scotia who carried out Mr. Blake's work of persuading the Nova Scotians that they should promote commercial intercourse with the United States rather than with the other Provinces of the Dominion. He carried out this policy to its logical conclusion of agitating for secession, till he was able, with some appearance of truth, to claim that Nova Scotia had pronounced in favour of the disruption of the Dominion.

This is the man who is boastfully claimed by the Reformers, as one of the Reform Premiers of the Province now in office or to be there shortly. Thus by themselves reform is coupled with the advocacy of secession in Nova Scotia, of rebellion in Quebec, while Mr. Blake and Mr. Mowat welcome such allies as their brothers and fellow labourers in their cause.

The Reform party, as organized under the leadership of Mr. Blake, is absolutely identified with rebellion and secession. But there are many old Reformers who decline to believe in such reform, or to disgrace themselves by adhering to such a traitorous policy.

SYMPATHY FOR CRIMINALS.

IN an editorial article more than a column long the Toronto Globe defends the Rielites for in their attempt to upset the Dominion Administration for daring to permit the execution of a French Half-breed for murder and rebellion. The chief contention of the Rielite organ is that the rebellion was excusable because the half-breeds had not received land or scrip. We cannot admit that men are excusable for robbing or murdering those who neglect to make them a present. A few years ago the Globe presented a watch to new subscribers. We believe it has not done so this year. What would the Globe think if a mob of its subscribers broke into its office, killed some of its staff and robbed the till, because they had not received watches this year? If in addition to this it was found that nine out of ten of the mob had already Globe watches, and that their claim to be new subscribers was a swindle, would the Globe argue that these men should not be punished for their crime because they felt a grievance at not receiving watches? Would it admit that both the Globe and the city authorities should be punished for bringing these criminals to justice?

Yet this is the exact position of the Globe in regard to the Rielites. By the way there is one difference, namely that in this case the Globe hopes to share the plunder with the criminals.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, whose estates cover 94,983 acres, only receives in rent—even when all his tenants pay up—£9553 per annum; whereas Lord Ventry, with three hundred acres of land less, gets or should get, an annual sum of £17,067; and Lord Kenmare, with 91,080 acres, has a nominal rentroll of £25,232. The average price per acre on these estates is 2s., 3s. 7d., and 5s. 6d. respectively.

HORRIBLE CRIME.

A Young Girl Brutally Treated and Murdered and Her Home Burned.

CAMP GILMOUR, Que., Oct. 21.—One of the most horrible crimes ever perpetrated in Canada was made public here on Tuesday night. A party of six lumbermen came up from Lower Gatineau lumber camps, bringing a large quantity of rum. They were all more or less intoxicated. Soon after midnight the gang made a raid on a house occupied by Mrs. Turcotte, just outside the camp, and finding only the old lady and her daughter Nellie at home, they fastened the old lady to a chair, gagged her, and then tying the hands and feet of the daughter, the men criminally assaulted her. The girl, who is but 16 years old, fainted, and fearing that she was dying the men released her mother. Finding herself free the old lady made her escape to arouse the camp, when the men set fire to the cabin and escaped to the woods. It was not known for some time whether the girl was left to perish or carried away, as the cabin was so far destroyed when help came that it was impossible to make any search. Later the girl was found with her throat cut from ear to ear, in a thicket near the remains of the cabin. The men have escaped, and while there has been a searching party out to look for them, it is doubtful if they will be discovered, owing to the great number of men constantly going and coming from this section, which is purely a lumbering region.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE EMPTY BEDROOM.

A little before six in the morning a ray of bright warm sunshine, like a golden wand projected from the window, having crept gradually along the wall, smote Mr. Strangfield between the eyes as he lay asleep in his bed, and awoke him.

Looking upon his watch, which hung at the side of the bed, he rose, without disturbing his wife from the deep sleep into which she had fallen scarce an hour before, after long and weary wakefulness.

He had almost finished dressing himself when his wife awoke, and, after the first bewilderment, asked him the time.

"There is an hour before the coach starts," he said. "See about getting the breakfast ready. I shall be in the yard until the half-hour, and got you to Jenny, that she may not keep me waiting."

Saying which he left the room, wearing his yesterday's bitter face, which had come to him with the first words of his wife.

No sooner was he gone than Mrs. Strangfield quitted her bed and went to the door to call Jenny. The room used by the girl was to the right of the room occupied by the husband and wife; the door of it stood open, and that was something to wonder at if Jenny were not downstairs. Into the room walked the mother, and all she saw was a bed that had never been slept in.

Now for some moments this was a sight with a significance not to be realized.

She went to the bedside and stared at it, and then round her, with a slow slipping of her head on her neck, like a ball on a pivot. Presently on the bed again she fixed her eyes with all the blankness of the frost-white counterpane reflected in them.

"What trick is she playing me?" she cried to herself, but in a clear, strong voice. "Jenny!"

And all about the room she went, probing and peering like a faithful dog sniffing for its hidden young. Until it came into her head that her child had run away; on which she fled from the room with a shriek.

That shriek brought forth the trollop Polly, who beheld her mistress clinging to the top rail of the banister, motioning with her hand.

"Missus, what is it? For mussy's sake, don't look so scarifying, mum! Oh, missus, what ha' yees seen?"

"Your master to come to me," exclaimed Mrs. Strangfield, in a choking voice, and she went reeling into her bedroom and sank upon a chair. But up again she must jump in a moment and run into Jenny's room, and in the center of it she stood looking around her with rolling eyes. She was too frightened for deliberate search—even a direct glance she would not have heeded. With both hands pressed upon her heart she stood. Was it that the sorrowful girl, mourning her cruel bereavement, and the dishonor done her by her father, and dreading the journey, and the object of the journey that morning, had not chosen to rest; that all night long she had kept her vigil, and now was one forth to cool her burning eyes against the soft wind blowing from the sea? Was it so? Ah, pray God! And the mother, with moving lips, drew to the window and sent her startled gaze over the summer scene of swelling cliff and folds of houses standing with shine of gold under the meek sweetness of the morning blue.

Mr Strangfield came upstairs, and from the landing called to her. She ran to him, crying, "Michael, see here! Our child hath not slept in her bed! Where is she, do you think? Oh, if you love your wife, run to your men and bid them seek her. For God's sake do this, Michael—now!"

He went past her without answer and entered Jenny's room. If amazement or pain were in him, it was veiled by a heavy frown.

"Silence!" he cried, as his wife began to speak. "Before we judge her, let us know what she has done. It is no sign that she has run away from us because she has not slept in her bed. Has she not acted more crasily than to stay awake in her clothes all night? Look about you and tell me what things you find missing."

"Nothing, Michael. Oh, my heart, yes! Where be the little trunk I packed for her last night?"

With wonderful quickness, she flung open the door of a closet, and then searched beneath the bed. Next she uttered a sharp cry, and leaned against her husband. He led her not untenderly to her room, but his own steps were weak and shaky, and his face as white as a dying man's which made his frown a black shadow upon his forehead.

"We must have patience yet," he exclaimed, drawing forth his watch, and speaking with his eyes bent down upon it. "She knows at what hour the coach starts, and if she be not guilty she will be here. Get thyself dressed, and let the breakfast be ready by the half hour. She may return, and then what will it be that her box is gone? Bear up, for in half an hour great changes come. I will wait for thee and her in the parlor."

He went slowly and painfully downstairs and stood at the window whispering to himself, which was a strange trick for an obstinate, hardheaded man to fall into on a sudden.

In a short while Mrs. Strangfield came from her room and stood at the doorway watching him in silence. She sighed heavily; but, as though he heard neither her step nor her sigh, he did not turn his head; and with a fear of his stern, unbending silence on her, she went away to the kitchen to help Polly to get breakfast ready.

"Polly," she whispered, "didn't thee see Miss Jenny leave the house this morning?"

"I? No, indeed, missus! Be she gone then?" said the girl, with her hair all feathery for lack of brushing, and the end of her nose black from frequent strokes of her bare arm.

"Hush, silly wrench! Why do you shout? She hath not slept in her bed, Polly. Oh, God! if she be run away from me!"

"Room awoy! Why, missus! whativer would she be doin' that for?" said the slut, craning her neck out of the collarless rim of her frock.

"Stir the fire, that the eggs may boil. Never do you talk but that you stop your work. Cannot you use your hands and tongue together? Hold your prate! As sure as thy nose is as black as thy master's boot, I'll be packing thee to thy mother for a slovenly fool!" cried Mrs. Stranfigeld, in that phase of grief which admits of easy supervention of irritation.

JESUS CRUCIFIED.

DR. JOHN HALL'S NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson IV of the International Series for Sunday, Oct. 24—Golden Text, "It is Finished," John xix, 30—Lesson Text, John xix, 17-30.

A comparison of our lesson with the corresponding passages in the other evangelists will show that no one copies from the others. Each gives his own account of the events, and it is to be remembered always that omission or addition is not contradiction. We could not have a more solemn lesson than this, and we may well study it reverently and looking to the Spirit to show us "the things of Christ."

V. 17. The cross was laid on Jesus, as we see in the other gospels, but He seems likely to faint under it, and they laid it on Simon of Cyrene, who was coming into the city. The place, as v. 20 shows, was "nigh to the city." Golgotha is rendered "Calvary" in Luke, who wrote for Gentiles (Luke xxiii, 33. Yet it was outside the walls; hence Heb. xiii, 12, 13, which see.) Everything contemplated in the law and the prophets is fulfilled.

V. 18. Seeing the crucifixion John was no doubt affected by the companions executed with the Saviour, and probably understood their putting Him "in the midst," to be their way of marking their detestation. "In the midst"—what a position for Him! (See Rev. 5, vi.) He refused, as we learn from Matt. 27, xxxiv, to be stupefied with vinegar or sour wine (see Mark 15, xxiii) mingled with "gall" or myrrh. He would keep His mind clear for weal or for woe. We know Him as the man of sorrows, and can be sure of His sympathy when we suffer.

V. 19. Pilate is seen, in his spite and irritation, avenging himself on the Jews for putting him in the position he had to take. So he inscribes on the cross the mocking word of v. 19. He puts it in three languages, a little variation doubtless in some from the rest. Greek was the spoken, Latin the Roman and the official, Hebrew or Syro-Chaldaic the old language of the country. The object doubtless was to make it readable to all, for the Jews scattered over the world spoke many tongues; and it was secured. See

V. 20. It was read by many of the Jews. They saw the point. They wish the writing to be changed so as to show that it was only a claim, and a false one, they recognized. But in reply to their petition in v. 21 he is relentless, as we see in

V. 22. Christ was here master of the situation. He is not even civil to them. In the spirit of a ruler who despises them he says, "Your meddling is useless; What I have written I have written." They had shut him up to a course against his own sense of justice. He took his revenge.

V. 23. We now come to another detail mentioned by John because it fulfilled prophecy. It illustrates one of the usages common at the time, and shows how true to the truth of things is the inspired record. Four soldiers were employed in the crucifixion. The garments of a criminal were their perquisite. They divided up the articles of his raiment among them. One piece, a coat or tunic, possibly of superior quality, the gift perhaps of women who ministered unto him (Luke viii, 3), they did not like to rend or tear up to divide it. Hence the plan of casting lots, a fulfillment of prophecy by those who never read it and could not read it (Ps. xxii, 18.) Both steps in the process are indicated—the parting of the garments and the casting lots on the "wrought" vesture. We have no evidence that any usage of the kind existed when the psalm was written. The heathen soldiers, without hints from any one, carried out a prediction whose existence before Hebrews had heard of Romans can only be explained by inspiration.

Here it is that the insults to Christ came in from the passers by, from the chief priests, from the soldiers, who—while the chief priests revile him for calling himself the son of God and testify to his trust in God—take their own ground naturally and mock the claim of king. So, too, one of his companions reviled him. ("The thieves" does not necessarily mean that both reviled. The classes whence the mockery came are named, including this class—his fellow sufferers. See Matt. ii, 20 for the like use of the plural where only one is named). We now come to another touching fact in the last scenes. By the cross

(V. 25.) stood, among other women, the mother of Jesus. "The three Marys" is a frequent phrase. They were near while he was still able to speak. They would move farther off when he was dead and the soldiers were doing their work. "Sister" is sometimes used in a general sense. Clopas, as it really is, is thought to be the father of James the less. When Jesus saw his mother so standing, all the human tenderness of a son found expression. She was probably younger than Joseph, a widow now, and from her relation to Jesus would lose friends among the Jews (his "brethren" did not recognize his real character), and so need care. He directed her to John (see John xiii, 23) as her son—to be as a son to her from that time on, and John, as we learn from v. 57, accepted the trust made by his Master's words, "Behold thy mother!" The "woman" is a word with no harshness in it, but probably here and at the marriage in Cana he meant to show that the mere earthly relations was not the main thing to be thought of, but rather his great redeeming work. Yet he does not forget this relationship. Christianity binds kindred together. John had a home in Jerusalem. He took Mary to his home. She was with the company at prayer, as we see in Acts i, 14.

The plea is sometimes set up that our Lord here pointed out Mary as mother to all the disciples, that all might revere her. No wonder that the church of Rome does not favor general bible reading, for one has only to see the context to be satisfied that only John was there, that he (Christ) was thinking of Mary's welfare, not theirs, and with good reason, for now was being fulfilled the word of Luke ii, 35. That Mary has been given the place once occupied by Grecian and Roman goddesses is one of the worst features in Rome. "From that hour"—possibly taking her away then, so as to escape the heartrending scenes, and then coming back himself (v. 35)—John acted to her as a son. Salome, his mother, was present and heard the charge. We now come to the end—the actual death of our Saviour.

V. 28. Jesus knew that all was accomplished—the same word as "finished" in v. 30—that his work was done, that prophecy was all out completely fulfilled as far as this event was concerned. He said, "I thirst," not in the hope that his heartless enemies would soothe his misery, but that the Scriptures might be fulfilled. (See Ps. lxix, 21, and compare Ps. xxii, 15.) Vinegar or sour wine was the soldiers' drink, and a vessel of it was there. The three hours' darkness had passed. His deepest misery had been endured. The cry had doubtless been uttered (as recorded in other evangelists), "My God! my God!" etc. "They" (that is, as in Matt. xxvii, 48, one of them) filled a sponge with vinegar, put it on a stalk of hyssop, which being about eighteen inches long would reach his lips, and gave it to him. Others, as we see from Matthew, opposed this humane act.

V. 30. The "loud voice" of our Lord at the close of his sufferings has been taken by some as evidence that not bodily but mental strain brought on the end. Possibly the clear view of the end realized, the work now being completed, and the results to be secured brought a momentary strength. The sentence is brief. It is expressive. None can tell all it means. He has drained the cup his father gave him to drink. Revelation of God has been made. Holiness has been exemplified. The law of God has been honored. Its penalty has been borne. The blood that cleanseth from all sin will have been shed when he expires. "It is finished." If the words of the "loud voice" be those of Luke xxiii, 46, we can understand the tone of rejoicing in them. Then he bowed his head and gave up the spirit or soul. (Ghost is the old word for spirit).

(1) We may learn how interesting and important is the death of Christ, from the minuteness with which the evangelists set the details before us, and from the prophecies that went before regarding it.

(2) We may learn the evil of human nature in the hard, unjust and unfeeling way in which the innocent sufferer was treated. Let us beware of crucifying the Son of God afresh by evil doing, while counted of his people.

(3) We may see how truly human he was and how good in the relations of life, from his words regarding his mother. Boys and girls should treasure up these things and be good to fathers and mothers.

(4) How firm a foundation is laid for our faith! Prophecy is fulfilled, atonement is made. See it in Dan. ix, 24.—Sunday School World.

"Imitation is the Sincerest Flattery."

If the above quotation is true, then Dr. R. V. Pierce ought to feel highly flattered on account of the many imitators of his popular remedy, the "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," for they have scores of imitators, but never an equal, for the cure of sick and bilious headache, constipation, impure blood, kidney pains, internal fever and all bowel complaints. With a bottle of the sugared granules in the house you can dispense with the family doctor and his often nauseous medicines.

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Rewards.

The town has offered a reward of $100 and Mr. J. W. Flavelle has offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension of the person or persons who committed the damage to the front of Mr. Flavelle's store on Wednesday night.

Popular Talks.

The Young Men's Christian Association is making arrangements for a series of "Popular Talks," by local gentlemen, including lawyers, doctors, teachers, business men, clergymen, &c. The first one will be given on Nov. 22nd.

Still Going.

The lumbering boom still continues. Gangs of men are leaving town for the various lumbering districts every week. A supplementary gang has gone to Haliburton; a gang of twenty-four men has been sent to John Dollar, Muskoka, and a gang of fourteen was shipped for the Muskoka Lumbering Co., this morning. They will operate on the French river. Mr. Ted. Cavanagh has engaged the biggest number of the men.

Coming Again.

In the Opera House on Monday next, the 25th, at 8 p.m., a great farewell missionary meeting of the Hindo contingent of the Salvation Army will be held. The following will be present:—Major Hai Bhai, Sergt. Marsee Gopal, Capt. Fariam Dasako, the saved Mahomedan merchant, Nauroe Ali and four lasses and four lads from Canada and others from the States who are going to India, in Native costume. Admission 10 cents.

Evangelistic.

The Young Men's Christian Association will have two series of evangelistic meetings for men only before the year closes. The first will be from Nov. 14th to 20th, which is the week of prayer for young men. These meetings will be addressed by the local clergymen. The second series will be held on December 9th to 18th, and will be conducted by Mr. John Currie, who has had great success in evangelistic work in San Francisco and other places on the Pacific coast.

In the Northwest.

In the Calgarry Tribune of Oct. 16th we find the following four items referring to gentlemen known here:—

"Dr. Armour, formerly of Lakefield, Ont., was in town this week looking for a suitable location.

"Mr. A. D. Braithwaite, the newly appointed manager for the Calgary branch of the Bank of Montreal, arrived in town on Thursday night.

"Inspector Snyder set out for Edmonton on Thursday morning.

"Mr. Geo. Hilliard, M.P., spent Sunday and Monday in town on his return from the coast."

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table. To him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouthed crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear or contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gent's Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's, George street.

In connection with the C. E. T. S. of St. Luke's Church a branch of the White Cross Army has been established. It was organized on Tuesday evening, and up to the present the prospects of a large membership is encouraging.

Corn Festival.

A corn festival, musical and literary entertainment will be held in the Opera House, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church, on Tuesday next, Oct. 26th. Full particulars will be given later.

Big Bargains.

The Bon Marche will during this week sell at auction prices. All wanting bargains away down below par should take advantage of the opportunity. On Tuesday evening next an auction sale will be held. Special accommodation will be mad for ladies.

Boots and Shoes by Auction

Messrs. Sherwood & Co. will offer for sale by auction, commencing at 1 o'clock p. m. to morrow (Saturday, October, 22nd), and in the evening at 7.30 o'clock, the whole of W. J. Miller's bankrupt stock of boots and shoes, in his old stand under the town clock.

READ MORROW TIERNEY & Co's Fall Announcement in another column. It will interest you.

A Fine Farm House.

Mr. Adam Dawson has returned to town from building a fine country home for Mr. Richard Garvin, South Dummer. The house is built of red brick, and is of handsome architectural design. It is 36x24 and has a kitchen addition of 24x18. The cost is about $3,000.

The Roddy Case.

The Roddy case was again called at the court this morning, but owing to the fact that the witness from Rochester still secluded himself, together with other reasons, another adjournment was asked for. As the court did not feel disposed to be unduly hasty in pressing so serious a charge, an adjournment was granted till October 30th.

A Runaway.

A team belonging to Mr. M. Y. Crowley was standing in front of Messrs. Morrow, Tierney & Co's grocery this forenoon when one of the hands commenced to roll a barrel in front of them. They were accustomed to rotary motion behind them but so novel a sight was it when out of place that it caused them to break the halter and retire. Until they disappeared over the C. P. R. track, George street, it seemed that everything was so far so good.

THE BURGLARY.

The Suspected Burglars Committed for Trial—Their Story.

The Frazerville burglary case came before the Court this morning the prisoners Charles and Clara Reynolds being charged by A. A. Goodfellow with having burglarized his store, feloniously stealing therefrom one tweed overcoat, one pair of trousers, one handkerchief, one pair of suspenders, a pair of boots and three pairs of socks.

The prisoners pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by a jury.

The evidence for the prosecution was gone into, the County Crown Attorney, Mr. R. E. Wood, conducting the case.

A. A. GOODFELLOW was examined, telling substantially the same story as appeared in the REVIEW. He came to Peterborough in the morning, informed Capt. Cooper of the burglary and of his recognizing the suspected party, and by Capt. Cooper's and P. C. Pidgeon's aid they succeeded in capturing the prisoners about two miles south of the town. The reason he suspected the prisoners was, that they came to his store the night before and buying some candies went away, and in the morning he saw footprints in the soft earth corresponding with the size of their boots. The entrance was gained by the burglars taking a chisel and wrench from a work shop across the road and taking the glass of the window from its place and wrenching the iron bars behind the windows from their place.

CHARLES REYNOLDS made a statement. He said that himself and wife were coming up the railway track towards Peterborough the night before they were arrested. It was getting dark when they saw a shanty by the side of the track. As there was no one in it they concluded to stay for the night. In the morning they were wakened by two men who asked, "What are you doing there?" They replied that they had been staying there for the night. Then the men said that they were pedlars but had no license. They wanted to sell the goods they had. They asked himself and wife to keep the goods till they came back from Peterborough. Himself and wife agreed to this. They took the goods into the bushes and the police arrested them the same afternoon.

The prisoners were then committed for trial.

DAIRY MAIDS' DOINGS.

Their Charmingly Eccentric Way of Entertaining a Housefull.

The much speculated on dairy maids' social came off in the school room of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening. Everybody was wondering what it was going to be like—whether some daring cows would be induced to disobey the Council's late command and come forward to be practised on? Whether the dairy maids would introduce churns with prodigious dashes and ask up their particular friends to manipulate them? or whether the dairy maids were simply going to ladel out an ordinary entertainment and then envelope themselves in their aprons and smile at the people for coming out? At all events those who came to hear the mellifluous intonations of the cow bell were not disappointed.

The social was a delightful novelty. The principal element of success was present, in the shape of a house filled to the doors with people. These sat (and less fortunate stood) throughout the evening listening to pretty songs all about the dairy and the lightsome life of the dairy maids, the cream of choruses, and between the two enjoyed a delectable luncheon.

Twenty-four dairy maids, dressed in airy coronet caps, symmetrical sontags and aprons of snowy vastness, presided over the affairs of the evening. First there was a chorus, "Home from the Woodland." Then Miss Davis sang about how a little maid milked her cow, and she sang it so nicely that everybody clapped their hands. Miss Johnston sang about the doleful lot of a milkmaid who broke the A No. 1 jug of dairy just because she happened to cast a glance at Barney. But Barney made oscular amends, and after a few more such catastrophies with similar results the two went to church and came back a unit. Miss Johnston had to come back and sing it over again. The next was a solo and chorus "The Cow Bells in the Lane," in which a real cow bell joined with great enthusiasm.

After this refreshments were passed by the two dozen in white, and after that Miss Brundrette sang the "Cows are in the Corn." A good-night chorus was sung, and the pleasant social came to an end by the singing of the National Anthem.

Those who impersonated the demure dairy maids so charmingly were: Miss Alford, Miss Brundette, Miss Hughes, Miss Knox, Miss Lundon, Miss Rogers, Miss Morrow, Miss Fawcett, Miss E. Cox, Miss M. Cox, Miss Coon, Miss Winter, Miss Johnston, Miss Brownscombe, Miss Burns, Mrs. Logan, Miss Barrie, Miss Webber, Miss Hamiltons, Miss Allen, Miss Dobson, Miss Davis and Mrs. Seward.

Mr. L. Seward, of St. John's, played the accompaniments.

POLICE COURT.

A COW CAUGHT.

FRIDAY, Oct. 22.—A. Williams was charged by Capt. Cooper with having allowed his cow to run at large, the charge being laid under the new by-law. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs.

A WAGES CASE.

Jas. Steele charged Wm. McMaster with non-payment of $39 due him as wages. The defendant pleaded not guilty. After the evidence had been entered upon it appeared that the wages was mixed up with contracts amounting to between $300 and $400.

Mr. Green appeared for the complainant and Mr. Wood for the defendant.

The MAGISTRATE said that it was not within the province of this Court to try such a case. It was accordingly thrown out.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1886.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Young Men's Meetings.

Young men are reminded of the meetings specially for them in the Y. M. C. Rooms on Saturday night at eight o'clock and Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Personal.

We learn that Mr. Herbert Haultain, at present attending the School of Practical Science at Toronto, has been elected a Director of the 'Varsity Publishing Company. The 'Varsity Company is an incorporated body of some years' standing, and publishes the weekly journal of the University of Toronto.

The Burglar.

On Friday night a short while after 12 o'clock Dr. Taylor's residence was entered by some one who was not invited to do so. The entrance was gained by prying off the wire screen across one of the cellar windows and then cutting away the putty to take out the glass. It was likely boys' work, for the only thing attacked were toothsome fruits. A quantity was taken off, including about half a bag of apples.

THE Golden Lion excells in Millinery. R. FAIR

Cheese Factory Burned.

On Friday morning, shortly after the cheesemaker had begun work, fire was discovered in the roof of the Normanhurst factory, in Smith, and about four miles from town on the Omemee road. Though every effort was made by the cheesemaker and neighbors the fire could not be quenched, and an effort was, therefore, made to save the contents. Some forty cheese, comprising the first half of the October make, were saved with slight damage, the cheese press was also got out, and one vat, but in a very delapidated condition. All else was burned. The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from the stove pipe. The building, which was a frame one, was insured, with contents, for $900. It will be rebuilt in time for next season's work, but whether on the present site is not settled.

Married.

On Thursday afternoon at five o'clock St. John's Church was well with people, prominently with ladies, to see one of those ceremonies which is always sure to create a social flutter. Mr. W. Sherwood, eldest son of Mr. W. E. Sherwood, was the groom, and Miss Hattie Ward, grand-daughter of Dr. Burritt, the bride. Mr E. Sherwood performed the duties of groomsman and Miss Mary Ward attended the bride. The marriage ceremony was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, and Mr. D. Burritt gave away the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood left on the evening train for a trip to New York, carrying with them the congratulations of a large number of friends and the well wishes of the REVIEW.

General Agent Wanted.

I want a first-class man for Peterborough—good contract—to represent the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association. Our Canada business is over $10,000,000. Apply GEO. A. MORRISON.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Big Bargains.

The Bon Marche will during this week sell at auction prices. All wanting bargains away down below par should take advantage of the opportunity. On Tuesday evening next an auction sale will be held. Special accommodation will be mad for ladies.

READ MORROW TIERNEY & Co's Fall Announcement in another column. It will interest you.

Mud Lake Bridge.

The Mud Lake bridge is now temporarily joined so that it can be utilized for traffic. The breaks were bad enough, but had it not been for the quarter of a mile of new flooring which was put on last year the breaks would have been much worse. Mr. J. E. Belcher, the County Engineer, is out making a thorough inspection of the bridge to-day.

Just Opened Out!

George Pope has just opened out a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, flour and feed, &c., in Quinlan's old stand, opposite the Oriental, Hunter street, where he will be pleased to meet all his old friends who have so kindly extended their patronage to him during the past few years while in business. The highest cash price paid for butter, eggs, &c. Remember the stand, Opposite the Oriental Hotel, Hunter street, Peterborough.

Coming Again.

In the Opera House on Monday next, 25th, at 8 p.m., a great farewell missionary meeting of the Hindo contingent of the Salvation Army will be held. The following will be present:—Major Hai Bhai, Sergt. Marsee Gopal, Capt. Fariam Dasako, the saved Mahomedan merchant, Nauroe Ali and four lasses and four lads from Canada and others from the States who are going to India, in Native costume. Admission 10 cents.

Doctor of Law.

The Toronto Mail says:—"Laval University will shortly confer the degree of doctor of laws upon Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, barrister, of this city. Mr. O'Sullivan is the author of several historical treatises and works on law, and some time ago contributed a series of articles to the Catholic Review, of New York, on the position of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. He is a graduate of Toronto University." Mr. O'Sullivan is a brother of Dr. O'Sullivan, of Peterborough.

A New Daily Paper.

The enterprising publishers of the Calgary, N. W. T, Tribune, Messrs. Braden & Baillie, have commenced the publication of a daily paper. The first issue is a creditable number, containing a fair amount of general and local news, and is neatly printed. Calgary has rapidly grown into a place of importance with the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and as it will be an important point on the route from Europe to Australia and Asia its future looks bright. The new daily will doubtless have a prosperous career.

Fine Country House.

Dr. Allen has recently erected a magnificent country residence at Janetville. It is a large building of Italian style of architecture. Its floors are of birch and cherry done in parquetary and some of the ceilings are handsomely inlaid. The library is particularly handsome in this respect. It is heated with steam and will be lighted by gas which will be manufactured on the premises. Mr. J. E. Belcher, of this town was the architect. The total cost will be about $13,000.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table. To him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouthed crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear or contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gent's Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's, George street.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

AGAINST BRITISH OCCUPATION.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The St. James' Gazette says:—"M. Waddington, French Ambassador to London, acting under instructions from his Government, has protested, on behalf of France, against the British occupation of Egypt." The paper adds that France and Turkey are in complete accord in their opposition to the occupation, and that Russia supports them.

DISCOUNT RATE ADVANCED.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England has been advanced to 4 per cent.

WILL REMAIN FIRM.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—General Kaulbars writes to a friend in St. Petersburg as follows: "The situation presents great difficulty to me. There is great danger that the Bulgarian regents cannot retire without risking their heads. As for me I remain firm and accumulating obstacles only strengthen my firmness." When the Czar offered to appoint Gen. Gonrko in the place of Gen. Kaulbars Gen. Gourko replied, in cipher, and the latter started at once for St. Petersburg.

A VIGOROUS PROTEST.

SOFIA, Oct. 22.—The Russian diplomatic agent, M. Nekio, in a vigorous protest against the treatment of Russian representatives and sympathizers, accuses the regency of having abetted their agents throughout Bulgaria in imprisoning and murdering persons known to be in sympathy with Russia and of passively permitting the destruction of property and outraging of women. Gen. Kaulbars has brought against the Government an accusation of having prevented deputations of Bulgarians from obtaining access to him, and of substituting for such deputations parties composed of adherents of the Regency.

AUSTRIA'S POLICY.

SOFIA, Oct. 22.—The Austrian diplomatic agent here has been instructed by his Government not to attend the meeting of the grand Sobranje.

A FAMOUS BREWING FIRM.

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—The famous brewing firm of Arthur Guinness, Son & Co., has been converted into a stock company of limited liability. The company will immediately issue for public subscription stock representing £4,500,000 of its share capital and £1,500,000 in debenture notes.

WARS ON THE BRITISH.

London, Oct. 22.—The Governor of Candahar ordered that merchants shall not supply the British garrison at Quetta with corn, cattle, etc., and that native laborers shall not work in the British camp. The Hill tribes have refused to continue the payment of tribute to the Ameer.

EFFENDI'S MISSION.

SOFIA, Oct. 22.—Gadbad Effendi's note to the Bulgarian Ministry, notifying it of an understanding between Turkey and Russia, was written to M. Stambuloff in the form of personal advice, and was not an official declaration. Gadban Effendi's mission as special envoy for the Porte is declared to be to endeavor to reconcile Bulgaria and Russia.

PROBABLE APPOINTMENT.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Duke of Connaught will probably be appointed to the command of the Madras army in place of the late Gen. Macpherson, deceased.

A STATUE.

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—A meeting was held at Waterford to-day, the Mayor presiding, at which it was resolved to erect a statue of Gen. Thos. Francis Meagher, who was born in that city.

SCHOOL WRECKED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—A National school at Cahermurphy, West Clare, was wrecked last night by unknown parties. The teacher had admitted to the school children of boycotted people in spite of warning notices posted in public.

PORTE'S REQUEST REFUSED.

SOFIA, Oct. 22.—The Government, in reply to Gadban Effendi's note from the Grand Vizier, asking for a postponement of the meeting of the Sobranje, in order to allow Russia and the Porte time to negotiate for a choice of a ruler of Bulgaria, says the reason given for the desired delay cannot be regarded as sufficient unless the time within which the ruler will be chosen be stated.

SOCIALIST REPLY TO POLICE.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The officers of the Social Democratic Federation have sent a note in reply to the police letter, saying that they consider it unfair to saddle upon the Federation beforehand the responsibility for any mischief that might arise, and which might be due, as was the case in February last, only to the inefficiency of the police. They say the proposed demonstration is as much entitled to police protection as is the Lord Mayor's show, and that if such protection be accorded the demonstration will be an orderly one.

BULGARIA'S POLICY.

SOFIA, Oct. 22.—The Bulgarian Government has no intention of postponing the meeting of the Sobranje, nor of releasing the officers under arrest on a charge of being implicated in the conspiracy against Prince Alexander. The court martial that is to sit in November will try eighty-five officers, including three majors, thirty-five captains, fourteen first lieutenants and twenty-nine second lieutenants, one sergeant and one bandmaster. Duke George Maximilian, of Leuchtenberg, is now mentioned for the throne.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—News continues to arrive from reliable scources, of extensive transport and military preparations in the Black sea and other depots. Furloughs have been stopped. The Sedan reserves remain under orders.

HOW CHOLERA IS SPREAD.

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—It is reported that large numbers of troops continue to move, regardless of the cholera epidemic, in Hungary, and the chances of the disease spreading thereby are great.

SUICIDES IN GERMAN ARMY.

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Returns for the first eight months of the present year show 150 suicides in the German army.

THE INMAN COMPANY.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Inman Line Steamship Company whose shareholders recently voted to go into liquidation, to-day issued a statement of its liabilities. To secured creditors these amount to £17,455; to unsecured, £91,000. This last amount includes £49,300 in bills due to tradesmen. The steamers of the company are valued at £169,800. Unsecured creditors will receive little over ten shillings on the pound.

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1886.

A PARTY OF PURITY.

The Reformers have been very fond of preaching about electoral purity, and they have been very fond of practising electoral corruption. Were it not that past experience has taught us that the Reformers talk most about purity when they are making arrangements for corruption, we would be gratified as well as edified by the following account of proceedings at a meeting of the Liberal Association of Westmoreland County, N.B.:—

"Mr. Thos. A. Tingley, in a ringing speech, moved the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. James Kay, and adopted unanimously:

'Resolved—That this Association strongly affirms its faith in and adherence to the principle of purity in elections, and that it approves of the idea of contesting elections consistently with the letter and spirit of the Acts of Parliament in such cases made and provided.'

"Besides the mover and seconder, Messrs. H. R. Emmerson, W. J. Robinson, W. B. Chandler, of St. John; D. Grant, M. Atkinson, Tilman T. Landry, Dr. Doherty, and the President, made vigorous speeches in support of the resolution—all emphasizing the idea that whatever indiscretions or improprieties the Liberals of Westmoreland may have been betrayed into in the past, under the mistaken notion that it was necessary to fight the enemy with his own weapons, for the future it would be their determination to maintain purity of elections by strict adherence to the letter and spirit of the election law."

As confession of their past misdeeds by Reformers is rare, if not unprecedented, it may be hoped that the promise of amendment may also be exceptionally trustworthy. If these Westmoreland Reformers can induce the rest of their party to adopt their views, we would soon have pure elections. It would be absurd to pretend that no Conservatives have ever offered bribes, but the records of our courts show how comparatively trivial and rare were their acts of corruption.

On the other hand the records of the courts show that while the Reformers were uttering hypocritical pretensions to purity they were indulging in wholesale corruption. Such men as Cook and Cameron even boast of their gigantic expenditure on corruption, and the great head of their party could send out circulars begging for money for a big push, because their corruption funds were exhausted by previous operations. And such cases are not exceptional, but they tally with the experience of every locality. It is notorious that so gigantic was the scale on which corruption was practised on one occasion in Peterborough by Reformers that the bad effect remained perceptible for years.

But even worse than the corruption by Reform candidates has been the open rewards given by Reform leaders for corrupt services. Mr. Mowat has been a marked offender in this respect. He has, for instance, prostituted his patronage to reward conduct which the judges have censured in Col. Walker, and he has twice legislated to relieve the disreputable Dr. Dowling from the consequences of his corrupt acts, and to seat him in spite of them.

If these Westmoreland Reformers can persuade their political friends and leaders to imitate their example, they will deserve well of their country, for electoral purity will be established in Canada.

REBEL AND PERJURER.

Mr. Laurier, the avowed rebel and perjured Privy Councillor, has been invited by some Rielite Reformers to come and air his treason in Ontario. If he comes, Mr. Laurier's words will have no weight with law-abiding, loyal, honest men, whether Reformers or Conservatives. If Mr. Laurier were to give evidence in a court of law, the jury would be justly told that being a perjured man, his evidence, unless supported by that of some honest witness, was utterly unworthy of credence and should not affect their decision. Can his words have any greater weight when as a politician he comes to advocate the cause of murder and rebellion?

Even without his record as a foresworn Privy Councillor, there is a grotesque effrontery in his daring to address honest men in Ontario. Has he not justified those who shot down the gallant citizen soldiers of Ontario because they were engaged in suppressing muder and rebellion, in protecting the lives and property of our relations who had left this province to make homes for themselves in the Northwest? Has he not boasted that if he had been conveniently placed, he would himself have taken his gun to shoot down Ontario volunteers for the dire offence of upholding the authority of the Dominion and protecting our fellow subjects.

And one of Mr. Laurier's chief errands in Ontario is to aid in his candidature on behalf Mr. Mowat, Gaspard Pacaud, Mr. Mowat's friend, hireling, and standard bearer, who has slandered our brave volunteers by accusing them of murdering wounded men, using violence to women and stealing. And this vile slanderer, Mr. Laurier has the effrontery to ask the people of North Essex to elect as representing their views.

Mr. Laurier is logical, for his platform is that no English speaking Canadian should have any rights as against a French Canadian—that we are mere intruders holding our lives and our property solely by the sufferance of our once conquered lords and masters. Such is his contention in his own Province, but he will hardly persuade the men of Ontario to adopt his views.

Glasgow, Oct. 21.—Five rebellious crofters on the isle of Skye have been sentenced to six month's imprisonment and three others to four months each.

THE CZAR SHOOTS AN OFFICER.

Thinking the Latter was Going to Assassinate him.

Vienna, October 22.—A rumor that the Czar had been killed spread like wild fire in this city yesterday. It probably had its origin in the shooting of an officer by the Czar. It seems that an aide-de-camp, Count Reutern, was awaiting the Czar in the Royal Palace. The weather being warm, the Count unbuttoned his tunic. The Czar returned sooner than was expected, and Reutern arose hurriedly and began to rebutton his tunic, whereupon the Czar, thinking that the officer was about to draw a weapon, shot him dead.

London, October 22.—Later despatches from St. Petersburg confirm the reportsthat the Czar killed his aide-de-camp, Councillor of State, Baron Rentern. These despatches fully agree with the particulars contained in the earlier reports, with the exception that the Czae killed Baron Rentern with his sabre instead of shooting him, as previously stated.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Funeral.—Dr. McCrea's funeral was largely attended on Monday, Oct. 18th. Relations and friends were present from all over the country. The following Doctors were present besides the local ones, viz. Dr. James McCrea (brother of diseased), Cambleford; Dr. Richards, Workworth; Dr. Bingham, Peterborough; and Dr. O'Gorman, Hastings. Universal regret was felt for the late doctor, who had endeared himself to everyone, and at the same time worn himself out in the practice of his profession.

Death.—On Monday evening Mrs. T. McDonald, daughter of Mr. Richard Short, died after a long and serious illness. The funeral was held on Wednesday to the Keene cemetery and was largely attended.

Keene Mills.—Our obliging millers Jno. & A. Dickson have had the grist mills overhauled by Mr. Wallace Anderson a practical miller and millwright "frae Glascae." Dickson Pros. are now making as good flour as can be had anywhere.

Sport.—A very large number are at present camping on Rice Lake duck shooting. The late stormy weather has been rather severe on them.

KINMOUNT.

The New Railway.—The progress in the construction of Mr. Pusey's railway to Irondale is excellent. If it continues to make progress at the present rate the line will be opened to Irondale by the 1st December. Mr. Machlin, the engineer of the Grand Trunk, has been inspecting the work, and is of opinion the line will be at work at the date mentioned. This is most important to the whole district. There is an immense quantity of forest produce to come out over the new line, and as soon as the shipment commences we shall require a second train daily from Lindsay to this junction. When the line is opened for about ten miles beyond Irondale there will probably be a large iron business done over it, and we may see the whole district become a great iron smelting country, with a teeming population, and vast resources. Kinmount is just beginning to feel the first gentle throbbings of a boom.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

LINDSAY.

A Singular Occurence.—A singular event happened at Orillia on Eriday last, G. E. Hunter, who keeps the feed store opposite the market on West st., was about moving his business to the stand occupied by Mr. L. M. McDonald, Mississaga st., and was in the act of raising the funds necessary for the occasion. With this object in view he went to see a friend in the south ward, on his return from whence it it appears that he was waylaid and robbed. Certainly nothing was known or heard of Mr. Hunter until next day, when he was found near Uptergrove in a demented condition—his head cut, his pockets torn and his money absent. He was brought back to town, but he has not yet recovered sufficiently to give a satisfactory account of what happened him. He says that he was attacked near the old Temperance hall on Machedash st., but in his present sate nothing definite can be learned.—Post.

Chicoutimi Election.

Quebec, Oct. 22.—The complete list of majorities in the different parishes and towns in the County of Chicoutimi and Saguenay gives a total majority for Mr. St. Hilaire (Bleu) of 1,088. Mr. Dumais (Nationalist) a majority in Herbertville of 207, which leaves a total majority for Mr. St. Hilaire of 881. The returning officer gives Mr. St. Hilaire's majority at 875.

An M. P. P. Dead.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—The political situation has taken on a new phase to-day, Demers, who was elected in Iberville by acclamation as a Liberal, having died suddenly. As there is not yet any regularly formed Assembly, and consequently no Speaker, a new writ cannot be issued, and the new House will have to meet with sixty-four members.

The Wreck Record.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct 11.—George Clark & Cos., 84 ton schooner George L. Smith, which sailed hence on August 14 on a halibut voyage, has been given up for lost with a crew of fourteen men. The total loss at this port this year is 27 veasels, valued at $173,000, and 166 men, leaving 28 widows and 56 children.

Railway Extension.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has been extended from Boissevain to Deloraine, a distance of twenty miles. The Manitoba South-Western road has been extended twenty miles to Glenboro.

Game Seized.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 21.—A large shipment of game en route to the United States was seized this morning, as game by Canadian law cannot be exported.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

The time was passing quickly. It was five minutes after the half-hour when breakfast was put upon the table, and Mr. Strangfield drew a chair for himself, and began to eat with a gesture of a man who forces himself to do something he abhors. Not a mouthful could the mother swallow; her gaze was forever upon the open window, and her ears pricked for every little sound.

But expectation was wrought by fear into insurmountable pain at last, and, unable to endure the hard silence, she cried out:

"Michael, she doth not come!"

He looked at her vacantly, aroused by her speech out of deep thought, and pulled out his watch. He rose from his chair instantly, his whole manner changed, and he exclaimed:

"It is too late for the coach. Now what do you say to your girl's honesty?"

"Oh, Michael!" she cried, "where do you think our child is? Why should she not be here? Did you say anything to her yesterday to scare her? Last night she kissed me sweetly, and thanked me for my love, and she would not break my heart by leaving me! Oh, Michael, what did'st thee say to her?"

"I said no more than bid her be ready for the coach at 8 o'clock this morning," he said, speaking with difficulty through the tension of his lips. "What is there to fright you in this? Could you not have guessed that if she had sinned she would not go with me to London? Would she rush upon her own conviction, silly woman!" He added in a faint voice: "What heavier blow than this could come upon a man? I would sooner see her dead. And after all these years—in this little town where we are honored—how will some people scoff to hear that pious Michael Strangfield's girl——"

"I'll not hear thee say it!" shrieked the mother, raising her hands to her ears. "Michael, will you not go and seek her? Shall we stand here wickedly raging at the poor heart that hath been driven from our love by our sorrow and your anger, when every moment is taking her further from us? Oh, husband, think of our pretty one—so tender, so gentle, Michael—sitting wearied by the wayside, weeping and calling upon death, and thinking there be naught to love her but the gracious Lord who is in the sky! Dost thee not see her? If she had gone twenty miles I would walk to her! I would—I would!"

In a paroxysm of grief and love she ran toward the door. But her husband came after her hastily, and his hand fell upon her shoulder.

"Where would you go?" he said.

"To find my child. Michael, let me be. I——will not be hindered!"

He drew her back from the door and closed it violently.

"Listen to reason, woman!" he exclaimed, controlling his voice with an effort that discolored and convulsed his features. "You run mad easily, and madness is on you now, and in this temper you are not to be trusted abroad. What will your sorrow do but publish our shame! At thy time of life to chase a phantom. Such is your child now; for where is she gone, and what road will you take? Oh, fool! to let love blind thee to the curse that God has set upon our foreheads! You have suckled vice, and I have loved it and caressed it, and now it has brought shame upon us and left us! The will of the Lord of Hosts be done! But this is my death, Jane— Wife, this thing has put ice in my heart— I am cold here."

He stopped short, with his hand upon his breast, shaking his head slowly, with his frown gone.

"Sit thee down, Michael. My poor man! This is cruel hard upon us both! What have we done that God should take our only one from us? Sit thee down. Why do you pluck at your shirt?—your hand is all of a shiver."

She pushed a chair under him and he sank into it, and faintly beat with his fingers upon his thigh, looking downward with a sideway droop of the head.

He rallied presently, and gazed at her wistfully with a softened eye, as she stood before him with averted face silently crying.

"Am not I wise, Jane, to restrain thee from running into the town to seek the girl? 'That which is crooked,' saith the preacher, 'cannot be made straight; and that which is wanting cannot be numbered.' If she come not back of her own accord, is it meet that her mother should bring her? Not with my leave shall you do it. And if she come, I go! for this house will not hold us two. Hush! I'll not hear you. Your love is a mother's, and I say, God help thee! but if she were twenty times my child, the hem of her garment should not touch the sole of my boot, so hateful hath her sin made her in my sight."

He spoke with subdued energy—as a man in an illness might, indeed: and though bitter and shocking as his words were for his wife to hear, yet his broken aspect, his ashen face, his drooping head, the senile twitching of his fingers, the dulled gleam in his eye, were sights of pathos to modify pure maternal anguish with wifely yearning and a dim dread not yet definable.

"You will not think her honest!" she moaned. "You will not believe that fear has driven her forth. If she is ignorant of the church wherein she was married, and hath no memory to help thee to find it, would she not think with terror on the journey and fly rather than take it with you who are so stern to her? Oh, Michael, it drives me mad to stand here and think of her as a lonely, helpless wanderer."

"Why do you say that? Has the man no friends, or means, to give her shelter? How know you that her flight is not a scheme to join her lover who is in hiding? Does she lack cunning? Do not seek her! I would lock thee in thy bedroom rather than that this last disgrace should come upon us!"

She answered him not a word, but leaned her forehead against the edge of the high mantelpiece, and thus stood in silent anguish.

CHAPTER XX.

PROOF POSITIVE.

Down the familiar road which we have traversed before in our visits to Greystone school, there was coming at this hour, and walking with brisk steps, which ever and anon shot up a twirl of dust, no less a personage than Dr. Isaac Shaw.

This was an uncommonly early hour for Dr. Shaw to be found outside his school; for here was not a man to be courted from discipline by the sweetness of early morning air.

As he approached the bottom of the hill and neared the houses, his step slackened and took yet a more dignified moderation of gesture.

When at the bottom of the street, he paused a moment to inspect the wooden house of the shipwright, which looked shyly toward him through its green drapery.

With an uneasy glance around him, such as a man might cast who wishes to effect an object without detection, the doctor crossed the road and knocked hurriedly on the door of the wooden house.

There are many kinds of bad servants; but the worst kind of servant is the servant who keeps you waiting on the door step.

Had this door flown open under the doctor's hand, uplifted to catch the knocker, still something of promptitude would have been missing. For nothing was plainer than that Dr. Shaw had no wish to be seen standing on that threshold.

At last came Polly and saluted him with a dirty stare.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d94

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites,

In Consumption and Wasting Diseases,

seems to possess remedial powers of great efficacy. It heals the irritation of the throat and lungs, makes pure blood and builds up and fortifies the system against further inroads by disease. Take no other.

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, blotting, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Sisters of Charity

Charity, attached to St. Mary's Infant Asylum, Dorchester, Mass., certify to the inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the treatment of sore eyes and skin diseases, among the many unfortunate children under their care. Mrs. S. D. Bodwell, Wilmington, Mass., writes concerning the treatment of her daughter, who was troubled with sore eyes, as follows: "I gave Ayer's Sarsaparilla to and must say that she never took anything that helped her so much. I think her eyes never looked so well, as now, since they were affected, and her general health is improving every day. She has taken but half a bottle." A. J. Simpson, 147 East Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "My weak eyes were made strong by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I have been troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief, until I commenced using saparilla. I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers."

My Little Girl,

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Charity

may be "fairest and foremost of the train that wait on man's most dignified and happiest state," but the dignity and happiness of man cannot long endure without the health that may be obtained in a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A. W. Parker, lumber dealer, 209 Bleury street, Montreal, Que., writes: "After being troubled with Dyspepsia for a year, and with Salt Rheum

For a Number of Years,

I was cured of both diseases by using six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." M. G. Traine, Duxbury, Mass., writes: "I have found Ayer's Sarsaparilla an efficacious remedy for bilious troubles and Dyspepsia." Henry Cobb, 41 Russell st., Charlestown, Mass., writes: "I was completely cured of Dyspepsia, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." Wm. Lee, Joppa, Md., writes: "I have tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it has done me so much good that I shall always regard it as the best of blood purifiers." Eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sarin all cases requiring a powerful alterative treatment.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled mercenants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

STILL STRIDING ON.

The Towns Progress During the Past Year.

AN UNPARALLELED GROWTH.

NEVER SUCH A SEASON OF BUILDING IN PETERBOROUGH'S HISTORY.

The Total Value of New Buildings, two Hundred and Twenty Three Thousand Dollars.

During the past year the growth of Peterborough has been satisfactory indeed. On account of the large amount of building done during 1884 and 1885 it was predicted that the season of 1886 would be a quiet one. So it commenced, there being little done at the opening of this season. But the demand existed and the buildings had to go up; and if the growth of Peterborough is a rapid one its citizens can congratulate themselves that it is also a substantial one. From July till the present there has been phenomenal activity in building. Every available hand in every branch has been set at work and the contractors—the pursued contractors—they have been driven to their wits ends to get up the builings fast enough.

Sometimes comparisons are odious, but not in this case. As compared with late years the value of the buildings put up this year show how building is steadily increasing. In the season of 1884 the value of the buildings erected was $205,000; the value of the buildings erected in the season of 1885 was 215,000; but this year the value has reached what it never was before, $223,000.

Besides this, the value this year has been heavily handicapped when comparing it with past years, through it not having any of the church building which has been going on since 1880. The year before last $55,000 of the total $205,000 was made up of ecclesiastical building, and of the amount of last year's $215,000, $38,000 was made up in the same way.

There have been a number of factories enlarged this year. A number of business blocks have been built and improved, and a few terraces have gone up, but the bulk of this year's building has been mainly in commodious and substantially built two storey brick dwellings. The architectural taste of the people, as well as their prosperity, is shown by a number of very handsome residences having been erected.

T. WEBB,

BUILDER AND CONTRACTOR. All work done substantially and expeditiously. Address, T. WEBB, Peterborough. lyd97

ON DICKSON STREET.

A large two storey red brick house, 32x44, with two bay windows running full height; a brick kitchen and woodshed, 15x36, one storey high; cottage roof with heavy projections. The cornices are handsomely bracketed, giving the structure a massive appearance. Inside it is fitted with all modern conveniences. It is built for Mr. Walsh, of the firm of Ormond & Walsh, druggists. J. J. Hartley, contractor; D. Gamble, superintendent of carpenter work. Cost, $3,500.

Mr. A. Brodie has erected a very handsome residence on this street. It is built in Queen Ann style. The quarry stone foundation, black jointed, appears above the ground three feet. The superstructure is of red brick, also black jointed. The slated roof is of the usual kind peculiar to this style of architecture, there being quite a number of gables to break the continuity. On entering, a pretty vestibule, dimly lighted with colored cathedral glass, must first be passed through. Then the hall is reached. It is almost square and is quite spacious. From it leads doors to the library, drawing room and dining room. A flight of stairs with heavy balustrades leads to the second storey. The drawing room is lighted by a large bent plate glass window, while the rest of the rooms are lighted by cathedral glass windows with heavy mullions. The whole inside of the house is finished in cherry. English grates with American tile ornament the library, dining room, and some of the bedrooms. The heating, however, is done by a hot water apparatus situated in the cellar, from which pipes lead to every room. The house is lighted with gas, and a set of bells and speaking tubes render it still more convenient. The size, counting the projections, is about 70x30. It is two and a half storeys in height. Mr. W. Blackwell is the architect, H. Carveth the contractor and T. McFadden the bricklayer. Cost, $4,500.

J. J. HARTLEY,

BUILDER AND CONTRACTOR. Contracts taken—first class work done. Houses and lots for sale. Materials furnished. P.O Box 647; residence, corner of Antrim and Aylmer streets. lyd97

ON ELM STREET.

A storey and a half plastered house, built for Mr. R. Clinkscale; cost, $600.

ON GEORGE STREET.

A handsome double villa, artistically designed and built of solid white brick. It is 50x50, has bay windows, balconies, verandahs, and is well finished throughout. Built for Mrs. Moffat. J. D. Baptie, contractor; A. Dawson, bricklayer. Cost, $3,800.

A fine two storey brick building, with a 25 foot frontage and 50 feet of a depth, has been erected for Mr. J. J. Howden, to be used as a butcher shop. The front is supported by five iron columns, which, together with iron window sills and steps, form the front of the first story. The upper story is colored red and tuck pointed with black joints. T. Rutherford, contractor; A. Dawson, sub-contractor for brickwork. Cost, $3,000.

On the corner of Perry street, a storey and a half veneered red brick 20 x 30, with kitchen 18 x 20, and gable roof and verandah; built for Mr. Solomon Barrett, cost, $1,100.

A block consisting of a store and three dwellings on the corner of Dublin street, having a hundred feet frontage on Dublin street and fifty feet frontage on George street. It is two storeys high, is built of red brick, tuck pointed. It is built for Mr. Richard Hall. The block of two dwellings adjoining it at the south has been remodled to conform with the style of architecture of the new building, new bay windows and balconies being the principal change; A Rutherford, contractor; W. Blackwell, architect; P. J. McNamara, bricklayer; cost, $6,000.

The Churches.

In the morning at the Charlotte Street Methodist Church the Rev. Mr. Wallace will conduct the services. He will preach the sermon in the evening also, taking for his subjeck "Honest doubt." At St. Paul's Church in the evening the Rev. Mr. Torrance will preach the late Mrs. Sawers' funeral sermon. The subject of the Rev. J. C. Wilson's sermons in the Mark Street Church are: A. m., "Holiness imperative"; p.m., "The prodigal's reflection."

Corn Festival.

The bill of fare at the corn festival on Tuesday night, in Bradburn's Opera Hall, promises to be quite original. The refreshments will consist of corn, mush and milk, Indian puddings, warmed with sauces, the old-fashioned Johnie cake, and all the different varieties of cornstarch cake, peas and puddings. The musical and literary programme is very good. The tickets which are 25 cents will entitle the holder to the enjoyment of all the good things that will be there.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

RIELITE MAJORITY

The Government cannot claim a majority of the House, The Liberals are also in a similar position and the key of the situation is held by the Independents. These Independ nts will prove true to the National cause and if the Government still retains the sense of shame and any respect for the constitution it will be obliged to give up its seat.—L' Etendard. (Rielite)

THE MARTYR OF REGINA.

Patriots of the province, thanks, thanks in the name of the country which we have merited. Thanks, in the name of the poor Metis race which awaited with anxiety the result of the fight. Thanks, in the name of the poor martyr of Regina who has not shed his blood in vain. Thanks in the name of justice which demanded reparation in the name of the national honor which demanded vengeance. Let us be proud of the result. It is magnificent and will make the traitors at Ottawa tremble in their sumptuous homes.—La Justice (Rielite.)

A PRECEDENT.

"One thing is certain, the Ministers will not resign. Constitutionally they are not bound to do so, and we may take it for granted that they will act accordingly. Mr Joly, although defeated in 1878, governed for eighteen months by means of the Speaker's vote. L' Evenement (Con).

RIEL IS AVENGED.

The local ministers made themselves the creatures of the Ottawa ministers, they were the advance guard of the army of the Hope, the majority of the electors of our Province protested. Honor to the Province. Riel is avenged by his brethren of Lower Canada. In face of such a result courage returns to our hearts. What matter the several desertions which we suffered, we are able to say to our Province that it has done its duty. We will not have to blush in the face of strangers. We have shown ourselves worthy and patriots.—La Justice (Rielite).

WHERE TO STOP.

The situation is a difficult one. We cannot if we would use Bismarck's method. But on the other hand we cannot submit to everything that is asked by French Canadians. We must make a boundary, and it seems clear that we must stop at rebellion and murder. If a Frenchman is guilty of these offences twice, and is rewarded and amnestied once, and adds the second offence of inciting Indians to pillage and massacre, we submit that the Frenchman should be punished according to law. Some might desire that he should be shot when caught, but we content ourselves with a fair trial and execution. How to secure homogeneity in the population may be left to the future Other issues will, no doubt, be dealt with as they arise. Let us keep to this point now. We have a large territory to settle, and other Frenchmen may be encouraged by recent events to set the torch and tomahawk in motion. Let us have it settled how such a one is to be dealt with. It will be one step towards the settlement of a modus vivendi between the races.—Toronto World Indep.)

Blake's Reward.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The friends of Peter Hourie, the half-breed scout who captured Riel, are about to press upon the Government his claim to the reward of $5,000 said to have been offered for Riel's capture. Hourie earned an enviable reputation by several acts of bravery during the rebellion.

A FAMOUS ART COLLECTION.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The will of the late Baron Rothchild bequeaths his famous art collection to Nathaniel Rothchild, and after the latter's death to the Baroness Louise Grandenz.

UNSATISFACTORY BUDGET.

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—The Budget was received in the Reichsrath yesterday with ominous silence at first. Then expressions of indignation arose on account of the largeness of the deficit. The President restored order with difficulty.

GERMAN GOODS IN FRANCE.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—The German press warmly criticizes the project of the French Government to suppress the sale of foreign goods marked as French fabrics. It is predicted that the law in question will result in the absolute prohibition of the sale of German merchandise, because no French house will dare to sell German goods which are known to be German.

IN A WASP'S NEST.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Mr. Gladstone, while felling a tree at Hawarden yesterday, disturbed a nest of wasps. They made an attack upon him, in consequence of which he was unable to attend church to-day, as his face was terribly swollen from the effects of the insect bites.

AN IMPOSTER.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—At the request of the Dublin police the authorities at Liverpool have arrested Arthur Mereton, alias Rev. Theodore Keating, who, under the guise of a converted Catholic priest, imposed upon the Archbishop of Dublin and many persons high in church circles, and who, at the request of several clergymen, officiated in their pulpits.

A GOLD RUSH

LONDON, Oct, 24.—An immence exodus of mentoward Waukaringa, in South Australia is in progress in consequence of the discovery of alluvial gold there.

MUST DEMAND EVACUATION.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The Figaro urges Premier de Freycinet to plainly put to England the question whether she will evacuate Egypt. "It is veritable treason," says Figaro, "to miss the only opportunity the London convention affords France to bring this subject before Europe and demand that the English withdraw from Egypt at the date the convention fixed for it. The paper then says an interpellation or demonstration is necessary to awaken the mind of the French Government to the remembrance of France's right in Egypt.

LONDON SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Socialists of London gave a banquet last night in honor of Mr. Williams, one of their leaders, who was recently released from prison. A number of incendiary speeches were made. Mr. Quelch, editor of Justice, said if peaceful efforts failed, hundreds of thousands of persons were ready to stand behind barricades and take pot-shots at their enemies. Mr. Hyndmann said the proposed procession of the poor people of London on Lord Mayor's day had not been abandoned, and that the aldermen were shaking like jelly fishes at the idea of meeting their miserable poverty-stricken fellow-citizens.

COLLIERY ARBITRATION.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The arbritrator in the colliery dispute has declared that the Fyfe and Clackmanna Colliery Companies broke their contracts in restricting the output, and condemned them to pay the colliers five shillings a day each and the costs of the enquiry. The decision agects 6,000 colliers and is of vital importance throughout Scotland, where a restriction of the output has been general. This is the first decision rendered in regard to restriction.

NOT TO BE NOMINATED.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—An official communication from Sofia states that the provisional Government of Bulgaria does not intend at nominate Prince Alexander, and does not expect the election of his successor can be proceeded with for a long time.

DYPUTATION TO THE CZAR.

SOFIA, Oct. 24.—The chiefs of the Sobranje have decided to send to the Czar a deputation, consisting of M. M. Slavikoff, Gueschoff, and Metropolitan Clementi. They will be instructed to complain of the action of Gen. Kaulbars as Russian agent in Bulgaria, and to ask the Czar to name the candidate for the Bulgarian throne. The Russian consuls in Bulgaria have been ordered to refuse passports to the members of the proposed delegation.

REDUCING RENTS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 24.—Mr. Scully, a large land owner in Tipperary, has abated 25 per cent. of the judicial rents. This is the largest reduction made in Tipperary since the judical rents were established. Mr. Scully, in notifying the tenants of the reduction, said he could not ignore the condition of circumstances at the present time and was prepared to share with his tenants inevitable losses.

TORPEDO BOATS FOR TURKEY.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Turkey has entered into a contract with a German firm for the construction of twelve torpedo boats. They will cost $1,300,000.

BULGARIA NEGOTIATING LOANS.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—Bulgaria has asked Baron Erlanger, the French banker, to negotiate a loan of £2,000,000 at par with 7 per cent. interest on the security of the Zaribrod and Vakarel railway. A similar request has been made of the Lander Bank of this city.

JUSTIN McCARTHY ELECTED.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—A despatch from Londonderry says Mr. C. E. Lewis, the Conservative M. P. for Londonderry city, who defeated Mr. Justice McCarthy, Nationalist, by a small majority, and against whose seating the Nationalists protested on the alleged grounds of fraud, has abandoned the seat. It was at once claimed for Mr. McCarthy, and after some argument was awarded him. The decision caused great excitement.

THE CZAR'S UNHAPPY SUBJECTS.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Reliable reports describe the condition of Southern Russia as deplorable in the extreme. Discontent is universal. The Nihilist propaganda is in a more active and flourishing condition than ever before. The prisons, especially those of Nicolaieff, Odessa and Ekaterinoslav are filled to overflowing, and the proportion of officers and students, comprising those who are confined in the prisons and those who are under police surveillance, is a source of great alarm to the authorities. This year's harvest in Southern Russia has been unusually abundant, but the high German duties consequent on the war tariffs, which have never been reduced, absorb the profits which might otherwise be realized on the crops, and the value on land is, therefore, diminishing year by year. Land owners are selling out at a ruinous sacrifice, and Moscow merchants declare that commerce is at a complete standstill. The scarcity, and in many cases the entire absence of banking institutions of any kind, combine to complicate matters, and in the near future promise no improvement.

A NEW PARTY ADVOCATED.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Standard says it hopes to see a Liberal-Conservative party formed out of of the amply existent materials, a party which Lord Hartington could develop and might hope to lead. "Lord Hartington," it says, "cannot long maintain his independent attitude. The next season of Parliament will be of supreme interest, and will decide wither the chance to rescue our party system from the false position will be seized or lost. It is not easy to say how much England's greatness and happiness depend upon the direction the Unionists will take."

A NOTABLE INTERVIEW.

LONDON, Oct 23.—Sir Wm. White met the King of Servia at Belgrade last night, and had a conference with him lasting two hours, after conferring with the Servian Foreign Minister.

THE "SICK MAN" ACTS WISELY.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The North German Gazette says France failed to obtain any agreement with Turkey with reference to Egypt.

A POSTAL ENQUIRY.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Post-office authorities are enquiring how the correspondence between Gen. Buller and the Cork sheriffs with reference to the use of the police for evictions became published, and in regard to the missing despatch from Gen. Buller to the sheriff.

A BERLIN SCANDAL.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—A scandal has been caused in the highest circles by the arrest of Baron Otho Von Schleinitz, nephew of the deceased Minister of that name, and a member of the Emperor's household. He is charged with acting as the agent of a band of men leagued together for the purpose of extorting money from wealthy and high born persons and with selling forged titles and decorations. Schleinitz was captain in the Prussian guards. He gambled and ran through a fortune. On the discovery of his crimes, the police favoured his escape to France, out of regard for his uncle, who [illegible] since the latter's death Schleinitz has been traced to England, where he is charged with the forgery of a bill of exchange for 2,400 marks. He has just been extradited. An accomplice named Lange, who was concerned in the forgery, committed suicide upon hearing of Schleinitz's arrest.

THE TURKISH NAVY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 24.—In addition to the orders for the new torpedo boats the Sultan has commanded the Admiralty to expend £1,500,000 on a man of war. In view of the state of the Turkish finaces the Cabinet Ministers oppose this new project.

THE ROTHSCHILDS.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—A Paris correspondent confirms the despatch concerning Rothschild, with the correction that the member of the family whose speculation have caused the disturbance is Baron Gustave and not Alphonso. It is understood his wife desires what is called in France a family council, with the object of putting a control on the financial operations of her husband. Gustave is a winner to the extent of 30,000,000f. This, however, does not remove the objections of the family, the fact of a Rothschild engaging in speculation being regarded as being inconsistent with the family compact and dangerous to the reputation of their house.

A FRENCH METHOD.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—A curious discovery is now puzzling the politicians of this city. Recently a Workmen's convention was held in the city of Lyons. The attendance was large and the delegates were enthusiastic. During one of the sessions the Anarchist element secured a predominance. They became rampant and finally tore down the tricolor. It now transpires that the Congress was subsidized by the Government. It is explained that the proposal to hold the congress did not meet with favor among the various trade unions, and that M. Lockroy, Minister of Commerce, in order to save the project from failure, obtained railway passes for all delegates who would go, and provided $750 from the state treasury to help to pay the expenses of the Congress.

CAMPBELLFORD.

WOUNDED BY A REVOLVER.—Mr. W. Oddie, clerk in Mr. Chas. Gillespie's hardware store, was wounded in the hand by the accidental discharge of a revolver on Monday evening last.

RECEIVED A CALL.—Mr. John McLeod, B. A., licentiate and graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, who had charge of St. Andrew's Church, Seymour east and Ryistone during the summer of 1885, has received and accepted a unanimous call to Scotstown, and will be ordained by the Quebec Presbytery at an early date.—Herald.

COBOURG.

POISON.—A serious accident happened in Mr. Porter's drug store on Monday afternoon. A man who lives in the west end went in there, and seeing on the counter a bottle containing what he supposed to be whiskey, and feeling rather dry and cold at the time, he helped himself to its contents. It turned out to be a bottle of poison and had it not been for the antidotes prescribed by Mr. F. Gowans and Dr. Craig he would have been no more.—World.

Col. Majendie in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Col. Majendie, of London, Her Majesty's chief inspector of explosives, is in this city. In an interview he said: "I am in America looking into the question of petroleum and observing the practice and laws here regulating the storage of petroleum. My principal duty is an advisory one to the secretary of state in regard to petroleum, but it will be secondary with me to learn all I can about dynamite in this country."

Use the Old and Reliable.

Catarrh destroys the senses of smell, taste and hearing, rapidly becomes offensive, and often culminates in consumption and insanity. No matter what stage the disease has advanced to, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will certainly cure it. This preparation is the only sure cure for this malady in the market; yet has many imitators. Others may fail; it never does. Your druggist.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

RIELITE MAJORITY

The Government cannot claim a majority of the House, The Liberals are also in a similar position and the key of the situation is held by the Independents. These Independ nts will prove true to the National cause and if the Government still retains the sense of shame and any respect for the constitution it will be obliged to give up its seat.—L' Etendard. (Rielite)

THE MARTYR OF REGINA.

Patriots of the province, thanks, thanks in the name of the country which we have merited. Thanks, in the name of the poor Metis race which awaited with anxiety the result of the fight. Thanks, in the name of the poor martyr of Regina who has not shed his blood in vain. Thanks in the name of justice which demanded reparation in the name of the national honor which demanded vengeance. Let us be prond of the result. It is magnificent and will make the traitors at Ottawa tremble in their sumptuous homes.—La Justice (Rielite.)

A PRECEDENT.

"One thing is certain, the Ministers will not resign. Constitutionally they are not bound to do so; and we may take it for granted that they will act accordingly. Mr Joly, although defeated in 1878, governed for eighteen months by means of the Speaker's vote. L' Evenement (Con).

RIEL IS AVENGED.

The local ministers made themselves the creatures of the Ottawa ministers; they were the advance guard of the army of the Rope, the majority of the electors of our Province protested. Honor to the Province. Riel is avenged by his brethren of Lower Canada. In face of such a result courage returns to our hearts. What matter the several desertions which we suffered, we are able to say to our Province that it has done its duty. We will not have to blush in the face of strangers. We have shown ourselves worthy and patriots.—La Justice (Rielite).

WHERE TO STOP.

The situation is a difficult one. We cannot if we would use Bismarck's method. But on the other hand we cannot submit to everything that is asked by French Canadians. We must make a boundary, and it seems clear that we must stop at rebellion and murder. If a French man is guilty of these offences twice, and is rewarded and amnestied once, and adds the second offence of inciting Indians to pillage and massacre, we submit that the Frenchman should be punished according to law. Some might desire that he should be shot when caught, but we content ourselves with a fair trial and execution. How to secure homogeneity in the population may be left to the future. Other issues will, no doubt, be dealt with as they arise. Let us keep to this point now. We have a large territory to settle, and other Frenchmen may be encouraged by recent events to set the torch and tomahawk in motion. Let us have it settled how such a one is to be dealt with. It will be one step towards the settlement of a modus vivendi between the races.—Toronto World Indep.)

Blake's Reward.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The friends of Peter Hourie, the half-breed scout who captured Riel, are about to press upon the Government his claim to the reward of $5,000 said to have been offered for Riel's capture. Hourie earned an enviable reputation by several acts of bravery during the rebellion.

A FAMOUS ART COLLECTION.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The will of the late Baron Rothchild bequeaths his famous art collection to Nathaniel Rothchild, and after the latter's death to the Baroness Louise Grandenz.

UNSATISFACTORY BUDGET.

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—The Budget was received in the Reichsrath yesterday with ominous silence at first. Then expressions of indignation arose on account of the largeness of the deficit. The President restored order with difficulty.

GERMAN GOODS IN FRANCE.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—The German press warmly criticizes the project of the French Government to suppress the sale of foreign goods marked as French fabrics. It is predicted that the law in question will result in the absolute prohibition of the sale of German merchandise, because no French house will dare to sell German goods which are known to be German.

IN A WASP'S NEST.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Mr. Gladstone, while felling a tree at Hawarden yesterday, disturbed a nest of wasps. They made an attack upon him, in consequence of which he was unable to attend church to-day, as his face was terribly swollen from the effects of the insect bites.

AN IMPOSTER.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—At the request of the Dublin police the authorities at Liverpool have arrested Arthur Mereton, alias Rev. Theodore Keating, who, under the guise of a converted Catholic priest, imposed upon the Archbishop of Dublin and many persons high in church circles, and who, at the request of several clergymen, officiated in their pulpits.

A GOLD RUSH

LONDON, Oct, 24.—An immence exodus of mentoward Waukarings, in South Australia is in progress in consequence of the discovery of alluvial gold there.

MUST DEMAND EVACUATION.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The Figaro urges Premier de Freycinet to plainly put to England the question whether she will evacuate Egypt. "It is veritable treason," says Figaro, "to miss the only opportunity the London convention affords France to bring this subject before Europe and demand that the English withdraw from Egypt by the date the convention fixed for it." The paper then asks whether an manifestation or demonstration is necessary to awaken the mind of the French Government to the remembrance of France's right in Egypt.

LONDON SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Socialists of London gave a banquet last night in honor of Mr. Williams, one of their leaders, who was recently released from prison. A number of incendiary speeches were made. Mr. Quelch, editor of Justice, said if peaceful efforts failed, hundreds of thousands of persons were ready to stand behind barricades and take pot-shots at their enemies. Mr. Hyndmann said the proposed procession of the poor people of London on Lord Mayor's day had not been abandoned, and that the aldermen were shaking like jelly fishes at the idea of meeting their miserable poverty-stricken fellow-citizens.

COLLIERY ARBITRATION.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The arbritrator in the colliery dispute has declared that the Fyfe and Clackmanna Colliery Companies broke their contracts in restricting the output, and condemned them to pay the colliers five shillings a day each and the costs of the enquiry. The decision agects 6,000 colliers and is of vital importance throughout Scotland, where a restriction of the output has been general. This is the first decision rendered in regard to restriction.

NOT TO BE NOMINATED.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—An official communication from Sofia states that the provisional Government of Bulgaria does not intend at nominate Prince Alexander, and does not expect the election of his successor can be proceeded with for a long time.

DYPUTATION TO THE CZAR.

SOFIA, Oct. 24.—The chiefs of the Sobranje have decided to send to the Czar a deputation, consisting of M. M. Slavikoff, Gueschoff, and Metropolitan Clementi. They will be instructed to complain of the action of Gen. Kaulbars as Russian agent in Bulgaria, and to ask the Czar to name the candidate for the Bulgarian throne. The Russian consuls in Bulgaria have been ordered to refuse passports to the members of the proposod delegation.

REDUCING RENTS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 24.—Mr. Scully, a large land owner in Tipperary, has abated 25 per cent. of the judicial rents. This is the largest reduction made in Tipperary since the judical rents were established. Mr. Scully, in notifying the tenants of the reduction, said he could not ignore the condition of circumstances at the present time and was prepared to share with his tenants inevitable losses.

TORPEDO BOATS FOR TURKEY.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Turkey has entered into a contract with a German firm for the construction of twelve torpedo boats. They will cost $1,300,000.

BULGARIA NEGOTIATING LOANS.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—Bulgaria has asked Baron Erlanger, the French banker, to negotiate a loan of £2,000,000 at par with 7 per cent. interest on the security of the Zaribrod and Vakarel railway. A similar request has been made of the Lander Bank of this city.

JUSTIN McCARTHY ELECTED.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—A despatch from Londonderry says Mr. C. E. Lewis, the Conservative M. It is understood his wife desires what is called in France a family council, with the object of putting a control on the financial operations of her husband. Gustave is a winner to the extent of 30,000,000f. This, however, does not remove the objections of the family, the fact of a Rothschild engaging in speculation being regarded as being inconsistent with the family compact and dangerous to the reputation of their house.

A FRENCH METHOD.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—A curious discovery is now puzzling the politicians of this city. Recently a Workmen's convention was held in the city of Lyons. The attendance was large and the delegates were enthusiastic. During one of the sessions the Anarchist element secured a predominance. They became rampant and finally tore down the tricolor. It now transpires that the Congress was subsidized by the Government. It is explained that the proposal to hold the congress did not meet with favor among the various trade unions, and that M. Lockroy, Minister of Commerce, in order to save the project from failure, obtained railway passes for all delegates who would go, and provided $750 from the state treasury to help to pay the expenses of the Congress.

CAMPBELLFORD.

WOUNDED BY A REVOLVER.—Mr. W. Oddie, clerk in Mr. Chas. Gillespie's hardware store, was wounded in the hand by the accidental discharge of a revolver on Monday evening last.

RECEIVED A CALL.—Mr. John McLeod, B. A., licentiate and graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, who had charge of St. Andrew's Church, Seymour east and Rylstone during the summer of 1885, has received and accepted a unanimous call to Scotstown, and will be ordained by the Quebec Presbytery at an early date.—Herald.

COBOURG.

FOISON.—A serious accident happened in Mr. Porter's drug store on Monday afternoon. A man who lives in the west end went in there, and seeing on the counter a bottle containing what he supposed to be whiskey, and feeling rather dry and cold at the time, he helped himself to its contents. It turned out to be a bottle of poison and had it not been for the antidotes prescribed by Mr. F. Gowans and Dr. Craig he would have been no more.—World.

Col. Majendie in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Col. Majendie, of London, Her Majesty's chief inspector of explosives, is in this city. In an interview he said: "I am in America looking into the question of petroleum and observing the practice and laws here regulating the storage of petroleum. My principal duty is an advisory one to the secretary of state in regard to petroleum, but it will be secondary with me to learn all I can about dynamite in this country."

Catarrh destroys the senses of smell, taste and hearing, rapidly becomes offensive, and often culminates in consumption and insanity. No matter what stage the disease has advanced to, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will certainly cure it. This preparation is the only sure cure for this malady in the market; yet has many imitators. Others may fail; it never does. Your druggist.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1886.

AVOWED REBELS.

THE London Advertiser pretends not to know whether Mr. Laurier said that if he had been on the banks of the Saskatchewan he would have shouldered a musket with the rebels. Mr. Laurier said so in a public speech, shortly after the execution of Riel, and another Reformer, Mr. C. Langelier, M.P. for Megantic, said the same thing in the House of Commons, his words being, as recorded in the official report, as follows:—

"I have heard it repeated very often that the hon. member for Quebec East (Mr. Laurier) had said last session that if he had been on the Saskatchewan he would also have shouldered his musket with the halfbreeds. Well, sir, I am not ashamed to say the same thing."

And Mr. Blake and other Reformers of Ontario, instead of rebuking these disloyal utterances, joined with these men in their defence of rebellion. Every vote cast in favor of a Reformer at the next election will be a vote in favor of placing in office—in favor of placing men to rule over us—who are avowed rebels, and who would have assisted the halfbreeds and Indians to shoot down our volunteers.

IT is astonishing how dishonestly the Globe distorts facts if it can thereby injure and bring into odium its political opponents. The Colonial Department of the Imperial Government has published a pamphlet from which the Globe quotes the correctly given informaton that assisted passages to Canada are given only to agriculturists, farm laborers and female domestic servants. It also quotes the comment of the London Times that this a discouragement of the emigration to Canada of skilled artizans. And then, in the teeth of this, the Globe proceeds to add that it proves that the Dominion Government is busy at the "task of reducing the wages, decreasing the chances of employment and increasing the taxes of the workingmen." A more unscrupulous and despicable perversion of the truth could hardly be imagined.

THE Toronto World says:—

"Under a sensational heading the Peterborough Review warns the farmers that the members of the Toronto Young Men's Liberal Club contemplate the confiscation of their farms. The REVIEW takes the boys a little too seriously. Their real purpose is to rob the farmers' orchards, for boys will be boys, you know."

The escapade of the boys might in itself be too unimportant for very serious notice. Any importance it had was derived from the fact of its following closely upon an editorial in the Globe advocating the confiscation of all farms, and the education of the people of this country into a belief in such a robbery. The process of education naturally begins with the young.

SAULT STE. MARIE RAILWAY.

The Grand Trunk and Northern Pacific to Meet Next Year.

The statement was made yesterday on good authority that an agreement had been made between the Grand Trunk and Northern Pacific railways for the building of the Ontario & Sault Ste. Marie Railway, the completion of the Northern Pacific system to Sault Ste. Marie, and the building of the bridge over the Sault on the charter granted some years ago. The line, as contemplated, will start from a point on the Midland near Atherly, and thence skirting the Muskoka Lakes, run on to near the mouth of the French river, where a series of small bridges from the mailn bank to some islands, and from island to island, will enable them to cross at a comparatively small cost. From the mouth of the French River the road will run a few miles from the shores of the Georgian Bay until it reaches Sault Ste. Marie. The Northern Pacific is already approaching the Sault, and it will not be long ere that point is reached. It is said that the necessary capital is ready for this project, which will place the Grand Trunk in a position far ahead of any she has previously occupied, making her with the Northern Pacific a great transcontinental road. It is said that the terms of the agreement were partially negotiated during the recent visit of Sir Edward Watkin to this country. Mr. Edmund Wragge, Local Manager, Grand Trunk Railway, was in Ottawa a few days ago, and it is stated on high authority that his business with the railway department was in connection with this scheme. As, however, Mr. Wragge had left his office last night before The Globe reporter reached there, the statement could not be submitted to him for verification. The date of the annual meeting of the company was recently changed, and is expected that a special meeting will shortly be called to make arrangements for immediate work.—Toronto Globe.

Paper Mill Burned.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—An extensive fire occurred last night in the Springvale mill at Windsor Mills, Q., of the Canada Paper Company of this city. These works were situated a short distance from the main premises, known as the old Windsor mill. The building in which the fire took place was erected with the view of being fire proof only three or four years ago. It was fitted up in the interior with modern machinery, which cost over $100,000, for manufacturing six tons of the finest class of paper per day. The loss is estimated at $170,000, but is insured for the full amount in the mutual Union of New York, which consists of eighteen other offices of the same stamp. The stock of paper in the storehouse and mill was saved. The conflagration originated from lamps exploding.

A DIABOLICAL CRY.

We are disappointed at the success of the diabolical race and religion cry. We are disappointed too at the prospective ruin of the only decent Conservative Government the Province has had for many years; ruined by the hypocritical cry of a clique of fanatics, a cry that has swept the Province like a cyclone. But, notwithstanding all this, the ballots of the people should be respected.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

BLAIRTON.

From Our Own Correspondent.

REMOVING THE IRON.—Our much esteemed friend, Mr. J. L. Aunger returned to Blairton again this week. He has started to work with a gang of men to lift the iron of the old railway from the narrows to the Blairton station on the Canadian Pacific. They will be thrown into piles and drawn to the station when the snow comes. Mr. Aunger looks very well after his absence at Harwood, although he had quite a serious time with his hand and arm from blood poisoning, caused by a light wound received while taking the machinery out of the Isaac Butts. Some of the poisonous matter from the boat took effect on the flesh wound. He was under the doctor's care for some time and has a very sore hand yet.

THE NEW IRON MINE.—Mr. Ledyard, Toronto, is expected down here every day with some experts, who, we learn, are coming to look at Mr. Ledyard's mine with a view to investing in it. It is, no doubt, a rich bed of iron.

IMPORTED PONEYS.—The Rev. I. W. Puffer is very much pleased with his poneys that he brought from England.

MUNICIPAL.—Municipal election excitement is beginning to run high already. Belmont and Methuen will be entitled to a Deputy Reeve this year.

KILLED IN THE WOODS.—A young man named Edward Hurt, while working in Gilmour's shanty in the Oak Lake settlement, was killed by a small dry pine tree, which one of his comrades was felling for a skid. The very top end struck him across the head and over the right eye, giving him a tremendous blow which levelled him to the ground. A Company team was immediately despatched for Dr. Ford, and another left with the unfortunate man to take him to Mr. A. Brown's, his brother-in-law. Before reaching Mr. Brown's he breathed his last. He was buried at the Rockdale graveyard. The Rev. Mr. Puffer preached the funeral sermon.

BOBCAYGEON.

DIED.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nye, for many years residents of this village, were returning after a prolonged visit to their son at Holyoke, Massachusetts, when Mrs. Nye was suddenly rendered helpless with a paralytic stroke, whilst on the Norseman. On reaching Port Hope she was conveyed to the Royal Hotel, where the unfortunate lady expired on the following morning, Wednesday, of last week. Mr. Nye had to sadly return to his son at Holyoke with the remains, where they were quietly lain to rest. The deceased lady was 78 years of age.

SCOTT ACT.—On Monday evening two informations under the Scott Act were brought before Wm. Thurston, Esq., J. P., and Reeve Bick. The charges were against Mr. Thos. Collins of the Rokeby House, and Mrs. Goulais of the Victoria. Inspector Short and Mr. P. S. Martin, barrister, of Lindsay, prosecuted, and Mr. H. B. Dean, barrister, of Lindsay, appeared for the defence. In the Collins case, the witnesses who had been summoned failed to appear. In the Rockland case Messrs. H. Thompson, Thos. Chetham, Wm. Stephens and Claes Arnberg were examined, but as other witnesses have to appear both charges were adjourned till next Monday evening.

THE STORM.—The storm on Friday last, committed some little destruction along the lakes. The Mary Ellen took 11 cribs of logs, and a scow of lumber into Sturgeon Lake, and the storm rising, she snubbed her tow to the windward shore. During Thursday night the wind sheered round, the raft was broken, and the scow was sunk. In Chemong Lake, the floating bridge was broken in two places, and traffic was suspended until Tuesday, causing great inconvenience. The bridge might more properly be called the sinking bridge, and means will soon have to be provided for giving more floating power. The timber is becoming so water logged, that a loaded waggon has to keep moving. To stop for a few moments to fix the load or harness, is to let the waggon sink to the hubs. A loaded waggon passing an empty one is done with some danger, as the heavy side sinks so far as to render the waggon liable to slip off the bridge. The recent repairs were made with all reasonable despatch. Independent.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE MUD LAKE BRIDGE.—The travelling public will feel grateful to Mr. W. B. Kelly, caretaker of the Mud Lake floating bridge, for the prompt manner in which he has repaired its late injuries, which were worse than at first supposed. Although broken in five places, and one piece turned around by the fierce gale on the night of the 14th, by stopping his other works and putting on all available hands, on the 20th traffic was resumed without any further inconvenience.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

☞ Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Bold McIntyres.

"The Bold McIntyre" hunting party arrived home on Saturday after a week's successful deer hunt up north.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Fullerton passed to the Little Lake Cemetery on Saturday afternoon. It was an unusually long cortege.

The Deputy Adjutant.

Col. Villiers, D. A. G., will visit Peterborough in an unofficial capicity this evening. He will be present at drill this evening.

Shipment.

Mr. B. Gross, for Mr. Cluxton, shipped to-day another car of cheese to London, England, being the last of the September make in this county. The October make, which has all been contracted for at the same prices as the September make, will be shipped on November 15th.

Personal.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, barrister, has resumed the practice of his profession.

Mr. W. A. Rawlings, St. Catharines, is registered at the Grand Central. Mr. Rawling is chairman of the Committee of Laws of Subordinates which position he has filled for the past 15 or 16 years in the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows, he will visit Otonabee Lodge this evening when no doubt he will receive a cordial welcome.

Sentenced.

Charles and Clara Reynolds, the persons who were arraigned on a charge of burglary and theft by Mr. A. A. Goodfellow, of Frazerville, and who were committed for trial by the Police Magistrate, were tried at the Judge's Criminal Court on Saturday afternoon. Mr. R. E. Wood, the County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution. The witnesses who were examined in the morning were re-examined, and the prisoner, Charles Reynolds, told the same story. His Honor observed that he did not believe the story. Charles then begged off very hard, stating that he was willing to go to work and earn an honest living. His Honor commended so worthy a resolution, and he would see that it was carried into effect. If he let them go they would probably go off and burglarize some other place. His Honor would like to see Charles get to work, and would give him an opportunity to do so; only, His Honor remarked, he would get nothing for it. He would, however, get well taken care of, and he would get lots of food. He would sentence him to be imprisoned in the Penitentiary for one year. Clara Reynolds was sentenced to one year in the Reformatory.

Incendiaries.

On Sunday evening Mr. W. A. Dixon was walking down the east side of Water street. It was nine o'clock or thereabouts. When opposite Dr. Boucher's residence he observed two men gesticulating in an excited manner. It was quite dark where he stood, and as he was unobserved by them he stopped to see what would happen. In a few minutes they ceased to paw the air and assumed the appearance of making a secret arrangement of some sort. They then moved on and got over the fence enclosing the George Street Methodist church grounds. Mr. Dixon cautiously followed and lay down at the outside of the fence. He heard a conversation being carried on. One said: "What about Morrows?" to which the other replied, "I don't care a d——n about Morrow's; if you don't come on I'll fire it myself." Mr. Dixon then concluded that they were plotting to set fire to the church or sheds and that the fear of setting afire Mr. Bernard Morrow's residence, which is adjoining the grounds, alone deterred them. He lay in his position for some time, but hearing no more got up and went around to the other side of the church. When he did so he found the front gate open. He telephoned from Dr. Boucher's for Capt. Cooper, who arrived with P. C. Adams a short time after. A watch was kept on the premises all night, but nothing further was discovered.

THE LATE MRS. SAWERS.

A Tribute to Her Memory—Her Good Qualities Extolled.

On Sunday evening in St. Paul's Church the Rev. Mr. Torrance took as a text for his sermon Ezekiel 16 and 18:—

"Son of man, behold! I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes with a stroke; yet neither shalt thou mourn or weep, neither shall thy tears run down. So I spake to the people in the morning; and at evening my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded."

Life, he said, was but a vapor seen for a little time and then vanishing away. The simile which the Apostle here used set forth in a striking way the mystery as well as the transitory character of human life. This life of ours had in the very nature of it not only the evanescence, but the mystery of the clouds. It was shrouded in darkness, and its forms and characters were no less fantastic. This life was inexplicable. The wicked were seen to prosper, while the righteous were in poverty.

An apparently useless life was prolonged while a life of worth was cut off in the prime and vigor of youth. Such things seen within the eye of sense were not explainable; but some light was thrown upon such circumstances by the Holy word.

His subject to-night referred to a great domestic trial; that of Ezekiel lamenting for the fate of Jerusalem; but the climax of his grief was not reached till his wife, the desire of his eyes, was taken away. Seldom did trials come alone. One trouble came almost always followed by trials more bitter.

And yet these griefs and sorrows had their value. What explanation he would offer now must necessarily be partial for on this earth we must needs, but see through a glass darkly.

First—such a dispensation might be intended for the good of the one who is taken. To the Christian there was all to gain by departing this life. The trials and affections of the present life were left behind and the child of God was raised to a state of supernal happiness. No trouble, sorrow and disappointment entered that blissful haven of rest.

Second—Such a dispensation is that which his text referred to may be intended to bring the bereaved ones near to Himself. A life of unbroken prosperity was one which did not build up our spiritual nature. Unbroken prosperity was more to be dreaded than the severest earthly trials. It was Paul's long and severe discipline that enabled him to rise above circumstances and to bear prosperity and adversity with an even balance. The afflictive dispensation had its place.

Third—Such a dispensation of Providence as referred to in the text might be intended to warn the world. The death of Ezekiel's wife foretold the destruction of Jerusalem. Human life hung a thread so brittle that it might any moment be severed in twain. It behooved all to consider there ways and to see that they are prepared to go when called.

He then referred to the death of the late Mrs. Sawers, one who was a member of his church and well known and respected throughout the community. The removal by death of a young mother was a sad thing, but the circumstances under which their sister departed life was still sadder. One morning she started out in the enjoyment of health, with the prospect before her of a long and useful life; in the evening she was brought home helpless and with her body mangled with that dreadful stroke. For eight long weeks youth and health struggled against death, but at last her little children and her bereaved husband were left to mourn her loss. Two qualities she possessed which would well become all who would wear them—kindness of heart and true unselfishness. These were both God-like qualities. Kindness of heart meant forgiveness, and forgiveness was what Christ especially enjoined; and also unselfishness was out the same as that law which Christ laid down, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Possessing these qualities men were richer than those possessing the wealth of the Indies.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table. To him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill, for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouthed crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear or contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gent's Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's, George street.

A PREACHER'S OPINION.

What the Rev. I. Tovell Says About Lawlessness.

On Sunday evening at the George Street Methodist Church the Rev. I. Tovell spoke, at the close of the sermon, of the recent window breaking. He said that those who took part in this temperance movement were very often misunderstood. They were simply seeking the moral as well as the temporal welfare of those who were injured by strong drink.

He referred to the matter of the breaking of a window in Mr. Flavelle's store, stating that the darkness had been chosen because the deed was so despicable. No one but a man of low character would do such a thing as was done. Society in general had quietly credited the act to those associated with, or those supporting, the liquor traffic, and society had put it down that those engaged in the liquor traffic had smiled at the doing of it. If he were a hotel keeper claiming the respect of the public, in the interests of the liquor traffic he would place in the public press a strong condemnation of such an act over his own signature. He would manfully fight the battle at the polls and if defeated there he would accept his defeat in a manly way.

Those men who resorted to such lawlessness as barking trees or smashing windows with the hope thereby to stop the progress of this movement were but deceiving themselves, for everything of that nature but spurred the temperance people to greater effort. The men who did such mean, dark dastardly acts classed themselves immediately with those who cried, "Give us Barrabas and crucify Christ." Give us drunkenness and let sobriety be disloyal.

He commended the local papers for the stand they took on this matter; especially the REVIEW, which came out with an editorial the same day strongly condemning the act. If he remembered right the REVIEW rather took a stand against the Scott Act; and yet when it came to an open breaking of the peace the REVIEW was the first to appear with a strong and decided protest against any such villainous conduct. He greatly appreciated such a stand and he thought all right thinking people would do so too.

BURGLARS.

Several Private Houses Entered—Not Much Booty.

On Saturday night several private houses were entered between the hours of one and two o'clock on Sunday morning.

It would seem that those who broke into the houses commenced in the south part of the town and worked north. Mr. E. K. Ostrom's house, Charlotte street, was entered through a cellar window. The housebreakers stuffed themselves with fruit and pastry and departed apparently satisfied.

Mr. James Stenson's house, Reid street, was entered some time after 12 o'clock. The visitors pried open the south cellar window and ate half a loaf of bread. They emerged again, went around to the north side of the house, effected an entrance to the fruit cellar, and again regaled themselves.

Mrs. Gilmour's house was the next attacked. After rumaging around the cellar, a window of which they entered, they ventured to the second flat. The rooms were ramsacked pretty thoroughly but fortunately nothing was got. A quantity of valuable silverware which was put away in a sideboard seemed to escape their search for it was left untouched.

Mr. Errett was next visited. They tried to get into the cellar but were unable to do so. Then they tried the back kitchen way. They got in there but no further. Then they brought a ladder into use and tried to effect an entrance by an upper window but the ladder was not long enough.

Mr. Smith, Head Master of the Public Schools, lost a watch which, evidently the same persons, found in a secretary downstairs in his house. After prying the parlor window open, carefully removing the flower pots, and entering, they rummaged around with the above result. After this one of them went upstairs, but Mr. Tully, who is staying at Mr. Smith's, hearing a noise lit a match and scared the man off. As he departed he avenged himself on Mr. Tully by appropriating his hat and gloves.

These housebreakers are evidently amateur burglars. A professional would not act on so unmatured plans. If they were caught and well trounced by some householder they would probably desist.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who antici ate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

THE PROPELLER DOMINION SAFE.

The Delayed Propeller Passes Sault Ste. Marie Last Evening.

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—It was reported yesterday that the Canadian propeller Dominion, which left Port Arthur on Monday last, with ten or fifteen passengers, had gone down in Lake Superior with all on board, but a later despatch says the Dominion passed Sault Ste. Marie, coming down last evening. The wreckage floating about near Whitefish Point is probably that of the schooner Eureka. The Eureka was formerly towed by the steamer Glasgow, and it is presumed that the life preserver marked Glasgow was on board the Eureka. No word has yet been received of the crew of the last named vessel.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

Brains Gets the best of Brute Force.—A Robber Captured.

The Deseronto Tribune tells a remarkable story which is confirmed by like reports in the Napanee papers. It is in effect as follows: Chas. Gibson, aged 16 years, of Madoc, who has been working all summer with Jos. Murphy, of the Tyendinaga reserve, was in Napanee on business on Saturday. He met one Thos. Reynolds and they were together a considerable time. When Gibson started for home, Reynolds accompanied him. They chose the railway track as their nearest route and when some distance from town, Reynolds, who knew that the lad had money, asked for some and was refused. Reynolds insisted, then threatened and finally drew a knife and threatened to cut his throat unless he gave up his cash. They were in a lonely place and thinking Reynolds might mean business, Gibson surrendered his pile, some $35, when he was released. He took his loss pleasantly and finally induced his assailant to accompany him to Deseronto, when they had dinner together. Gibson watched his chance, gave information, and had Reynolds arrested. The culprit was not captured until after a long chase, when he took refuge in a marsh, but was brought out by Mr. Patten's dog. Reynolds, alias Henry, has since been sentenced by Judge Wilkison to five years in the Kingston Penitentiary.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Horrible Death.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 25.—This morning Rosa the two year old daughter of Henry Deinbrock, a saloon-keeper, met with a horrible death, being almost eaten alive by a bear in the yard of a neighbor. The child ventured too near the brute, which knocked her down and then commenced devouring her. The body was horribly mutiliated before it could be rescued.

A Landslide in the Rockies.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 25.—Last week a landslide occurred in the Rocky Mountains near Ashcroft, on the Canadian Pacific line, while a passenger train was passing over it. Air brakes were applied and the train stopped in time to prevent a serious accident. The engine left the road and the engineer was scalded. Fifty feet of road went away.

To Work Night and Day.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 25.—It is intended to work night and day on the Themsford section of the Canadian Pacific Railway extension, the electric light apparatus having been secured for the purpose.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

THE CZAR'S THANKS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—The Czar and Czarina, yesterday, after the unveiling of the monument in memory of the Russo-Turkish war, attended the lunch given by the officers of the army. The Czar, in proposing the toast to the officers, said: "In drinking to you, permit me to wish you success and the full enjoyment of health in the future. I thank you for the hardships you underwent in the war between Russia and Turkey, and I express these thanks in the name of him who is no longer among us. Once more I thank you."

TRYING TO HEAL THE BREACH.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Mr. John Bright, Mr. Gladstone and the Earl of Rosebery have written letters during the past week on the subject of healing the breach in the Liberal party. The correspondence is marked by the most conciliatory spirit, and steps have been taken to give practical effect to the sentiments expressed. It is the first time since the breach occurred that there has been any reasonable prospect that the two sections of the party would unite.

A RECORDER TAKEN TO TASK.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Recorder of Cork, in dealing with an ejectment case, made severe strictures upon the National League and the moonlighters. Mr. Tanner, the Nationalist member for Cork, at a meeting held subsequently, took the Recorder to task for his remarks and declared there were men who would show that official that he could not with impunity malign the Irish character.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Subscriptions to the guarantee fund for the Paris International Exposition of 1889 have exceeded all expectations. The amount was originally fixed at 18,000,000 francs, but there have already been subscribed 22,000,000 francs, the subscribers including all classes, showing that there is widespread and patriotic interest in the enterprise.

A SWORD OF HONOR.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The Royalists of Vevay, France, have subscribed 22,000 francs to purchase a sword of honor for the Comte de Paris.

AT CABUL.

CABUL, Oct. 25.—The Ameer is entertaining Colonel Ridgeway of the Afghan frontier commission.

AGAINST BOYCOTTING.

CORK, Oct. 25. The Lord Lieutenant of Cork county has signed the circular of the Irish Defence Union appealing for donations to continue the work of assisting persons who have been boycotted by the Irish National League and adherents of that organization. The circular expresses the belief of the Defence Union that boycotting will increase during the coming winter.

A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—The statue in commemoration of the Russo-Turkish war was unveiled by the Czar yesterday amid ceremonies of the most magnificent character. A brilliant gathering of notables was present. The affair presented one of the most splendid spectacles ever witnessed in Russia. The capital city was beautifully illuminated in the evening. After the ceremonies at the foot of the statue, a banquet was given at the palace, at which Russian generals who took part in the war against Turkey and many others were invited.

OVERTURES REJECTED.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Official advices from Berlin convey the impression that the German Government received M. Herbette's overtures for a concerted Franco-German anti-English policy in Egypt with coldness approaching hostility. It is reported that since M. Herbette's first interview with Count Herbert Bismarck the German ambassador at Paris communicated a formal invitation to France to join Germany in a partial disarmament. Premier de Freycinet's response was energetic and firm in the negative, but, at the same time, he gave the ambassador positive assurance that France contemplated a pacific policy

MR. GLADSTONE'S INJURY.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Mr. Gladstone telegraphs from Hawarden regarding the report that he was attacked and badly stung by wasps which he had disturbed while felling a tree, that a wasp stung him in the eyelid and he cannot see out of the eye because of the swelling. He says otherwise he is well.

A STEAMER ON FIRE.

LIVERPOOL, Oct 25.—The National steamer the Queen, from New York on Saturday, which is lying at the Alexandra Dock, is on fire. The fire is burning in the three holds. Several engines are pouring water on the flames. The steamer is gradually sinking from the weight of water.

LORD THURLOW ON HOME RULE.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Lord Thurlow, writing to a political friend, says: "Home Rule dawned too quickly upon the minds of the rural electors to enable them to appreciate the question. When the nonsense which the Tories, under the guise of patriotism and loyalty, crammed into the guileless peasantry is eradicated the voters will see through the trick and return Liberals pledged to pass Home Rule."

KING HUMBERT A REGENERATOR.

ROME, Oct. 25.—At a political banquet, yesterday, Deputy Cocapiellier, who was recently released from prison, urged the people to form themselves into dicurias and centurias, to ensure the passage of agrarian laws, which he would introduce, and to establish a National co-operative association. He predicted that King Humbert would prove the regenerator of the proletariat. A bronze medal was presented to Senor Cocapiellier.

AVERSE TO RUSSIAN OCCUPATION.

BERLIN, October 25.—It is learned from an undoubted source that Prince Bismarck is equally averse to the Russian occupation of Bulgaria and the English exit from Egypt, in accordance with French nations.

NULL AND VOID.

LONDON, October 25.—General Kaulbars has informed the Bulgarian Government by note that Russia will regard the proceedings of the Sobranie as null and void.

TO OCCUPY BULGARIA.

ATHENS, Oct. 25.—A rumor is current here that the Czar has consented to occupy Bulgaria.

WAR PREPARATIONS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 25.—War preparations continue on a heavy scale,

ANARCHY IN BULGARIA.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Figaro says it is expected M. de Giers, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, will issue a circular to the powers, declaring active measures are necessary to terminate the anarchy prevailing in Bulgaria, on the ground that it is dangerous to the peace of the Balkan States and offensive to Russia.

THE BURMESE CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—England has been suddenly awakened by the death of Gen. Macpherson, or rather by the selection of so important a person as Gen. Roberts to succeed him, to a realizing sense that the Burmese campaign is a grave and menacing operation instead of a holiday picnic. It is understood that Gen. Roberts has been given a free hand to finish the job as soon as possible, no matter what it may cost in money and lives, so that he gets back to India at the earliest moment, as the War Office authorities more than half expect an Afghan campaign in the spring.

PROPOSED ROYAL VISIT.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The Irish Times says that a report is in circulation that the Government's conciliation programme includes a visit of the Queen to Ireland in 1887. It says that the Ministry has already submitted the project to the Queen, who entertains the suggestion favorably.

LORD LANSDOWNE'S ESTATES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The tenants on the Kerry estates of the Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General of Canada, have been notified that their rents may be paid on the basis of an abatement of 20 per cent. on the November rents fixed by the Court. Lord Lansdowne has also decided in view of the prevailing low prices of live stock and agricultural products, to accept an abatement of from 30 to 35 per cent. on the ordinary agricultural rents not touched by the court.

A COUNTER-DEMONSTRATION.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Liberty and Property Defence League of London proposes to organize a counter-demonstration of genuine workmen on Lord Mayor's day if the Socialists carry out their project to hold a parade.

BELFAST ROYAL COMMISSION.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The Royal Commission which has been enquiring into the causes of the recent riots in Belfast has concluded its labours.

THE SKYE CROFTERS.

EDINBURG, Oct. 25.—The Crofters of Kilmuir, Isle of Skye, attacked a force of police who were assisting the sheriff to make evictions, and the military had to be called out. The Crofters were dispersed with bayonets. Several of them were wounded and six were arrested.

DILKE'S EFFRONTERY.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Evening News publishes the notes which Sir Charles Dilke, after his trial in connection with the Crawford case, handed to a committee of gentlemen formed for the purpose of making enquiries into the merits of the case. The committee is now at work upon its investigation, and Sir Charles Dilke has sent to it new evidence which he has recently obtained. The committee will within a few months publish the evidence taken at both trials. In response to renewed and pressing appeals, Sir Charles Dilke has finally and emphatically declined to re-enter public life until he has disproved the "gross, unjust calumonies" against him, to which object, he says, his whole life will be devoted.

LARGE SALE OF LAND.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The Skinners Company has sold 35,000 acres of land in Londonderry to 1,000 tenants, in accordance with the provisions of the Ashburton Act, on terms similar to those of the sales made by other city companies.

FROM OTTAWA VIA NEW YORK.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—With the growing interest taken in Canada, there comes a desire to obtain more reliable news of what transpires. At present there is great complaint that the information that reaches England regarding Dominion matters is so altered in New York as frequently to convey an entirely erroneous impression.

THE EGYPTIAN BUDGET.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Important information was received here to-night that the next Egyptian budget will show a considerable surplus, and that the country is solvent the first time for many years. This improved financial condition of Egypt gives great satisfaction to British politicians at the present critical time, as it will debar France from demanding another financial commission.

BELFAST POLICE.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The English Government will reorganize the police of Belfast on the Dublin model and substitute qualified justices for the present borough magistracy.

WHITE FISH.

Large Hauls Made by Point Ann Fishermen.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 25.—The Intelligencer says the catch of white fish at Point Ann is unusually large this year. Robt. McDonald is making hauls that are seldom heard of. In this season of the year, taking in 490 at one haul on Saturday. Fishermen credit their luck to the work of Messrs. Wilmot and Chas. Walkins, who have from time to time stocked the waters of the Bay of Quinte with fish. The fish caught vary in age from three to ten years. One which found its way to Levi Taylor's fish market turned the beam at 7 pounds. Last week Mr. Taylor shipped 45 barrels of fish, 20 of white fish and 22 of bullheads. He expects his shipment this week will reach 80 barrels.

ROWDYISM AT PICTON.

Brutal Attack on the Chief of Police—One Man Shot.

PICTON, Oct. 25.—Five or six roughs made a cowardly attack on Chief Constable Babbitt between twelve and one o'clock on Sunday morning, knocking him down and beating and kicking him shockingly. He drew his revolver and fired twice, the last shot taking effect in the thigh of one of the rascals named Murphy. Five of the party have been arrested. One of them named Arch. Redmond is still at large. The Chief will be confined to his bed for several days.

OBTAINING EVIDENCE.

THE Globe and correspondents whose letters appear in its columns are abusing Judge O'Connor because Hands was not convicted of causing the Sarnia dynamite outrage. In urging, as they do, that there was Hand's own confession of guilt, they miss the material point that the evidence of this confession was given by two men who swore that they had deliberately lied for the sake of gaining money. If the jury believed that they swore the truth on this point they were evidently men whose testimony was untrustworthy. If the jury believed they swore falsely on this point they certainly could not rely upon their evidence as to any other matter. On either theory a jury might hesitate to take the grave responsibility of convicting on such doubtful testimony. It is to be regretted that there should be a failure of justice for want of sufficient evidence, but it would be still worse to allow the horror and indignation felt at a dastardly crime to lead to the practice of convicting on the evidence of discredited witnesses, for then there would be a risk that innocent men might suffer. This would be a greater danger to the community than the escape of a criminal from the punishment he deserved.

We are accustomed, and with reason, to look back with pride on our national history, but we cannot deny that one foul blot on its pages is the record of Titus Oates. We would have no recurrence of such disgrace through a panic stricken desire to convict supposed criminals at any risk. If we went so far, why should we not go back to the still earlier practice of torturing suspected criminals to extort a confession.

There seems a growing tendency to sanction the employment of detectives and decoys in a very dangerous manner, which should not be tolerated. The argument that because certain classes of crime are hard to prove, therefore the evidence of such men, obtained by lying, should be considered sufficient, cannot be held good. Nor is it true that detectives of this stamp, if necessary at all, must be used as witnesses. To take a local case: we have had a less grave, though very disgraceful, outrage in our own t[illegible] If a detective, tempted by the reward[illegible]e here and wormed himself into the confidence of some man suspected of breaking Mr. Flavelle's plate glass window, and by lying to him induced him to confess, a jury might well distrust his evidence if tendered without corroboration. But it does not follow that he could not aid in obtaining a conviction. He might ascertain from the culprit that others were within sight, who, though they had not cared to inform voluntarily, would not perjure themselves if called upon to testify. He might contrive a repetition of the confession in the hearing of concealed witnesses of better character than himself. He might obtain information of the person's whereabouts so as to upset an attempted alibi. In various ways he might put the prosecution on the track of evidence not tainted as his own would be. But even to obtain a conviction it would be against public policy, dangerous to innocent men, to accept such evidence as he himself could give as being sufficient.

A man must be held innocent till he is proved guilty, and his guilt cannot safely be assumed on the testimony of one who is false. It is very desirable to bring criminals to justice, but not at the risk of inflicting injustice upon the innocent because some degraded and unscrupulous man would earn a reward. A very proper hatred of crime is carrying away some thoughtless persons, till in their zeal for justice they are taking an unsound and dangerous position in this respect, so that in the public interest a warning is necessary.

IT is asserted by the Montreal Herald now hand in glove with the Rielites, that it is insulting an honorable man to say that Mr. Turcotte has been bought by the Conservatives. Such an accusation, falsely uttered by the Rielites, is certainly an insult to the Conservatives, but we cannot see how it can be an insult to Mr. Turcotte. Being a Conservative and elected as one, Mr. Turcotte sold himself body and soul, his personal honor and his position as a representative, to the Reformers for personal gain. How he can be classed as an honorable man, or how any further treason could blacken his disgrace is quite inexplicable.

THE Rielite journals, even in Ontario, are claiming that the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec should dismiss his present advisers, because he knows they are in a minority. He does not know it, and he cannot know it officially, until the Legislature declares it. The only other constitutional reason he could have even for assuming it would be if he found that his advisers shrank from meeting the Legislature when the ordinary time comes for the transaction of the public business. In this very unlikely event he would no doubt call upon his advisers to do their duty.

From the Maritime Provinces.

Hon. Messrs. A. W. McLelan, J. G. Thompson, G. E. Foster and Thomas White, members of the Federal Cabinet, who have been absent for some time addressing immense meetings of the electors in the Maritime Provinces, returned here to-day in the best of spirits at the triumphant and popular reception they received everywhere they spoke. It was one continuous ovation all the time.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at 10 cents a week.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

STRAIGHTFORWARD.

Cornered in wilful misrepresentation, the Montreal Herald attempted to wriggle out of a humiliating position, by asking the Peterborough REVIEW whether it would repudiate the Mail or Sir John Macdonald. The answer is straightforward—as the REVIEW's utterances always are:—"Believing in the Conservative policy, we will continue, as in the past, to give it an independent support, and, as in the past, we will do so without being the mere echo of the views of Sir John Macdonald, the Mail, or any one else, but will exercise the right of forming our own judgment on public questions." How many Grit or "no party" papers dare appeal to their past record in proof of such true independence?—Orillia Packet.

WIGGINS WANTED.

Will there be a general election this autumn? This is the burning question. The Tories are reserved and the Grits are puzzled. Here is a grand chance for the immortal Wiggins. He might have more luck with a political prognostication. Let us hear from the Professor.—Montreal Star (Ind.)

SHOULD BE SUSTAINED.

Ontario leaders who resist unreasonable French-Canadian demands, such as the pardon of Riel, should be sustained by their own Province and the Dominion at large. By that course only can confederation be maintained and economical government secured.—Toronto World (Ind.)

AUGMENTED BY MOWAT.

With very much of what the Montreal Herald said, in reply to the Gazette, in its comparisons of expenditure by Quebec and Ontario, we fully concur in; but both our contemporary and the Witness fall into error when giving the cost of Administration of Justice in this Province. The Blue Book of the Assembly is not the correct data—for the reason that in Ontario the counties bear a large proportion of this cost by direct taxation, and through the policy of the present Government this item of municipal expense has been materially augmented.—Newmarket Era (Reform).

VALUE OF LIVES.

But the question still remains, why should the Province of Quebec come to the rescue of Riel? Why should Quebec do for Riel what it never would have thought of doing for anyone who is English, Irish or Scotch? Why should it say that anyone having French blood in his veins should immunities which it would not accord to any other race? Why should it overlook the murders of men and women, clergymen and laymen, and the consequence of Riel's appeals to the Indians? And what is there in Riel's case that makes his life in the estimation of the people of Quebec of so much more value than the lives of those he has sacrificed.—London Advertiser (1885).

THE DUTY PERFORMED.

The law makes treason a crime. The law has pronounced Riel guilty of that crime, and has condemned him to death. The functions of the executive are ministerial and the law commands their performance. The duties of the executive are clear and simple.—London Advertiser (1885.)

MADE HIM A MARTYR.

If, as some Ontario journals, and especially the Globe, say, the rebellion was justifiable, instead of being hanged Riel should have been liberated to resume his devil's work and cause fresh sacrifice of the best blood of the country. This same journal, which now justifies the rebels, declared after his trial that Riel deserved his sentence. It thought that Sir John would yield to the French, as he had done many times before, and it prepared to improve the occasion in Ontario. Riel was hanged and straightway the Globe made him a martyr, slaughtered for advocating the rights of the Metis!—Toronto World (Indep.)

THE QUEBEC QUESTION.

As was feared the Province has been swept by the race and religion cry of "poor Riel." Evidently a very large section of the electorate of this Province thinks that because a man belongs to the French nationality he should not be punished for his crimes no matter how grave their character.—Cowansville, Que., Observer.

LOYAL REFORMERS.

With the Race and Revenge Party English Liberals could not find it in their hearts to join hands. Most of them kept aloof from the polls, while others voted for the Conservatives, choosing the least of two evils, from their way of thinking.—Quebec Chronicle.

A TEMPORARY TRIUMPH.

"Mr. L. O. David has given expression to an idea which has found a lodgment in other minds when he talked in public of driving the English out of Canada. The man who proposed to drive the English out of Canada or even out of Montreal, will cut out for himself a big undertaking. The fact is the English have come to Montreal to stay, and stay they must and will, and with the hearty good will of all respectable French-Canadians. Demagogues and party scribblers, each seeking to outvie the other in pandering to the prejudices of the French-Canadian race, and to gain control of their action by appeals to race distinctiong, may have a temporary triumph but we are still hopeful that the better educated and more thoughtful of the French-Canadians of Montreal will give these foolish persons to understand that the two peoples are united here for many generations to come."—Montreal Herald (1885.)

MR. MOWAT REBUKED.

A Reform Opinion of His Unpatriotic Alliance.

Mr. Mowat was among those who congratulated Mr. Mercier on his victory of last Thursday. It is very singular how wilfully blind the Liberals of Ontario are to the situation in Quebec. The returns before him showed the Premier for Ontario that the English-speaking people here had gone in a body against Mr. Mercier, had invariably rejected candidates of whom the slightest suspicion was entertained that they were in accord with the Nationalists, with the result that men like Stephens and Whyte were rejected, and that Huntingdon alone stood true to its political record, Dr. Cameron being the sole representative of the English Liberals elected. There can be no more conclusive proof that Mr. Mercier won the day by appeals to national and religious prejudices, than that the English-speaking electors preferred Conservatives to his nominees. Does Mr. Mowat rejoice at the English being driven, from motives of self-preservation, into the ranks of their political opponents? Is he prepared to form an alliance with a party whose intent is to make Quebec a purely French and Catholic province? We are sure he is not. Then why encourage the Liberals of Ontario to persist in a policy that is alienating their brethren here? The Ontario Liberals had better reckon the price they have to pay to secure the assistance of the Nationalists 'to smash Sir John' before they persevere in their present policy. —Huntingdon (Que) Gleaner (Reform.)

DRIVEN ON THE ROCKS.

Wreck of a Hudson Bay Ship Near Cape Churchill.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 25.—Captain Hawkes, of the Hudson Bay Company's ship "C. A. M. Owen," arrived yesterday overland from Hudson Bay. He reports that on the voyage from London to York Factory, while doubling Cape Churchill, a hurricane arose and drove the ship on the rocks, battering her sides in. The crew of thirteen and the passengers, consisting of a missionary and his family and a doctor, escaped to the shore safely, and made their way to York Factory by boats. The crew came overland here, whence they will be shipped to England. The ship and cargo of supplies for northern parts is a total loss. The loss will, therefore, be heavy. The "C. A. M. Owen" was a new ship registered, 300 tons. While coming from York Factory the party met Colonel Gilder at Oxford House, going to Hudson Bay in company with a party of voyageurs.

The Brant Celebration.

The monument that Brantford unveiled last week to the memory of the chieftain whose name the city bears, commemorates more than the probity and prowess of a dead Indian, though notable the one and indomitable the other. Brant's name and fame are imperishable in the annals of Canada as the bronze which has been cast in his likeness; but more imperishable still is that British sense of honour and of justice which holds its bond with ignorance and weakness as sacred as with enlightenment and power, which brings double payment for the ancestral acres of barbarism in the gentle and kindly arts of civilization which recognises a hero in a subject and in an alien race. Were the bronze Brant animate and vocal, he would speak to us of these things; as it is, his silent figure is dumbly eloquent of them. Honourable to the great Indian and his people as the tribute is, it is not less honourable to the fidelity and fairmindness that made and embraced the opportunity of its erection.—Toronto Week.

A Fast Ocean Mail Service.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—The Government has sent out circulars to steamship owners asking for tenders for a fast ocean mail service. The conditions set forth are, that the contractors shall maintain a regular line of staunch and powerful steamers to perform weekly voyages between Liverpool and Quebec in summer, and between Liverpool and Halifax and Portland in winter, the steamers to make 52 voyages each way during each year. The contract is to be for ten years.

New England Mackerel Catch.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 23.—The mackerel season for 1886 has been one of the most discouraging ever known to New England fishermen. The total amount of packed at this port is only 2,000 barrels, against 80,000 in 1885, and 155,000 in 1884. The total catch of the New England fleet for 1886 was 69,000 barrels, against 310,000 in 1882 and 404,000 in 1884.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

"Does Mr. Strangfield live here?" asked Dr. Shaw, holding that it would be a little too condescending for a man of his dignity and station to appear to know so humble a fact.

"What do 'ee say?" cried Polly.

The doctor repeated his question in a loud, imperious manner.

"Ay, do he!" replied Polly, evidently astonished at his ignorance. "Are ye in want of him?"

"I wish to see him; show me in," exclaimed the little man with a frown.

The girl made way for him to pass, and for love of his frill gave him a wide passage; closed the door with turgid attention to the catch of the latch, and left the doctor planted against the wall, to escape all touch of her, while she went to announce him.

Mrs. Strangfield came hurrying out, with a wild look of sorrow in her face, and her eyes sore with weeping.

But at sight of the fine frill, and haughty mouth, and twisted forehead, and silk waistcoat, God bless her! she courtesied to the ground.

Mrs. Strangfield's courtesy made Dr. Shaw a pliable thing.

"I have the pleasure, madam, of addressing——?"

And the doctor made a bow that twisted his figure into a note of interrogation.

"My name is Mrs. Strangfield, sir. I know you to be Dr. Shaw, and may God send you have come to bring us tidings of our girl!" replied the poor mother, in her tearfullest voice.

"I am here on a very special errand—one that concerns us all closely. If your husband is visible I should be glad to see him.

"Oh yes, sir, he is in this room; pray walk in, Dr. Shaw," said Mrs. Strangfield, wondering that her tearful face should provoke no expression of concern from the doctor, and herein exactly showing herself to be the daughter's mother, for on the very previous day had not Jenny herself fallen into the same wonder over the little man's glazed manners?

He followed her into the parlor, and within a pace of the door stood to deliver his cool, collected bow to Mr. Strangfield, who half rose from his arm-chair to return the salutation.

"Good morning to you, Dr. Shaw. Pray take a chair, sir. This fine weather is very promising for the farmers, and there be talk of a grand harvest this year," said the shipwright, remaining half risen out of his chair until the doctor was seated.

Mrs. Strangfield looked at her husband with an expression of helpless, eager despair. How could he talk of the weather, how could he receive the doctor's visit so easily! Why did not he ask him at once his object in calling! Great Lord! how did he know but what the schoolmaster was come with shocking news of Jenny? But upright she sat, with her hands tightly clasped.

"I am out betimes this morning," said Dr. Shaw, with a short glance around the homely room. "But then, Mr. Strangfield, from your occupation I naturally conceived you an early riser, and my duty would not permit me to delay my visit."

"Had you come two hours ago you would have found me risen," replied Strangfield, who had gathered his forces together for this unexpected interview, and was now again wearing his hard face and speaking in his stern, deep tones.

"I am here, Mr. Strangfield, in compliance with my promise to give you all news at the earliest opportunity that should enable you—to use your own words—to sift this business of your daughter to the bottom," began the doctor, pulling out his snuff-box for no other motive than to toy with it. "Strange things come to pass in this world, which truly is much smaller than we can get to conceive it by estimate of geographical mensuration; and I apprehend," said he, with his sharp smile, "that our respected neighbors will be not a little surprised to hear of visits exchanged between Dr. Shaw and Mr. Strangfield, whose strong objections to the schoolmaster's theological opinions are tolerably well known."

Strangfield looked at him keenly under his frowning eyebrows, and appeared about to speak, but dismissed his thoughts with a wave of the hand and sank back silent.

"Oh, Dr. Shaw!" cried the mother, incapable of holding her tongue, however awed by the cold fencing between the men, "I wish that difference of religious notions was all the trouble 'twixt you and Michael, sir. Your name hath a sorrowful sound in it to my ears, God knows; and this morning hath made it more bitter than my heart well knows how to bear." And she hung her pale face to hide her tears.

"Jane!" exclaimed her husband, sternly, "there is no need for thee to put in. Dr. Shaw is here to give us some news; we can await his leisure. Keep thy tongue quiet. It's a sign of a light head to fret over the past. Whom to upbraid we know; but Dr. Shaw hath no hand in our grief."

"Madam," said the doctor, haughtily, not to be mollified by the deacon's admission—for the manner was offensive, though the words were kindly—"between you and me there should be silence in the matter of reproach. If you have to mourn over a daughter's deceit, I have to lament a son's folly. And there I stop; for the world shall judge who is the greater sufferer."

Neither husband nor wife answered him.

"Mr. Strangfield," he continued, turning quickly upon the deacon, with the sudden contrite air of a man who feels that he is wasting valuable time, "I have left my home early this morning expressly to bring you two items of news, one of which should properly be delivered by me only. First, as to my son's disappearance:

"There came a man to my house late last night to inquire after me. He was a man belonging to the preventive service, and he said, being at an ale house in the town not two hours before, there were persons there talking over the disappearance of Dr. Shaw's son, and likewise the impressment of three men out of Greystone on that night or thereabouts, as it is concluded, of my son's going. Now, it is very exactly known that three men were impressed; for no other man is missing, unless it be my son. This coast guard sat considering what he had heard, and, taking particular note of the conjectures concerning my son thrown out by the gossips, he came round to my house (having finished his glass, and being off duty for the night) and asked me if it were true that I had a son who was missing. I replied that I had, and wondered he should not know it, for I conceived it was every man's talk in this district. However, I was sure the matter was news to him.

"Now, he said that, having learned that only three men were kidnapped, and being satisfied upon this point from what the fellows in the room told him, his reason for calling upon me was to state that on that night, when the press gang was ashore, he was on duty with another man at the hut that stands to the south, upon the cliff near my house, and at the head of the pass that leads to the sands. It was a windy night, he said, and his mate had gone half a mile along the cliff to look at that curve of sand where some smuggling was done last Christmas, as you may remember, sir. There was moonlight abroad, and, riding clear of the breakers, though mightily tossed by the inshore seas, was a man-of-war's boat, which my man, about whom I am telling you, knew to belong to a brig of war that had that morning dropped anchor off the town.

"Now, while he stood in the shelter of his hut, he saw a crowd of the boat's crew coming along through the dust, and among them walked three prisoners, and on the shoulders of two of them a fourth man was borne, bound like the others, but plainly insensible. The preventive man stood forth, and some of the men-of-war's men called a greeting to him as they passed. Indeed, he was as near to them as yonder window is to me, and could not, therefore, mistake what he beheld. Most solemnly does he swear that there were four men pinioned, and not three, as the town's gossip would show, and that of these four, who were clearly kidnapped men, as he might judge, one was carried, and though a confusion of shadow was cast upon them all by the hurrying of clouds over the moon, and the unequal and swerving steps of the men, yet is he positive that the carried man was young, and such description does he give me of him as leaves me in no doubt that the figure on the men's shoulders was my son."

He told the story in an equable voice, and on pausing extracted a pinch of snuff from his box, but the quiver of his nostrils proclaimed a hard struggle with emotion, and it was easy to see that his application to his snuff box was a stratagem to drop his eyes, and an excuse to hold his peace for a moment.

WHY will you cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. For sale by Ormond & Walsh.

Two German spies have been arrested in France, their occupation being the sending of letters and plans descriptive of French forts and routes the German Government, for which they were paid at the very moderate rate of a sovereign a letter.

SHILOH'S Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by Ormond & Walsh.

The North-West Council has decided to appoint a committee of elected members to devise a scheme for dividing the territory into provinces and securing responsible government at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Strachan Bethune has been presented by the Bishop of Montreal, on behalf of the clergy and laity of the diocese, with a valuable tea and coffee service, in recognition of his zealous services for thirty-five years as chancellor of the diocese.

Though numerous causes may operate to turn the hair gray, all that is needed to restore the natural color is Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer. For more than twenty years its sales have been enormous, but we have yet to learn of its first failure.

The British despatch boat Inconstant, which went ashore at Gallipoli, has been refloated. She sustained no damage. When the accident occurred, the vessel was on her way from Constantinople to Salonica, whence she was to convey to Constantinople Sir William White, the new British Minister to Turkey.

An elastic step, buoyant spirits, and clear complexion, are the results of pure blood. The possessor of healthy blood enjoys a clearness of perception, impossible when the blood is heavy with impurities. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and vitalizer.

The parade of the Philadelphia Knights of Labor on Saturday night, in honor of the delegates from that city to the Richmond convention, who returned Saturday evening was, without exception, the great demonstration of the kind ever seen in Philadelphia. It is estimated that 30,000 men were in line.

A Fishing Vessel Detained.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 25.—At Shelburne yesterday Capt. Quigley detained the Eleazer Boynton, of Gloucester, for landing men without reporting, also for not having clearance papers from his last port. Capt. Quigley awaits instructions from Ottawa.

Seizure of Partridges.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 25.—Another lot of partridges were seized here en route to the United States. One young man in endeavoring to get the game across, enclosed the birds in a case and labelled it "glass." The officers were too smart to let the thing pass.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

Sisters of Charity

Charity, attached to St. Mary's Infant Asylum, Dorchester, Mass., certify to the inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the treatment of sore eyes and skin diseases, among the many unfortunate children under their care. Mrs. S. D. Bodwell, Wilmington, Mass., writes concerning the treatment of her daughter, who was troubled with sore eyes, as follows: "I gave Ayer's Sarsaparilla to

My Little Girl,

and must say that she never took anything that helped her so much. I think her eyes never looked so well, as now, since they were affected, and her general health is improving every day. She has taken but half a bottle." A. J. Simpson, 147 East Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "My weak eyes were made strong by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I have been troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief, until I commenced using

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers."

may be "fairest and foremost of the train that wait on man's most dignified and happiest state," but the dignity and happiness of man cannot long endure without the health that may be obtained in a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A. W. Parker, lumber dealer, 209 Bleury street, Montreal, Que., writes: "After being troubled with Dyspepsia for a year, and with Salt Rheum

For a Number of Years,

I was cured of both diseases by using six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." M. G. Traine, Duxbury, Mass., writes: "I have found Ayer's Sarsaparilla an efficacious remedy for bilious troubles and Dyspepsia." Henry Cobb, 41 Russell st., Charlestown, Mass., writes: "I was completely cured of Dyspepsia, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." Wm. Lee, Joppa, Md., writes: "I have tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it has done me so much good that I shall always regard it as the best of blood purifiers." Eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla in all cases requiring a powerful alterative treatment.

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in moving up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

All Paid.

Mr. J. J. Hall has paid the whole of the license refunds, the last to receive their dues being some hotel keepers from Victoria county.

Hunting.

His Honor Judge Weller and Messrs. H. T. Strickland, H. Calcutt, J. Burnham and J. Z. Rogers have gone for a week's hunting near Rice Lake.

Window Breaking.

An evening or two ago a stone was thrown through an upper window in Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's drug store, breaking two large panes of glass.

Personal.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, barrister, has resumed the practice of his profession.

Mr. G. R. Van Norman, jr., travelling freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is in town.

About the Fines.

Mayor Stevenson and Councillor Moore left town for Ottawa on Monday evening, for the purpose of placing before the Government the position of Peterborough with regard to Scott Act fines, as being a separate town apart from the county.

A March Out.

On Monday evening the companies of the City Battalion met for drill. Col. Villiers, who came to inspect the armoury during the day, was present. After going through the battalion movements, Lieut.-Colonel Rogers ordered a march out. The battalion headed by the band marched down George street as far as Charlotte street, where they turned and marched back to the drill shed.

Illumination.

Preparations are being made to light up the Riverside Park on a grand scale. Three electric lights are to be placed in it, the poles for the lamps being now up. When winter comes the sight of a field full of glittering diamonds sparkling under the lamps, with flannel costumed tobogganers dashing down the slide, will be worth seeing. Tobogganing was quite popular last winter. No doubt it will be equally popular during the coming one.

A Real Snake Story.

Mr. T. J. Welsh brought into the REVIEW office this morning the gizzard of a chicken from an opening in which the head of a small copper colored snake protruded. Mr. Welsh says that on Friday night the fowl was killed, and that on being dressed the domestic was startled to find the reptile make its appearance when she opened the gizzard. It was found, however, to be quite dead, though possessing a life-like appearance. Mr. Robt. Hamilton, sr., who is something of a virtuoso, has come into possession of it. He will have it preserved as it is.

Professional Visit.

Dr. Potts will be in Peterborough on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 26th, 27th and 28th, October inst., at the Croft House. Private parlor. There he will be pleased to meet his patients who are under treatment, and invites all who are afflicted with chronic troubles, deseases of the Eye and Ear, deformities such as Clubfoot, stiff joints, and Spinal disease, to consult him. The success Dr. Potts is having all over his route, in the counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria, is sufficient evidence that he understands his profession, and puzzles the local doctors, who are exhibiting very strong ill-feelings against him. The ill-will of the doctors does not prevent the afflicted from seeking relief. Dr. Potts is able to furnish references to a large number of patients he has cured, many of whom were pronounced incurable by the family doctor. All should avail themselves of the present opportunity. Hereafter Dr. Potts will visit Peterborough professionally every two months instead of every month. This change is forced upon him in consequence of the increase of professional work. See advertisement in another column.—Ads.

Peterborough Vocal Society.

In a bright and pushing town like Peterborough, of nearly 10,000 inhabitants, there would seem to be room for a large and flourishing Vocal Society. Many lovers of music have expressed their willingness to join if one were formed. I therefore purpose holding a meeting for organization, at my class room above China Hall, on Tuesday, November 2nd, at 8 o'clock p. m., when I hope all interested will be present. The Society will be formed with two branches, one for singers of some experience and vocal ability, the other branch for those who need or desire rhudimentary training. Watch for circulars to be issued in a few days giving full information, as to method of teaching, etc. Also read carefully the testimonials from Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Julius Benedict, Sir John Goss, Sir Geo. Macfarran, and other musical celebrities. L. SEWARD, Organist and Choirmaster of St. John's Church, Peterborough. The well-known composer, Sir Arthur Sullivan, says:—"I will draw the attention of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh, to your admirable invention for teaching, at the earliest opportunity."

MORE BURGLARIES.

Ashburnham Visited—What Befell an "Early Bird."

Burglaries have come to be such common events in Peterborough during the last week that people look around in the mornings to see who was "gone through" during the night.

On Monday night Ashburnham had its share of attention. This morning when Mr. Calcutt got up it was found that a trunk which had been left at the door was carried off. The trunk was found a short distance off but none of its contents were disturbed, there not being anything in it apparently of interest to the rifiers.

Mr. J. J. Lundy's residence was also visited. The entrance was gained as usual, through the cellar. The door was pried open and propped back by a chair, so as to facilitate an escape should a hurried flight be necessary. A lamp was also lighted to show them the way upstairs. There was considerable rummaging done. Mr. Lundy's room was entered, but so quietly that he heard not a sound. His trousers were taken out of the room as far as the parlor, where the contents of the pockets were examined. A bunch of keys was all they contained, and, like a disgusted fisherman throwing back the small fry, Mr. Burglar quietly replaced the keys. In their hurry out of the room they missed Mr. Lundy's vest, which contained a valuable gold watch and chain. In other rooms near, also, there was a quantity of jewelry lying on the dressing cases, which they also missed. Mr. Lundy thinks that whoever the prowlers were they were frightened off by an indisposed lady who got up several times during the night. As the entrance was gained through the furnace cellar, no lunch was partaken of, as in the case of other houses visited.

The chief object of these burglars, it appears, is to get something to eat. To satisfy their ravenous appetites, and to prevent nervous people from getting frightened, it is suggested that the wonderful Gough boil his pumpkins, make pumpkin pie, invite the burglars to a feast, and thus settle the whole matter.

There were no burglaries reported in town during the night. Capt. Cooper and Officers Pidgeon and Adams were on patrol duty all night. At about three o'clock this morning Capt. Cooper observed an object moving along the sidewalk in the dark with the utmost discretion. He watched it for a time and then walked up to it and suddenly challenged it. Its hands went up in an instant, but it wasn't a burglar. It was a benedict nearing his home. He moved along with the suspicious slowness and quietness so as not to incur a curtain lecture.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table. To him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouthed crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear or contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gent's Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's, George street.

Some Miraculous Results

Have followed the use of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic." It has saved many from becoming bald, and has produced good heads of hair on bald heads where the roots arenot all gone. It has relieved hundreds of per son, from dandruff, and restored crops of gray and faded hair to their original color. A. Dorenwend, sole manufacturer. For sale everywhere. J. D. Tully, agent for Peterboough.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

Scott Act Fines.

Mayor Stevenson and Councillor Moore have returned from Ottawa, where they interviewed Sir John and the Hon. Mr. White on the subject of Scott Act fines. The peculiar position of the town in relation to the county was explained, and the assurance was given that if no legal difficulties prevented it the town would get its due share of the fines. It was explained, however, that the Government had to conform with the provisions of the Act.

Killing a Burglar.

A resident of the north ward told the story of his experience with a burglar on Tuesday night to a lot of eager listeners this morning. According to his story, which there is no reason for doubting, he heard a grating noise at about two o'clock this morning. He got up stealthily from his bed, picked up a hammer which was in the hall, and listened intently again. In a few moments he heard the grating noise continue. He then knew that someone was trying to get into the house by the parlor window. He glided noiselessly into the parlor and stood by the window with the hammer uplifted. Just as the person outside had succeded in getting his head and shoulders inside the window the hammer came down with terrific force. The window came down on the body and held it where it was, giving the now affrighted householder an opportunity of seeing what a deed he had done. Upon examination he found the body of the burglar quite lifeless. The cold prespiration began to ooze out all over his face when he woke and found himself comfortably in bed, and heard a rat trying to knaw out a winter home for himself in the wall next to him.

McCARTHY.

A WOODEN GOD.

Strange Freak of a Religious Fanatic at Watergury, Conn.

WATERBURY, Con., October 23.—Elisha Gedney, a wealthy farmer and an enthusiastic Second Adventist, at Middlebury, is setting the town agog by the erection of a wooden god for worship. The image has been carefully carved, is about four feet high, and built after the general plan of a mummy. The neighbors noticed him at work for some months on the strange looking figure and proposed he must be building a scarecrow which was to last for ages. The old man is sane on every other subjects and says he first conceived the idea of this graven image while reading the account of David in the lion's den. He insists that the image is Daniel. The world, he says, will end with the first indications of the image's decay, which will begin at the toes. Gedney believes strongly in faith cures and in the near approach of the world's end.

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS.

Barbarous Cruelties of the King of Ugunda to Converted Natives.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Details have been received of the massacre of native Christians of Ugunda, Africa, by the order of King Mwanga. The massacre began in June, and was directly due to the refusal of a Chrirtian lad, acting as the King's page, to commit an abominable crime. Many Christians were tortured, multilated and speared, and 32 were burned alive together. The appeals of the missionaries for a cessation of the atrocities were unavailing. The fate of these unfortunates did not serve to frighten the candidates for baptism, and within a week after the massacre many natives were baptized at their own desire. Leaflets, containing extracts from the Scriptures, prayers and hymns in the Ugunda language are freely bought by the people, although their possession involves the danger of punishment. The diary of Bishop Hannington, who was put to death by the King, will soon be published in London. It is a thrilling and pathetic narrative of his experiences in Ugunda up to the day of his death.

EXTENSIVE TRAIN ROBBERY.

An Express Messenger Gagged, and Over $[illegible] Taken.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. [illegible]—The Adams Express car attached to passenger train No. 3 on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, which left this city at 8.25 last night, was robbed of over $50,000 in cash between here and Pacific, Mo. Before the train left this city a man, giving the name of Cummings, presented letters to Express Messenger Forthingham, purporting to be signed by officers of the company, stating that Cummings was about to take a "run" on the line, and asking Frothingham to give him points. When near Merrimac the stranger overpowered the messenger and gagged and bound him to the safe, after which he coolly rifled the car. At Merrimac the robber left the train. The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Pacific. The robber is imperfectly described as a tall, dark man of prepossessing appearance, dressed in black, with very large hands and feet. As a singular coincidence, he gave the name of Jim Cummings, the only member of the once celebrated James gang, who has never been accounted for.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEDDING.—Tuesday was an eventful day in Ennismore. At the Parish Church this morning, Miss Katie Williams one of Peterborough's loveliest daughters was married to Mr. David Crough, son of the popular Reeve of Ennismore, Wm. Crough, Esq. The bride is a daughter of Angus Williams Esq. one of our most estimated citizens. She is highly accomplished, having made a complete course of studies at the Convent of Notre Dame at Williamstown. Her cousin the Rev. Father Gauthier was until the other day Paris Priest of Williamstown. He is one of the most prominent clergyman in the Catholic Church of Ontario having been quite recently appointed by h s Lordship Bishop Cleary a Dean of the Diocese of Kingstown and Parish Priest of Brockville. The bride came to Ennismore a few years ago at the request of the Rev. Father Keilty and organized a choir in his church. She was not long in Ennismore until she won her way to all hearts by her kindness, cheerfulness and affability. The choir she organized is one of the best in Central Ontario. At her wedding on Tuesday they sang several beautiful selections, and one of her pupils, Miss Annie Crough, presided at the organ in a most creditable manner The church was tastefully decorated and everything passed off agreeably. A recherche déjeuner was provided in Peterborough at the residence of Mrs. Angus Williams and thus ended a historic day for Ennismore. We must not forget to add that the groom is the most popular young gentleman in Ennismore. The young couple begin life without a cloud upon their sky. May no marius ever sit around the ruins of a promise so fair.

SUDDEN DEATH.—One of the old landmarks of Ennismore was taken from us on Tuesday. Mr. Humphrey O'Dowd, though an old man and not very robust, was still strong enough to go into the woods to chop firewood. He did so on Tuesday morning, and not returning, he was searched for and was discovered by lantern light lying dead, as is supposed from heart disease. He was one of the oldest settlers, and had been in business for many years. Latterly he has been acting as postmaster. He was generally respected by his neighbors. He leaves a widow, but no children. Dr. Kincaid was informed, as coroner, but did not consider it necessary to hold an inquest.

Sign of Progression.

Messrs. Porter Bros., the carriage makers, are determined not only to have the best materials in the market to build their celebrated buggies, cutters, waggons, etc., from, but they make it a point to secure none but first-class mechanics to work up the material. The latest addition to Porter Bros'. already competent paint shop staff is Mr. R. M. Martin, formerly surface and finish painter in the large factory of Messrs. Wm. Grey & Sons, Chatham, Ont. Mr. Martin comes highly recommended, and no doubt will prove himself of much value to the painting department of Messrs. Porter Bros'. establishment.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

JUBILEE THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Queen has decided that the thanksgiving service in honor of her jubilee shall be held on June 20, in Westminster Abbey, and not in St. Paul's Cathedral, as had been generally anticipated. There is much dissatisfaction on account of the change.

MR. GLADSTONE'S PART.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Mr. Gladstone, in response to a request to contribute to a book defining the Liberal programme, says: "My friends forget my years. I hold on to politics in the hope of possibly helping to settle the Irish question. But the general operations of the party and particular subjects I am obliged and intend to leave to the hands of others."

DYNAMITE FOUND.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A despatch from Angers says dynamite cartridges have been found at the doors of the hotels there in which the members of a Catholic congress are staying. One of the cartridge exploded, but did very slight damage.

CONQUEST INVISLABLE.

ROME, Oct. 26.—The municipal authorities of Rome have voted an order-of-the-day expressing affection and loyality for King Humbert, in view of his recent reaffirmation that the nation's conquest of Rome was inviolable.

THE BALTIC CANAL.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Building Committee of the Baltic canal calculates that it will employ 15,000 workmen. Builders at Hamburg and Bremen are enlarging the old docks and constructing new ones. Still, however, there is a continuous outcry of distress from workingmen, who claim that there condition is the result of an augmented tariff.

INVASION BY PONDOS.

CAPETOWN, Oct. 26.—Ten thousand Pondos have invaded Xesibeland, stealing cattle and burning kraals. Volunteers are being raised to drive back the invaders. The situation is critical owing to the possibility of other tribes joining the Pondos should the latter be permitted to continue their raids unopposed.

CAPITAL FOR BREWING.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The Dublin Grocers' Vintners' Society at a meeting to-day adopted a resolution praying the new Guinness Company to allot an equitable proportion of its shares to Irish applicants. The Bank of Ireland, on behalf of its customers, has applied for £600,000 worth of shares, and three Dublin stock brokers £500,000 worth each. It is now believed that the capital will be subscribed twenty fold. The Parnellites exultingly point to this as proof that capitalists have ample confidence in Ireland.

VON BEUST.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The German papers, in their articles on the late Count Von Beust, make hostile criticisms and express the hope that the spirit and aims of his life have vanished with him forever from the pages of German history.

THE WORKINGMAN'S CRY.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The building committee of the Baltic Canal calculate that they will employ 15,000 workmen. The builders at Hamburg and Breman are enlarging the old docks and constructing new ones. There is still, however, a continuous outcry of distress from the workingmen, who claim that their condition is the result of the augmented tariff.

LORNE COMPLIMENTS STANLEY.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Mr. Henry M. Stanley delivered a lecture at Torquay last evening. The Marquis of Lorne, who presided, in moving a vote of thanks, said: "Mr. Stanley has told the story of his exploits in so fascinating a manner that it makes the people of the rising generation desire to invest all their spare cash to open up and civilize Africa."

A GRAIN BLOCKADE.

VIENNA, Oct. 28.—There is a blockade in the wheat trade, the Danube being so low that shipments are retarded. In Pesth over one million hundredweight of grain is awaiting shipment. In the above city sixty barges laden with wheat are waiting for high water.

GERMANY AND ENGLAND.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The North German Gazette in an editorial says: "Germany has no cause to complain of England's colonial policy. The few questions under discussion between the two countries will shortly be settled desirably and justly to the interests of both."

THE "THUNDERER'S" HOPE.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Times hopes that Lord Iddesleigh, the foreign secretary, will tell M. Waddington, the French ambassador, plainly and firmly that England will judge for herself when her task in Egypt is finished.

REDUCTIONS IN RENTS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 26.—A number of Limerick tenants are paying their rents. Some have been granted large reductions. In one case a rent has been reduced from £333 to £200 and in another from £212 to £140.

BOYCOTTING BEER.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The French boycott on German beer has elicited strong comments from the press of Germany, especially as it was instituted in Gen. Boulanger's Club. The matter tends to embitter the national feeling against France.

CLANRICARDE AND HIS TENANTS.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Marquis of Clanricarde denies that he refused to abate the rents of his tenants. He says he has neither promised nor refused to abate them, because he is waiting for the tenants to pay two or three years' arrears of rent. He cordially sympathizes with his tenants, and desires to meet them in a friendly spirit, and has therefore ordered, in numerous cases where rent has already been reduced by the Land Court, an abatement of 20 per cent. to all tenants who would honestly settle their accounts at a given date.

IN THE TOILS.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Arthur Mereton, alias the Rev. Theodore Keating, was arraigned in Dublin yesterday upon charges of obtaining money under false pretences, and of neglecting to report himself to the police at stated times under the terms of his ticket-of-leave. Dr. Moffatt, rector of Miletown Church, testified to frauds practised upon himself and his congregation by Keating, and told of the discoveries he made at Worcester, while investigating the record of the prisoner at that place. Keating repeatedly interrupted the witness, warning him against the awful consequences of telling lies, and finally became so vehement in his utterances that he was silenced by the court officers. At the conclusion of Dr. Moffatt's testimony Keating was remanded.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1886.

THE HON. ALEX. MACKENZIE.

MANY Conservative journalists and speakers have expressed the respect they feel for the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, especially in consideration of his loyal and honest refusal to degrade himself and his country by advocating the cause of murder and rebellion. With utter want of logic or common sense Reformers are claiming that in consequence of this respect for Mr Mackenzie the Conservative party should not allow him to be opposed as a candidate for the Dominion House of Commons.

One of the absurdities of this claim is the naive confession that these Reformers are absolutely unable to conceive that a political opponent may be opposed on account of his policy and yet be avowedly respected. They not unnaturally measure Conservatives by themselves, and cannot understand how we can differ in opinion from any one without calling him a thief or a murderer after the approved Reform plan.

Another characteristic absurdity of the claim made on behalf of Mr. Mackenzie is the assumption that Conservative candidates are placed in the field by the party, not by the constituency. The Conservative electors of East York may have great respect, admiration and sympathy for Mr. Mackenzie, but they may not like his policy, and in sending a representative to Parliament to administer their affairs they very logically prefer to send one who will help to administer them as they wish, not as they think would be injurious. For example Mr. Mackenzie is a staunch opponent of the National Policy. Now, not only Conservatives, but many Reformers, voted against Mr. Mackenzie because with all their respect for him they considered his policy of preferring foreign to Canadian manufacturers as injurious to their country and to themselves. Why should those of the electors of East York who still hold these views agree to send Mr. Mackenzie to the House that he may misrepresent them and act against them in a matter of such vital importance?

We have no hesitation in saying that we would greatly regret to see Mr. Mackenzie left without a seat in the next House of Commons, and we are convinced that a large majority of Conservatives agree with us. But this matter rests entirely in the hands of his political friends. Some constituency of such a complexion as to be certain to return a Reformer might honour itself by nominating Mr. Mackenzie to represent it. If no Reform constituency avails itself of this privilege, there is yet another course open, though we confess we would regard the necessity for its adoption with some regret, as it would be in a measure humiliating to Mr. Mackenzie. The present leader of the Reform party, Mr. Blake, has a pocket constituency at his disposal, filled at the moment by his personal representative and man of all work (especially in the dirty branches), Mr. J. D. Edgar. Could not Mr. Blake present his old leader for the next term, even if he had to overcome the repugnance he probably feels towards one he so meanly supplanted, for it is proverbial that in such dirty transactions the injured feels less animosity than the injurer?

There is one objection that the Reformers may make to finding a seat of their own stripe for Mr. Mackenzie. He declined to follow their official leaders and wire-pullers in making the Regina scaffold the party platform in sympathising with murder and rebellion for the sake of gaining votes from the friends of a condemned criminal. We cannot consider this an insuperable objection. We decline to insult the whole body of Reformers by admitting that there is not a single Reform constituency where Mr. Mackenzie's honesty and patriotism would not strengthen rather than weaken him as a candidate. Surely there is some Reform constituency where a Reform leader would be acceptable, even coming without a stain of blood.

If the Reformers really believe that Mr. Mackenzie has claims to respect so strong that even Conservatives should choose him as a representative in spite of his policy, they certainly ought to consent to provide him with a safe Reform constituency. As a party they treated him in the shabbiest manner, so they should be glad, if their respect is not a mere pretence, to make him some amends.

THE REFORM MOTTO.

THERE is a species of verbal ingenuity called a palindrome, that is, a sentence that is the same whether read backwards or forwards. A very appropriate palindrome has been constructed as a motto for the Reform party:—"No, it is opposition." If you ask a modern Canadian Reformer if his party has any policy, any programme as to practical measures, he can only reply, "No, it is opposition." This is their motto and their policy, whether you start from the head or the tail, whether you read them backwards or forwards, whether you take their end or their beginning:—"No, it is opposition." Always opposition and nothing but opposition. And the people of Canada, finding that everything done or proposed for their benefit is opposed by the Reformers, wisely leave them in opposition.

THE Kingston Whig says that the death of Demers, the recently elected Reform M. P. P. for Iberville, weakens Mr. Mercier by two votes on a division. Now his death only causes the loss of one vote, and to make the loss amount to two the constituency must be carried by a Conservative. Prophets have before now foretold the truth unwittingly and in spite of themselves.

FRENCH-CANADIANS IN CHICAGO.

Elections in Quebec—Annexation Advocated—A Fiery Orator.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—An enthusiastic meeting of French-Canadian residents was held last evening. The cause of the gathering was the success of the Liberal party in the recent elections in the Province of Quebec, and its object, according to the announcement of the committee, to celebrate the "glorious victory" obtained over the cruel and bloodthirsty enemies of the French, Irish and English Liberals in Canada. The circular added: "Martyr Riel and the honor of the French-Canadians have been vindicated and avenged." Dr. J. U. Cadieux made a fiery address. He said there were now 1,000,000 French-Canadians in the United States, and that on both sides of the line they were creating a public sentiment for the annexation of Canada to this country. Annexation was bound to come. Dr. Cadieux was enthusiastically applauded. Resolutions declaring the election a vindication of the rights and principles of the Canadian French population which were shamefully disregarded by the Government at the time of the execution of Riel were adopted unanimously.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

An Example that Canada Might Well Consider.

The Committee on Christian Education has reported to the Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States valuable suggestions in the line of their functions. It declared that there is no system of education complete which ignores the sources of the Christian faith and the obligations of Christian morality. It was the Church's duty not to create education, but to Christianize it, not to lavish benevolences on institutions where its own principles were rejected. To lift up the Church institutions there must be endowments, outspoken interest, and, 3rdly, a practical method of promoting the cause might be the assembly of the heads of the Church schools and colleges into an association for mutual counsel on questions of instruction, discipline and worship, and so move towards the final erection of a great Church university worthy of the property and intelligence of the Church. And the committee accordingly recommended that the existing committee on Christian education in this house, with power to fill vacancies, be continued until the next session; to devise means to direct public attention to our schools and colleges, and to invite all educators in charge of schools to meet together at an assigned and practical place, to consult together for the furtherance of Christian education. The report was unanimously adopted.

A Priest Killed at the Altar.

The tragic death of Father Kavanagh has caused a great sensation in Dublin, where he was well known as one of the most prominent and eminent clergymen of the Irish Catholic Church. Later particulars from Kildare show that his death was not caused by the fall of the altar, but by the fall of a statue which stood above the altar. On being struck by the statue the unfortunate priest fell backwards, his head striking a marble step, inflicting a fearful wound, to which he succumbed in about an hour. The melancholy event caused the greatest excitement among the worshippers. It was through the intervention of the deceased that a settlement was effected between the Duke of Leinster and his tenantry at a critical period in the land agitation. He was a prominent figure in almost every Irish movement or importance.

Solid With the Criminals.

La Justice, a leading organ of the Rielites, describes the English speaking Reformers of Quebec as traitors, but it thanks the Almighty that there are some English Liberals noble enough to espouse the cause of the Regina martyr. "Hon. Mr. Mowat," it says, "Prime Minister of the most English Province in the Dominion, has congratulated us, and Hon. Mr. Blake, leader of the Opposition, commends us."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

ONE LAW FOR ALL.

The English Protestant electors have shown clearly that their sympathies are altogether on the side of law and order and against rebellion and anarchy. Mr. Blake, too, must begin to realize that he can hope for no support from the men who threw away party feeling last Thursday, and emphasized in the strongest manner possible the doctrine that Canada has only one law for Englishmen and Frenchmen alike.—Quebec Chronicle.

RUINS THEIR STORIES.

The Hamilton Spectator says that there are about to be erected in that city several new factories and extensions that will employ hundreds of additional hands, but the Times refuses to be comforted, because this sort of thing ruins its stories about the ruin wrought by the N. P.—Toronto World (Indep.)

THE QUEBEC CRY.

Were it not for the „Riel cry" which appears to have so largely determined the decision of the electorate, we should hail the result as the progrsss of advancing liberalism in that province.—New market Era (Reform.)

FOR UPHOLDING LAW.

So far as we are able to judge the Government appears to have suffered defeat, not so much on account of any particular distasteful acts of Administration—not on account of any particular charges of extravagance or abuse of power,—but rather because it refused to pass a vote of censure upon the Dominion Government for allowing the law to take its course in regard to the instigator of the North West rebellion.—Newmarket Era (Reform.)

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

The name of the French leader of the North-West has become the symbol and watchword of the French nationality in its antagonism to the British. It is a struggle of races for the upper hand. This the English of Quebec see, and they seem to have cast a tolerably solid vote for the Government against the partizans of Riel. French nationality advances, it grows in intensity, it is thrusting the British out of every part of the Province, except the commercial quarter of Montreal; it is encroaching even on the British Provinces. It aspires to the revival of New France in connection with her mother country, and the complete obliteration of the Conquest. Had the conqueror used his rights in the first instance Canada would have been British; what it will be now, who can tell? Such is the state of things in the presence of which we find ourselves, and it is the more menacing for Confederation because New France is interposed between Ontario and the Maritime Provinces, while the Maritime Provinces themselves are in a state of commercial, if not of political disaffection. —Toronto Week (Ind.)

LEADERLESS CONSPIRATORS.

In the present instance we have a leader of the Liberals, but we have not a leader designated as such by the whole elected Opposition. The Opposition of the day is composed of three elements: Liberals, Nationals, Castors. The Nationals and Castors do not recognize Mr. Mercier as their leader. He may, perhaps, be their ally; he may, to serve the needs of the moment, have directed the united forces against the Ministerial fortress; but he does not represent their views, for each of the sections has opposed the Government for different reasons.—La Prese (Riellte-Conservative).

But as to the formation of a new Government, it must be remembered that if, on the one hand, the Opposition constitutes a majority in the Province, the Liberals elected constitute only a minority. In fact, the Ministerial idea is defeated, but the Conservitative idea is not defeated. The Conservative idea is the dominant one in the new assembly, and it is that idea which must dominate in the Government that is to be, if the latter is to represent constitutionally the Province of Quebec.—L'Etendard (Riellte-Conservative).

LOYAL REFORMERS.

In the countries were the English voters are in the majority, it exerted a precisely contrary influence, enhancing the Government majorities, and in some instances, redeeming old route constitutencies. Everywhere throughout the province, host of old time English Liberals have been so heartly disgusted, at Mercier's shameless use of this vile Riel question, that they voted for the Conservative candidates.—Sherbrook (Que.) Gazette.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

It is said that the application of a bit of ice, or even cold water, to the lobe of the ear will stop hiccoughing.

Inflammations are more safely and far more agreeably subdued by the application of warm water than cold.

Intense thirst is satiated by wading in water, or by keeping the clothing saturated with water, even if it is taken from the sea.

The following is a formula for a good liquid fire extinguisher:—8 pounds carbonate of soda, 4 pounds alum, 3 pounds borax, 1 pound carbonate of potash, and 24 pounds silicate of soda solution are mixed together. 1½ pounds of this mixture is added to each gallon of water when required for use.

As to the best way of keeping the feet in good trim on a walking tour, it is essential to have a full supply of thick merino socks, soap the feet well with yellow soap before starting, and wash them in warm water when the day's work is over. An occasional application of spirit lotion, or brandy to harden them, is useful.

To promote a current of air in chimneys, the simplest and least expensive method is to place a thin sheet of iron at the throat of the chimney from back to front, about 17 inches deep; and when there is but a very ordinary draught the above arrangement will be found effectual. In rooms where there is often no fire, it is a very good precaution, to prevent smoke returning, to burn a sheet of paper previous to lighting a fire, so as to consume all the cold air out of the chimney.

Save all pudding.—Put any scraps of bread into a clean saucepan; to about a pound put a pint of milk, set it on the fire till it boils, beat it up quite smooth, then break in three eggs, three ounces of sugar, with a little nutmeg, ginger, or allspice, and stir it well together; butter a dish big enough to hold it, put it in the pudding, and have ready two ounces of suet chopped very fine, stew it over the top of the pudding, and bake it three quarters of an hour. Four ounces of currants may be added.

Responsible Government Wanted.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 25.—The following resolution has been passed by the North-West Council: "That a committee, consisting of the elected members, be appointed to consider the best way to divide the territories into provinces, and for the purpose of making such suggestions and devising such a scheme as will secure at the earliest time possible responsible government in the North-West territory, and to report to the council at the earliest possible moment."

It is understood that the Spanish Colonial Minister will ask the Cabinet to place all American imports and vessels under duties of the fourth and highest class in the colonial tariff, by way or reprisal for the action of President Cleveland in the matter of trade with the Spanish colonies.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only preparation in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Personal.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, barrister, has resumed the practice of his profession.

Not Likely.

It is not likely that Fannie B and Little Ned will trot this fall. A dash this coming winter on the ice may be arranged.

Dr. Potts, of Toronto,

Has arrived in town and will be found at his rooms, Croft House, where he will remain Wednesday, 27th, and Thursday, 28th, to receive patients. It is unnecessary to remind those who are afflicted with chronic troubles, or diseases of the Eye and Ear, that they should not allow this opportunity to pass without consulting Dr. Potts, as he cannot return to Peterborough on professional duty until January 27th, 1887.

Building Abroad.

Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald is among the Peterborough contractors who have been at work outside of the town as well as carrying on a large amount in it. In the township of Otonabee he built a fine brick house for Mr. Smith, of Ashburnham. In Hastings he built a handsome double house for Mr. Patrick Barrie. It is a storey and a half high, is built of red brick, and is ornamented by a number of pediments and fancy hanging cornices. The total cost of it is $2,000.

Free Library.

When a free library for Ennismore was first spoken of, Mr. J. J. Sheeby, dry goods merchant, George street, immediately offered to donate towards the object a first class silk dress. The silk dress was contested between two young ladies, Miss McCann, teacher, and Miss Williams organist of the parish church. We are pleased to be able to inform our readers that Miss McCann carried off the dress. Miss McCann is very popular there, and it is everybody's wish that she may long live to wear silk dresses. The people of Ennismore are, needless to say, very thankful to Mr. Sheeby, and their wish is that he may live long and prosper.

McCARTHY.

Off For India.

Major Jai Bhai, who visited Peterborough about ten weeks ago, with the Hindoo Salvation Armyites, came to town on Monday accompanied by his Hindoos, together with eight Canadians who are going back to India. A street parade took place, and afterwards a meeting was held in the Opera House. The hall was well filled with people. The appearance of the Canadians and Hindoos on the stage dressed in the Hindoo style—the men in loose skirt, red shirt and rolling turban, and the girls in a loose robe and turban—was quite striking. During the evening the Mirzha Nauroz Ali, the Mahommedan merchant, and Sergt. Narsee Gopal gave addresses in their native tongue, what they said being translated by Major Jai Bhai, who is a Englishman by birth. The latter also gave an interesting address as to the work in India. Slips were passed around asking the audience to subscribe towards paying the fares of the Canadians to India. There was a large amount collected, the amounts given being from 25 cents to $5. There must have been close on $150 collected. At the door the receipts were $60. An interesting feature was the consecration of the Canadian contingent. They stood before the audience, while soldiers and officers sang "We'll Follow Jesus." Major Jai Bhai then charged them to be honest and faithful in all things. Capt. Pople, the captain of the local corps, and Major Jai Bhai followed with prayer. The meeting closed in the usual way. The names of the Canadian men who have gone to India are: Lieut. Scott, Ottawa; Lieut. Park, Simcoe; Lieut. Locke, Bowmanville; Lieut. Jordan, Coaticook. Those of the Canadian girls are: Lieut. Orchard, Barrie; Lieut. Nicholson, Toronto; Lieut. Leich, Chatham, and Lieut. Squires, Trenton.

JOHN CLARKE & SONS' Celebrated Razors, GEORGE STETHEM.

A DELECTABLE DISH.

Woman's Rights, Hulled Corn, Ventriloquism and Music Mixed Together.

One evening last week one of the Charlotte Street Church dairy maids conveyed the intelligence that the "cows were in the corn." She called for Polly to drive them out, but to the dismay of the audience Polly came not. However, to judge from what was going on in the Opera House on Tuesday evening the ladies of the George Street Methodist Church must have intercepted the "critters" in their work of destruction, for as many of the "ears that hear not" were rescued as provided one of the most delightful repasts imaginable.

The people who went to the Opera House on Tuesday evening, after going through the process of leaving 25 cents in the cash box, were ushered into the eastern hall where a really refreshing picture was to be viewed. The ceiling was hid by the thick interlacing of festooned fabrics, corn color and other colors, all studded by flags. The brilliantly burning gasaliers lit up the room and the decorations brilliantly. Under this mass of decoration and blaze of gas is where the refreshing scene was situated. From one end of the hall to the other people clustered around little tables prying into the mysteries of corn coffee, corn starch cakes, corn starch custard pie, corn starch lemon pie, corn starch dandy Jack, corn starch pudding, baked corn pudding, boiled corn pudding, corned beef, corn bread, corn mush, corn samp and hulled corn. To aid the digestion (probably) a passage of scripture was placed opposite each course on the bill of fare.

When everybody was satisfied, and the ingenuity of the ladies was praised by all, an adjournment was made to the Opera House, where a programme of entertainment was entered upon. The Rev. I. Tovell, pastor of the George street church, occupied the chair. The first number was a nicely sung chorus, by about twenty voices. Mrs. Mein sang "Bonnie Charlie" in good style, and Mr. Charlie Brown read of how the art of skating was attacked by an amateur. Misses Ellsworth and Wells sang a duet, "Come to the Forest," very prettily, and Mr. Manning filled No. 5 on the programme with a solo. "Let Me Dream Again." The portrayal of Woman's Rights in pantomime was the last number in the first part. When the curtain rose the audience was convulsed with laughter. The fair sex were shown as having succeeded to man's employment, while the men were contentedly performing domestic duties. Among other arts which the ladies appeared to have mastered were those of sawing wood, hammering nails, plying the Jack plane, etc., while the lot of the men was the presidency over knitting needles, baby cradles, churns, washing machines, and the like. The operations of each were carried on like clockwork, all keeping time to a tune on the piano played by Mr. Jaques. When the curtain fell the applause was uproarious, and another glimpse had to be given before the audience would settle down to quietness.

Mr. Jaques opened the second part with a song, "Jack," which he sung in capital style. He has a very pleasing baritone voice which he knows well how to manage. Ventriloquism by Mr. W. A. Dixon is always received well, and Tuesday evening was no exception. The conversation of his figures created no end of merriment and his various immitations were deceivingly correct. Loud applause followed his exist. He bowed his acknowledgements. Mrs. Mein sang "When the Corn is Gathered in." "The Spanish Champion" a recitation by Mr. John R. Cobb came next and the programme was brought to an end by singing "Bringing in the Sheaves" and "God Save the Queen."

During the evening the Rev. I. Tovell announced that Mr. Bradburn had given the Ladies Aid Society the freedom of every part of the hall without charging them anything for it. Mr. Bradburn's generosity was pronounced by loud applause.

Big Bargains.

The Bon Marche will during this week sell at auction prices. All wanting bargains away down below par should take advantage of the opportunity. On Tuesday evening next an auction sale will be held. Special accommodation will be mad for ladies.

A Handsome Present.

On the occasion of the marriage of Mr. Richard Moore, a member of the Fire Brigade Band, a few days ago, he was made the recipient of a handsome gift from the band. A pretty set of china and a beautiful hall lamp were sent to his house, with no address other than that of the compliments of the band on his entry to married life.

Kind Words.

Kind words will do more to appease wrath and turn away a frown than anything else in the world.

"Speak gently, it is better far
To rule by love than fear."

There are some people in the world who would not consent to be ruled by a man with an iron will, who would stand on their dignity forever rather than submit to the threats, scowls and scoffs of men who rule by fear rather than love and kind words. Kindness is one of the greatest virtues, and when it is genuine, there is no mistaking it. The cold winter is coming on and the undersigned is prepared to not only speak kindly, but to perform acts of kindness with his customers in letting them have the very best of everything in his store at the lowest living prices. A. McNeil, Habiliment Hall.

CHEEKY, AREN'T THEY?

Mr. J. J. Lundy's Residence Again Entered.

The night hawks who have been carrying on operations in town and Ashburnham during the past few nights have shown themselves to be pretty cheeky.

On Monday night they entered Mr. J. J. Lundy's house, and on Tuesday night again they made another rummage. It is satisfactory to know that they got very little on both visits.

On Tuesday night Mr. Lundy took particular care to lock every door in the house securely. One of the doors having a rather doubtful lock, was barricaded with chairs, so that if an entrance was gained there the tumbling furniture would make enough noise to rouse the household. But notwithstanding these precautions the house was again entered, and to some extent, at least, was searched.

One of the domestics was out to a dance and did not get back till two o'clock this morning. She went to her room, but hadn't slept before she heard a gentle turning of the door knob. She called out "Who's there?" An instant after she saw a flash of light under the door and heard a low whistle. She was so frightened that she didn't get up to give the alarm. It appeared, however, that after hearing her voice the prowlers thought it best to decamp. They did so leaving the two kitchen doors open after them.

This morning the family were concerned to find what had been going on during the night. An examination of the house proved that nothing had been taken. Mr. Lundy missed a pair of boots, but that was about all. The entrance was gained, it appears, by the parlor window, which was found open this morning.

Remember.

Be sure to attend the Mikado social in the St. John's Church school room this evening and to-morrow evening. It's going to be a real novelty.

Knights of St. Crispin.

A special meeting of the Shoemakers' Union was held on Tuesday afternoon. The business before the meeting was to fix the amount of a "scab" fine. The amount was fixed, the fine was paid, and the matter was adjusted satisfactorily.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

The Luscious Venison.

The members of the "Bold McIntyre" hunting party have been thrilling their friends during the past day or two. First, it is necessary to state that they got a good stock of deer when away back. When they came home the venison was dressed at Mr. Harry Winch's butcher shop. Each carcase was cut in half and numbered, numbers were put in a hat, shaken, chosen, and the one drawing the number corresponding with the number on the venison knew that that was his share. Then fine juicy cuts were take off and some of the friends of Messrs. R. A. Morrow, J. J. Lundy, R. E. Wood, J. E. McIntyre, H. LeBrun, B. Morrow and Herb. Kent have rejoiced to know that there was such a place as away back and a party bold enough to go back and get deer.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

THE REMEDY:

The Peterborough Mattrass Company

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

CRAZED BY A CANARD.

A Chicagoan Goes Mad Over a False Report of the Queen's Death.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Wm. McLaughlin was suddenly driven insane last evening under peculiar circumstances. An evening paper got out an extra edition about 8 o'clock last night, which announced, in flaring head lines, that Queen Victoria had died. Later McLaughlin was found wandering about the streets talking in the most incoherent manner about the canard. He was arraigned to-day. He said he felt all right until he got hold of the paper containing the news of the Queen's death, and then he began to worry about it. An examination into his mental condition will be made.

THE CZAR'S ADDRESS.

He Thanks his Army and Navy for their Heroism in the Past.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26.—The Czar has issued an order of the day to the army and navy in connection with the newly-erected monument in memory of the Russo-Turkish war. It reads as follows:—"May this memorial of the Russo-Turkish war be always a memento of the self-denial and heroism of the warriors who with God's help covered the Russian flag and name with fresh glory. This festal day I address you commanders, admirals, officers, soldiers and sailors, my gallant army and heroic fleet, to tell you that I trust to your unswerving devotion, and am proud of your deeds of glory in common with the whole of Russia. I remember with heartfelt gratitude your distinguished services to the throne of the fatherland. May these memories be a pledge of the convictions shared by myself and the whole of Russia that in all future trials, which by God's providence may visit Russia, the army and fleet will ever maintain the lofty standard of martial heroism and unfailing glory which our ancestors attained, and which have been worthily upheld and advanced before our eyes."

THE CHURCH AND K. OF L.

The Revised Constitution—A Conference in the United States.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—The Canadian delegates to the Richmond convention have returned here. They believe that the amendments to the constitution will be acceptable to the bishops of the province. These amendments will be first submitted to the Central Committee, and then to the Council of Bishops of the Province who will name a commission composed of a priest, a lawyer and a layman to examine them. This commission are to have the the authorization of the Knights to make any further modifications which may be considered necessary. The Canadian delegates believe the Pope will not recognize the order, as all the prelates of the United States have promised their co-operation as well as Mgr. O'Brien, the paper ablegate to Canada.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—Archbishops Ireland, Feelan, Williams, Kendrick and Ryan, arrived in this city to-night. They are here for the purpose of holding a conference with Cardinal Gibbons. It is understood that they will meet to-morrow to determine the attitude of the Catholic Church towards the Knights of Labour as an organization. The result of their deliberations will be made public by means of a circular addressed to the clergy.

CHURCHILL AT BRADFORD.

The Government's Irish Policy Outlined—Local Government.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—In his speech at Bradford, last night, Lord Randolph Churchill said: "The official accounts reaching the Government of the social condition and prospects of Ireland are of an encouraging character. There is a good harvest and a marked recovery in prices, and from all we can learn rents are being fairly paid throughout the country. The landlords have helped greatly to lessen the difficulties of the crisis. Irish tenants, also, have co-operated in a signal manner towards the restoration of order. Of course," he continued, "I cannot speak with absolute confidence of the future, nor say whether we shall be able to pass the winter without calling upon Parliament for a measure to assist in the execution of the law, but on the whole I think Ireland is not in nearly so bad a state as might reasonably be expected. The people are rapidly appreciating the full significance of the last appeal to the electors, and will gradually shape their political and social action in accordance therewith. On the question of foreign affairs, I have nothing to add or detract from my Dartford speech. I have been, during my holiday, isolated from the knowledge of official affairs, and not as some silly, hysterical people supposed, in close contact with European statesmen." Three things he was able to state with certainty: First, the Government did not intend to grant Home Rule to Ireland; second, it did intend to deal with local government in Ireland; third, it did not mean to be hurried or hasty in that dealing. He asked that earnest attention be given to his remarks on procedure. He said: "I wish to fully and frankly admit that I have changed my mind on the question of the power of closing debate. When both great parties of the state firmly opposed the repeal of the Union and Parnellite obstruction, the Conservatives looked upon closure as a startling and unneeded innovation. They may have been wrong, but what we now deal with is an absolute change in the state of affairs, since the Radical separatists deliberately tolerate and assist the obstruction tactics of the enlarged body of Parnellites, pledged not to allow any legislation until Home Rule is granted. We, therefore, feel certain of your support in the changing of our minds with the altered circumstances." He concluded with an earnest appeal to the country to assist the Government in their high purpose of enabling Parliament to carry out the will of the people. He sat down amid vociferous cheering.

Premature Sport.

Dr. Faulkner, Reeve, of Stirling, was charged in police court on Monday morning with shooting deer out of season. Defendant did not appear and the case was enlarged for a week.

Absconded.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Oct. 26.—Jamuel J. McCall, accountant for the Grange Trust Insurance Company, limited, has absconded with $2,000 or more of that company's money. He has gone to the States.

Crushed to Death.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Oct. 26. — While coupling cars in the station yard this afternoon about 2 o'clock Robert Parks, brakesman on a gravel train, was crushed to death.

Murders in Mexico.

MATAMORAS, Oct. 26.—Frana Mendex stabbed to death this morning his one-month-old baby, which was asleep on its mother's breast. He was captured. Ten miles south of here three Chinamen were murdered and robbed by bandits. Six of the gang were apprehended.

Under a Load of Lumber.

PAISLEY, Ont., Oct. 26.—Mr. John Young, a farmer of Greenock, started for home with a load of lumber from here last night and was sometime after found dead under the overturned load on a hill about half a mile from town. His skull was smashed. He leaves a wife and a large family.

Michael Davitt to be Married.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 26.—Michael Davitt, who has been on this coast a short time on a lecturing tour, is to be married to Miss Yore, an heiress, who resides in Oakland. She is an orphan, lives with her aunt, is pretty, twenty years old, and highly accomplished. She has $60,000 in her own right. Davitt is 39 years old.

Advice to Lord Randolph.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Lord Randolph Churchill has ended his mysterious visit to the Continent. He is now engaged in the preparation of a serious of speeches to be delivered shortly at Brandtford. In connection with that event the Times implores him to water down his Dartford programme, which has given such a shock to old-fashion Tories. It asserts that the proposal of the land for allotments and small holdings are radical doctrines calculated to raise much suspicion and if applied on the accepted lines the Unionist party will be seriously endangered.

The Hudson Bay Railway.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 27.—By Friday evening the whole of the grading of the first forty miles of the Hudson Bay Railway will be complete. The delivery of the rails of which there are 400 car loads, will be slightly delayed, owing the the lack of cars on the Canadian Pacific Railway, but they will be rushed through as quick as possible. The board of trade met yesterday to consider the question of granting a bonus to the road, but Mr. Hugh Sutherland announced, on behalf of the promoters, that they had decided not to ask a bonus from Winnipeg.

Exports From Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—The exports of live stock from the port of Montreal for the past week were 1,549 head of cattle and 5,210 head of sheep, against 877 head of cattle and 253 head of sheep for the corresponding week of 1885. The total exports from the opening of navigation to date were 57,082 head of cattle and 77,423 head of sheep, being the largest on record. The exports of breadstuffs to Europe from the evening of navigation to date were as follows: Wheat, 5,218,828 bush.; corn, 3,606,466 bush.; peas, 1,667,409 bush.; oats, 182,233 bush.; flour, 436,-898 sacks; oatmeal, 63,436 sacks.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

BISHOP OF CORK CAUSES SENSATION.

DUBLIN, Oct. 26.—The Right Rev. Dr Gregg, Protestant Bishop of Cork, in an address to the clergymen of his diocese, said:—"Every interest languishes, every business is depressed, carelessness, neglect and and despair seem to be settling on the people. I exhort you not to allow prejudice to prevent the acceptance of any just change likely to benefit Ireland." The bishop's language has caused a sensation. The Nationalists claim that he has been converted to the Home Rule faith.

KARAVELOFF'S IMPEACHMENT.

SOFIA, Oct 26—It is expected the Sobranje will impeach M. Karaveloff, and compel him to resign from the Regency.

BULGARIA AND SERVIA.

NESSA, Oct 26 The Servian Foreign Minister has given a reception to Mr Stransky, the Bulgarian Minister, and arranged for the resumption of friendly and diplomatic arrangements between Servia and Bulgaria.

ON HOME RULE.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Mr. Stead, of the Pall Mall Gazette, has been for a month in Ireland. He is now in Belfast, and will go to Dublin on Monday. He is preparing a series of articles on Home Rule, and is interviewing person of all parties on that subject.

WHAT ELSE.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—A bill is to be submitted to the Reichstag enacting that in the production of beer only hops, malt and water shall be allowed.

EXPECTED OF LORD RANDOLPH.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Standard asks Lord Randolph Churchill in a few terse and pointed sentences to do for France from trying to embrace England in the Egyptian question. The country will be disappointed, it says, unless this subject be given a prominent place in this Bradford speech.

REBELLION INCREASING.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Advices from Rangoon say the rebellion in Myingyan is increasing. The mail for Yemethen has been looted and the native escort killed. The British have organized forces to attack the rebels in the Memboo and Myingyan districts next week. Officials of Burmah say it will take four years to subjugate the country, and a large army will be necessary.

MOONLIGHTERS ARRESTED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 27.—Fourteen moonlighters have been arrested at Milltown, near Tralee, County Kerry, on a charge of raiding the house of Mr. Huggard, a magistrate's secretary, on August 11. All the accused were caught in bed after midnight. Four other moonlighters, including the doctor of the district of Milltown, are awaiting trial for firing upon the police the same night as Huggard's house was raided. A criminal action has been opened against Charles Hogarty, president of the Kilcoe branch of National League, and Daniel McCarthy, Secretary of the Skibbereen Branch, for inciting the people to boycott the Roaring Water Bay regatta. Daniel O'Leary, a bellman, is also being proceeded against on a charge of proclaiming a boycott.

GIFT TO THE QUEEN.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The committee appointed by the Dominion Government to bring over the final consignment of Canadian fruit for the Colonial Exhibition presented a collection of magnificent fruit to the Queen, who to-day, through her private secretary, Sir Henry Frederick Posonby, accepted it with gracious thanks.

SPAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

MADRID, Oct. 27.—El Correo says that the Governments of America and Spain have agreed that the third column in the Cuban Customs tariff shall be applied until January to goods arriving at ports in Cuba and Porto Rico under the American flag, and that a differential duty of ten per cent. shall not be established on Spanish goods imported into America. A definite treaty will be negotiated at Madrid before January.

FEELING AGAINST RUSSIA

VIENNA, Oct. 27.—Public feeling is very much excited against Russia. The Hungarian papers advocate an alliance with Italy and England.

SPANISH TREATIES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Times' correspondent at Madrid says: "Senor Moret, the Spanish Foreign Minister, and Mr. Curry, the U. S. Minister, are both to be congratulated upon the commercial arrangement their respective Governments have agreed upon, and which pleases both parties. If the Americans wished to secure exclusive rights for their flag they did not succeed. From the moment the question was first raised, Mr. Ford, the British Minister, on behalf of England, contended that the English flag was entitled to equal treatment. It is understood this view has been conceded by Spain, and also that France and Germany, although their shipping interests are less important, will come in on the same footing with England. The enterprise displayed by the Marquis Camillas, the owner of the transatlantic fleet, is a noteworthy symptom of the material progress of Spain and the Spaniards in thus completing with and beating the Americans on their own grounds.

MINING MANIA.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A mining manis is prevailing in the stock exchange. The unallotted shares in an Australian Company sold yesterday at a premium of £100 each. The excitement during the call of mining shares is very great. The manis seems likely to spread.

FAVORS A REPUBLIC.

SOFIA, Oct. 27.—M. Stoyanoff, a popular poet, intends to move in the Sobranje in favor of declaring a republic.

A PLOT FRUSTRATED.

SOFIA, Oct. 27.—There is much excitement at Lompalanks over the arrest of the commandant who had planed the seizure of the Ministers while passing on their way to Tirnova, the object being to send them to Reni, in Russia.

EXTREME MEASURES.

SOFIA, Oct. 27.—Gen Kaulbars has notified the regency that if the conspirators against Prince Alexander be punished the Russian Government will have recourse to extreme measures.

NO AGREEMENT.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 27.—It is officially denied that an agreement has been entered into by Turkey and Russia with regard to Bulgaria. The Porte has asked the withdrawal of the Russian men-of-war from Varna.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1886.

THE QUEBEC CRISIS.

The present crisis in Quebec, besides having from the circumstances the greatest interest for the people of the whole Dominion has also brought before the attention of the public a very important constitutional question. The proper course to be adopted by an administration supposed to be left in a minority, and by the Crown or its representative in regard to such an Administration is being keenly debated.

Some are urging, even before the official returns are made, that the Lieutenant-Governor is bound at once to dismiss his advisers, and to call to his councils a politician recommended to him by round robin. This, strangely enough, is the contention of men who held it right that a previous Lieutenant-Governor should dismiss his ministry while enjoying the support of a large majority of the House, entrust the administration to a party in the minority, and keep them in office for a long period while still in a minority. Clearly both these contradictory contentions are opposed to the spirit and practice of our constitution. The Crown, Viceroy or Lieut.-Governor is not justified by the present practice in dismissing his advisers while they have the confidence of the Legislature. Neither is he justified in assuming to interpret the feeling of the members till they have expressed it in their collective capacity as a Legislature.

The existence of a ministry under our constitution depends on the support of the Legislature. If it has lost that support the majority can force it from office by voting against some important measure. If it still clings to office there comes the ultimate constitutional remedy, the refusal of supplies. This is the safeguard against encroachment by the Crown, or by the Cabinet. This ensures that the people through their representatives should control the policy of the country. There cannot be long delay, for supplies are only voted for the year at most, and the Legislature must meet within a limited time.

When an Administration is thus forced from office, or when it resigns if it chooses to do so, the Crown, and it is the same with the Lieut.-Governor, then has a certain power of itself, under the clearly established practice. He can call upon any person to form an Administration. He may invite, but need not follow the advice of the retiring Ministry. He need not, and often does not, send for the chief of the Opposition, especially when there is a combination of opponents or a defection from the defeated Ministry. His object should be to form a stable Administration that may be supported in its general policy by the Legislature. It by no means follows that it is the leader of the main body of the Opposition, especially if in a minority without his allies, who can best do this. It may be one of those allies, or some member or friend of the retiring Ministry that can reunite the dissentients from the party. There is no restriction upon the choice of the Crown, or its representative, but he cannot maintain an unpopular choice, for his new Ministry must fall if not supported by the representatives. The Ministers must also obtain seats in the Legislature within a reasonable time.

These rules are easily applied to the existing crisis in Quebec. The Ministry must call the Legislature together within a certain time. If it were to infringe upon the spirit of the constitution by unduly delaying this, the Lieut.-Governor would not only be justified in calling upon the Ministry to assemble the Legislature, or to resign, but it would be his duty to do so, and no doubt he would perform it. When the Legislature meets the fate of the Ministry will be in its hands, by the constitutional action of the representatives of the electors expressed in such a manner as to hold them to their responsibility.

It is clearly not the duty of the Lieut.-Governor to dismiss his advisers on the volunteered advice of members, who out of the House have no more authority than any other electors, and who would thus avoid the responsibility of placing their votes on record.

It is not incumbent on the Ministers to resign, though they may do so if they choose. Nor is it their duty to advance the ordinary time of the session, since the appropriations are voted, and there is no question of public policy pressing for immediate action.

Of late there have been some precedents, but by no means a general rule, for a Ministry left in a minority to resign, after the election without waiting for the House to meet. In all these cases the Opposition had a clear majority of supporters as to their general policy, or at least as to some great practical question calling for early action. There have also been recent precedents of sessions called in advance of the usual period after a general election. But in these cases it has been either because the appropriations had not been voted, or because some important practical question had to be decided without delay. These precedents plainly do not apply to the present crisis; there is no Opposition with a majority on its general policy, or on any practical question calling for action; there is no necessity for voting appropriations, nor for legislating on any subject that cannot wait for the ordinary session. The duty of a Legislature is to legislate for the country, and only as an incident thereto to decide who shall be Premier. To call it together prematurely, not to do its work of legislating, but merely for the purpose of conspiring to wreak vengeance on a Ministry as to a matter with which they had no business, is a mere misuse of the form of our constitution to violate its spirit.

The Ministry should retain office and summon the Legislature at the usual period. Even if a vote of censure as regards the execution of Riel is carried it should not resign. It is not a practical question on which the Local Legislature can take action, and the Ministers should refuse to advise or give effect to any unconstitutional attempt to invade the jurisdiction of the Dominion. They should throw upon their opponents the responsibility of defeating their practical measures or of refusing supplies, if they thus set their desire for vengeance above their duty to their constituents and to their country. In this case the Ministers should at one place their resignations in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor without delay or any attempt to retain office in an ascertained minority.

If this should be the result it would be the first instance in the history of constitutional parliamentary government, of men succeeding to office with the sole bond of the advocacy of crime. Mr. Mercier can have a majority on no other terms. On questions of general policy his "Nationalist" allies are with the Conservative Administration. On the question of vengeance for the execution of Riel he cannot even carry with him his own party representation intact. He can only succeed by a combination to attack the right of the Dominion and of the other Provinces to the protection of the law against criminals with Canadian French blood in their veins. Such a coalition being new would need a new name and none would fit it so appropriately as that of the Criminal Party.

A TORY CONFERANCE.

Meeting of Delegates at Bradford—Imperial Federation Adopted.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A conference of Tories was held at Bradford to day. There were 800 delegates present. The conference adopted Imperial Federation as an article of Conservative faith. Lord Randolph Churchill, speaking to the motion proposing the approval of Lord Beaconsfield's Eastern policy, said the Government would follow that policy as closely as the changed condition of Europe affairs would allow. A heated discussion took place over the women suffrage question. A resolution was adopted expressing confidence that the Government would follow Lord Beaconsfield's policy, and would vigilantly guard British interests against Russian aggression, and especially prevent any seizure of Constantinople.

The Two Round Robins.

Referring to the report mentioned by us yesterday, that two anti-Government round robins had been signed, a Liberal informant says:—"The first one mentioned Mr. Mercier as the gentleman His Honor was to call upon to form a new Government. It appears that this caused the Castors to kick, and a new document was prepared setting forth to the Lieutenant-Governor that Mr. Rose had lost the confidence of the country and requesting him to call upon a member of the Opposition to form an administration. This latter, it is held, was signed by Mr. Bourbonnais and Dr. Trudel."—Montreal Witness (Reform).

Alleged Smuggling Operations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25.—The Post publishes an interview with an ex-corporal of the Marine corps, which gives details of the cruise of the U. S. steamer Saratoga, made in 1880. He charges that the vessel was laden at Villa, France, with a cargo of carpets, rugs, silks, laces, gloves, etc., consigned to Government officers in Washington; that the cargo was brought to Hampton Roads and there, at night, transferred to the U.S. steamer Talapoosa, which vessel came down from Washington. It is not improbable an investigation will be made.

THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, THE ARCADE BUILDINGS.

WARSAW.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHEESE FACTORY.—The proprietors of the Warsaw cheese factory intend to shut down on Saturday being well satisfied with the season's make. They have made a fine quality of cheese, having been so fortunate as to secure the services of Mr. Elvidge, of London, Ont., for the last two years, and we think they should secure his services for next summer before he leaves for home as he is a splendid cheese maker and a good citizen, besides being a great favorite with the ladies.

NEW MANSE.—The Warsaw and Dummer Presbyterian congregations have purchased one and a half acres of land on Peterborough street from Wason Bros. and intend building a fine brick manse next spring.

NEW HOUSE.—Mr. A. Watts our enterprising butcher and drover, is erecting a two story brick house on his farm close to the village. Mr. Wallace, of Peterborough, was the bricklayer, while Mr. A. Henderson, of Lakefield, did the carpentering, and Scrimmager Bros. are doing the painting. When completed it will be a very pretty residence.

CHANGED HANDS.—Mr. Thos. Hamblin has disposed of his grocery and bakeshop to Mr. James Ennis. Mr. Ennis has secured the services of a good baker and expects to do a good business.

PERSONAL.—We are glad to learn that Mrs. R. Tully has recovered from her recent illness and is able to go around again. We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Geo. Payne, sr., is lying very ill.

FENELON FALLS.

A GREAT STORM.—The Gazette says that the windstorm on Thursday and Friday of last week prevailed over an area of thousands of miles, and did an immense amount of damage on both land and water. In these parts the gale was nothing to what it was in some places, but it was the most violent we have experienced for a long while. Trees were blown down and fences levelled, and during Thursday night the felt just laid on the roof of Mr. McArthur's new block on Colborne street was torn to ribbons, and a fine balsam tree in the garden behind the Fitzgerald homestead was snapped off a few inches above the ground.

ACCIDENT.—Last Saturday, while Wm. Suggitt, of Somerville, was putting a ring in the nose of a bull about nine months old, the animal struck him with its front feet and broke his left leg, just below where he got it broken while logging about eight years ago. He is doing well under the care of Dr. Wilson, and says that the pain from this accident is nothing to what he suffered from the first.

PORT HOPE.

ACCIDENT.—The Times says that on Saturday evening a farmer who lives a few miles north of town was returning home with his wife when he met with a rather serious accident near Mitchell's gardens. The bottom of the buggy broke and frightened the horse. It began plunging and kicking, but did not manage to break away. In the struggle two bones in the wife's hand were broken, besides other injuries by being thrown out. The farmer, too, was severely hurt in several places.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

Mrs. Strangfield was about to speak; but with an imperious gesture of the hand, her husband silenced her.

"This coastguard's tale seems a likely one, sir, and makes the riddle of your son's disappearance easy," he said, with his hard eyes fixed upon the doctor. "It's a pity there is but one witness."

"But one witness may rescue a man from damning dishonor, though there be no other evidence to prove his aspersers liars!" exclaimed the doctor, lifting his head with a flashing glance.

Mr. Strangfield met his gaze with a faint contemptuous smile.

"These coastguards," he said, "like other men of their condition, are fond of a glass, and the hope of earning a shilling will make them smarter at inventions. One may be sure the man did not leave the school house unrewarded."

The skin about the doctor's eyes tightened and an expression of unspeakable contempt settled down upon his face.

"This is not the first time, Mr. Strangfield, that I have experienced your qualifications to render yourself offensive. A man so skeptical should surely possess a judgment above all chances of blundering."

"Dr. Shaw, I am a plain man, with little knowledge of fine words. Your tale may be truly believed by you, but it does not satisfy me. Your son has acted the part of a villain, sir, and nothing that does not prove him a villain in every step of the vile wrong he has done me and mine will I credit. Tell me rather that, having betrayed my child, he has meanly fled to escape my vengeance, and has put any rascal upon lying on his behalf."

He was white with his passion, and as he grasped the arms of his chair the veins of his hands stood up black with the energy that swelled them.

In the contempt and dislike with which Dr. Shaw, after a slight backward push of his chair, surveyed him, there seemed positive cruelty; for no insolence that Strangfield could be guilty of could in a humane man's eyes qualify the moving influence of his deep and passionate emotion.

"You are pleased, Mr. Strangfield, to call my son a villain. This did you term him once before. But my memory is not keen, and I should be glad to hear again your reasons for abusing him."

"Oh, Dr. Shaw, my husband is beside himself this morning," wailed Mrs. Strangfield.

"Our poor ——"

"Silence!" thundered the shipwright. "It is to me this gentleman speaks. Leave me to answer him. Whatever may be your true purpose in calling upon me this morning, my own judgment upon it I will give you, and let the question you have now asked me find you a reason for what I shall say: that the father of a villain who has ruined my child, and brought desolation and shame upon an honorable home, must perforce be too much like his offspring not to have a relish for the wound his son has inflicted, and a pleasure in fingering it for the sake of his curiosity. Hold! you are not yet answered. Do you think I am to be untouched by your sneers, man? You would teach all those with whom you have to do to look down upon me, and such as me, as despicable men, holding a humble faith that makes your flaunting religion keck; and that your son had ruined and disgraced any one of us, should give you no more concern than the scouring of a negro gives the white ruffian who looks on at the whipping! Is that it? Why, sir, be satisfied with your son's work; but you shall not stop me from calling him villain! You would know why? Look at my wife yonder. Is there no answer in her face? Look at this hand. Never did it tremble as now it does. I am aged a score since yesterday, and that is thy son's doing. No!" he shouted, in a strange shaking voice, "I'll not put my dishonor again into words. Sir, I wish you a good morning."

He rose from his chair and stood upright, with his hand extended toward the door. His wife sat in a crouching attitude, hugging herself. Dr. Shaw did not offer to move. His face was pale, but otherwise his manner was collected. He put his snuff-box in his pocket, and, drawing forth a pocket book, he extracted a paper, which he held in his hand while he addressed Mr. Strangfield.

"Sir," he said, in a slow, deliberate tone, "throughout my life I have ever striven to act the part of an upright man resolute in the vindication of things I hold to be just and true, but always ready to acknowledge my error. Through haste and surprise and disappointment which, in imitation of your own admirable candor, I shall be at no pains to dissemble, I have fallen into a grievous error—that of misjuding youthful folly and calling it sin; that of repelling with rude doubts the pleadings of helpless innocence; that of denouncing my own flesh and blood as a monster of vice when he was not at hand to justify himself. But sin, the God who rules over us is the Vindicator of the just, and last night I humbled myself before Him with gratitude and remorse. I beg you to be seated. I came to you with two items of news. One I have related, and the other I will not relate in mercy to you who, by desiring me to have the house, would be entailing upon yourself the endurance of a grief greater, in spite of my theological opinions, that I could wish you to know."

Mr. Strangfield continued standing, leaning heavily upon the back of a chair and looking down with a scowl upon the doctor. Mrs. Strangfield, in a half-risen posture, supporting herself with her hand upon the table, stretched eagerly forward, her eyes fixed on the paper in the doctor's grasp.

"Last night," continued the doctor, "after the coastguard left me, I reflected upon his story, and felt persuaded that the riddle of my son's disappearance was solved. But, though there was a melancholy satisfaction in detecting the means by which one portion of the mystery had been brought about, the boy's honor still remained befouled by the charges that have been made against him by you. It was clearly my duty to leave no stone unturned, either to prove that he was actually your daughter's husband, or that their connection was sinless, and the affirmations of your daughter the delusions of an ignorant loving woman. To-day I should have taken the coach to London, and stayed in that city until every vestry had been searched by persons I should have hired for that purpose, and every clergyman and dissenting minister officiating called upon. But I have been mercifully spared a duty which, at my time of life, would have made heavy demands on my strength. Before retiring to rest I entered my son's bed room. Up to that moment, beyond a cursory inspection of the room, I had made no close examination of it. But I felt that it would greatly facilitate my project if I could obtain some clue to the name of the neighborhood of the church they were married; and I further remembered that he had written to me one letter from his lodgings, though I could not find this letter and had no recollection of the address upon it. I found his desk in a drawer, and had no difficulty in opening it by a bunch of keys of my own. Sir, among letters of his mother, most tenderly preserved, and letters signed in your daughter's name, I found his document" (holding it up) "carefully sealed in a sheet of paper on which was written 'Jenny Shaw'; and I also found" continued the doctor, drawing from his side pocket the small sheepskin volmue, "this little dairy some passangers of which, sir, I will take the liberty to read."

To be Continued.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

On drop of oil in season on the axle arm of a carriage is like that traditional stitch in time that saves nine.

Every attempt to keep cattle through the winter on insufficient allowance of food will result in loss greater than any expected saving.

A day lost to the cornfield after the ears are ripe increases risk of damage by frost that may take away nearly all the value of the stalks.

A ton of forest leaves on a garden in autumn to remain through winter is worth much more than a ton of the best barnyard manure.

The best use of ripe straw as fodder is to distend the stomachs of cattle to comfortable condition while liberal feeding of grain supplies nourishment.

One apple tree well nourished is worth ten gnarled and starved by years of neglect, for its fruit will be more fair, more abundant and far more satisfactory in use.

When potatoes are ripe, then is the time to dig if the ground is dry enough, especially late varieties that are constantly subject to loss after the first heavy frost.

Sand is not a substitute for gravel in the poultry yard. The hens usually pick up the sharpest and most irregular pieces. When oyster shells are provided they should be broken into pieces the size of grains of corn, and not ground to a fine powder.

The time for plowing under green crops is when they are succulent or about the time of flowering, as they decay very rapidly, and the man who keeps his soil well covered with a green crop to plow under, when the land is not otherwise in use, is a good farmer, both to his soil and pocket.

A recent measurement of the famous orange tree on the premises of J. W. Shone, one and a half mile south of Sumterville, Fla., show its circumference at the smallest point of the trunk to be sixty-three inches. This tree is thirty-five years old and usually bears from 7,000 to 12,000 oranges per year.

Farm machinery no longer required for use should be cleaned carefully, then stored under good shelter. To clean bearings, cogs and other working parts, kerosene may be used by free application, then operating the machine to give it effect, after which the parts should be wiped carefully and the work is done.

W. P. Elliott, of Moberly, Mo., owns a Jersey cow not yet five years old, that yielded 3224 pounds of milk in ninety days. Sixty days of that time three pints of the whole milk was furnished a neighbor. Mr. Elliott's family using cream the whole time; the remainder was churned and produced 127 pounds of gilt-edge butter.

Ayrshire cattle won the champion milking prize at the Bath and West of England show the other day. Why don't the English Agricultural societies have separate classes for this valuable dairy breed? Why don't Ayrshire breeders call more attention to their merits on this side of the water? asks the Rural New Yorker.

There can be no arbitrary rule by which the best work can be secured from a fanning mill. An observing farmer will change sieves and adjust their relations, as well as the shake and the motion, until performance is satisfactory without much regard to the printed rules on the side of the mill that are intended only to guide the clumsy operators who lack skill requisite to the best work.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Why is a grain of sand in the eye like a schoolmaster's cane? Because it hurts the pupil.

"It is hard for a rich man to die," says a philosopher. Yes, but it is slightly harder for a poor man to live.

A young man was seen lately in Aberdeen with two heads on his shoulder. It was not a curiosity, as one belonged to his Highland lassie.

A good man and a wise man may at times be angry with the world, and at times grieved at it; but no man is ever discontented with the world if he does his duty in it.

A popular writer laments the fact that poets are declining. It is different with poets themselves They lament the fact that the editors of magazines and newspapers are declining.

"Well, how did you like the sermon on Sunday?" "The sermon!" "Yes; you were at church, weren't you?" "Yes, certainly." "Well, then, how did you like the sermon?" "I didn't hear any sermon. I belong to the choir," was the self-satisfied rejoinder.

"Sir," said a customs officer to a tourist "I thought you told me you had nothing but your personal wearing apparel in this trunk." "So I did." "Well, how do you account for the presence of a dozen bottle brandy?" "Oh, that's all right! They are 'night-caps.'"

"The poet is born, sir," said a man haughtily, as he received a roll of manuscript for the editor with a shake of the head. "Oh, is he?" replied the editor with a pleasant smile. "Well, when he gets old enough to write something, tell him to come and see me. Good-bye." And he resumed his labours.

All is not attractive that is good. Iron is useful though it does not sparkle like the diamond. Gold has not the fragrance of a flower. So different people have different modes of excellence, and must have an eye to all.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

Sisters of Charity

Charity, attached to St. Mary's Infant Asylum, Dorchester, Mass., certify to the inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the treatment of sore eyes and skin diseases, among the many unfortunate children under their care. Mrs. S. D. Bodwell, Wilmington, Mass., writes concerning the treatment of her daughter, who was troubled with sore eyes, as follows: "I gave Ayer's Sarsaparilla to

My Little Girl,

and must say that she never took anything that helped her so much. I think her eyes never looked so well, as now, since they were affected, and her general health is improving every day. She has taken but half a bottle." A. J. Simpson, 147 East Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "My weak eyes were made strong by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I have been troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief, until I commenced using

For a Number of Years,

I was cured of both diseases by using six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." M. G. Traine, Duxbury, Mass., writes: "I have found Ayer's Sarsaparilla an efficacious remedy for bilious troubles and Dyspepsia." Henry Cobb, 41 Russell st., Charlestown, Mass., writes: "I was completely cured of Dyspepsia, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla." Wm. Lee, Joppa, Md., writes: "I have tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it has done me so much good that I shall always regard it as the best of blood purifiers." Eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sar-

GO!

It is remarkable how our Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Satisfied.

During the last week the Bon Marche has been selling goods at auction prices and any one who has purchased from them is more than satisfied with the bargains they got. Everyone should go there and buy what they require before everything is sold, as they are selling exceedingly cheap.

That Bloom in the Spring.

On Thursday evening at the Mikado social when Koko was so loudly applauded he was presented with a basket of "flowers that bloom in the spring." The basket contained a full blown cauliflower and other rare specimens of horticulture. Koko displayed the gift to an audience carried away with hilarity.

Teams For the Shanties.

This forenoon ten spanking teams were shipped by the Grand Trunk Railway for Mr. J. M. Irwin's shanties in the Haliburton district. On Thursday they were all ranged in front of Shortly's harness store and fitted out with heavy harness suitable for work in the woods. Mr. Shortly says that these were the finest lot of horses he ever fitted out. They were purchased by Mr. Irwin and Mr. Ted Cavanagh in the vicinity of Port Perry.

Next Week's Engagement.

Mr. J. M. Cook, Manager of the Japanese Colony Company, is registered at the Grand Central Hotel. The company will open an engagement in the Parlor Rink on Tuesday evening. The entertainments given by the company are spoken of by the press as being quite novel. The Colony represent the Japanese in their daily occupations, and this being the case the entertainments will possess not only interest but much information.

Wedding in Ashburnham.

On Wednesday evening Mr. Walter J. Paterson, son of the late Robert Paterson, and step-son of Mr. Wm. Wand, Village Councillor in Ashburnham, and Miss Lizzie Hamilton, daughter of Mr. T. Hamilton, Ashburnham, were married at the residence of the bride's father in the presence of a number of friends of the families. The Rev. J. C. Wilson, pastor of the Mark Street Methodist Church, performed the ceremony. The young couple commence life together with the best wishes of a large number of friends.

Returned.

The Fitzgerald deer hunting party have returned to their native heath, their hearts laden with satisfaction, their waggons with venison and their faces with a profusion of hirsute adornment. They have been gone from town just two weeks, and during that time have succeeded in slaying eight fine deer. They carried on operations all along the back lakes, having Gold Lake portage for headquarters. The party was made up of the following named:—Geo. Fitzgerald, A. Slade, T. Rutherford, H. Matthews, S. Clegg, H. Evans, L. Cameron and J. Haggart.

News From the Rockies.

Mr. John O'Brien, who has been engaged with the engineers on the C. P. R., has arrived home. He describes the work as progressing very rapidly, the sheds in the passes being partly roofed and expected to be finished by the 1st of November. About 2,200 men are employed on the McDermot & Ross contract. He gives a favorable report of the contractors. They pay their men regularly, and the board is only $4.00 per week. There is an hospital at Donald and a few weeks ago it had 40 inmates—mostly through accidents, but the majority were Italians. He states that, while there are a considerable number of very nice little stores, there are also very many whiskey dens (which, strange to say, are licensed at $200 per annum). Gambling saloons are also plentiful and the unwary are entrapped and fleeced of their hard earnings not unfrequently. Mr. O'Brien thinks that the contingent which left Peterborough in April will return about the 20th of November.

THE MIKADO SOCIAL.

A Crowded House Attend It—To be Repeated this Evening.

On Thursday evening the Mikado social came off in St. John's Church school room. For weeks those who were to take part were rehearsing diligently and for weeks it was talked about by everyone interested. It was, then, no surprise to see a crowded house and the selections taken from the Mikado well produced.

The room looked unique and pretty in the Japanese decorations. Parasols hung from the ceiling and the walls were dotted with fans and other devices. Even the people were decorated as they passed in at the door, most of them receiving a miniature fan instead of a button hole bouquet. Thus decorated the audience remained seated until eight o'clock, when the curtains were drawn, displaying the profusion of artistic hangings and a company of about fifteen attired in Japanese costumes. The background was formed of Japanese figures and odd fabrics of different sorts, the whole being lighted by Chinese lanterns.

The first chorus "If you want to know who we are," was sung by a chorus of four men. The voices blended well and the volume of sound filled the room very satisfactorily. The curtains were again drawn and the Misses Dennistoun played a pianoforte duet, "Marche Hongroise," very nicely.

Mrs. Macklin contributed a pretty song in her usual full rich voice. It was well received by the audience.

The next number of the programme was the appearance of the "Three Little Maids," faultlessly attired in the latest Japanese styles. They so pleased the audience as to draw forth rousing applause. Three little maids announced themselves, not, however, those who the audience asked to see again. They sang in heavy bass voices, and they all wore moustaches. But disappointment gave way to good humour to see them try to immitate the demure gracefulness of the real "Three Little Maids."

Mr. Newbold closed the first part by singing "The Powder Monkey," the chorus being joined in behind the scenes.

Refreshments were served during the ten minutes of intermission, fans were disposed of and the photographs of the "Three Little Maids" were in great demand.

The second part of the programme was opened with a pianoforte solo by Mrs. G. A. Smith.

The curtains were again drawn and the Mikado made his appearance followed by his agile and artful attendant. The latter made the audience shake with laughter by his odd antics and comical dress. The Mikado chorus was sung.

Miss Vair sang "Sweet Mignonette" in a very pleasing manner.

The Koko chorus came next, and as a reply to a decided encore Koko sang "The Angels at the Window."

The Yum Yum chorus was the best of the evening. It was sung with particularly good effect. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Seward and Miss Cluxton.

Those who took part were: The Mikado, Mr. H. A. Hammond; Koko, Mr. J. B. Hutchins; the three little maids, Mrs. Dunsford, Miss Chaddie Errett and Mrs. Seward; Mikado's atttendant, Mr. J. L. Palmer; and the chorus singers, Miss Addie Erlett, Miss Rush, Mrs. H. Stapleton, the Misses Haliday, Miss Birdie Hall, Miss Beck, Miss M. Beck, Miss Stevenson, Mr. Budden and Mr. Morris.

It is needless to add that the social was a really enjoyable one. It will be repeated this evening with a change of programme.

The evening's entertainment was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

If we may be permitted to particularize as to the costumes, when all were so good, special praise may be given to the very pretty, effective and becoming dress of "Yum Yum," and to the artistic design of the flowing robes of the majestic Mikado.

It is only right to acknowledge the exertions of Mrs. Dunsford and Miss Errett, who took so large and active a part in the arrangements for this entertainment.

Journalistic.

We are pleased to notice that under its new management the Canada Lumberman is being enlarged and improved in many ways. Mr. Mortimer seems to have the correct idea of how to conduct a trade publication, and one of his first improvements has been the addition of an attractive cover, to be followed by the adoption of a fine toned paper throughout. We wish our successor every success that his enterprise merits.

Kind Words.

Kind words will do more to appease wrath and turn away a frown than anything else in the world.

"Speak gently, it is better far
To rule by love than fear."

There are some people in the world who would not consent to be ruled by a man with an iron will, who would stand on their dignity forever rather than submit to the threats, scowls and scoffs of men who rule by fear rather than love and kind words. Kindness is one of the greatest virtues, and when it is genuine, there is no mistaking it. The cold winter is coming on and the undersigned is prepared to not only speak kindly, but to perform acts of kindness with his customers in letting them have the very best of everything in his store at the lowest living prices. MANITOBA FARM LANDS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Thinking, perhaps, that some of your numerous readers, who take an interest in this Province, would like to gain a little information concerning it, I have taken the liberty of giving a short description of that portion known as the "Portage Plain."

My object in writing this letter is that a great many intending settlers, who wish to take up land, pass directly to some out of the way part of the Province, or even into the North West Territories, when they can get land, certainly not excelled on the continent, nearer home. This was the case last spring with some parties from the vicinity of Peterborough whom I chanced to meet.

It is generally supposed that the land in this, as well as in some of the older settlements of the Province, is held by speculators. This, to some extent, is no doubt the case, but these speculators are now having their eyes opened to the fact that if they intend disposing of their land they must do so at a legitimate figure.

The yield of all kind of farm produce this season is a fact in itself conclusive that, notwithstanding the extremely dry season we have experienced throughout the whole Province and North-West, that it is destined ere long to become one of the greatest grain producing countries in the world.

A good deal of land has been purchased this year by bona fide settlers, one party alone having disposed of about five thousand acres.

This "Garden of Manitoba" extends from the Assiniboine River on the south to Lake Manitoba on the north, and from Poplar Point on the east to Rat Creek on the west, or it could be better defined by townships and ranges, as laid down on the Government maps, say townships 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15, and ranges 5, 6, 7 and 8, west of the 1st principal meridian. The land south of the river, although not generally so adapted for grain-growing as that lying to the north, is still unsurpassed for stock-farming, there being any quantity of fodder and shelter.

These lands can be obtained at very reasonable figures and on any reasonable terms, either improved or unimproved. It is a strange fact that the frost has never but in one or two slight cases done any damage in this district and while other portions of the province have suffered severely the "Portage Plain" has escaped entirely.

Wood can be had in any quantities and water of the best quality can be found at a depth of from fifteen to twenty-five feet.

We have now one of the largest mills in the province, also two small ones. This mill, the property of the "Portage Milling Co.," has a capacity of 600 sacks per day, and the elevator in connection with the mill a capacity of 125,000 bushels. The Ogilvie Milling Co., have also a similar elevator with a capacity of 80,000 bushels.

I have sent you two samples of wheat, Red Fife and Azof, which took first prize at the exhibition here, grown by Mr. Charles Cuthbert, on Section 21, Township 13, Range 6 west, which I think, Mr. Editor, will prove that my statements as to the producing qualities of Manitoba soil are not exaggerated. This being the first season's trial for the latter variety its qualities have not yet been satisfactorily tested. The former sample averaged 38 bushels per acre and weighed 64 pounds per bushel. The average yield in this district this year, as near as can be ascertained, is about twenty-seven bushels per acre, and in some cases was as high as 40 and even 45 bushels.

If any of your readers should wish to gain any information about this district I will be glad to give all I possibly can, and I would advise any intending purchasers to inspect these lands before going further west. We are right on the main line of the C. P. R. and the market will always be as good as any point in the Province.

Trusting I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space,

I am, yours truly,
R. C. Brown.

REMARKABLE REVELATIONS.

King Ludwig of Bavaria said to have Committed Suicide.

BERLIN, Oct 27.—It is officially denied that there is any intention to proclaim Prince Luitpold King of Bavaria.

At the trial of Herr Wickel, the editor of the Froenkische Volksblatt, at the tribunal of Wurzburg, for charging the Bavarian ministry with ill-treating the late King Ludwig and forcing him to commit suicide, one witness a retired lackey of the late King declared that he had never remarked anything abnormal about King Ludwig, that the latter had been impelled to commit suicide through the precedure of the commission examining him, that he heard King Ludwig say: "I will not suffer them to declare me a madman like my brother Otto, whose keepers beat him with their fists. I will rather suffer death." The evidence caused a sensation in Court, and the revelations are disturbing the impressions of the public. Wickel was sentenced to two months imprisonment.

Halifax Garrison.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 27.—The troop-ship Orontes arrived this morning from Bermuda bringing the York and Lancaster regiment to this garrison to relieve the Royal Irish Rifles, who are to be sent to Egypt. The York and Lancaster regiment took a prominent part in the Zulu, Egyptian and Soudan campaigns, and has connected with it several distinguished officers wearing the Victoria Cross. The Rifles seem to have a great antipathy to going to Egypt, and one-seventh of the whole battallion has deserted within a few months.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattress now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

THE REMEDY:

The Peterborough Mattrass Company

Have commenced the manufacture of all kinds of Mattrasses, Bolsters, Pillows, etc. All the material used by this Company is guaranteed new and clean and are sold at the same price as inferior makes. Ask your cabinet maker for the PETERBOROUGH MATTRASS CO'S. mattrass and pillows. If they have not got them call at the Factory and you can be supplied with anything of the kind you may require. If you consider your health you will act wisely. Factory on the Otonabee River, at the east end of Hunter Street Bridge, over Wm Paint's Woollen Mill. The name of the Company will be stamped on every Mattrass. Take no other. d100w44

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

SERIOUS RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Five Persons Killed and Many Injured at Portage, Wis.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 28.—Assistant General Manager Tucker, of the St. Paul road, makes the following statement:—"Our limited express ran into an open switch fifteen miles this side of Portage, Wis., last night The baggage and mail cars were demolished. So far as known five people were killed. We do not know who they are as yet. I don't know how many were injured or how badly. The demolished cars caught fire and were burned up. One sleeper was also destroyed by fire. We have sent out two special trains this morning with physicians and help, and everything possible is being done. So far particulars are very meagre. We have reason to believe the loss of life is greater. It is said the most distressing and harrowing scenes took place after the wreck. The accident is the first on the new limited express, which runs at a very high rate of speed."

Fatal Accident.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 28.—While two boys, sons of Thomas McDonald, a fisherman of Point Ann, were driving home with a load of empty fish barrels yesterday afternoon the younger, Herbert, aged 10, got into a barrel to protect themselves from the cold. The barrel rolled of the waggon and fell against the horses, which ran away. When the boy was picked up it was found that he was dead.

A Murderer an Heir.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Sproule. the American under sentence of death at Victoria, B. C., for murder, and whose execution is to take place on Friday next, turns out to be one of the heirs to quite a large estate in Boston. Neither Sproule nor any of the other heirs know of property to which they have been entitled for a number of years, until it was discovered and brought to their attention by G. A. Smyth, who is now administrating upon the estate.

The Raglan Tragedy.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.— Coroner Dickson, of Pembroke, has held an inquest at Raglan, Renfrew county, on the body of Minna Werckenthal, whose brutal murder by David Googlein has already been reported. In accordance with the facts the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder. Googlein is now in the county gaol, where he awaits his trial at the spring assizes. He owned 100 acres of land, 40 of which were cultfvated.

Cremated in Their Beds.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 28.—A Times special gives details of the horrible burning of eight people in a log cabin near Flatt Rock, Knock county, on Tuesday. William Poe, a farmer, went away from home on business, leaving his wife, five young children and two young ladies of the neighborhood, Miss Alice Carnes and Sallie Adams. During the night the house was burned and all the inmates perished, and their remains were found next day by the husband on his return. It is not known how the cabin was burnt. The mother's remains were found clasping those of her baby, and the bedclothing showed that an effort had been made to extinguish the fire.

THE INDIAN FEUD.

Details of the Recent Fight Between Crows and Sioux.

FORT KEOGH, Mont., Oct. 27.—The following additional particulars regarding the late fight on the Crow Reservation, between a party of Crows and Sioux, in which five Sioux were killed and scalped, have just been reported. The expedition left the Yanktown Agency a short time ago, with the avowed intention of raiding the Crow camp on the Little Rosebud. Concealing their horses in a ravine they went into the timber to reconnoitre. Their horses were found by the Crows and identified. A search was made and resulted in the killing of two Sioux and three Crows and the wounding of three of the latter. The remaining Sioux escaped to Fort Custer and reported the fight. The Crows had a war-dance over the dead bodies of the Sioux, shooting their bodies full of holes and cutting of the head of one with an axe. The report says the Crows are putting on paint and preparing for war. It is purely an Indian feud, and not dangerous to whites.

A despatch from Rio says the train ran through an open switch and plunged into a sandbank, and the mail, baggage and day coaches were piled on top of it. In the day coach there were 12 or 15 persons, of whom one man and two children were the only ones saved. The others were burned in the car. The man who had escaped had an arm broken and was otherwise bruised. He is now at Columbus and is doing well. A woman whose home was in Winona handed her two children out of the window and was herself burned to death in the car. Douis Brinker and Emil Woltersdorf, of Columbus, Wis., are among the dead.

The names and residences of the others cannot be obtained now. Coroner Allen is holding an inquest on the charred trunks of the bodies, all that is left of the ill-fated travellers. The burning of the baggage obliterates the only clue to the identity of the occupants of the burned car, and it may never be known to a certainty how many persons perished.

From the most reliable accounts obtainable to-night the number who perished at Rio does not exceed ten, and these were all in the passenger coach next the baggage car. The only occupants who escaped were two children, whose mother, Mrs. C. R. Scherer, of Winona, handed them out to a brakeman. Mrs. Scherer was pinned down by a seat and already enveloped in flames. None of the charred remains can be identified.

BARTHOLDI'S STATUE.

The Ceremony of Unveiling "Liberty Enlightening the World."

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Despite the rain, mud and lowering sky, New Yorkers are enthusiastically celebrating the unveiling of the statue. The two great Republics clasping hands over such a monument of peace and good-will, impresses the people and immense throngs line Broadway as the mammoth procession wends its way to the Battery. Many there are embarking in a fleet of steamboats for Bedloe's Island. The procession was late in starting. Up town, colossal crowds are about the reviewing stand in Madison Square. The entire quota of distinguished visitors from France stood on the stand directly at the President's back, including Count DeLesseps, M. Bartholdi, Consul-General Lefaivre, M. Spuller, Col. Luseedal, MM. Deschamps, Ney, Hector, and DeCastro. The ladies of the party were mainly the wives of delegates and included Madame Bartholdi. The ladies were enthusiastic as division after division of the pageant passed, and the strains of the inspiring "Marseillaise" greeted their ears. Admiral Guares and General Pelissier were in full uniform, including gold-laced vests and chapeaux covered with bullion, accompanied by aides richly uniformed. The French gentlemen in civil life were the magnates. They drew the attention of all eyes.

Count de Lesseps was asked if the splendor of the military pageant impressed him as being sufficiently worthy of the event it commemorated. He said: "It is grand, sir, truly grand." That M. Bartholdi was deeply impressed by the spectacle was easy to see. The great artist appeared at times to be deeply moved. He was constantly surrounded by enthusiastic gentlemen and all points of special interest in the moving column were pointed out to him. President Cleveland and Cabinet officers reviewed the procession. First came the National Guard, then the Marine Corps artillery and the French societies, brilliant in regalia. Thousands of Frenchmen came from all parts of the country, northern New York, Montreal, Quebec and the mills in Massachusetts and Connecticut, also a large party of Frenchmen engaged on the Panama canal. The group of French-Canadians made a fine display. At the head were Coroner Levy, Breguy, Bourdonnais, Dommergne. The Gardes Lafayette and Grenadiers Rochambeau number many Canadians in their ranks.

Nine hundred Columbia students and thousands from the public schools were in the ranks.

The naval review was magnificent. Six American men-of-war are anchored off Bedloe's Island. The French ships are brilliantly decorated. During the naval parade ten thousand rounds were fired from the battery park. Admission to the island is limited by ticket. M. DeLesseps' speech and Mr. Evart's orations were the features of the day. The unveiling of the statue was saluted with salvos of cannon from the combined fleet, forts below and Governor's Island, and the hurrahs of the spectators greeted Liberty's face.

Mr. Goff, of the American Electric Light Company, supplied the illumination of the statue. In the evening there were fireworks and a feu de joie was fired from the roof of the Hotel Normandie by the Second Battery. The Chamber of Commerce gave a dinner to the France guests. There has been no such parade and enthusiasm since Evacuation Day Centennial. The warm welcome to the French recalls the days of Lafayette.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

NO DEMAND RESPECTING EGYPT.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Standard says the French Ambassador has made no demand respecting England's withdrawal from Egypt, and that he brought no instructions of such a character.

THE COLONIAL EXHIBITION.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—At a meeting of exhibitors to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition to day, held in the Canadian Court, Sir Chas. Tupper, the High Commissioner for Canada, announced that the exhibition, which closes early next month, will reopen some time in June next, and will then remain open as a permanent exhibition. The announcement was greeted with much applause by a large number of exhibitors in attendance, and assurances were tendered to the High Commissioner by many Canadians that everything possible would be done to make the second exhibition as successful, if not more so, than the one in progress at present.

CHURCHILL'S RADICALISM.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Rumors are in persistent circulation that Lord Salisbury finds much difficulty in restraining the patrician members of the Government from resigning their offices as a protest against the radicalism of Lord Randolph Churchill, and that this difficulty is daily increasing. The Duke of Richmond, Lord John Manners and Col. Frederick A. Stanley are especially restive under the leadership of Lord Randolph Churchill, and a striking proof of the ultra Tory distrust of him is shown by the fact that at the recent secret election of the executive council of the Conservative Union, Lord Randolph Churchill was actually placed second to Mr. Ashmead Bartlett.

KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION.

CARIO, Oct. 28.—Three Egyptian Fusiliers were killed by the bursting of a shell which they found in the desert near Abassyeh. Several others of the party were badly wounded by the explosion.

STATE OF SIEGE AT SOFIA.

SOFIA, Oct. 28.—A state of siege has been established here in consequence of the Russians spreading a report that the Regents were to be arrested, imprisoned and deposed.

DIED IN THE PULPIT.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Rev. John Adams, of New York, died suddenly while delivering a sermon in the pulpit of the Calvinist chapel in Bettmaris, Wales. His ailment was heart disease.

THE DUTY ON WHEAT.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The customs committee of the Chamber of Deputies has decided in favor of the bill raising the duty on foreign wheat from three to five francs.

TAUNTING THE GOVERNMENT.

DUBLIN, Oct. 28.—The United Ireland tells Irish tenants that the time for political endurance is passed, and says it is for them to stand up and fight, hitting hard from the shoulder. The Unionists, it says, have been in power for six months and have not made an attempt to suppress the National League, which is stronger, more active and more resolute than ever, and laughs at Government devices, bluster and threats. The paper taunts the Government with being afraid to use coercion.

WAR IMMINENT.

Russia Threatening to Bombard Varna — Despatch of Armed Cruisers.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—It is rumored that the meeting of the Sobranje has been postponed, pending the attempts of the powers to persuade Russia to nominate a candidate for election to the Bulgarian throne.

RUSSIA MEN-OF-WAR.

The Russian Consuls at Rustchuk and Bourgos have been notified to expect men-of-war to protect Russian subjects.

SUSTAINING THE GOVERNMENT.

SOFIA, Oct. 28.—At a private meeting at Tirnova, of deputies belonging to the Government party, it was unanimously decided to adhere to the Governments policy towards Russia.

THREATENING TO BOMBARD VARNA.

Gen. Kaulbars telegraphs to the Regency advising the raising of the state of siege at Sofia and Varna. The Russian Consul at Varna threatens to order the Russian war ships to bombard the town unless the Prefect permits free access of Russo-Bulgarian partisans to the Russian consulate, or if he tries to prevent the landing of sailors from the war ships.

THE REGENCY QUESTION.

The members of the Sobranje are preparing to elect a Regent to replace M. Karaveloff.

RUSSIAN OCCUPATION OF VARNA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—The Herald (a German paper) says there are 400 troops on board the Russian cruisers despatched to Varna, and that they have orders to occupy that city if the Russians who were illegally arrested are not released. The Novoe Vremya says the despatching of cruisers to Varna is the beginning of the end of the crisis. The temporary occupation of Varna will be a guarantee against fresh violation of the rights of Russian subjects.

THREATENING WAR NEWS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The news from the East to-night is of a very threatening character, and the opinion is strongly entertained in military and diplomatic quarters that war is imminent. The two Russian cruisers despatched to Varna with troops on board have arrived at that place. While they are ostensibly sent for the protection of Russian residents, it is believed some trivial pretext will be seized as an excuse for bombarding the town and occupying it. This will force the long threatened crisis and compel the powers, particularly Germany, which have been playing a dark game, to show their hands. The Russo-Turkish alliance is ruptured, and with Sir William White at Constantinople instead of the vacillating Sir Edward Thoronton, English interests will be safe and Russia's malign influence with the Porte will be checked.

LORD LANSDOWNE.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marchioness and suite sailed to-night from Liverpool on board the Allan line steamer Parisian. There were seventy saloon passengers, among whom were the Bishop of Algoma, Dr. Baldeker and Judge MacPherson, of County Grey. During his visit Lord Lansdowne investigated the condition of his Irish tenants, and made considerable reductions in their rents.

SLANDER THEIR SOLE POLICY.

FLY sheets in the interest of the Reform party are now being circulated through the Province. As they are distributed by Mr. W. T. R. Preston that fact, to all who know him, is sufficient to mark them as being dishonest, abusive and slanderous. We will give a few specimens of this new manifestation of the only Reform policy in Ontario—the policy of slander.

One fly sheet is on alleged ill treatment of the Indians of the Northwest. The gravest charge of starving them, is a forgery inserted into the report of Mr. Herchmer, words he never uttered being fraudulently inserted. General charges of immorality are brought against the whole body of officials in the Northwest, and ministers are pretended to be quoted, though in fact they said that such cases were only exceptional among the officials, and included other classes of the community in their censure. No specific charge against an individual has been brought forward.

Another leaflet gives figures of a pretended increase in the number of departmental employees. A comparison with the official returns shows that the true figures have been nearly doubled. And no allowance is made for the necessary increase in such departments as the Post Office.

One flysheet gives pretended instances of Dominion Ministers being bribed with money or offices. To show the frivolous nature of the bulk of these charges we will take a case well known locally, that of the appointment of Mr. R. Romaine as Superintendent of Printing and Stationery Clerk. Mr. Romaine's qualifications for the office are well known and he has been able to save the public sums far in excess of his salary, yet his appointment is put down as a corrupt act of the Hon. Thos. White. Still more vile is the Preston-like charge against a lady, simply because she is the wife of the foremost statesman in Canada.

Another leaflet professes to give particulars of the cost of unnecessary and improper superannuations. A case well known in Peterborough, that of Mr. John Langton, with an amount greater than any of those given, has been dropped from their list, no doubt in consequence of our exposure of the fact that it was the previous Reform Administration that superannuated Mr. Langton prematurely with the corrupt object of rewarding with his office a Reform politician for great, but tainted, party services.

Another of these romances deals with the increase in the public debt. These figures are doctored in a variety of dishonest ways. For instance, a sham comparison is made with United States indebtedness, without taking into account the separate State debts. No deduction is made from the gross totals of the assumption by the Dominion of Provincial debts, making no addition to the indebtedness of the people, but only as to the ledger in which the debt is recorded and the channel through which the interest is paid. By such devices the truth is hidden that the yearly increase of indebtness was greater under the Reform Administration than under Conservative management.

These specimens collected without close examination are sufficient to show the character of this dirty mass of unsavoury documents. Forgery, fraud, misrepresentation, abuse and concealment of the truth are their main ingredients.

They are worthy of Mr. Preston, they are worthy of Messrs. Blake and Mowat who have shown that they do not hesitate to dabble with crime if they can hope to gain any party advantage. Murder and rebellion in Quebec, secession in the Maritime Provinces, slander in Ontario, such are their substitutes for any practical policy.

Result of a Forced Marriage.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of J. H. Bulmer, a son of Wm. Bulmer of the Excise Department, for neglecting to provide for his wife and child. Four years ago the now Mrs. Bulmer came to this country, was introduced to Bulmer, got engaged and with promise of marriage he seduced her. He left the city when asked to fulfill his promise. She followed him to Pullman, Ill. He again put her off, saying he was not in a position to marry. They went to Chicago, where he again left her and returned to Montreal. In Chicago a child was born and she came on here and got him arrested. This was a great blow to his family, as he was engaged to be married to another lady. Money was offered and refused. When told that nothing but marriage would satisfy he consented and they were married at midnight, and a few days ago he deserted his wife and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Fire at Aylmer.

AYLMER, Oct. 26.—A serious fire broke out in Mulligan's block, Mains street, this morning, completely destroying two dwelling houses besides several barns, sheds and out houses, and the bakery belonging to Mr. Mulligan. Loss about $800, of which $3500 was insured.

New Fishing Industry.

VICTORIA, B.C., Oct. 28.—A fishing expedition which has returned to the city from the west coast reports black cod on the bands in immense numbers. This industry will be prosecuted hereafter vigorously.

Sproule to be Executed.

VICTORIA, B.C., Oct. 28.—Sheriff McMillan has been advised that the law must take its course with respect to Sproule on Friday, when he will be hanged.

Dr. Ferguson, M.P., and Mr. Alex Fraser, of Thorold, have been nominated by the Liberal-Conservatives of Welland as their candidates for the Commons and Local Legislature at the ensuing elections.

THE MARKET REPORTS.

REVIEW OFFICE,
Thursday, Oct. 28st,

The deliveries of wheat this week have been far short of the local demand, to say nothing of buying for shipment. The receipts of barley have been light, peas moderate, and oats average. There has been an improvement of two cents per bushel in oats, the top price now being 30 cents. Butter is coming in slowly, with 15 cents for firkin butter a ruling price. The movement in dressed hogs has not fairly commenced, though a few have been received. Apples are selling from $2.00 to $2.50 per barrel. A large consignment from the west is expected in November.

Business Outlook.

By W. Claxton.

Although these articles are published in the DAILY REVIEW, they are really written for the WEEKLY, which has a large circulation in the country. They are written more particularly in the interest of the farmer for his information and benefit, and to assist him, in some measure, in deciding when and where he should sell his produce. As long as these articles are continued they will state facts, as nearly as they can be ascertained, without any compromise. Statements will be given of the markets in this vicinity, and also of foreign markets, with a general outlook of the business, and the writer's impressions as to the future of the markets and prices.

THE OUTLOOK.—In the outlook of last week I stated that the deliveries of barley were large in Lindsay, Omemee and Millbrook, and moderate in Peterborough. I did not think it necessary to state the reason why, as I thought it would be easily inferred. Grain will find the best markets as naturally as water will run into a hollow place. I also stated that competition in this market was "sharp" and prices higher. That statement may have had something to do with the large deliveries here on Saturday last, and farmers who brought their barley for sale on that day may have thought that the article was misleading. The competition among buyers here was of short duration, and on Saturday there were only two buyers on the street, and it looked as if an arrangement had been come to, as the price was put down to 55 cents, while there was no change in outside markets, Toronto, on the street, was 63. The railway freight to Toronto is 3 cents. In Lindsay, where it may be said there is very little competition, the price was 55 cents.

This state of things will soon effect its own cure. During the last two or three years Millbrook and Omemee lost their prestige as good markets. Millbrook during the last thirty years was one of the best markets in the country, and a very large business was done there in grain, which built up the village and made it a business place, having two banks and several large stores. Owing to the falling off, alluded to above, there was a good opening, a large outside dealer in grain saw it, and he is now buying freely in Millbrook and Omemee. This will account for the large deliveries this autumn at these points. A buyer at Omemee took in one day last week 5,000 bushels of barley, and if the other buyer there from Oshawa did his share of the work it would make 10,000 bushels for one day. There are three good buyers at Millbrook. These remarks do not apply to wheat in Peterborough as the mills are anxious to get it, and are paying very full prices. If this market for barley should not maintain its good character, outside buyers will soon find it out and will come upon what should be the largest market east of Toronto. Since the above was written I find this morning that there are three buyers of barley on the street again, and, in consequence, prices better.

WHEAT.—The English and French markets are steady, with a better demand at gradually improving prices. In the States, in New York and Chicago, the fight between bulls and bears goes on and prices fluctuate rapidly every day.

BARLEY.—Barley in the States is steady and the prices firm for small lots. Malsters are taking a good deal of Western States barley which is good in quality this year, and sells cheaper than Canadian.

CHEESE.—Cheese is steady. England keeps up well. Ontario factory men are holding back their stocks.

OATS.—There is no change in oats. The price keeps low.

BUTTER.—Butter is opening at 15 cents here for local wants. Nothing doing in exports to England so far. The price is too high for shipping.

Foreign.

British Live Stock.

Liverpool Correspondence, Montreal Gazette.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 16.—Arrivals of foreign cattle were less this week, consisting of 760 cattle from Boston and 410 cattle and 2,100 sheep from Montreal. Locally the demand is weak and values have not advanced with the firmness shown in other markets. On Monday the bulk of our Canadian stock was secondary quality, and, despite the shorter supply, some difficulty was experienced in closing out. As regards sheep, the general supplies of home stock were lighter, the offerings of Canadian, on the other hand, being heavier. Sellers were holding out for a little more money, calculating that the short supply would bring it, but last week's prices, 13c., had to be taken, buyers refusing to give more. In London business was considerably better, Canadians making 1c. per pound more than here, a falling off in the numbers at Deptford giving Islington the call for beef. Sheep sold fairly well, too, at prices much about the same as those current in Liverpool, say 13c. @ 13¼c. At Birkenhead an improved feeling is reported, and bright fresh beef is worth 10½c.

JESUS RISEN.

DR. JOHN HALL'S NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson V of the International Series for Sunday, Oct. 31—Golden Text, "The Lord Is Risen Indeed, and Hath Appeared Unto Simon"—Lesson Text, John xx, 1-18.

If the report of any startling occurrence goes to the parties concerned by those who "happen to know," and not by one special messenger, they get their information at various times and in various ways. Some hear soon, some late, some from one party, some from another, some one portion of it, some another. So it was here. Hence four writers, each having his own object in his selection of facts, may easily seem to vary one from the other. Their seeming variations prove that there was no collusion or conspiracy. John is here bent on showing how Mary Magdalen came to be the messenger to confirm the faith of the disciples. Hence the beginning of his narrative.

V. 1. So early in the morning that it was yet dark Mary Magdalen was at the sepulcher, not alone, as the other gospels show, though she speaks only for herself in v. 13. She had been at the cross (John xix, 25). She noticed the stone rolled away by an angel, as Matt. xxviii, 2, describes. But she did not know how it was done, and unprepared like the rest for the resurrection—plainly, as Jesus had foretold it—she felt as the disciples did. So (V. 2) in her eager haste she runs to Peter and John, and in words characteristic of her states the case. He is still her Lord; she has not changed her view of Him from His having died on the cross. She does not feel it necessary to define the deer of this second wrong. "They have" his enemies, who crucified him. She (Matt. xxviii, 5) had others with her, but she is singled out, hence, perhaps, "we know not," etc. So in sorrow, helplessness and bereavement the human heart craves sympathy.

V. 3. Peter and John at once went to the sepulchre, accepting her view so far, yet naturally wishing to see for themselves. John was the younger, Peter was the more impulsive. John was first at the door, Peter was first to go into the sepulchre (v. 4). Little things show character.

V. 5. Hence John only stooped down into the opening cut into the rock and saw the linen clothes lying. Yes, there were the garments; the body was not there. So far Mary's account is confirmed.

V. 6. Now Simon Peter comes up, passes in, sees the same thing and more. The napkin (V. 7), which it was the custom, as we see from Lazarus' case (John xi, 44), to bind about the head, was not thrown with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself. This implied order, perhaps reverence for all connected with the buried Master, and certainly the feeling of right and time to make all decent. Who had loosed Him and let Him go?

V. 8. One believer gives courage to another. John now enters and sees the same facts and reaches the same conviction. Yes; Jesus' body has been somehow taken away. He believed this, or that Jesus had risen in the true sense

(V. 9), for as yet they know not, did not understand, his meaning and its fulfillment of Scripture when he spoke of rising from the dead. "Yes," they probably thought, "he when he has founded the kingdom, like David and Solomon, will fall asleep and like others rise again." But he had defined the time—the third day. This they did not take in; they did not have the preparation of mind for it which the Scriptures understood would have given them (Ps. xvi, 10). So it is that the Bible, rightly understood, prepares us to realize the meaning of the facts and statements otherwise dark.

V. 10. There seemed no more to be done. The disciples turned homeward. Not so Mary. Women to this day visit and linger around graves when men are otherwise occupied. She lingered at the tomb weeping. She, too, was moved to look in. To her appeared what the disciples were not permitted to see. The honor was for her. She stooped down, and there were two angels sitting, the one where had been the head and the other where had been the feet of the sacred body (v. 12). Their look and bearing showed what they were according to the traditional and Bible view of the ministering spirits. But she is so absorbed with the thought of Christ that she does not linger upon them. They are calm, at their posts for the time. They have been serving the Lord of angels. They have been permitted to look into the mysteries of redemption. They can report to "principalities and powers in heavenly places" what took place.

V. 13. There is nothing we see disrespectful in "woman." They so address her. They speak in sympathy. Angels have much in common with human believers. We shall be with, and equal to, the angels. They put the question to draw out her mind and to prepare her for the answer. Her reply is as she had spoken to the two disciples. The Gospel of Matt. xxviii, 1-8 having given all this—dwelling on the angel who acted as spokesman—John does not dwell on it, but hastens on to the interview with Jesus himself.

V. 14. Still absorbed in the thought of Jesus, she noticed a man standing, and the gardener being the natural person to look for in the place, and the natural person to do anything in the garden, she set down the words even of Jesus to him (v. 15), and replied accordingly—"Sir, if thou have," etc. Here it is that Jesus speaks her name.

V. 16. The voice is familiar; she remembers its tones. She turns. It is Jesus, her Lord; and "Master!" she calls him, in glad surprise, and probably with a movement toward him, as would be natural in the circumstances.

V. 17. This would imply a lengthened interview, questions, answers, etc., and he tells her that it is not needful or wise to linger over them now, for he is not immediately going. The immediate thing is to relieve the minds of, as he tenderly puts it, "my brethren," and to tell them that the new form of his work, the triumphant part, and the part which also looked to them—namely the giving of the comforter—is close at hand. Again he puts the utmost tenderness into his words—"my Father and your Father," etc. He indicates even here the closeness of union between him and them. How wonderful! not a word of their weakness, not a reproach, not a hint of injured feelings! All is forgiven and forgotten: my God and your God."

V. 18. Mary Magdalen, warned against any show of feeling or delay so produced, immediately does as she is directed. She told the disciples she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her. On the feelings thus called out he does not linger. (See John xxi, 25).

In summing up the practical truth taught in this lesson it is fit to raise such questions as the following:

(1) This day, the finishing in a sense of the new creation, deserves to be remembered. He rose on "the Lord's day." Again and again the risen Saviour appeared to disciples on this day; on the next Lord's day to the eleven; on a later Lord's day sent down the Spirit. No wonder preaching was usual on that day as at Troas (Acts xx, 7), and meetings for worship as we see in I Cor. xvi, 1-2. So believers often are like John (Rev. i, 10), "in the Spirit on the Lord's day."

(2) Why are the little details regarding the garments of the dead and buried, even the napkin, reported? Do they show that this was not a deed of secret plotting? of hurried violence? of stealing?

(3) Why does Mary Magdalen come so prominently forward? Is it meant to show how Christianity gives woman a high place? Has it any lesson of love and faithful adherence to Christ as sure to be acknowledged?

(4) Does the look of quiet and repose and angel attendants give us any idea of death overcome? of the grave as meantime a safe and quiet place for the bodies of saints till their resurrection day?

(5) Is Jesus seen here raised up, certified by God as having paid the debt—for the prison door is opened? And is it for himself only, or for his people also? What is the meaning of "ascend to my Father, and your Father," etc.?

(6) Are the details suggestive of the value of little things? Of the Master's thought of John and of Mary and of the rest? Perhaps of their care in decently burying his body?

(7) And is not the silence suggestive too? Is there a word of these as "holy relics?"—Sunday School World.

Wrecked on Superior.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—A telegram from Port Arthur reports a heavy storm on Lake Superior. The schooner Pride of America was seen off Princess bay flying a flag of distress. She is thought to have since been wrecked. The steamer Glasgow is also reported wrecked. The steamer A. Neff was wrecked in Montreal Channel, but no lives were lost.

Illicit Still Seized.

BRUSSELS, Ont., Oct. 27.—A Cavan, Collector of Inland Revenue, Stratford, seized an illicit still to-day in the township of Howrick and had two of the proprietors arrested and sentenced to two months' imprisonment and a penalty of $400.

DO THEY KNOW THEMSELVES?

It is now claimed that the publication in the Official Gazette of the returns of members elected to the Legislative Assembly will convey to the Lieutenant-Governor an official intimation whether or not the Government has been sustained. If this is the case the election returns will contain more information than they generally do, for they will not only show what candidates are elected, but how they are going to vote. The Clerk of the Crown in Chancery would have to know more about the members than some of them know about themselves.—Montreal Star (Ind p.)

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

GO!

It is remarkable how ou Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans go. Our success this Season has been unparalleled, (considering the fine warm weather) in making up Ulsters, Mantles and Dolmans from our very complete stock.

The Autumn chill, the Winter Snow,
The heavy dew, the pattering rain,
The frost that bites, the winds that blow,
Invade our Ulsters all in vain.

No careless folds our Ulsters show,
But round the human form divine
The perfect fit will still disclose
The rounding form, the curving line.

Faultless fit, correct styles, good variety, excellent work, and a great saving in price will be found in Alexander's Mantles, Ulsters and Dolmans made to order.

A Grand Exhibit.

In its account of the Cavan exhibition at Millbrook the Messenger says:—"Porter Bros., the great carriage makers, of Peterborough, had a grand exhibit on hand, being no less than a whole car load, consisting of double and single carriages, phætons, cutters, sleighs, etc. They carried off four first and one second prize. Several rigs were not entered, but only on exhibit."

Next Week's Engagement.

Mr. J. M. Cook, Manager of the Japanese Colony Company, is registered at the Grand Central Hotel. The company will open an engagement in the Opera House on Tuesday evening. The entertainments given by the company are spoken of by the press as being quite novel. The Colony represent the Japanese in their daily occupations, and this being the case the entertainments will possess not only interest but much information This company is composed of real Japanese, who have only been in this country for the past seven months, and dress in their native costumes. A Japanese lady also accompanies the troop.

Such is Life.

Public opinion is often referred to in these days, when the opinions of the people shape the policies of governments and rule the destinies of nations. Usually there are two or three important subjects that engross the attention of the people, so far as public matters are concerned. Just now these matters are, in our own little city, the coming elections, who will be the candidates, the Scott Act fines, the midnight burglars, etc. On important subjects public opinion is almost always divided, and generally into two different sides, with, perhaps a few scattered people who have independent or erratic opinions of their own and shared by no one else. This is shown in connection with the Scott Act fines. One party is trying to get the fines for the town, another party is looking after the fines for the Association, and the third party, who are, perhaps, acting the most sensible of all, are just letting things take their course—not caring a button whether school keeps or not. Yet all three parties, and the general public, agree on some things, as in praising the progressive business men of our town. There are, again, some subjects that might be called staple subjects of discussion, such as fashions. On fashions tastes differ, and people are not a unit, but, like politicians, they agree on some points, and all gentlemen shout "hear, hear," when it is stated that the place to procure Clothing is at A. MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

THE INITIAL WEDDING.

The First Marriage in the New St. Andrew's Church.

On Thursday afternoon the first marriage solemnized in the new St. Andrew's Church took place in that edifice, the groom being Mr. A. W. Brodie, of the Peterborough Woollen Mills, and the bride being Miss Maggie, second daughter of Mr. Geo. Edmison.

Although it rained considerably all afternoon, at half past four o'clock the church was well filled with people. The front seats were divided from the rest, they being reserved for the wedding guests.

At five o'clock Mr. Brodie, and Mr. E. W. Cox, the groomsman, entered the church and took their places before the altar. Shortly after the bride arrived, leaning on her father's arm, the organ sounding the introductory offeratory as they came down the aisle. She was followed by the bridesmaids, Miss M. Brodie and Miss M. Edmison. The bride wore a silver grey travelling dress of plush, and a slate colored travelling hat. The bridesmaids each wore electric blue cashmere trimmed with plush, and felt hats to match.

When before the altar a choir of twenty voices sang a hymn and the Rev. A. Bell led in prayer. He then addressed the groom and bride, impressing on them the solemn and lasting contract they were about to enter upon and closing with words of advice to both.

The marriage ceremony was gone through, and the contracting parties were pronounced man and wife.

When this was over, in conformity with the custom, the pastor presented the groom with a bible, given by the congregation on the occasion of the first marriage taking place in the church.

The Rev Mr. BELL in making the presentation said: On behalf of the representatives of the congregation I have been requested to present you with this bible as an expression of their good will toward you, and of what they wish for you. It might have been larger and more ornamental in design, but as you see it is for use. The givers hope that you will both use it and that you may be blessed by its use.

As the bridal party entered the vestry the organ played the "Wedding March," and the people present left the church.

Lunch was served at the residence of the bride's father, and Mr. and Mrs. Brodie left town on the 6.45 train on a trip for Boston, New York and other places.

The presents which the bride received were unusually handsome. They consisted of a large amount of silverware, china, fancy work, etc. Two presents it may be permissable to mention: One a silver-mounted pickle cruet from the bride's Sabbath school class, and the other an elegant bronze clock, mounted on alabaster, the gift of her grandfather, now ninety-two years of age.

THE GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

The Alterations now all Made—Improvements in the Church.

During the past seven weeks Mr. A. Clegg and his men have been busy in making considerable changes in the auditorium and choir galleries of the George Street Methodist Church. The alterations are now all made, but on account of there being a considerable amount of cleaning up to do the church will not be ready for use before Sunday, November 7th.

The appearance of the auditorium will quite surprise those who have not yet been inside the church since the alterations were made. The large vestry which formerly stood behind the pulpit has been taken away altogether and the pulpit platform has been moved back ten feet. This has made room for eighty-six new sittings in the auditorium. This gain in the number of sittings is somewhat diminished by the loss in the remoddling of the trancept galleries, for here the sittings are less in number by 54.

In reality, however, a gain has been made in the galleries as well as in the auditorium. Formerly most of those who were pressed into the trancept galleries had to sit behind the preacher. By the moving back of the pulpit platform all of these seats have been made as much to be sought after as any in the church. The reason why the trancept galleries were narrowed was, that by extending over so far, as formerly, those in the back trancept seats below heard very indistinctly. There were about forty sittings in each trancept which were avoided on almost all occasions. These, too, as it is now arranged, are made valuable sittings.

What is the greatest change of all is the lowering of the choir gallery. Instead of being about seven feet above the pulpit platform, a slight elevation and a gallery rail of a Gothic pattern, alone divides the two. There is now room for a choir of 30, while there is also ample space for the new organ behind. The new organ, which is expected by "the patient congregation," as the pastor calls them, by the 1st December, is to be 23 feet 6 inches high and 23 feet wide.

The taking away of the old vestry necessitated the provision of a new one. This has been done, a comfortable room has been fitted up near the entrance to the south trancept gallery.

The changes made have affected a great improvement in the appearance of the auditorium, besides making it much easier for the pastor to make himself heard by the whole congregation.

Credit is due to Mr. Clegg for having pushed the work on so rapidly. Had it not been for extra work done, the church would have been ready for re-occupation by last Sunday.

A HANDSOME PRESENT.

Presented by the Factory Hands to Mr. A. W. Brodie.

On the occasion of Mr. A. W. Brodie's marriage the employees of the Woollen Mill presented him with a very handsome piece of silverware. The presentation was made on Thursday, the following address being read:—

To A. W. Brodie, Esq., Peterborough Woollen Mills:

We, the employees of the Peterborough Woollen Mills, beg to offer our sincere congratulations and good wishes on your approaching marriage, and to beg your acceptance of the accompanying water pitcher as a small tribute of our respect and esteem for you, and as an expression of our appreciation of the kindness, urbanity and consideration with which you have always treated us in your capacity as Principal of the above mills.

We earnestly hope that your union with Miss Edmison may be a happy one, and that you and your bride may enjoy a long life of happiness and prosperity is the wish cordially concurred in by all concerned.

Signed on behalf of the employees,

Charles Knapp,	Jas. Kerr,
Geo. Fligg,	Robt. Purvis,
George Way,	D. Woodhead,
John Brooke.

Mr. Brodie replied in a suitable manner.

The piece of silver is exceptionally handsome. It stands three feet high, and is mounted on a solid pedestal. It is a tilting pitcher, tastefully designed, and has two gold lined cups and a gold lined slop bowl. It was purchased by the hands from Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, at whose silverware exhibit during the Central Exhibition it formed an attractive feature.

Messrs. Sherwood & Co.

Have been favored with instructions from Mr. Robert Neil to sell by public auction to-morrow (Saturday) the whole of J. W. Miller's bankrupt stock of Boots and Shoes at his old stand under the town clock, commencing at 1 o'clock p.m., and in the evening at 7.30. Positively no reserve as the goods must and shall be sold.

Scott Act.

Inspector Darling had four Scott Act cases before the Court this morning. Charges were laid against Mrs. Preneveau, Havelock, Oscar Brennan, Norwood, Hugh Beckett, Norwood, and Hugh Ray, Ashburnham. No evidence being forthcoming in the first mentioned case the charge was dismissed with costs. The two Norwood men pleaded guilty and were fined $50 and costs. The case against Mr. Ray was proved and a fine of $50 and costs imposed.

Reception.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Fairbairn, Miss Roger and Miss Rachel Roger, who have been travelling for some time, were tendered a social reception in the St. Paul's Church school room by the ladies of the congregation. Mrs. Fairbairn has been away for about three months and a half, having been visiting friends in Scotland. The Misses Fairbairn have been in Australia for the past two years and a half. In welcoming them home on behalf of the congregation the Rev. E. F. Torrance referred to the fact that the family having been identified with the congregation from its inception. Mr. Roger had been chiefly instrumental in forming it, and the family had during all these years been foremost in all projects in the interest of the church. On behalf of the congregation he gave them a hearty welcome. The evening passed away very pleasantly, social conversation, music and refreshments happily succeeding each other.

Cutting in a New Role.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 28.—It is a matter of common talk here that A. K. Cutting, who recently figured as a persecuted American citizen in Mexico, is trying to organize a filibustering expedition of 10,000 men to invade and conquer the states of Chihuahua, Sonoro and Durango, and turn them into a socialist republic. Great aid is expected from the Yaqui Indians and the Mexican revolutionists. It is claimed that capitalists of New York and Chicago, are considering the granting of a loan to the filibusters, taking as security bonds of the new republic and liens upon the mineral deposits therein. The Mormon church is also claimed to be ready with financial aid in consideration of being a secure haven from American persecution.

The Church and K. of L.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 28.—A conference of Archbishops was held to-day at the Cardinal's palace. The subject under discussion was the attitude of the Catholic Church towards the Knights of Labor. The result of the deliberations was not made public, but a prominent churchman intimated to-night that the prelates were disposed to look favorably on the organization. The matter will be referred to the Vatican for approval, and will be put in the form of a circular, which will be taken to Rome by Bishops Keane, of Richmond, and Spalding of Peoria, to whom have been entrusted letters to the Pope relating to the new Catholic University.

Plot to Poison a President.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.—Advices from Guatemala state that a servant of President Varillas lately confessed to having been paid by a number of merchants to put poison in the President's food. The accused persons are now on trial. It is considered certain they will be hanged.

Use the Old and Reliable.

Catarrh destroys the senses of smell, taste and hearing, rapidly becomes offensive, and often culminates in consumption and insanity. Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

THE REMEDY:

The Peterborough Mattrass Company

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

Great German Hair Magic!

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Dobegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

REPEAL IN NOVA SCOTIA.

The Father of the Movement Urges Repealers to Support Mr. Blake.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 29.—Mr. James A. Fraser, M. P. P., for Guysboro, the father of the repeal movement in Nova Scotia, publishes a long letter urging the repealers to support Mr. Blake as the only man likely to give repeal. Mr. Blake recently said that a great constitutional crime had been committed in Nova Scotia in 1867. Mr. Fraser says he cannot refuse, when he gets into power, to make restitution for that crime on the miserable plea that the crime was committed nineteen years ago. Mr. Fraser says Mr. Blake can do nothing to make the union acceptable or satisfactory, and in case he refuses separation, then his coming to power would be only a change of masters. Contrasting Mr. Blake's promise that if Nova Scotia was dissatisfied after five years of union, he would do nothing to compel her to stay with Sir John's record. Mr. Fraser denounces the latter as one of the arch-conspirators of Confederation, and expresses the belief that Sir John would rather shoot the Nova Scotians as a pack of wolves to allowing the Province to secede. Discussing the masterly inactivity of the local government in securing repeal. Mr. Fraser shows that it is no use for them to appeal to Ottawa; that even the present Federal members of Nova Scotia are not relied upon, and it is no use to go to the Imperial Government until after Nova Scotia elects a majority of repealers to the Dominion Parliament. He believes the local government is sincere in its repeal programme, and says that if Mr. Fielding betrays the trust reposed in him he will cover his name with everlasting shame and disgrace. He concludes a two column letter with this significant harangue: "If the present members from Nova Scotia are returned to the Commons at the next election, while holding their present opinions, I have no hesitation in stating that the further progress of the repeal movement is indefinitely postponed."

Justin McCarthy does not appear to take any stock in the repeal agitation, for in the opening sentence of his lecture on the cause of Ireland last night he spoke of "the happiness and prosperity of Nova Scotia as a living testimony to the happy result of Home Rule, while the cementing of the several provinces made up the adhesiveness and solidity of the Dominion. Archbishop O'Brien, who presided, spoke of Canada as having "the happiest combination of true liberty, and self-government known on earth."

The Welland Aqueduct.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 26.—The last stone on this stupendous work was laid yesterday in the presence of Chief Engineer Page, Capt. Thompson, Engineer of the southern section of the canal; Mr. Ellis, superintendent, and the Mayor and other leading citizens of Welland. Mr. Page expressed himself highly pleased with the successful completion of the undertaking and the excellence of the work. It is expected that next spring the work will be so far completed as to be open for navigation.

Sproule Hanged.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 29.—Robert Evan Sproule, the American citizen, was hanged here this morning for the murder of Thos. Hammell in June, 1885, at the Kootenay mines. Sproule ascended the scaffold without a tremor and made a short speech, protesting his innocence.

A LOTTERY SCHEME.

The People Interested Said to be from Peterborough.

The Montreal Gazette publishes the following:—"Some days ago we received an enquiry from the State of Ohio in regard to the bona fides of a Royal Canadian lottery that is being extensively advertised there. Yesterday a letter was received from Scotland, enclosing the following advertisement, cut from a paper published in the town where the writer lived, and asking for such particulars as could be gathered in regard to the scheme:—

ROYAL COLONIZATION LOTTERY, DOMINION OF CANADA.

AUTHORIZED BY ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

A GRAND CHANCE TO SECURE A FORTUNE.

£50,000 TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

OVER 2,200 PRIZES, RANGING FROM £5,000 DOWNWARDS.

IT WILL COST BUT FIVE SHILLINGS TO TRY YOUR LUCK! AND IT MAY BRING YOU £5,000.

BANKERS: THE BANK OF MONTREAL, MONTREAL.

The first great drawing of the Royal Colonization Lottery, Dominion of Canada, will take place in the City of Montreal, Canada,

ON THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1886, when fifty thousand pounds worth of real estate and other valuable property will be distributed. The following is the GRAND PRIZE LIST.

				Value.
One capital prize, real estate				£ 5,000
One	do	do	.....	3,000
One	do	do	.....	2,000
Two splendid prizes	do	£1,000	each.....	2,000
Four	do	do 500	"	2,000
100 homestead farms	at	200	"	20,000
50 town lots	at	100	"	5,000
100	do	at 50	"	5,000
1,000 prizes	at	4	"	4,000
1,000 prizes	at	2	"	2,000
Grand total to be given away.....				£50,000

☞ The real estate is warranted to be worth the money value placed upon it, and while the lottery is to assist a colonization society to settle the fertile lands of the magnificent Province of Quebec, it is prepared to find a purchaser for the lands within sixty days from the day of the drawing, at a discount of 5 per cent., should winners of prizes prefer cash.

Tickets, five shillings each, will be promptly forwarded on receipt of price. To clubs or individuals purchasing 10 tickets 5 per cent. discount will be made; 25 tickets 10 per cent. discount; 50 tickets 15 per cent. discount; 100 tickets 17½ per cent. discount; 200, 20 per cent. discount; 500 and over, 25 per cent. discount will be made. A limited number of live agents wanted.

All money to be sent by registered letter, P. O. order, or bank draft. Address:

JAMES A. ELLIS, SEC.-TREAS.,
157 ST. JAMES STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

"The thing is evidently a brazen fraud, got up for the sole purpose of swindling whoever may be foolish enough to use their money in buying tickets. No Royal Colonization or any other lottery has been authorized by the Canadian Parliament. The bank of Montreal, through its general manager, when enquiries were made of that gentlemen, repudiated all knowledge of the matter, and the use of their name in the "prospectus" is altogether unathorized. Enquiry at 157 St. James street, showed that nothing was known of James A. Ellis. The number is that of the Standard Insurance Company building, to the manager of which Ellis is unknown. At the post office, also, nothing could be learned of the Royal Colonization lottery, or of its manager, to whose address it has not been noticed that any letters have been received. The attention of the authorities having been called to the matter, however, the mails will be closely watched and if possible a stop will be put to the fraud, as was done in the case of the St. Stephen lottery a year or so ago. The advertisements have evidently been extensively circulated both in the old country and the United States. This work must have been done recently, as the crop of letters that such advertisements never fail to draw forth from those anxious to make money without working for it has not begun to show itself. Some tickets have, it is known, been sold in Scotland, and possibly in other places as well. This may be done by local agents and no money need have been sent to this city.

"There is some reason to think that parties in Peterborough, Ont., may be concerned in the matter. Whether Ellis hails from that town, however, is not known. Probably the name is an assumed one, under which some agent, possibly a local confederate, was to receive the letters and rake in the plunder. It is known that persons from Peterborough were not long since looking for office accommodation in this city with some such object in view The rest is conjecture."

THE MARTYR BISHOP.

Diary of Bishop Hannington, Murdered by Order of the King of Uganda.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The diary of Bishop Hannington, who was put to death by order of King Muanga of Uganda, Africa, has been published, giving the details of the last week of his life. He describes the arrival of his party at Lubwas, where a chief, at the head of a thousand troops, demanded ten guns and three barrels of powder. The chief asked Bishop Hannington to remain with him for a day and the latter complied. While taking a walk the Bishop was attacted by about 20 natives and struggled with his assailants, but became weak and faint and was dragged violently a long distance by the legs. When his persecutors halted they stripped and robbed and imprisoned him in a noisome hut full of vermin and decaying bananas. While he was lying ill and helpless, the chief and his hundred wives came out of curiosity to feast their eyes on him. On the next day he was allowed to return to his tent, where, though ill, he felt more comfortable. He was guarded, however, by natives. He remained in bed during the following days. Parties of the Chief's wives, out of idle curiosity, came daily to see him. He was let send messages to friends, but he believed they were intercepted. On the seventh day he writes that the fever continued; that at night the place swarmed with vermin; that the guards were drunk and noisy and that he was unable to sleep. At last he became delirious. On the eighth day, September 29th, he was conscious. His entries on this day are brief: "No news. A hyena howled all night, smelling the sick man. I hope he will not have me yet." This is the final entry. It is believed that shortly after writing this he was taken out and put to death.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

A PETTY KING'S REVOLT.

LISBON, Oct. 29.—The Government is in receipt of advices that a petty king who rules over 30,000 natives at Euhambane, a town at the entrance of the Mozambique Channel, has revolted against the authority of Portugal, attacked and defeated the Portuguese garrison, and is now besieging the fort. A corvette has been sent from here.

FATHER SHEEHY'S VIEWS.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Father Sheehy, in a speech at Plymouth last evening, admitted that he had been converted from a separatist to a Home Ruler. Once, he said he prayed to God to save Ireland; now he besought the Almighty to save England for Ireland's sake.

WHOLESALE DISMISSALS.

MADRID, Oct. 29.—A profound sensation has been created throughout Spain by the simultaneous dismissal of 16,000 first-class sergeants from the Spanish army and other changes in the organization of the military service. Among the changes is the promotion of 1,300 sub-lieutenants to the rank of lieutenants.

THREAD MILLS BURNED.

LONDON, Oct 28.—Chadwick's thread mills at Bolton, Lancashire, were partly destroyed by fire this morning. Lost £40 000.

LIBERAL SUPPORT PROMISED.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Daily News says: "Since Lord Randolph Churchill adheres to his Dartford programme it may be accepted as an accomplished thing. Its principles at no distant period will be incorporated in the statute books. While he will evidently have difficulty to carry his party with him on the closure question, he may count upon the assistance of the Liberals. The result, therefore, is practically assured. The dictionary meaning of 'Local Government' is 'Home Rule.' The only system Ireland will accept is one based upon the lines of Mr. Gladstone's measure. If Lord Randolph Churchill chooses to call it 'Local Government,' no serious objections can be raised."

FORBIDDEN TO PREACH.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Rev. Hugh Haweis, Vicar of St. James' Chapel, Marylebone, had been announced to preach a sermon in Dr. Parker's city temple this morning. A large audience assembled to hear the discourse, when Dr. Parker mounted the rostrum and astonished the assemblage by stating that the Bishop had forbidden Mr. Haweis to preach there. These were many cries of "shame" from the audience.

IRISH PRESBYTERIANS COMPLAIN.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29.—A deputation of Presbyterians called upon the Lord-Lieutenant yesterday, and complained that they had not a fair proportion of state honors and offices. The Lord-Lieutenant replied that it was his earnest desire to have the most efficient officials, and that all creeds should be represented in the Government service.

DISESTABLISHMENT ADVOCATED.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Baron Wolverton, speaking at a Wesleean bazaar yesterday, advocated the immediate disestablishment of the Church of England.

REDUCTION OR NO RENT.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29.—The Marquis of Headfort has refused to reduce his rents on his estates in the County Cavan. The tenants have accordingly resolved unanimously to to refuse to pay rents at present and each will subscribe a shilling for every acre of land he occupies towards a defence fund to be used to prevent their ejectment.

A PANIC EXPECTED.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The attention of the Government of Queensland having been drawn in the Legislative Assembly to the gold mine shares which are being offered in England, Premier Griffith has sent a cable despatch to the agent general for the colony in London, saying that he doubts whether the schemes in question are bona fide and cautioning investors against them. It is believed that a warning will produce a mining panic to-morrow.

ANOTHER SNUB.

VIENNA, Oct. 29.—The Political Correspondent says the regency of Bulgaria have sent a communication to Gen. Kaulbars, informidg him of their refusal to raise a state of seige at Sofia and Varna as he advised.

A PARTY OF PROGRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Sir Charles Russell, Home Ruler, speaking in London last evening, said it was evident that Lord Randolph Churchill realized that his party must be one of progress and in sympathy with the people. If the Tories dealt with Radical questions in a thorough and honest fashion, the Liberals would not grudge them credit for it.

KAULBARS' LATEST THREAT.

SOFIA, Oct. 29.—General Kaulbars, the Russian military agent, has addressed a fresh note to the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, in which he says: "In view of the arrival at Varna of Government emissaries, who are spreading reports that the presence of Russian gunboats there is without importance, I am compelled to inform you that these gunboats will vigorously affirm their importance if events render it necessary."

The November Elections.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 29.—On Tuesday next an election will be called for members of Congress in the several States in the Union, in which 318 members of the Lower House will be chosen. In order to secure a majority of one, the Republican party will have to make a net gain of 22 members. Seven States have already elected Governors this year, of whom four are Democrats and three Republicans. Seventeen States will choose Governors next Tuesday. Of these 9 have Republican Governors and 8 Democratic Governors. Besides electing State officers several states will vote on constitutional amendments.

Steamship Pavonia Ashore.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—The Cunard steamship Pavonia went ashore last night on High Rine ledge, three miles north of Granet Point during a thick fog. She lies in a very dangerous position. The Pavonia sailed from Liverpool for Boston, Oct. 19, and is a barkentine rigged screw steamer of 3469 tons.

A Gunboat for Metlakatlah.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 26.—Owing to the troubles at Metlakatlah, and the offensive attitude of the Duncan Indians toward Bishop Ridley and his friends, it has been thought best to despatch the gunboat on station to that place to preserve order. It will proceed at once.

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1886.

ATTENTION.

Attention is called to the announcement of a general meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association, and the friends of the Conservative party in the West Riding of Peterborough. In view of the importance of the business to be transacted a full attendance is desirable.

RULE OR RUIN.

Mr. Blake, speaking at Guelph, announced, according to the Globe's report, that the dissolution of the Dominion House of Commons and a general election were about to take place immediately. He went on to say:—

"Now is the time to save your country, for if you do not save it now, there is a risk that five years hence you may have no country to save."

Fortunately Mr. Blake's power is not so great as his vindictiveness. While in Opposition he and his friends have fostered and supported rebellion in the North-West, an exclusive race cry in Quebec, secession in Nova Scotia, and antagonism to confederation wherever found. Though we are confident the people of Canada will not entrust him or his friends with power, we have no fear that he will be successful in carrying out his threat as given above. His desire for "Rule or Ruin" is only likely to concentrate the forces of those who would weld together our great Dominion, and happily they form the great majority of the people.

HOME MANUFACTURES.

Now that the present Parliament of Canada is approaching its term there seems to be a strong tendancy among the Reformers to press into notice again their discredited free trade doctrines, to renew their advocacy of foreign in preference to Canadian manufactures. We have seen repeated several times lately one of their old arguments that a country cannot enrich itself by taxing itself, and that, therefore, high import duties can only be injurious.

This argument is founded upon a mere confusion of terms. An import duty and taxation are in no sense synonymous, as they would discover if they honestly considered the facts.

If we suppose a country to have determined to manufacture for itself as much as possible, and to exclude foreign manufactures if likely to compete with home goods, the desired end may be attained in various ways. It might be made penal to introduce the foreign goods, and so they would be excluded without any taxation. Or a duty might be imposed so high as to be prohibitory, and then there would be precisely the same results, the exclusion of the goods and non-taxation. This is the case in Canada now with many articles which our own people have thus the benefit of making.

But a revenue has to be obtained and this may as well be raised by import duties as by any other means. Canada under the N.P. thus raises a portion of its revenue, but it is chiefly from the finer articles that our manufacturers do not care to produce, so that this taxation mostly falls upon the rich and luxurious, upon those who are willing and able to pay for finer articles than content their neighbors. A man who is satisfied with ordinary plain good things like the bulk of his neighbors need pay very little for import duties if he is a total abstainer and does not smoke.

We are aware that the free traders sometimes advance one of their closet-made theories, that the price even of home manufactured goods is raised by the amount of the duty. This, however, they could not do if they made honest enquiries, and they cannot thus delude practical men. Almost without exception when foreign goods are excluded by the duty, internal competition reduces the price instead of permitting it to be raised. This is the case in Canada and any practical purchaser or enquirer finds that such goods have been cheapened not raised in price, which is sometimes even less than the duty.

The policy of the present Dominion Administration of encouraging Canadian manufactures in preference to foreign goods has become so popular that the Reform party has kept in the background in a great measure their opposition to it, but now many of their leading journals and speakers are reviving their old cry of antagonism to the protection of our home industries. Those who are interested in Canadian industries should, therefore, be careful not to restore to power those who are so little friendly to them.

OUR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me through the columns of your valuable journal to draw the attention of parents to the vast inference for good which the study of orchestral instruments would have on the the health and morals of the youth of this city. No better remedy can be found for those who are deficient in lung breathing power and nerve strength than the study of brass instruments, say the B flat cornet. The exertion needed for sounding it expands the lungs and vivifies the system generally. Bandsmen are as a rule very healthy men, and looking over the annals of crime we very rarely find musicians brought before the courts for offences against the law.

Let a boy in his earlier years learn the use of an orchestral instrument and you add to his life many hours of innocent pleasure. Music always refines a youth, drawing his attention from the coarser vices of gambling, drinking, cards, etc. With regard to boy's voices, they all change about the age of fourteen and do not become fit for use for several years. Thus the best years of a boy's life when memory is at its best are lost as regards music. Now, we find that all boys are very fond of band music. Let our boys take up the study of band instruments, and in one years time with one hours daily practice suprising results are obtained, even to the extent of playing together as a uniformed band, easy marches, etc. A few years elapse and the lads find themselves indespensible factors in the social life of the city they live in.

I have consulted with members of the Board in this city, and find that teachers can be secured for teaching boys in large classes, as is the custom in Germany and Austria, thus reducing the price of tuition to a very low figure. The classes could be taught from five to seven p. m., thus enabling the lads to get to their houses in due season. The instruments can be sold in the instalment plan on very easy terms, or by paying extra tuition fees, the use of the instruments allowed only in the Practicing Rooms. There is no earthly reason why, if our citizens will take this matter up with some little enthusiasm, why we should not see in one year's time a band of one hundred performers in becoming uniform marching through the streets of this bright and pretty city of Peterborough.

I have spoken to many of the boys, and they are delighted at the idea. Now it only remains for the ladies of Peterborough to take the matter up, coax the hard-hearted fathers to purchase an instrument, and we shall have in a short time the happiest lot of boys in all Canada, as they find themselves continually improving, and giving pleasure to their parents and friends.

And now a few words on the religious side of the question. Every clergyman and teacher of a Sunday School knows that the boys are their greatest source of anxiety in the efforts necessary to keep up a successful Sunday School. The big boys very seldom sing, and in fact think it is beneath their sense of manly dignity. These same lads, brimful of nervous energy, can be changed so as to become the strongest element for good in the School. Let every Sunday School have its uniformed band lead the singing, and what a change would come over the schools. The boys now would feel a sense of dignity and importance from their position as leaders in the musical exercises of the much despised girls.

During the summer months let the Sunday schools unite in holding their exercises in the open air under the shade of some pretty grove of trees in the suburbs of Peterborough. The united bands, full of rivalry against each other, would lead the singing. Can any one doubt for an instant that the parents and friends of the children would come and be delighted listeners? The march to and from the grounds would be looked forward to by the boys and soon become a red letter day with them. In the winter months the children could assemble in the Opera House at 4 p. m., and the bands would lead in a special song services. This is actually done in Melbourne, Australia, the bands of the city combining for the purpose. The children and parents pack the Opera House of that city, can any one doubt that the musical instincts of our children would be wonderfully quickened if this scheme were taken hold of with some little energy on the part of our citizens. I appeal to the parents of the boys who would favor a movement of this kind to send in their names to the Editor of this paper who will probably publish them so as to bring general interest to bear on a plan which I am convinced can be easily carried out, and will I am sure add greatly to the future happiness of the boys and girls of Peterborough.

Strike of Compositors.

New York, Oct. 29.—Eighteen of the thirty-six compositors on the Tribune struck last night by order of the Typographical Union. The men claim that though the Tribune pays more per "em" for composition than any other paper in the city, yet by reason of not being continuously employed, they cannot make so much as under the common system.

Bodies of Infants Found.

Lebanon, N. H., Oct., 29.—A number of bodies of infants have been found buried on a farm formerly occupied by Mrs. Pluard, an herb doctress. The woman, who now lives here, says the children were her own and that they died natural deaths, but the people disbelieve her.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

There was breathless excitement between husband and wife as they watched the leaves in search of the entry he proposed first to read. Mr. Strangfield never shifted his posture nor moderated his frown; but over his wife's face was creeping the illumination of an expression of joy pathetic to behold, in the growing gladness of her eyes and the faint parting of her lips.

The doctor read:

"'APRIL 3, 1806.—I am bewitched by Jenny Strangfield's beauty. It is a fortnight ago since I first addressed her, and today we conversed like old friends. Strange that anything so sweet and gloriously feminine should be found among the hard conditions and rigors of the sect of whose prejudices her father is the most acid exponent hereabouts.'"

The doctor turned the leaves slowly, skipping evidently much that was too personal for himself to read aloud in the presence of the deacon with relish.

"'MAY 20.—To-day I told Jenny I loved her. She believes me, and well she may, for truly is she dearest of all earthly things to me now. "You should not love me," she said, "for what would thy father say to hear that thou art in love with Michael Strangfield's girl?' What wonderful tenderness her voice gains from use of that quaint old fashioned thee-ing and thou-ing!"

"Why do you read such stuff, sir?" cried Mr. Strangfield, with an air of sullen impatience "You have something to prove by producing that book. Come to it—or leave it, if it be as I think—for you shall not dangle our dishonor in our face, sir By God! your cool recital of your son's infamy shall not drive me mad!"

His face was again dark with passion, and well might the violence of an emotion that could force an oath from Strangfield startle even the imperturbable Dr Shaw.

"I must detain you another minute," said the doctor, curling his lip while he rapidly turned the leaves of the diary, "and then I am done. Here is the one entry that concerns you:

"'JUNE 18.—This day I was married to Jenny Strangfield at the church of St. Matthew, Dane street, London. Have I, as her sweetheart and husband, acted wisely for my darling by this secrecy? I will have no fear, but thank God humbly for his precious gift. How timid she was! All the way from Sydenham she scarcely spoke, and her hand was as cold as stone in mine as we went into the church—a gloomy church, indeed, with a mistiness all about the altar, as if the fogs of winter had not had time to escape. How much happier and easier to have been married in the dear old church at Greystone, with her father and mine to give us a kindly word. But it is the mother's kiss my darling must most miss. Love shall atone, my little wife. Good night—good night!'"

Mrs. Strangfield started up with a wild, loud laugh.

"Oh, Michael!" she cried, in an eerie, jubilant voice, raising her clasped hands above her head, "did not I tell thee our only one was pure! Oh, Dr. Shaw, he would not believe her! He is a stern father to the dear heart. He turned from her when she wished to kiss him, and to me hath called her a vile name—and, O God! he hath driven her from us. She is gone away from her home, sir! This very morning we found her gone! Oh, cruel! cruel! He would not let me seek her—and now where is my innocent lamb? Is she dead of a broken heart? Oh, my pretty one! why did I bear thee for this sorrow? Better had we died—better had we died, than lived to see this bitter, wicked time!"

With the joyous look fled from her white features, she dropped her face into her hollowed hands and broke into piteous sobbing.

With laborious roll of the eyes, which had a vacant look under the darkness of the hanging brow, Mr. Strangfield gazed from her to the doctor, from the doctor to her; and he made a picture of a strong man smitten with a great and deadly fear, of a man whose brains are crazing under the apprehension of an unspeakable grief; for so he looked.

But obstinacy is an instinct—for qualities are drooping and dying when instinct is still a flourishing force—which will survive many shocks, and give battle amid the languors of dissolution and prompt the last breath as who that has attended the dying but knows!

Though the diary furnished evidence which ninety and nine men out of a hundred would have yielded their judgment to in calm certainty that the truth was at last made plain, it was evidence that could not dispatch the stubborn shipwright's conviction. With a slow smile, so full of anguish that all sarcasm was lost in it, and holding firmly to his chair that the giddiness in his head might not cause his body to vibrate, he waited until his wife had drowned her speech in sobs; and turning to the doctor, who had now risen, and was looking at him with a gaze of steady contempt and dislike, he exclaimed, in a thick and struggling voice:

"Who is to prove to me that the characters in that book be your son's writing? If my girl's chastity be broken, stronger cement than that'll be needed to mend it. And until I am better assured that your son hath acted honestly by my girl, not ten thousand times the number of his pretty words shall stop me from calling him villain!"

"Read that," said the doctor, and he thrust the paper he held into the deacon's hand, and took up his hat and made a step toward the door.

Mr Strangfield, still wearing his painful smile, opened the paper with a shake of the head and looked at it vacantly, holding it at a distance from him, as a man might who scarcely deems the thing he is asked to read worth the trouble of spectacles.

"Michael," cried his wife, "your glasses are in your pocket. Read it quickly, husband, for my sake—or give it to me! I will read it aloud."

She went toward him, but with a faltering gesture he warned her off. Then slowly, with stubbornness in every move of his arm, he drew out his spectacle case and put on his glasses and went round to the other side of his chair, which was nearer to the window, to read.

They could not see his face, for it was toward them and he held the paper before it. A whole minute passed; then said Dr. Shaw, in a whisper, pitying the agony of the poor mother: "Madam, your daughter is lawfully my son's wife; that is the certificate of their marriage."

But she made him no answer, for she was watching her husband. How long he was mastering the contents of the papes! Suddenly his tall figure swayed, from side to side it went, with something of the rhythmical action of a pendulum.

"He is dying!" shrieked the wife, and bounded forward; but to late to break the fall of the man as he dropped with a crash, the full length of him, upon the floor of the parlor.

A COMPOUND FRACTURE.—On the forenoon of Monday, Oct. 25th, while Mr. T. C. Caskey and Mr. Joseph Kincaid were returning to the village from the C. P. R. station, a part of the harness broke on Kelly's hill, allowing the rig to run forward upon the horse The animal sprang forward and commenced kicking. The first kick took off the dashboard, and the second broke Mr. Kincaid's leg between the ankle and the knee. The horse ran about 200 yards and then jumped into a ditch and was nearly mired. In the meantime Mr. Kincaid had thrown himself from the waggon, striking on the fractured limb, and the waggon passed over his body. Mr. Caskey got help and put the injured man in the waggon, which had not been damaged much, and brought him home. Dr. Ford, of Norwood, was telegraphed for and arrived about 4 o'clock. After examining the leg he pronounced the injury a bad compound fracture. The bone was carefully set, but it will be some time before Mr. Kincaid will be on his feet again.

BAD ACCIDENT.—On Friday morning a man named Taylor, working in one of Irwin's shanties, met with a bad accident. His axe glanced and struck his foot, inflicting a very bad wound, splitting his foot for some distance down. He was carried to this village, having previously had his wound dressed by Dr. Green, of Buffalo, who was in the woods deer hunting. On ariving here he was placed under the case of Dr. Giles, who on Saturday morning operated on the patient having first placed him under chloroform. The big toe and a portion of the foot was amputated, and the sufferer is doing well.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

The value of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in the protection it affords from the dangers of pulmonary disorders, cannot be overestimated. Mr. C. K. Philips, Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "About three years ago I had severe Laryngitis, which resulted in chronic hoarseness. By the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral I have since entirely regained my health." Mr. Henry Russell, Excelsior Printing Co., New York, writes: "Influenza became epidemic in my neighborhood. Several members of my family suffered severely with it, all of whom took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and were cured by it in a few days. It is a wonderful medicine for Influenza. Too much cannot be said in its favor."

E. M. Sargent, 41 Andover st., Lowell, Mass., says: "I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral about the year 1842, as a family medicine, for Coughs and Colds, and have always kept it in my house since that time. I consider it the best remedy that can be had for these complaints." Dr. J. B. Robertson, Clayton, N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in my family and practice, for a number of years, and have no hesitation in recommending it. It is an admirable preparation, and well-qualified to do all that is claimed for it." E. J. Styers, Germanton, N. C., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best Cough preparation I ever saw. It gives instant relief."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

has cured a Cough in a few doses. It always relieves irritation of the lungs or throat, and arrests the tendency to inflammation. It strikes at the foundation of all Pulmonary diseases, is without a rival as an expectorant, and is a sure cure for the most obstinate Coughs and Colds. L. Garrett, Texana, Texas, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twenty years. For throat and lung diseases, I consider it a wonderful remedy."

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will organize a "Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union" in Mr. P. Green's studio on Monday evening, at half-past seven o'clock. All young ladies and members of the Union are requested to attend.

In the Right Direction.

Messrs. Porter Bros. have made a move towards helping to bring about Saturday night early closing. They now pay their men on Friday nights instead of on Saturday nights, as formerly, thus enabling their employees to make purchases one day earlier.

Run Off.

The morning express on the Canadian Pacific Railway was detained four hours today on account of a freight train jumping the track between Indian River station and Norwood. The run off was caused by a wheel breaking. The cars which were thrown off were replaced, and the track was cleared. The damage was slight.

BARGAINS in Carpets and Oilcloths at the Golden Lion. R. FAIR.

Prospering.

The Lindsay-Seldon Furniture Company by turning out artistic work at moderate prices, is securing a good trade. Orders are already received from Toronto and Montreal in such numbers as to guarantee the factory's running to its full capacity till Christmas. There is every prospect of this firm's occupying next year even larger premises than they now have.

Personal.

MR. Thos. Bithray, though now resident in Chicago, is still a good Canadian and a good Forester. He sends us a very well designed and effective programme of an anniversary reception by Court Enterprise, of Chicago.

The St. Thomas Times of Oct. 25th, has the following:—"Messrs. Fanning and Jameson have purchased the tobacco and cigar business and billiard parlors and bowling alleys formerly conducted by H. A. Branton, opposite the M. C. R. depot. depot. The boys have arrived to-day."

The Rev. Dr. Stone, associate editor of the Christian Guardian, and brother of Mr. Stone, barrister, of this town, is here to-day to attend the funeral of Mrs. Stone, whose death occurred on Thursday afternoon.

Such is Life.

Public opinion is often referred to in these days, when the opinions of the people shape the policies of governments and rule the destinies of nations. Usually there are two or three important subjects that engross the attention of the people, so far as public matters are concerned. Just now these matters are, in our own little city, the coming elections, who will be the candidates, the Scott Act fines, the midnight burglars, etc. On important subjects public opinion is almost always divided, and generally into two different sides, with, perhaps a few scattered people who have independent or erratic opinions of their own and shared by no one else. This is shown in connection with the Scott Act fines. One party is trying to get the fines for the town, another party is looking after the fines for the Association, and the third party, who are, perhaps, acting the most sensible of all, are just letting things take their course—not caring a button whether school keeps or not. Yet all three parties, and the general public, agree on some things, as in praising the progressive business men of our town. There are, again, some subjects that might be called staple subjects of discussion, such as fashions. On fashions tastes differ, and people are not a unit, but, like politicians, they agree on some points, and all gentlemen shout "hear, hear," when it is stated that the place to procure Clothing is at A. MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

SAVED ARMY RE-ORGANIZATION.

What a Former Member of the Executive Committee Says.

The Kingston Whig has the following:—"The original officers of the Saved Army have, through some dissatisfaction, withdrawn from the organization managed by Rev. Mr. Baxter. At a council-of-war held in Cobourg the Saved Army was re-organized on the original lines, with Peterborough as headquarters."

In reference to the above statement, Mr. Geo. B. Sproule, who took an active part in the directorate of the old Saved Army, says:—'The Saved Army does not now exist, it having been transferred to the Rev. M. Baxter, of England. About one year ago the Executive Committee of the Saved Army, consisting of the Hon. Sidney Smith, Dr. Stephenson, Cobourg, General Lindsay, and myself, transferred the Saved Army in whole—name, stations, property, everything, on condition that the Rev. Mr. Baxter assume the general debt of the army which did not include the station debts. The debt as represented by Gen. Lindsay, was in the approxmately $350. These terms the Rev. Mr. Baxter accepted and took control of the Army, which he has held during the past year. It was not long before the Rev. Mr. Baxter found that the debt of the Army far exceeded the sum mentioned. I believe, though, that the Rev. Mr. Baxter has generously paid off the whole debt, with the exception of one or two small instances which I have no doubt will be paid. This, of course, in all honesty would give the Rev. Mr. Baxter complete control of the old Saved Army. As it was an incorporated body the name cannot be taken without the consent of the Rev. Mr. Baxter. Whatever this object of Gen. Lindsay and the officers who seceded is I do not know. Certainly their action cannot be viewed as consistent with their profession; nor do I think their action is endorsed by the men who where the mainstay of the old Saved Army. It has the appearance of depriving the Rev. Mr. Baxter of his just rights, the stations not accepted by the secetionists being the only security he has held for the expenditure of between $3,000 and $5,000 during the past twelve months. These are the facts as I know them to be. I leave the public to judge for themselves.

GEN. LINDSAY.

What He Says of the Recent Gospel Army Secession.

Gen. Lindsay, formerly of the Saved Army, and recently holding a commission in the Gospel Army under the Rev. Mr. Baxter's regime, is in town to-day.

He says that the complaints against the conduct of the Army by the Rev. Mr. Baxter were made by the officers throughout the country, and that he in no way urged secession. The complaint against the Rev. Mr. Baxter's management was, the treatment received by the officers from High Secretary Weir, an official sent out from England to take control of the Army. His letters to the officers, Gen. Lindsay says, were over officious and domineering. The officers, too, many of them, did not agree with the Rev. Mr. Baxter's views as to the second coming of Christ.

Gen Lindsay says that Divisional Officer Steele called a council of war at Cobourg on Wednesday last; and there in the presence of the Rev. Baxter, they all resigned. Then they asked him to take charge of the renewed organization. "Of course" says the General, "We can't go under the name of the Saved Army. Our future name will be the Saved Band. Our official organ, the Trumpet, will be published here and our headquarters will be here as formerly."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

We have received the following important letter for publication:—

Every person who, without my consent in writing, makes, contracts, or puts in practice, or has made, constructed or put in practice, or who has purchased from any person not authorized by me to make and use, and has used or uses a boiler for heating by steam or water, square or oblong, with the head cast in one piece, and connected to the base with veritible tubes, or with the tubes in straight rows, to facilitate cleaning, or with horizontal tubes over the fire, with single or double tees or elbows, and connected to the head, as shown and described in my patent, dated "April 20th, 1885," will be served with an injunction restraining them from further infringements on my patents, and will be prosecuted for damages as per chap. 38, sec. 24, Amended Act of 1884. I am now getting my patents reissued according to the Amended Patents Act of 1884, to correct any errors or ommissions that may be in my original patents, and if I have spent thirteen years, and as many thousands of dollars in patents and experiments, and visited every establishment on this side of the Atlantic four times, and with a correspondence with someone in the trade in every civilized country on the face of the globe where boilers are made or used, and had every patent office examined where patents are granted, and are now making a boiler that has been known and used by others before my invention, or has been in public use or on sale for more than one year before my applicatton was filed for my patents, I want to know it; and if men that never made a boiler on their own account, or on any other man's account, and never heated a house with either steam or water on their own account, or on any other man's account, and who cannot give you the address of any man that they ever made a boiler for, or put in a heater for, until they got the same concerns and the same men that made my patterns to duplicate them, and the same men that made my fittings, to duplicate them, and if men can tell me that they will use anything that they buy and pay for, and will make anything that anyone will bring them a pattern for, or if the thousands that are paid into the Patent Office at Ottawa by both Canadians and Americans might as well be put in the fire, and if the Patent Office is kept up to defraud the public, and if there is no protection for the genuine inventor, I want to know it, and the sooner the public knows it the better. My patents are now going through the United States Patent Office, where there is any amount of protection and territory for inventors to work in, and if there is no protection here, I want to leave at my earliest convenience. I have had my Canadian patents examined by the best legal men in this country, and by the best legal experts in patent cases in the United States, and they all tell me that the Canadian patent laws are almost a duplicate of the American patent laws, and that no one but a fool would attempt to infringe on those patents However, as the cases come before the courts, I will give the public the benefit of them by circular and through the press, the same as I am doing with this. This invention puts the risk of fire beyond the shadow of a doubt, and will save two-thirds of the fuel that is now used in heaters, and will run from twelve to forty hours without attention. There is no use in people copying enough of it to be of no use to themselves or any other person. If it cannot be protected, the sooner the public gets the benefit of it unrestricted the better.

GEO. BOLTON,
Inventor and Patantee.

Peterborough, Oct. 30th, 1886.

The Third Offence.

This morning at the Police Court R. N. Roddy was convicted of having committed a third infraction of the Scott Act. Mr. Roddy did not appear in court, but was represented by Mr. Edmison. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution. The Magistrate, in giving judgment, stated that the first and second violations of the Act having been proved against him, and that the third was also proved, he would find him guilty of a third offence and sentence him to imprisonment in the common gaol for a term of two months. Mr. Edmison asked for an enlargement on the ground that in several other cases the third charge had been made a first. The Magistrate replied that in no former case had a third offence been proved against a defendant. Up till one o'clock this afternoon the defendant has not been brought under the sentence.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattress now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattress.

THE REMEDY:

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

"GOD'S ACRE."

The Little Lake Cemetery Improved and Beautified.

Year after year, as season follows season, this beautiful and revered spot seems to grow more and more picturesque. The latest improvement that has been made in connection with the Little Lake Cemetery is the laying out in lots, walks, avenues, sections and winding roadways of the six additional acres purchased from Mr. John Burnham lately. The appearance of this new portion of the cemetery as one approaches from Crescent street is very pleasing to look at, being finished off in such a highly creditable manner as to make it equally valuable with other portions of this sacred and beloved spot. It is the intention of Mr. John Kelly, the indefatigable superintendent, to plant a large number of shade and ornamental trees through the newly added portion and otherwise beautify it. This now gives the Cemetery Company 1,400 new lots to dispose of, and when other contemplated changes in other portions of the cemetery are carried into effect, this number will be still further augmented. The greatest care and attention has been bestowed on the work. Drain tile has been laid under ground from every walk, and these drains empty into a main drain that runs the entire length of the new ground and empties into the lake. This will be the means of keeping the walks and roadways dry the season through. The new ground adds greatly to the beautification of the cemetery; the old fence has been moved away from where it originally stood and in its stead a substantial iron one has been put up, with suitable and correspondingly attractive gates, etc. There are now three main entrances instead of one, as formerly—one from Crescent street, one from Ware street, and one from Haggart street. The walks and avenues are all being cleaned up, the fallen leaves are being carefully gathered, and the whole place is receiving a complete fall over-hauling. Altogether the Little Lake Cemetery Company are to be congratulated on the real beauty and magnificence of the cemetery. Great praise is also due Mr. Kelly, who displays superior taste and excellent judgment in everything that tends to improve the appearance of this already lovely nook, where the Master "giveth His beloved sleep."

Fire in a Kingston Hotel.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 30.—Last night a fire broke out in the stables behind the Windsor Hotel, and caused considerable damage. Seven horses were removed. Two cows, buggies, harness, etc., the property of P. McLaughlin and John S. Miller, were burned. The stable was insured for $2,250, and the contents for $400. Franklin, flour dealer, Laishley, sewing machine agent, and M. Dolan, were also sufferers. This is the third fire in the same block in as many years. During the progress of the fire, James Clarke, a porter, made a great effort to save the cattle, when the fire swept down about him, burned his face and hands and licked off his hair, as well as firing his clothes. He was taken out in a fainting condition and sent to the general hospital.

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES.

THE QUEEN'S BENCH AND COMMON PLEAS DIVISION

Of the High Court of Justice—Opened at the Court House This Afternoon—List of Cases.

The Autumn Assizes opened at the Court House this afternoon at one o'clock, His Lordship, Mr. Justice Rose, presiding.

THE GRAND JURORS.

The Grand Jury was impannelled as follows:—

JAS. STEVENSON, foreman.

John H. Aunger,	Edward Emerson,
John Brown,	Peter Hamilton,
A. Brown,	J. E. Hammond,
R. E. Birdsall,	Wm. Lech,
Chas Bulk,	W. Paterson, jr.,

Jas. Carter,	J. H. Roper,
John Coughlin,	S. Spence,
W. P. Chase,	Warren Taylor,
A. F. Choate,	D. Ulyott,
Geo. Clarke,	Arthur J. Wright,

W. H. Wrighton.

THE BAR.

The bar was represented by the following named:—J. Kerr, Q.C., Toronto; N. T. Patterson, Q. C., Port Perry; R. Riddel, Cobourg; G. T. Blackstock, Toronto; and A. P. Poussette, Q.C., D. W. Dumble, W. H. Moore, C. W. Sawers, E. B. Edwards, R. E. Wood, E. B. Stone, W. A. Stratton, and J. Green, Peterborough.

THE DOCKET.

The docket was made up of the following cases:—

JURY CASES.

Ferguson vs. Sanderson et al, McCann; vs. Preneveau, Phelan vs. Bradburn.

NON-JURY CASES.

Ross vs. Hull.

CRIMINAL CASES.

Queen vs. Hammill, forgery; Queen vs. Roddy, assault; Queen vs. Whitney, bigamy.

HIS LORDSHIP'S ADDRESS

His Lordship addressed the Grand Jury. He named over the cases which they would have to consider, and he pointed out their duty in each. On the Sheriff's criminal calender he saw that there was one criminal case, but he was given to understand that there were three. He asked the Grand Jury to express their opinion in writing as to the manner in which the Scott Act was working in this county. He also asked them to express their opinion on the matter of gaol labor. In Owen Sound over one hundred people were kept and fed during the winter, having better provision made for them than many a poor man. They had been given work in breaking stone and their number rapidly diminished. He asked them to give their opinion on the matter. He asked them to inspect the gaol premises. After peforming their duties he would be pleased to discharge them.

The first case heard was that of McCann vs. Preneveau.

WILFUL MURDER.

Verdict of the Jury in the Whycocomagh Tragedy—History of the Case.

PORT HOOD, B.C., Oct. 30.—Six weeks ago a young man named McLellan was brutally murdered by another young fellow named McDonald during a drunken frolic at Whycocomagh. There was a general jollification at the house of John McLeod, uncle of McDonald. Bad blood existed between the latter and McLelland and during the night they quarrelled. McDonald said his blood was up, he stripped off his coat and vest and rushed at McLellan. The latter was much larger than McDonald and easily threw him. During the scuffle McDonald drew a knife and stabbed McLellan to the heart. He died in a few minutes. No person saw the stabbing. The body was removed to another room by the murderer and two others, and the neighbors were not notified till next morning, by which time McDonald has disappeared. A few days later he surrendered himself to the magistrate. He admitted that he had killed McLelland, but claimed that it was self-defence. His trial has been proceeding for the last two days before Chief Justice McDonald. Sam McDonald, ex-M. P., prosecuted for the Crown, and Hon. D. McNeil defended the prisoner. The jury brought in a verdict of wilful murder. The prisoner was dazed at the verdict, and his aged father completely broke down. The general expectation was that a verdict of manslaughter would be returned. An arrest of judgment was moved for on the grounds that the jury had been seen conversing with an outsider during the trial.

Collision in Ohio.

SEANESVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 30.—By a collision on the Baltimore and Ohio west bound fast freight and an east bound freight at Black Hand last night, two engines and twenty-seven cars, with their contents, were totally destroyed. A tramp was seriously injured and track blocked. The loss will be about $1,000,000.

Out of Their Reckoning.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—A passenger on the Pavonia alleges that the officers were completely out of their reckoning, and that after the steamer was floated off they headed her away from Boston. A small boat came alongside from the life station and told the commander he was going the wrong way, whereupon the course was reversed.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

NOT A DEFEAT.

LISBON, Oct. 30.—Later advices from Mozambique have been received by the Government concerning the revolt of natives against the authority of Portuguese officials. The king of Muzzilla, at the head of 30,000 natives, attacked the town of Inhambane, at the mouth of the Mozambique Channel, and was twice repulsed by the King of Inhambe, commanding a portion of his subjects who retained their loyalty to Portugal. Meanwhile the Governor of Mozambique, at the head of 16,000 portuguese and natives, and assisted by European officers, arrived in time to resist a third attack by the King of Muzzilla, whom the Governor defeated. The Governor is continuing his work of expelling the insurgents from the district.

MR. SMITH AT SUDBURY.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Mr. Smith, Secretary of War, in a speech at Sudbury yesterday, said that Lord Randolph Churchill's policy had the full assent of his colleagues in the Cabinet. The Government had rendered the trade of the moonlighter and assassin too dangerous to be pursued, and would now seek to make the trade of agitator unprofitable. Such men had long extracted the hard earnings of the Irish peasants and servant girls. The Government intended to break down the system, not by an arbitrary act, but by securing to every man individual liberty, and by freeing him from the tyranny under which Ireland suffers from these agitators. Mr. Smith congratulated his audience upon the signs of reviving trade and undisturbed peace in Europe.

THE GLASGOW EXHIBITION.

GLASGOW, Oct. 30.—The space to be devoted to the exhibition, which will be held here in 1887, will comprise an area of 39 acres. The guarantee fund already reaches £67,000.

MORE CROFTERS ARRESTED.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Eight crofters of Skye have been arrested by marines for deforcing the sheriffs. At a crowded meeting in Glasgow yesterday resolutions were adopted to petition the Home Secretary to release or mitigate the sentence of the imprisoned Tiree crofters, and expressing sympathy with the crofters in their struggle against legal oppression.

ENGLAND IN EGYPT.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—The Temps explains that although it thinks England's presence in Egypt undesirable it would be useless for France or Europe to demand the withdrawal of England unless it was decided what to substitute for British occupation.

CONCILIATORY ATTITUDE.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—England's conciliatory attitude in the East Africa delimitation negotiations is believed to be due to a desire on her part for Germany's consent to the British Annexation of Zululand.

ACTIVITY OF THE CARLISTS.

MADRID, Oct. 30.—The Carlists here and in Paris, under cover of wanting masses said for the recovery of Don Jaime, son of Don Carlos, are displaying great political activity. Some of the clergy and even the bishops are opposing the movement and refuse to allow special prayers on behalf of Don Jaime.

ROSS AND LEE BEATEN.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—An international double scull handicap race was rowed to day and won by Messrs. Perkins and Godwin, the English oarsmen, they beating their opponents, Ross and Lee, the Americans, one length, and leading throughout.

REDUCTION IN WAGES.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The proprietors of the Llantrissant tin plate works have reduced the wages of their employes 10 per cent. owing to the depression in trade.

RISING AGAINST THE AMEER.

CABUL, Oct. 30.—The Ghilzai tribe and a portion of the Hazaras have been joined by the renowned robber, Saitu, and under the command of the sons of the notorious Mushki Akum Mollah, have risen against the Ameer near Ghuznee. They attacked and dispersed an Afghan regiment which was acting as escort to a treasure train. The rising is attributed to the poplar discontent over excessive taxation.

PLOT AGAINST KING MILAN.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30.—A deputation of Servians have arrived here for the purpose of proposing the overthrow of King Milan in the interests of Russia.

TERRIBLE POVERTY.

PESTH, Oct. 30.—Thirty poor persons have been found sleeping in a warm water drain in this city. They were entirely naked.

THE BURMESE INSURGENTS.

RANGOON, Oct. 30.—The insurgents have set fire to the ruins of Minhalla and sent large burning boats down the river.

ANARCHIST'S PAMPHLETS.

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—Two working men here have been sentenced to imprisonment for four and six years respectively for distributing an anarchist pamphlet.

THE PRINCESS BEATRICE.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Princess Beatrice will go to Windsor Castle on Friday next.

A VISIT POSTPONED.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Marquis of Hartington has postponed his visit to India.

PREPERATIONS FOR WAR.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Advices from Braila, Roumania, says that feverish preparations for war are being made in Southern Russia. A number or ironclads are expected at Sebastopol. Several transports are riding at anchor in the harbor of Odessa, and torpedo boats are leaving Sebastopol for Varna.

WALDEMAR FOR BULGARIA.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Standard says: "The Czar has asked Prince Waldemar to become a candidate for the Bulgarian throne."

SEDITIOUS PAMPHLETS.

SOFIA, Oct. 30.—The Government has instructed the local authorities to prevent the circulation of seditious Russian pamphlets among the soldiers of the Bulgarian army.

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

PREACHING VS. PRACTICE.

THE Toronto Globe recently had an article under the heading of "A Detestable Doctrine," in which it said:—

"It is often asserted that there is no reason why members of Parliament should not apply to Government for timber limits, mines, ranches, or any other description of public property. The law, it is said, leaves everybody alike free to seek such concessions in return for stated payments, and on stated conditions of tenure. Why, then, it is asked, should members refrain from that which is not forbidden to them by law? * * There is no need to give the answer at much length. Almost anybody understands that representatives of the people should not profit by grants of any kind from the public purse or property. The unwritten Code of Parliamentary honor and political morality orders members to refrain from much that private individuals may properly do. It ought to hold them from acting on the monstrous theory that they are free to take anything not forbidden to them by statue. The reason is evident. Influence with the Government necessarily pertains to representatives. They have peculiar facilities for pressing any application which they may make. They stand on ground of vantage, as compared with ordinary citizens, for the obtaining of concessions. Now, they are elected on the understanding that all these influences will be used for the public benefit, and that they will oppose the government's every attempt to sacrifice the public interest. They are sent to Parliament to see that the administration is carried on wisely and honestly. Are they likely to criticize justly, if they are in the habit of applying for profitable concessions which the government have power to grant or refuse? The law does not compel ministers to grant limits, mines or other property to applications made in proper form, but leaves them to exercise discretion. Certainly that discretion cannot be properly exercised on applications from those who can maintain or turn out the ministry.

"It may be said that members should be forbidden by law from receiving or participating in any sort of public grant whatever. Such an ordinance would be entirely proper, but not practically operative. Probably no way can be devised for preventing dishonest members profiting from their influence. There are doubtless a great many cases in which representatives induce governments to make grants to persons who agree to secret "divy." How is it possible to provide against secret rascality? * * * For political rascality the only cure is the election of honest and unstained men."

Fine, very fine preaching! But alas, how little practised by even those who most loudly preach it.

Let us see: The foregoing appears in, and as the solemn convictions of the Globe—a journal which has an Anglin on its editorial staff, and a Cook, an Edgar and a Jaffray for Directors, and a Nelson for its, directly and indirectly, chief owner!

This Anglin, for ought we know to the contrary, may be the author of this particular article, being the same Timothy Warren Anglin who was ousted during the Mackenzie regime, for a breach of, not the spirit, but the letter of the very Independence of Parliament Act, about which the Globe professes to be so deeply concerned at the present time.

This Cook is the same H. H. Cook who bought his way into Parliament in the interest of a high standard of political morality; who in some measure recouped himself therefor by "obtaining" a "concession" from Mr. Mills, as Minister of the Interior, of some $1,400, at a time when, according to the Globe (and we agree with it), it was his duty to oppose "every attempt to sacrifice the public interest"; and by attempting, in the dying hours of the Mackenzie Administration, to grab some 200 square miles of the best timbered lands in the Nor'-West; and whose record as the floater of timber companies has not added to the credit of Canadians abroad.

This Edgar is the same J. D. Edgar who has in and out of season almost continuously figured as a recipient of public monies upon one plea or another, at the hands of his political friends, and whose services as a sort of political scavenger, were deemed so invaluable by Mr. Blake, that Mr. Mowat was called upon to find a seat for him.

This Jaffray is the same Robert Jaffray who has figured so largely in the Provincial accounts as purveyor general of groceries to the Mowat Government and who in conjunction with others has not grown poorer by reason of certain Provincial Railway Legislation passed by the Legislature at their instance and by the leave of Mr. Mowat.

And this Nelson is the same Thomas Nelson, of Edinburgh, whose insight into the future is so great, that he could not only foretell the figures of a Canadian census several years before the said census was taken, but also that a future tariff would contain a provision admitting books of a certain age, duty free, and who attempted to act accordingly to the manifest advantage of himself and disadvantage of the Dominion treasury. And who, with his usual foresight, having first secured the services of Messrs. Mowat, McLennan & Co., as his Canadian solicitors, in due time, despite all competition, secured from the Hon. Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario, and head of the firm that he employed as his solicitors, a third interest in the fatest book contract ever awarded in this Canada of ours.

A beautiful quintette to preach political morality truly!

But inasmuch as, according to the Globe, all the political virtue in the country is concentrated in the ranks of its own party, and all the rascality in that of its opponents, we shall take the liberty of calling the reader's attention to one out of several pieces of rascality perpetrated by the Mowat Government for the benefit of their political friends. And as the Globe has given a good deal of prominence to timber limits, and the sinfulness of a Government supporter dealing therein, we shall take a timber limit transaction for our present purpose. The facts are as follows:

Previous to confederation, under regulations passed in 1851, the first applicant for a timber license, who complied with certain conditions, became entitled thereto. In 1851 one Richard McConnell applied for a license covering some 30 square miles on the Amable du Fond branch of the Petawawa River, and complied with the conditions. Owing, however, to the state of the surveys at the time, it was deemed inexpedient to issue this particular license. McConnell, however, kept his claim alive by from time to time pressing it and tendering the required ground rent therefor. In January 1867 (just before confederation) the matter of granting this, along with other applications standing in a somewhat similar position, was brought under the notice of the then Commissioner of Crown Lands (the Hon. A. Campbell) and he refused to recognize them because he did "not think under the present circumstances of the Province, it is expedient to issue licenses on any of these applications nor does he recognize the right of the applicants to limits on the score of their having made applications two to fifteen years ago."

During the time of the Sandfield Macdonald Government, the claim does not seem to have been pressed, but shortly after the Blake-Mowat Government came into power, we find McConnel applying to the Hon. R. W. Scott, the then Commissioner, for recognition of his claim. And to this application the Assistant Commissioner under date of September, 1872, replies refusing the application because it "was disposed of by the Hon. Alex. Campbell in January 1867," and because "the late government of Ontario adopted a policy in this respect under which they declined to entertain any such claim as you prefer."

In the meantime McConnell had sold his claim for this license to Messrs. Thistle and Carswell for $1000 in cash and a further sum of $2,500 payable as soon as the license should be issued, and they again had sold their interest therein to Messrs. Hurdman Bros. for $2,000.

During the seasons of 1868-9, 1871-2 and 1872-3, Hurdman Bros. cut timber on this territory, and both Mr. Scott and Mr. Pardee absolutely refused in any way to recognize McConnell's claim, and Mr. Pardee only consented to accept double dues on the timber thus cut by Hurdmans, after it had been shown beyond controversy that they at least had acted in good faith in the matter.

In 1875 the Hurdman's again urged their claim and asked that the license should be issued to them upon their paying the annual ground rent thereon with interest from 1851 down to date of issue of license, less the amount they had paid on the timber cut over and above the regular dues, and as a further reason for an immediate decision they alleged that during the spring of that year a fire had passed over them, and that much timber would be lost to both them and the Province unless manufactured during the following winter. To this last petition the assistant commissioner replied, under date of Feb. 26th, 1876, as follows:—

"The commissioner has now had the case before him and he desires me to state that his predecessor in office had arrived at a decision on the application for license for the space referred to made by Mr. McConnell under whom you claim, in September, 1872, the decision being that the Government of the late Province of Canada having refused to recognize such claims to license, and the late Government of Ontario having inaugurated a policy with respect to timber matters in which such claims were rejected, in which policy the present Government entirely concurs, the application could not be entertained."

As this closes what may be called the first act, in what the Globe would describe as a piece of political rascality, were it perpetrated by its political opponents, we would ask the reader to pause and note well the following points, viz.:—

1st. That up to this time three Governments and five successive Commissioners of Crown Lands had unanimously rejected this claim.

2nd. That both Mr. Scott and Mr. Pardee thought the claim so absurd that they not only seized the timber made thereon as cut in trespass, but, for a considerable time, insisted upon treating it as a wilfull trespass, and therefore deserving of practical confiscation.

3rd. That Mr. Pardee refused, in 1875, to recognize this claim, even upon payment of twenty-four years back ground rent and interest thereon.

That was the position in January, 1876, and continued to be the position (so far as the documents brought down show), until June, 1880—or more than four years afterwards—when we find a simple assignment of this claim by Hurdman Bro.'s to John Francis Dowling, of Eganville, for the sum of $6,000!

Who was John Francis Dowling, of Eganville, that he should give $6,000 for a claim to a license which had been again and again rejected by the Government of Mr. Mowat? Was he a fool? Or had a little bird whispered in his ear that although the claim was worthless in the hands of Hurdman Bros. it was as good as gold in the hands of the son-in-law of James Bonfield, the then M. P. P. for Renfrew?

Evidently Dowling, or the person for whom he was a stool pigeon, was no fool, because we find that Mr. Pardee, who could or would not recognize this claim while in the possession of the Hurdmans, was by some power behind the throne, compelled to recognize it in August, 1880, without any change having taken place in the meantime other than that of the individuals to be benefitted thereby.

As to how this wonderful and apparently sudden change in the mind of Mr. Mowat's present Commissioner of Crown Lands was brought about, the documents, laid before the Legislature are, as we have already said, silent; but there are certain circumstances which all point to one conclusion, and these are:—

(1) John F. Dowling is, or rather was at the time, a son-in-law of the late James Bonfield, lumberman, the then member of the Legislative Assembly for South Renfrew.

(2) The said James Bonfield, either then or soon after, carried on business in the name of the said Dowling.

(3) The papers brought down show that lumbering operations were carried on on the said limits in the name of Dowling, although he is a doctor and was at the time practicing his profession.

(4) The same return shows that shortly after this license was issued to Dowling, he transferred it to E. B. Eddy, of Hull, for a nominal consideration, and that he or those whom he represented, lumbered on it while it was standing in Eddy's name.

(5) That Eddy reconveyed this license for a nominal consideration to Mrs. Bonfield—James Bonfield's widow, the latter having died in the meantime.

In default of any reason to the contrary, surely we are with these facts before us, justified in coming to the conclusion that the recognition of McConnell's claim as soon as it came into the hands of Dowling arose solely from the one fact, that he and James Bonfield, M. P. P., for South Renfrew were to all intents and purposes one and the same person, and that the member for South Renfrew obtained for himself or his son-in-law (and we have heard a good deal from the Globe lately about son-in-laws) "a profitable concession which the Government" of Mr. Mowat "had power to grant or refuse." But this is not all. Not only did they give to Dowling what they refused to the Hurdmans, but they gave it to him on better terms than the Hurdman's asked. While the Hurdmans offered to pay ground rent from 1851 down with interest added, less the extra dues paid as a fine for having cut timber thereon without license, the license was issued to Dowling on payment of the current (1880-1) years ground rent of $78.00, which was in effect making Dowling a present of $2,106 of principal and $1,642 of interest thereon, less the trespass dues paid by Hurdman which were undoubtedly a much smaller sum.

But even this is not all. This same return reveals the further fact that in November, 1883, this same Dowling (who was at the election of 1883 elected for South Renfrew as a supporter of Mr. Mowat), owed $2,253 and interest for dues on timber, some of it cut during the season of 1880-1. No wonder Dr. Dowling, M. P. P. for South Renfrew, did the bidding of the trio, Fraser, Pardee and Hardy—the Quirk, Gammon and Snapp of the Ontario Legislature—during the memorable session of 1884.

And yet, notwithstanding everything herein stated as a matter of fact is taken from an official return laid before the Legislature by the Mowat Government, the reader will not have to live very long to see this same Globe, with a view to putting a stop to "political rascality," and securing "the election of honest and unstained men," commending this same Dr. Dowling as a worthy representative of an Ontario constituency, and as one whom South Renfrew would do itself an honor by re-electing.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE GREYHOUND INN.

Through a fruitful land, bounded by blue hills, in places dark with the soft grouping of trees, and here and there a break of lustrous water, went the white level road that led to Winton; cornfields to right and left, and tracts of vivid green soaring, and the bland eye of the ocean shining between the two tall heights of cliff.

Along this road, with steps that offered no defiance to time, walked Jenny and her old companion.

At last coming to a bend in the road — a truly magnificent bend of lofty hedge, with golden monuments of hay behind, and a rich cool orchard beyond again — there appeared at the very bottom, or end of it rather, for level as a river it ran just here, a gray stone front with ray grandly endowed, and further in a row of little cottages, with a church to the right of them, pointing a flaming apex to heaven.

"Here we are, dear!" exclaimed Mrs. Mead. "Winster at last! And the Lord bless it for coming upon us just when I'm beginning to think thy box here hath some pounds o' lead at the bottom on't."

"Let me carry it now," said Jenny, in a painfully languid voice.

"No, no. I'm still good for that bit o' distance. D'ye see that board hanging up yonder? That's the Greyhound; an' if there be no fire i' the kitchen that'll bile us a dish o' tea, Sally'll have no more o' my love, though it bain't six o'clock yet, if the sun don't lie."

A little inn was the Greyhound, to take the eye in a picture as a sweet bit of rustic painting, for simplicity inimitable. The building stood looking up the great highway, of which the road from Greystone was but a vein or tributary, so to speak. From the upper windows of this inn the highway could be followed, rising and falling in a white line, until to right and left it vanished in a tiny thread of white among the blue shadows. This was the great road to London from the southeastern coast of England; and the coaches that ran upon it were, by Greystone travelers, met twenty-one miles onward at a famous ancient city, to which they were borne by Mr. Franklin's coach, chosen often in preference to this stage of Winston, as it saved a walk or the hire of a hackney coach, and it was a pleasant ride.

Paying small heed to the scrutiny of slow eyes at the windows and doors of the cottages, Mrs. Mead, preceding Jenny, led the way to the door of the inn, and finding it locked, put down the box and pulled the house bell hard.

They had not long to wait. A servant, newly risen, came to the glass, and after a prolonged stare at Mrs. Mead's features, opened the door.

"Tell Mrs. Walker that Judith Mead is come from Greystone to see her. And take this here box and lead us to a room wi' chairs in't, whiles our legs have life in 'em, if ye don't want the job of carrying of us," exclaimed Mrs. Mead. And the girl, thus admonished, ridding the old lady of her burden, conducted her and Jenny into a parlor to the right of the bar.

With a groan of weariness the old woman tumbled herself down upon a chair and Jenny sank languidly upon a sofa.

"Well, if ever I should ha' believed Winston to be so far!" exclaimed Mrs. Mead, lifting her bonnet off her gray hair and throwing it upon the table.

"How do ye feel, dear heart! Tired you look as I niver see the like; but I have promised thee a good snatch o' sleep betwixt breakfast and the coach hour, and that ye'll git. And here is Sally, whose mother I remimber as the prettiest-waisted wench i' this part o' the country. Don't courtesy to me, my dear, for my bones'll not allow of my rising. How are ye—how are ye?"

She addressed these words to a stout, kindly-faced young woman, who had come suddenly into the room, and now stood staring at and courtesying first to Jenny and then to Mrs. Mead.

"Sally," continued the old woman, "we have walked all the way from Greystone to get a sup o' breakfast afore t' coach starts. What have ye got i' the house to comfort th' inside of an old friend—and a lady, whose beauty should make ye proud to carve her? Speak out, my love, and niver fear to name thy choicest. Is it a pretty slice from a tender side o' bacon, with the eggs which the hens are now singing over, and a pot o' thy best tea, wi' cream to give it a dainty color? That will do—that will do, Sally; but I'll not gi' ye a farden for it all, if ye don't make the saucy wench, as ogled me through your glass door, brisk in cooking of it."

"What! Mrs. Mead! Who'd iver ha' thought of seeing you this time o' marning!" cried Mrs. Walker in a rich, clear voice. "Where be ye going by t' coach? Not to Lunnon, at thy time o' life! Well, well! only last night did I say to Roger: 'Next time thee goest to Greystone, see that ye fill the biggest basket wi' the largest gooseberries for Mrs. Mead, that she may know Sally is alive and wishes her health.' How strange, now! An' it's breakfast you're wanting at once! That you shall have, an' quickly. Hi! Martha!" she called at the door; and a voice answered, "Here I be, missis!" "Run out and bring in what eggs ye can find, and first set the kittle on; and if ye stay talking with jackanapes Johnny, I'll know you by my clock, which I am looking at now! There's breakfast for two to get, and if your shoes hinder ye from running, toss 'em off!"

She looked back into the room with a merry laugh, which died away on her catching sight of Jenny's face, for the girl had lifted her veil. Observing the change of expression in her friend's face, Mrs. Mead frowned knowingly upon her, with an extremely suggestive shake of the head, and then begged for the loan of a pair of slippers, which Mrs. Walker immediately went to procure.

"Now, mistress," said the old woman, in her kindest manner, and hobbling over to Jenny, "ye must make yourself comfortable here, and there's no reason ag'in' it. A better hearted young woman than Sally there is not in this world. Niver you heed her if she looks at thee. It will be your beauty that fetches her eyes and nothing else; for this is a house of call, and them who kapes such houses soon loses all curiosity. You shall breakfast and then lie down for a mossel o' sleep. Why, my dear, what beautiful hair is yours. 'Tis like putting one's hand on feathers, and just the color o' the hair o' some of them drawings ye see on church windows when the sun shines through them."

This bit of praise was provoked by her gentle removal of Jenny's hat; then she slipped the shawl off the girl's shoulders and knelt down to take off her shoes and chafe the little feet.

POULTRY NOTES.

The early bird catches the worm. And the too early chicken who travels out into the wet grass catches a cold and dies.

They say that a poor hen can not lay a fat egg. Not many years ago they told me that an egg was not fat enough unless it was a chicken! I know eggs vary greatly, but it seems ungallant to lay all the blame for poor ones on the hen. Some of it should be charged against the man or woman who pretends to feed her, and more of it should rest upon the one who keeps the egg until it gets stale. The worst of hens never laid rotten egg.

Where there is only a small flock, and it is given perfect freedom, the kind of food given them is of less consequence than in other cases. The seeds, insects, etc., picked up by the fowls form a large proportion of their subsistence. But fowls kept in large numbers, or in confinement, depend wholly upon the food given them. In such cases it is of great importance that it should be of the best. Raw corn meal can be fed with safety only in the former case.

Hen has been conducting herself in a peculiar style. About March 1st we placed her on a sitting of eggs that proved not fertile. After sitting her on a second lot, she hatched ten healthy chicks, taking care of them in a motherly manner for about six weeks. During the last three weeks of the time she laid an egg every other day, and cared for her family just the same. Then the "good old lady" wanted to sit again. We stopped her in this, however, and after finding further attempts at sitting were useless, she stole another hen's chicks and brought them up, as proud a step-mother as was ever seen with a happy family.

"The woods are full" of new breeds of fowls. The latest of these is described under the name of the "Thuringian Bearded fowl." It is said to have originated in the section of Germany known as Thuringia, where it is bred very carefully, and is described as follows: "In size it resembles the Black Hamburg, short and compact in body, good in carriage, and lively in movements. The principal characteristic is the strong beard on cheeks and throat, by which the small, round head is almost covered, as well as the pinkish-white ear lobes. The comb is small, single, evenly serrated, and upright. Wattles are disiodged by beard. Beak ordinary size and black; neck short and stout; breast well rounded and full; shoulders broad; back short, growing wider on saddle; out of light cushion rises the abundantly furnished tail, which with the cocks is adorned with immense sickles, and carried well over the back. Legs, short, strong, clean, and of dark slate color. Plumage is of a brilliant black, with an extraordinary lustre, not seen so bright on any other fowl." This breed has been introduced into England, but never, so far as we can learn, into this country. It will probably come in time, but it may well be doubted whether upon trial it will be found to come up to the glowing description.

Murder and Lynching.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 28.—Particulars of the assassination of James M. Hamilton, ex-sheriff of Searcy county, have been received. Mr. Hamilton was sleeping beside his wife and child when some one entered, and taking Mr. Hamilton's loaded pistol shot him in the head, killing him. The assassin has disappeared. Four men, who were employed on Mr. Hamilton's farm, have been arrested. Two of these, Page and Moore, betrayed evidence of guilt, and Page was quickly hanged by a mob. Moore was spirited away, but has since been hanged. The other prisoners are strongly guarded.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only preparation in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

Prospering.

The Lindsay-Seldon Furniture Company by turning out artistic work at moderate prices, is securing a good trade. Orders are already received from Toronto and Montreal in such numbers as to guarantee the factory's running to its full capacity till Christmas. There is every prospect of this firm's occupying next year even larger premises than they now have.

A Bridge for Banff.

A few days ago Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Iron and Bridge Works, received a Government order for a bridge to be built at Banff, near the Rocky Mountains. It will be a one span bridge, of about eighty feet, with sixteen foot roadway, and five foot walk. This is another proof as to how the Canadian Pacific Railway is developing and stimulating manufactures in old Canada.

Burglars Again.

On Sunday night an attempt was made to enter Mr. Geo. W. Hall's house, Simcoe street. The back window was raised about three inches, but a catch prevented it being raised higher. The noise awoke Mr. Hall who got up just in time to see a dark form disappear through the gate. This morning fresh footprints were seen in the soft earth, and traces of dirty hands on the window.

Exactly.

The Lindsay Warder says: "The Peterborough Review is entertaining its readers with a serial account of the building operations of that town during the past year. 'Seeing is believing,' so we deem it unnecessary to write about ours for the inhabitants of our sister burg will wake up some morning and behold Lindsay in sight." Yes; that's so. Peterborough has been growing rapidly in the Northwest direction as well as in every other.

WARS AND TUMULTS.

MILLIONS OF CHRISTIANS TO BE SLAIN--OTHER DIRE EVENTS.

A Terrible European War to be Precipitated by a Death Struggle Between France and Germany—The Second Advent, and the Thousand Years of Peace.

On Saturday night the Rev. Mr. Baxter, the head of the Gospel Army in England and Canada, delivered a lecture in the Mission room, over China Hall, relative to the second coming of Christ.

In commencing he spoke briefly as to the secession which had taken place. A person named Lindsay had been discharged and is now, he understood, organizing a Saved Band.

During the past four years he was surprised at the number of persons who could preach and pray and yet were not to be trusted. He had trusted several of these and in consequence was robbed on one occasion of $100 at another of $1,000 and a third time, by a young man who prayed beautifully and exhibited a wide Biblical knowledge, of $250. It was in consequence of the action of one of these individuals that he had now come to this country to put matters straight. The Gospel Army which he controlled had 20 stations in Canada and 80 in England. By the help of God's spirit he and his officers would still lead sinners to the foot of the cross.

He referred to the Church army which had now 70 stations in England. It was a branch of the Church of England. He alluded to other evangelical movements such as Moody and Sanky's preaching, and Sam Small and Sam Jones preaching. He regarded all these as signs of the times. The invitation to the marriage was given out first to those who were in the alleys and by-ways and then to such as were in the highways and hedges. This was the time of the last ingathering; the ingathering of the lowest of the people. This great ingathering was a sign of the near approach of the close of the 6,000 years.

At the expiration of the 6,000 years Satan would be bound for a

THOUSAND YEARS OF PEACE

would reign on earth. The 4,100 years before Christ and the 1,900 after Christ made 1900 of the time of this event. In several ways and in several places in the Bible it is said that there would be three and a half years of tribulation before the coming of the thousand years of peace. Thus in one place it was said that there would be tribulation for a time times and and a half time, in another forty and two months, and in other places the three years and a half was represented exactly as was ours. After this dispensation there was to be a potent little horn rise as described in Revelations. He was to have universal power on earth. He would be aided to this power by Socialists, Anarchists, Communists, Red-Republicans and Anti-Christ. They would all worship him as a God. Millions of Christians would be massacred by him because they would refuse to be marked with the mark of the beast on his forehead or right hand, as described in Revelations xiii. The 3½ year would be closed with the great battle of Armegeddon when the devil and his angels would be cast into the lake of fire. This great battle would end the 3½ years of tribulation. Before this 3½ years Europe was to be plunged into the most that ever existed. Millions of men who were now peacefully employed would bite the dust, draw their last breath and drench the green earth with their blood. Europe was to emerge from this devastating and depopulating war consisting of ten kingdoms:—England, France, Spain, Italy, Austria, Greece, Egypt, Turkey, Roumania and Bulgaria. This and boom of cannon would commence with a death grapple by France and Germany. This he knew because the geographical position of these two countries, which were to commence the war, were described as being one to the east and one to the west of the Rhine. After this the ten kingdom confederacy would be formed, as described by the Prophet Daniel and also in Revelation.

THE TEN KINGDOM CONFEDERACY

was to be formed within the limits of the old Roman empire, hence Ireland, Germany and Russia would be excluded.

He thought that the great war would commence in the year 1888. Even to the worldlings it must appear plain that the countries of Europe were kept from each other's throats by only strong restraining power. When the aged Emperor of Germany, who had great influence with the Czar of Russia, and Bismarck, who were now approaching life's end, were gone, the calm now existing before the storm would be broken. Then the European leviathians would be uncurbed.

The system of boycotting was prophesied hundreds of years ago. Those who had not the mark of the beast were not to be allowed to trade under those that had. Was not this the case in the south of Ireland now? This system would extend over the whole Empire of Anti-Christ. England was soon to lose Ireland, and ere long there was to be set up a

PARLIAMENT IN DUBLIN.

This he knew because Ireland was not to be of the ten kingdom confederacy.

Not only were there great troubles to be in Europe, but they were to extend to America. For the past few years the attendance at churches in the United States had been steadily falling off, and Sunday newspapers had much to answer for for it A great revolution would sweep over the United States in a few years. Even now labor was quietly concentrating its forces against capital. Ere long it would triumph, and the Republic would be convulsed as it never had been. The three evil spirits which were now working were, Spiritualism, Democratice Revolution, and Popish Superstition. After all these wars and tumults the little horn, this terrible person,

THIS PORTENTOUS INDIVIDUAL,

was to rule supreme. Where was he? The Bible said he would rise out of Syria. Eleven years ago he came to the conclusion that Jerome Napoleon was that little horn spoken of. It was described as fierce of countenance. This and other discriptions of him corresponded with Jerome Nepoleon.

He considered it a great privilege to live in so wonderful an age. If he lived to 1900 he expected to be among the redeemed who would be caught up to heaven and who would escape death. No doubt the worldling would not care much about the process. He would say: It will not be a pleasant thing for us to be taken out of our warm beds, perhaps in the depth of winter, to go flying around in the chilling air. Or he could imagine how they would look if a faithful one would say: I expect to go and live with Christ in a few weeks. How they would wonder, and how they would think him

FIT FOR AN ASYLUM!

Had anyone present ever thought of how the faithful would have to perform an atmospheric journey of 12,000 miles? No matter at what part of the earth Christ appeared, the faithful would be gathered to Him from the other side People would not believe this, and even those who believed in the second advent of Christ encountered as much opposition from good church-going people as from anybody. He looked forward to the time when, while everyone was at work at their usual occupations, the faithful would be called. Here would be a deserted plane and hammer; there a plough in an unfinished furrow; in another place a man might wait in vain for his dinner. The people of Peterborough build and build, expecting to be a great place in a few years; but Peterborough, as well as the rest of the world, would be in ruins in a few years.

He concluded with an exhortation to all present to have their lamps trimmed and full of oil—to be prepared when the bridegroom cometh.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

Norwood Beats Peterborough by Four to One.

On Saturday afternoon a game of football was played in the P. A. A. grounds between the Norwood and Peterborough football clubs. The game was played under Association rules.

The teams took their positions on the field as follows:—

NORWOOD.—Goal, A. Finlay; backs, F. Stephenson, W. Akerman; half-backs, H. Bewell, B. Vincent; forwards.—left wing, J. Jory, A. Hutchinson; centre, J. Cheyne, H. Pearse; right wing, G. Waite, C. Brennan.

PETERBOROUGH. — Goal, —G. Schofield; backs, E. Newbold, C. A. Lawford; half-backs, J. Forbes, G. Moore; forwards—left wing, G. Smith, H. Bucke; centre, Dr. Brennan, J. Begley; right wing, V. Halliday, H. Kirby.

Dr. Brennan was captain for Peterborough, and A. Hutchinson for Norwood. At the commencement the Peterboroughs gained an advantage by taking a goal. The score was made even before the end of the first half by Norwood taking a goal also.

The superior team of the Norwoods in the second half made them the masters of the situation. They carried three goals to Peterborough's nothing. The score at the end of the game stood: Norwood, 4; Peterborough, 1.

If the Peterboroughs did not hold up their reputation as to the result of the score, they did so otherwise. The Captain of the Norwood team writes to the REVIEW to-day requesting us to state "that the Norwood Club feel highly satisfied with the exceedingly gentlemanly treatment they received from the Peterboroughs."

The Recent Express Robbery.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 29.—The detective who has been working up the express robbery case says that he thinks that messenger Fotherlugham is weakening, and will ultimately confess to having conspired in the robbery.

After the Steward Millions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—N. H. Torney, of the County Down, Ireland, who claims to be a cousin of the late A. T. Steward, is in town, and proposes to contest for a share of the Steward estate on behalf of himself and his relatives.

Down With all Hands.

KINGSTON, Oct. 29.—It is generally conceded that the schooner Belle Mitchell went down on Lake Erie with all hands. The vessel was owned in Clayton. Capt. Rusho, his sister and two brothers-in-law were on board, also Mate George Beaupre, of this city. Capt. Rusho said to a vessel agent as he started on his last voyage:—"We have been having such a long spell of fine weather for this time of year that I expect to see something soon to make up for it."

The Wreck of the Eureka.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 29.—The propeller Ste Marie, arrived down to-day from Life Saving Station No. 12, twenty-four miles above the wreck of the schooner Eureka and called at all the stations from there to Witefish Point, but could get no news of the crew. The steamer went to the wreck and found a yawl boat empty. The entire crew, without doubt, have perished.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

Imitations and counterfeits have again appeared. Be sure that the word "Horsford's" is on the wrapper. None are genuine without it.

The Chicago Absconder.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—A cable despatch yesterday announced that Neeld, the absconding manager of Ferguson & Co., packers, had been arrested in London and released because he could not be held for extradition. The news is not confirmed.

Four Children Burnt to Death.

KEESVILLE, Mo., Oct. 30.—A colored woman at Forest Green on Thursday night locked her three children and two others in her house while she was attending church and in her absence the house took fire from a lamp and four of the children were burned to death. The fifth was horribly burned and will probably die.

The French Delegates.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Count De Lesseps has decided to remain in America another week at the urgent solicitation of many friends. Sunday and Monday next he will spend in Philadelphia, going thence to Washington, where on Wednesday he will be presented to the President. He is also anxious to visit Montreal in responce to a warm invitation from the Mayor of that city.

Use the Old and Reliable.

Catarrh destroys the senses of smell, taste and hearing, rapidly becomes offensive, and often culminates in consumption and insanity. No matter what stage the disease has advanced to, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will certainly cure it. This preparation is the only sure cure for this malady in the market; yet has many imitators. Others may fail; it never does. Your druggist.

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

TWO MEN HANGED.

Murderers Pay the Penalty for Their Crimes in British Columbia.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Nov. 1.—Albert Mallot was hanged in the gaol yard at Kamloops at 8 o'clock this morning. The crime for which he suffered the death penalty was the murder of Andrew Johnston at Revelstoke, B. C., on the 15th August, 1885. The murder was a cold-blooded affair. Johnston had spent all his money in Mallot's saloon, and asked for a cigar. Being refused he helped himself, and was followed outside by Mallot and shot down.

Ah Swett, convicted of the murder of a brother Chinaman in August, 1883, was hanged in New Westminster gaol yard at 8 a.m. to-day.

THE PACIFIC CABLE.

The Telegraphic Project From England to Australia Via Canada.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The draft of the prospectus of the proposed Pacific Australian Cable show that the promoters contemplate asking for two millions sterling, $10,000,000, and expects to get a 6 penny rate across the Atlantic and 2½ pence rate across Canada to Vancouver Island, and intends charging the public 4 shillings per word from England to Australia, and the press a shilling. They purpose raising one million in £10 shares and one million in 4 per cent stock, secured on the expected Imperial-Colonial guarantee of £100,000. It is hoped that Canada will contribute £12,000, Australia £38,000, and the Imperial exchequer £50,000. The promoters talk of earning a net profit straightway of £150,000. The project is generally regarded as much to sanguine, The only actual promise yet made comes from Hawaii of $20,000 annually. Canada may offer a subsidy, but neither the Imperial nor Australian Government exhibits much eagerness.

THE KERR-KEHOE TRAGEDY.

Revival of the Mysterious Shooting Case on the International Railway.

QUEBEC, Nov. 1.—The Kerr-Kehoe tragedy, which was enacted and surrounded by so much mystery about a year ago on the International railway near Hadlow, by which an American defaulter named Kerr lost his life while being pursued by an American detective named Kehoe, is being made the subject of a second investigation. The supposition at first was that murder had been committed. Then came the theory of suicide, which was subsequently endorsed by the finding of the coroner's jury. It now appears that the life of the deceased was heavily insured, and the companies, who are now being sued for the recovery of the amounts of the policies held by the window, resist payment on the ground that death by suicide invalidate the policies. The nature of Kerr's death having been questioned by the widow the United States Court has ordered a new investigation, and appointed Dr. Belleau, district coroner, to hold it. Mr. L. A. Cooper, advocate, of Chicago, is in town representing the American insurance companies interested. The examination commenced here on Saturday. Other witnesses have to be examined at St. Paul, Minn., before a decision is rendered.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

RUSSIA OFFENDED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 1.—Both the Novoe, Vremya and Novosti declare that the opening of the Sobranje is a fresh anti-Russian demonstration, which jeopardizes the success of Gen. Kaulbars' negotiations with the Bulgarian Government, and may render the despatch of Russian men-of-war to Varna fruitless.

CONDITION OF IRELAND.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's reports to the Cabinet with reference to the condition of Ireland show that there has been a marked cessation of outrages, that tenants are paying their rents under the landlords' reduction, and that the prospects are good for a peaceful winter.

THE LAND COMMISSION.

DUBLIN, Nov. 1.—The Land Commission sat at Armagh to-day and examined a number of tenant farmers. The National League has boycotted the commission.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 1.—The St. Petersburg official press assert that it is an entire misconception to attribute the resumption of diplomatic relations with France to an agreement based upon a common policy against England. Russia, the official organs say, does not desire to take the initiative in any colation against England and there is no chance that the warlike counsels given Russia by certain papers will be followed unless the course adopted by the other powers should compel the Government to abandon the pacific views which form the basis of its present policy.

A SOCIALISTS POVERTY.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Application has been made to commit Hyndman, the Socialist leader, to prison for non-payment of debts. It has been disclosed that his fortune is gone, that his furniture is mortgaged, that he is unable to pay his rent and that his wife kept lodgers. Hyndman went around the country on a lecturing tour without pay and as he earned nothing his relations had to support him.

A CABINET COUNCIL.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Cabinet Council to-day discussed little except the Bulgarian and Egyptian questions. It is believed that the Government will shortly send a circular to the powers explaining the financial position of Egypt. If Russia refuses to recognize the Sobranje candidate for the Bulgarian throne, England will probably propose a conference to consider the whole question. Ministers are not inclined to call Parliament before the first of January. They will come to a final decision on the question on Saturday.

VOTE ON FREE TRADE.

MANCHESTER, Nov. 1.—The Manchester Chamber of Commerce voted to-day on a resolution opposing free trade. The resolution was rejected by a majority of one.

MURDERED BY NATIVES.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The natives of Johannes, Island of Papur, recently murdered Capt. Craig, of the ship Emly, and two sailors and six Malays.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The municipal elections were held throughout England and Wales yesterday. The returns up to midnight show a Conservative gain of 70, a Liberal gain of 65 and a Union-Liberal gain of 2.

MR. GLADSTONE'S DECADENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette declares that the Liberal party has become merely an association of men saying "ditto" to Mr. Gladstone, and that the decadence of Mr. Gladstone is watched with dismay by his followers, some of whom look forward to the Tories remaining in power for the next ten years.

THE FRENCH EXHIBITION.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Figaro says that M. Herbette, the French Ambassador to Germany, has received a satisfactory reply from Prince Bismarck with reference to Germany entering the French exhibition.

THE SULTAN'S PRESENT.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 1.—The Sultan has sent a special envoy to France to present to Madame De Freycinet, the wife of the Prime Minister, the insignia of the Chefaka order.

REVOLUTION EXPECTED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 1.—A revolution in Bulgaria is momentarily expected on the pretext of Russian occupation, which M. Caraveloff's organ at Sofia announces is imminent.

MORE VESSELS AT VARNA.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It is rumored that three more Russian vessels have arrived at Varna.

KAULBARS TO LEAVE SOFIA.

SOFIA, Nov. 1.—At a meeting of the Sobranje, to-day, M. Zikoff was elected presiding officer. The English and Italian agents attended the meeting. General Kaulbars has refused to accept the reply of the regency to his ultimatum, and will leave Sofia. He threatens to bombard the barracks and Government buildings at Varna if any opposition is offered to the debarkation of Russians at that place.

THE PERSIAN MONARCH.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—All efforts to float the steamer Persian Monarch, ashore in Portland Roads, have failed.

MARINE DISASTERS.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Should bad weather set in the steamer Persian Monarch will be a total loss. Last night the American ship E F. Sawer collided on the River Scheldt with the English steamer Dariea and the German steamer Strasbourg. All hands were saved but three. The vessels were severely damaged.

NEW STEAMSHIP LINE.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Sir Edward Watkin proposes the establishment of a line of transatlantic steamers from Hull, to run in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

EARTHQUAKE.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Authentic news has reached Samoa to the effect that on the morning of September 10 over 100 heavy shocks of earthquake occurred on the Island of Rinafou, one of the Tonga group, and that from the bottom of the lake, which is 2,000 feet deep, a mountain has arisen to the height of 300 feet above its surface, also that this mountain has burst out in flames and throws out hot stones and sand in such quantities as to destroy two-thirds of the cocoa trees on the Island. In Samoa light shocks of earthquake occur so frequently now that they no longer cause any alarm.

NOVEL MODE OF ADVERTISING.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Journal Revanche has adopted a novel mode of advertising. On huge cars, which appear daily on the streets, are white slates, on which artists draw caricatures of Bismarck and Von Moltke and representations of episodes of battles of the Franco-Prussian war in which the Germans were worsted.

THE DEFICIT.

VIENNA, Nov. 1.—The deficit in the Hungarian budget is attributed, firstly, to the fact that in the last budget the finance minister estimated the revenue too high and the expenses too low: secondly, to depression in agriculture due to the competition of American wheat and flour. The minister's proposals to increase the transport dues on passengers goods has elicited a storm of criticism.

IRON AND STEEL.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Nov. 1.—Returns for October show the largest shipment of iron and steel since September, 1885. The shipments of pig iron were 84,322 tons, of which 46,000 tons went abroad. The shipments of manufactured iron were 71,317 tons of which 29,000 tons went abroad. Germany and Russia each took 13,000 tons of pig iron.

VON MOLTKE'S THANKS.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—Count Von Moltke has published a letter expressing his thanks for congratulations of his friends on the occasion of the 86th anniversary of his birthday, explaining as a reason of such publication that the congratulations he received were too numerous to warrant acknowledgment in the ordinary way.

COMTE DE PARIS ASSAILED.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—It is reported that the Comte de Paris, while sitting in his bedroom in Sheer House, near London, was suddenly confronted by a man who entered the room unseen. The Comte, afraid of waking his wife and subjecting her to the fright which the man's presence would cause her, did not call for help, but pointed a pistol at the head of the intruder, who rushed from the room and escaped. Whether the man entered for the purpose of burglary or as an agent of a political faction is not known.

FIRE IN A LUNATIC ASYLUM.

Destruction of the Rear Extension of the Hamilton Institution.

HAMILTON, Oct. 31.—At one o'clock this afternoon a telephone message was received by the city fire department from the lunatic asylum, situated on the top of the mountain, saying that the building was on fire, and requesting assistance. The brigade promptly responded, though their progress was rendered somewhat slow by the difficulty of getting up the mountain with their heavy apparatus, and on their arrival found the extension in rear of the building a fierce mass of flames, which had complete possession of that part of the institution. The firemen, seeing that nothing could be done to save the extension, immediately commenced to cut away the hallway connecting it with the main building, preventing the flames spreading to the latter, where the inmates were located. After great exertions, and labouring under the great difficulty of on insufficient supply of water, the firemen succeeded in getting the flames under control by four o'clock. The 13th Battalion was called out at 1.30 p.m., and did good service in keeping order. During the progress of the fire the patients were removed for safety from the main building to the new ward, which has just been completed, the utmost order being maintained during and after their removal, and no one was hurt. The police force and a number of citizens who gathered at the spot rendered invaluable aid in preserving order and fighting the flames. The fire originated in the drying room of the laundry in the rear extension, which was completely gutted. The loss will be about $50,000, which is believed to be covered by insurance.

England and America.

DUBLIN, Oct. 30.—At a meeting of the Law Students' Debating Society of Dublin last evening, Justice Munro delivered an address, in the course of which he contrasted the rigidity of the constitution of the United States with the elasticity of that of Great Britain. Personal liberty, he said, was greater in Great Britain than in America, and in other respects the British constitution conferred upon the people governed by it greater and numerous blessings than were enjoyed by the people of the United States. Mr. John Deasy, M. P., followed in a speech full of praise of America and American institutions, and declared they were entirely free from the taint of luxury which was the concomitant of royalty. Justice Fitzgibbon condemned the protection policy of the United States Government and asserted that the prohibition of free trade was essentially an American trait. The United States Consul was present during the debate.

A. T. Stewart's Body.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1.—W. A. Croffut tells in the Post a story which he says was told him at a dinner by a member of the the Hilton family about A. T. Stewart's body. It is stated that two years after the stealing of the body Mrs. Stewart paid $25,000 for its return. The bones were delivered to Mrs. Stewart's representative at a secluded spot in West Chester County, and the money paid over to a masked man. The representative had to go alone. The whole affair was enveloped in mystery, and every precaution taken to prevent the betrayal of the thieves. The remains were then taken to Garden City on a special train at night.

Overflowing With Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct 30.—The grain elevators in middle and north Minnesota and in Dakota are overflowing, and 3000 cars of wheat billed Minneapolis cannot be brought into the city because the transfer roads cannot handle it. There is a great blockade of business in the city. There are now in store at Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth 12,207,324 bushels of wheat, making, with 21,746,000 bushels in the country elevators, a total of 32,053,324 bushels of wheat now in store in Minnesota and Dakota.

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1886.

MR. BLAKE'S MAN OF ALL WORK.

THE personal representative and man of all work of Mr. Blake, has again gone through the form of being nominated as Mr. Blake's standard-bearer in West Ontario. It appears that this ceremony is considered necessary, so it was performed by a packed convention of 65 persons assembled for the purpose of naming Mr. Edgar. To show how the affair was in the hands of select wire-pullers, not of representative delegates, we may mention that the Newmarket Reform newspaper says that out of the nine delegates appointed for Newmarket only one attended. The other eight probably did not care to degrade themselves by participation in such a farce, or by openly expressing themselves in favor of such a representative as Mr. J. D. Edgar.

Several resolutions were passed at this packed meeting. Among them was one to which we would especially call attention. It was as follows:—

Resolved.—That after watching with interest the parliamentary course of our member, Mr. J. D. Edgar, we express our cordial approval of his general course, in particular of that portion of the general work allotted to him by his leader, which has, more than anything else, exposed to the people of Canada the internal corruption of the present Government, and the shameful abuse of the immense patronage in their hands, and as the best evidence of our entire approval and support, we again place him in the field as our standard-bearer for the House of Commons in the approaching contest.

It is interesting to notice the naive confession of their standard-bearer's position as Mr. Blake's man of all work. The dirty work "allotted to him by his leader" apparently refers to the false charges brought against the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and others by Mr. Edgar, who, when on oath, had to confess that he uttered a deliberate and slanderous falsehood in the face of the House, when he asserted that he had trustworthy information in support of his calumnies.

But though this piece of dirty work done for his master was acknowledged and praised, another still dirtier errand on which he went for Mr. Blake was ignored and passed over in silence. There is not a word concerning Mr. Edgar's successful visit to Quebec to make the bargain for the sale of Mr. Blake's support for murder and rebellion and of his personal honor in return for votes to place him in power given by those who claim that the punishment of a French Canadian criminal must be avenged upon the authorities daring to administer even handed justice. Was it thought that this particular piece of work allotted to Mr. Edgar would not be enthusiastically applauded in West Ontario—that the conspiracy was for use in Quebec, but should be discretely kept in the background in Ontario? Perhaps it was considered that too many of the electors concerned would have a vivid recollection of Mr. Blake's appeals to them for votes because of his bogus offer of a reward of $5,000 to bring Riel to justice for the murder of Scott.

Mr. Blake's consistency as an avenger of blood might not blind people to the fact that he does not care whose blood it is with which he bedaubs himself when putting on his political war paint.

AN EXTRAVAGANT GOVERNMENT.

The Reform government came into power in Ontario in 1871. In the last full year of the Macdonald government, the expenditures out of consolidated revenue were $1,074,808.79. The population then was 1,620,000. Last year the expenditures from consolidated fund were $2,501,723.45. The population was then 2,100,000.

The increase in the population was rather more than 30 per cent: the increase in the ordinary expenditure was more than 130 per cent.

It will be remembered that not a dollar of this expenditure was on capital account. The whole sum went for the ordinary running expenses of the government. That readers may see how our exceedingly economical and virtuous Reform Government spends the people's money, let us put the expenditures of the two years in comparison:

	1870.	1885.	Inc. p. ct.
Civil government	$104,909	$184,254	75
Crown lands	80,481	107,868	34
Colonization roads	50,000	121,435	143
Legislation	37,498	125,762	236
Justice	180,004	354,923	97
Asylums, etc	201,786	700,992	246
Immigration	32,087	19,088	*
Agriculture, etc	65,722	159,676	109
Education	315,838	544,213	67
Miscellaneous	5,443	100,320	1,743
Repairs, etc		74,292
Total	$1,074,808	$2,501,723	133

*Decrease.

The expenditures under the head civil government are for salaries and expenses of government officials. The increase has been 75 per cent. No new departments have been created. There certainly need have been no increase under this head greater than that in the population, say 30 per cent.

The receipts from crown lands and from woods and forests were little greater in 1885 than in 1870. But the expenses of managing them increased by 34 per cent.

In 1870 colonization roads cost $50,000. Fewer people are now going into our frontier districts than in 1870 because so much of the immigration is diverted to the North-west. And, as some millions of money have been expended on these roads the whole frontier is pretty well supplied. But the government increases its outlay for the money serves as a bribery fund. Farmers of the older parts of Ontario were compelled to make roads for themselves. They would not greatly object to the making of roads for settlers on the free grant lands; but they do object to the payment of enormous sums for keeping those roads in repair. The increase of 143 per cent. on this account is wholly indefensible.

No fault can be found with any reasonable increase of the grants in favor of education. But it is worthy of remark that the actual grants to schools were: In 1870, $265,867; in 1885, $394,197; increase 46 per cent. In 1870 the expenses of the department were $50,000; in 1885, $160,000; increase, 220 per cent.

The Government of Ontario has been most wickedly extravagant than any other Government in the Dominion.—Hamilton Spectator.

FATAL CONFLAGRATION.

Firemen Buried Under Burning Ruins—Fatal Results.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—A conflagration causing the loss of nearly a quarter of a million dollars and probably several lives occured in Knight & Leonard's six-story building, 109 and 111 East Madison street, between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning. The inmates of the dozen of gambling houses in the vicinity were unware of the fire at the outset, and it made such rapid headway that no one stirred from the tables until the lives of most of them were imperilled. Then a wild stampede ensued. The proprietors hurried their gold and greenbacks into satchels, others shovelled the ivory chips into bags, and a few rushed down stairs with roulette wheels, faro tables and gambling paraphernalia of every description. The majority of the dealers, lookouts and players rose together and came tearing out of the buildings, many hatless and coatless and all frightened.

After an hour's work by the firemen the flames were under comparative control. At this time six men of the insurance patrol were in the building slinging tarpaulins over the stock of the Goodyear Rubber Company. Suddenly there was a terrible crash, followe by a dense wave of smoke and sparks. The roof and top floor had fallen through to the basement, burying the men of the insurance patrol in the ruins A minute after the crash a detachment of firemen and insurance patrol men, led by Chief Sweene, rushed to the rescue. George Furnell and Wm. Darby were taken out slightly injured. Capt. Hume had both legs crushed and his left foot turned completely around. P. L. Mullins was fearfully bruised and cut, Gus. Beorgemenk had an arm broken and a leg shattered. A heavy piece of machinery fell on him and it took three-quarters of an hour to rescue him, the whole of which time he was praying to be killed outright. C. Papineau, aged 30, was taken out dead, In the recovery of the corpse another fireman was fatally injured and a patrol man seriously wounded.

The fire and the fall of the roof had damaged many telephone and telegraph wires. Gangs of linemen were sent to the roof adjoining to straighten the tangled mass. They were requested to wait until the firemen had found Papineau's body, but the wireworkers did not comply. While pulling a heavy cable over a wall a piece of jagged iron cornice was dislodged and struck a fireman named Michael McGovern in the small of the back. While his companions picked him up policeman hurried to the roof and intercepted the linemen. While helping to carry out the wounded man, Wm. Cornwell of the Insurance Patrol fell through a hole in the broken sidewalk and was so seriously injured that he was taken to the hospital. McGovern was horribly mangled by the cornice and is dying. Eighteen of the linemen were put under arrest but afterwards released, the telegraph officials becoming their sureties. The building was occupied by a number of large firms.

MRS. STEWART'S WILL.

How the Wealth of the Dead Millionaire is Disposed of.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The will of Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart was filed to-day. She gives her brother Charles P. Clinch, an annuity of $20,000 per annum; to her sisters, Anna, Emma and Julia Clinch, she gives an annuity of $10,000 per annum; her niece, Sarah N, Smith, is bequeathed $25,000; Cornelia S. Butler gets $200,000, and each of her children Lawrence and Charles, $50,000 each. Kate H. Smith received $200,000. Louis, Ellen, Bessie and James, also children of Sarah N. Smith, receive $100,000 each. Her deceased sister, Louisa's children each get $50,000. The rest of the estate, real and personal, goes to Charles J. Clinch, now of Paris, and Henry Hilton, as executors, who are directed not to pay any of the bequest until three years after the final probate of the will.

The above constitutes the original will, made July 5, 1877. In a codicil, dated May 27, 1878, she orders the executors to dispose of her estate in various ways. She reverses the bequests to Henry Hilton, and gives to him one-half part of the remainder of her estate to be used in completing the Stewart Memorial Cathedral at Garden City, to endow it forever, to build two seminaries to be attached to the Cathedral, and transfer them to the Protestant Church of Long Island. If any heir, next of kin, or legatee institutes an action or becomes a party to any action to set aside the will, it will make null the bequests to them.

An additional codicil was made July 2, 1878. In this she orders Judge Hilton's bequests to be more than sufficient to pay for various things she orders done. He is to divide the residue among the legatees in such proportions as in his judgment seems best. She further gives her niece, Sarah N. Smith and her heirs one equal half part of her propriety devised and bequeathed to Charles J. Clinch, and to this end annul the gift to Charles J Clinch and her executors each. She gives $25,000 to be distributed to her servants. Her executors are empowered to endow and furnish a Seminary of Learning for women near the Garden City Cathedral. The last codicil is dated Nov. 30, 1885.

A RAILWAY TRAGEDY.

A Man Shoots His Wife and Child on a Train in Mexico.

NUEVO LAREDO, Mex., Nov. 1.—On the south bound Mexican National train yesterday morning, Senora Ambrosia Martinez, a Mexican woman, and her two daughters, aged 6 and 8 years, were passengers. At Monterey Vincente Recendez, the husband of the lady, approached them, and leaning forward, put his arm around his wife as if to embrace her, but instead placed the muzzle of a pistol against her breast and fired twice. He then fired at the youngest of the children, sending a bullet through its head. He fired two more shots, one entering his wife's brain, the other not taking effect. The dying groans of the mother, the lamentations of the children and the screaming of the other occupants of the car made the most heartrendering spectacle imaginable. The murderer was put in gaol. He said he was sorry he shot the child, but glad he killed his wife. The woman died one hour afterwards, and the little girl is not expected to recover. Domestic trouble and jealously were the causes. Recendez is a common loafer, and there is talk of lynching him.

AN UNKNOWN LAND.

Steam Communication Wanted Between the West Coast of Newfoundland.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 30.—Rev. Dr. Hawley, Prefect Apostolic of the West Coast of Newfoundland, is here to interest Canadians in opening up steam communication and trade relations with that part of the ancient colony. His district embraces one thousand miles of territory, and has a population of 8000, which are just emerging from a state of practical barbarism. There are magnificent tracts of agricultural lands along the coast, equalling any in Eastern Canada, with rich deposits of lead, coal, silver, mica, copper and other minerals and clays, and inexhaustible supply of lumber, being part of that vast track of country known as the "French shore." It has hitherto been unexplored and unknown, as much so as if in the heart of Africa. Sixteen years ago it had no mail accommodation, no roads, no schools, no law, no custom houses, no representation in the Newfoundland parliament, no taxation. A few years ago the first steps in colonization and civilization were taken, resulting in marked progress, but the principal settlements are 160 miles from St. John, and only 80 from Sydney. The natural markets of that coast are Sidney and Halifax, and its trade is all with Canada, but the Newfoundland Government will not aid in obtaining steam communication between the west coast and Canada because it diverts trade from St John. Dr. Hawley says his people have nothing to hope from the Newfoundland Government and look to Canada to develope its trade and resources. He wants the Canadian Government to subsidize steam communication between Cape Breton and the West Coast.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

THE BLAKE POLICY.

Riel and his people are not yet avenged. They will be so only after Sir John's Cabinet has been made to bite the dust. Until then, let us remain under arms and have our minds set, not upon the victory but upon the manner of taking advantage against our enemy of the posts we have already won.—L' Etendard (Rielite.)

UNCONSTITUTIONAL TRICK.

It is to be hoped that no such unconstitutional means of approaching the Lieutenant-Governor as that of presenting him with a petition to dismiss his advisers will be resorted to. If such a method is resorted to the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Masson, a man whom all parties respect and have confidence in, will be unable to do anything more than ignore it.—Montreal Witness (Reform.)

CONSPICUOUSLY ABSENT.

It is noticeable that the name of Mr. Cameron, the Liberal English Protestant member for Huntingdon, is conspicuously absent from the list of the thirty-five members who are ready to vote want of confidence in the Ross-Taillon Government. Messrs. Bourbonnais and Larochelle, both Nationalists and supposed to be Independents, are included.—Montreal Witness (Reform.)

BECAUSE HE DARED.

Whatever may be the result of the coming struggle at the polls it becomes the people of Ontario to preserve a watchful, independent attitude. If Sir John Macdonald is hurled from power it will be because he dared to hang a French Canadian for rebellion and murder.—Toronto World (Ind.)

WEAK CHAMPIONSHIP.

The influence of the Globe is evidently greatly decreased. Premier Mowat must have little confidence in the ability and power of the regular staff of that journal to present his case to the public, when he feels it necessary to take the unusual course of supplementing their efforts by a long and carefully-studied statement over his own signature, published in their columns. The editorials of the Globe on the central prison affair have been neither few nor far between. That the Ontario premier should feel it incumbent upon him to go over the ground afresh shows plainly that he considers their championship weak and ineffectual. His letter shows that he would have made a good editor.—Toamto News (Indep.)

THE NATIONALIST MOVEMENT.

It is wonderful how much the French Canadian press has to say about the "Nationalist movement." How strangely names are sometimes distorted! If this is not a distortion of the ordinary national idea, which has for its object the upbuilding of a nation including the whole people, it must mean that the French speaking section intend to become a nation by themselves, and either to subjugate the English speaking minority, or drive them out of the country. Neither of these is a pleasant idea. It is certainly an exceedingly strange kind of a "national movement" where the minority propose to establish their language and laws, and ultimately the flag, and are encouraged in it by a large section of the majority. Canada cannot yet have comprehended the meaning of this "nationalist movement." It is not a movement for home rule, because the agitators already have it. It is simply a deepseated and desperate resolve to rule Canada.—Toronto News (Indep.).

DO THEY WISH TO BE BRIBED?

The man who murdered his father and mother, and then begged for mercy on the ground that he was an orphan, has been credited with large audacity. But he has his match in the Grit party of Canada. They are repealers, annexationists, and Rielites and they now ask that the Government be placed in their hands, alleging that so long as they held power, none of these unpleasant agitations were heard of. It is well known that the old repeal agitation which went on until Mr. Mackenzie succeeded to the Premiership in 1873, suddenly subsided thereafter and was ot again heard from until the Grit party had been defeated at the polls. Do not our Grit friends realize that the argument they now make is nothing but an attempt to blackmail the people of Canada? Do they not see that when leaders of disloyal movements ask a return to power in order that those agitations shall cease, they are simply asking to be bribed into loyalty?—St John N. B. Sun).

A SAVAGE FIGHT.

A Man Attacked by a Dog, Escapes and Dies of Hydrophobia.

CAICAGO, Oct. 29.—Wm. Klinkhammer's death was reported this morning, and investigation leaves little doubt that it was caused by hydrophobia. Klinkhammer, who was a carpenter, was on his way to work on Sept. 11, when an enormous brindle bulldog rushed furiously upon him. Klinkhammer, though a man about 58 years of age, was possessed of much courage and agility, and seeing no avenue of escape from the brute drew a long case knife from his pocket, and a savage fight ensued between the man and the dog. The sight was a terrible one. In a few minutes the sidewalk was covered with the blood of both the combatants, the man using the knife with deadly effect, while the dog was literally lacerating the limbs of the latter. In at least four different places Klinkhammer inflicted deep, gaping wounds, while the dog's fangs met each other in four places through the man's legs. At length the terrible scene was brought to an end by Klinkhammer making his escape through the sheer exhaustion of the animal from the loss of blood. The poor fellow painfully dragged his mangled limbs to his home and lay down upon what proved to be his death bed. In one week he had to be removed to the hospital and remained there till a week ago Monday. During his stay there the doctors discovered symptoms of blood poisoning and wanted to amputate the affected limbs. Klinkhammer obstinately refused to allow this, and was taken back to his home. Within twenty-four hours the symptoms of the frightful malady which is supposed to have caused his death had increased to an alarming extent. On the second day he raved and on the third he was a violent and raving maniac. Death ended his agonies yesterday afternoon, four men being obliged to hold him down in bed.

HARVEY.

FIRE.—At about four o'clock on Friday afternoon, Mr. J. P. Davis of Nogie's Creek Mill, noticed smoke escaping from the roof of sleeping room over the office building. The alarm was given, and the men endeavoured to save their property in the room but the fire had already such a hold that it was impossible to reach the upper floor. The books were got out of the office, but the fire spread with such awful rapidity, that the attention of the few men who were at hand, became divided, and little was saved. The barn and stable and dwelling house were soon ignited, and almost like a flash, everything in reach was licked into the flames. Part of the furniture only was saved, and that was much broken, Mr. Fin. Davis who is still unable to walk, from the accident he met with in the mill some time ago, was carried out of the building which he occupied when the roof was in flames. The immediate neighbors soon collected, but they were unable to do anything. A large quantity of supplies, hay, oats, harness, furniture, and all the buildings except the mill, were destroyed, and the men lost all their clothing and belonging that were in the sleeping room. Some of them lost their watches, and few of them lost sums of money. They were all left with just what they stood in. There was a small insurance on the house, but the loss is heavy and difficult to ascertain. Mr. Davis and family and all those who were so summarily ejected from house and home, were billited amongst the neighbours and made as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. Mr. Davis is now busily engaged in building.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

FENELON FALLS.

A SUCCESSFUL HUNT.—A party of seven, to wit: Messrs. E. R. Edwards, E. Fitzgerald, John Brandon and Johnston Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, W. H. Simpson, of Peterborough, C. Gunsolus, of Bobcaygeon, and Wm. Brandon, of Haliburton, have had a good time in the woods near Clear and Blak Lakes, about 35 miles north of Haliburton. They started on the 18th, and the last of them got back to the Falls on Friday morning; but, deducting the time spent in going and returning, they did not hunt more than a week, during which they shot no less than fourteen deer, the smallest of which was a fawn a few months old, and the largest a magnificent buck weighing fully 275 pounds. One was eaten in camp, four were left out north, and nine were brought to the Falls, where six may now be seen hanging on hooks in Mr. Edward's driving shed. The other three went farther, the big follow being forwarded to a friend of Mr. Simpson's at Montreal. The party struck the right place for sport, as, besides deer, there were plenty of ducks, a fair sprinkling of partridges and excellent fishing.—Gazette.

Went True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfils a single one of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00. A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

The value of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in the protection it affords from the dangers of pulmonary disorders, cannot be overestimated. Mr. C. K. Philips, Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "About three years ago I had severe Laryngitis, which resulted in chronic hoarseness. By the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral I have since entirely regained my health." Mr. Henry Russell, Excelsior Printing Co., New York, writes: "Influenza became epidemic in my neighborhood. Several members of my family suffered severely with it, all of whom took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and were cured by it in a few days. It is a wonderful medicine for Influenza. Too much cannot be said in its favor."

E. M. Sargent, 41 Andover st., Lowell, Mass., says: "I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral about the year 1842, as a family medicine, for Coughs and Colds, and have always kept it in my house since that time. I consider it the best remedy that can be had for these complaints." Dr. J. B. Robertson, Clayton, N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in my family and practice, for a number of years, and have no hesitation in recommending it. It is an admirable preparation, and well-qualified to do all that is claimed for it." E. J. Styers, Germanton, N. C., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best Cough preparation I ever saw. It gives instant relief."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

has cured a Cough in a few doses. It always relieves irritation of the lungs or throat, and arrests the tendency to inflammation. It strikes at the foundation of all Pulmonary diseases, is without a rival as an expectorant, and is a sure cure for the most obstinate Coughs and Colds. L. Garrett, Texana, Texas, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twenty years. For throat and lung diseases, I consider it a wonderful remedy."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Conservative Club.

A regular meeting of the Junior Conservative Club will be held in the club room, over Mr. Stethem's store, this evening.

The Japs.

The Japanese colony arrived in town last evening and registered at the Grand Central Hotel. A week's engagement will be opened in Bradburn's Opera House this evening.

To-Night.

Mr. Seward will organize his two classes for vocal instruction this evening at 8 o'clock, in his new rooms over China Hall. All those who take any interest in music are cordially invited to attend.

Gough's Pumpkins.

The judging of Gough's pumpkins has been deferred till Saturday next, when three competent seedsmen will give decision and the overcoat will be awarded to the successful competitor.

Vital Statistics.

The vital statistics for the month of October, as supplied by the Divisional Registrar, are as follows:—

Births 18
Marriages 9
Deaths 13

W. C. T. U.

Remember the meeting in Mr. P. H. Green's studio this evening at half-past seven o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union. All young ladies and members of the Union are requested to attend.

A First Class Entertainment

Staurt Rogers appears at the Opera House, Friday, November the 5th. His impersonations of Oscar Wilde Gladstone, Henry Irving and other famous characters are simply perfect. All should see him. Admission, 25 and 50 cents. Seats at Davis's.

New Lighting.

New gas fictures have been placed in first flat of the Golden Lion dry goods house. Two lines of polished brass piping, suspending from the ceiling by polished brass rods, run the full length of the place. From this springs jets all along, lighting up this department brightly.

Prospering.

The Lindsay-Seldon Furniture Company by turning out artistic work at moderate prices, is securing a good trade. Orders are already received from Toronto and Montreal in such numbers as to guarantee the factory's running to its full capacity till Christmas. There is every prospect of this firm's occupying next year even larger premises than they now have.

The Popular Talks.

The programme of the series of popular talks being arranged under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., is now about completed. Mr. J. H. Long, M. A., will give a discourse on "Something About Stars." The Rev. F. H. Wallace will have for his subject "Germany and the Germans." Mr. Geo. S. Bean will give experiments, illustrations and hints on chemistry. Mr. D. W. Dumble will expose "Popular Legal Falacies," and and there will be other "Popular Talks."

Sudden and Important!

Every gentleman in Peterborough who wishes to be comfortably well dressed during the coming winter should immediately call at Habiliment Hall and inspect the immense stock of fabrics that have been imported for this season's trade. If you want decidedly pretty and becoming material for a new overcoat or handsome suit, cut in the latest city fashions, you cannot do better than leave your order with the above reliable house. The gents furnishing and haberdashery department is, as usual, replete with thousands of articles usually found in a first-class establishment. Don't delay, but come at once and inspect the large stock of new goods for the winter season of 1886-87.

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES.

A True Bill Brought in Against Hammill—Roddy Let off.

At four o'clock on Monday afternoon the Grand Jury entered the court room. The foreman announced that in the case of the Queen vs. Hammill a true bill had been brought in against the prisoner for having in his possession means for issuing bogus bank bills, and that in the other charges in the indictment no bill was returned. The foreman also announced that no bill was returned in the Roddy assault case.

The case of McCann vs. Preneveau, which has been before the court several times, again came up.

MCCANN VS. PRENENEAU.

This was an action for malicious prosecution. In May, 1885, the plaintiff sold some timber to the defendant, the defendant buying it subject to measurement by a practical man. Preneveau paid McCann $50 down, but when measured by a practical man it was proved to be worth but $36. McCann then gave back $15 to Preneveau, who accepted it. Afterwards he stated he would not accept the timber at all as it did not measure 14 inches string measurement, McCann leading him to believe that it would. Preneveau then claimed the balance of his $50 and $5 for his trouble. McCann refused to accede to this demand and Preneveau threatened an action for receiving money under false pretences. An action was brought against McCann and he was committed for trial, but in June, 1886, the Grand Jury returned no bill. McCann in his turn then brought an action against Preneveau for malicious prosecution and slander. In the autumn assizes of 1885 he was awarded $200 for the first action and $25 for the second. This did not satisfy him, however. A new trial was applied for and granted. This is the case that came before the court at this session. The jury returned a verdict for $500 for the plaintiff.—Blackstock, Toronto, and Sawers, Peterborough, for the plaintiff; no one for the defendant.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

The Japanese Colony.

The entertainment to be given by the Japanese Colony of San Ban in Bradburn's Hall this evening and till the end of the week is of a novel and very interesting nature. One of its most attractive features is that these real Japanese artists and artisans will be seen pursuing their artistic avocations, and thus the methods can be scrutinized by which they produce their excellent works, and it must be remembered that the Japanese are perhaps the foremost in art generally of all people. A Japanese lady, the first to visit this country, may be seen among them plying her skilful needle. It is not surprising that in the cities they have already visited spectators have been attracted by tens of thousands. Mr. Takahasha, the interpreter, who will lecture on his country, is the only Japanese who has ever addressed a Canadian audience in English. He was educated in the college at Yokahama, and has acquired his moderate knowledge of our language during his eight months' stay on this continent. To-morrow is the birthday of the Mikado, the sovereign of Japan, so that his subjects now visiting us will be more than usually profuse in their decorations in honor of the festival.

The Mills and the Market.

The farmers of this county and of the adjoining counties, who market their wheat in Peterborough, may thank the milling enterprise of Peterborough for their getting from 4 to 5 cents per bushel more for it than is paid in many of the markets of the district. During the past year the export trade in flour here has increased threefold. Shipments of Peterborough flour are now regularly made to Glasgow, Scotland, Newcastle-on-Tyne and Manchester, England, and it is expected that consignments will be shipped to Dublin, Ireland, before long. A large trade is also done with Quebec. Three of the mills are now, and have been for the last six months, working night and day to supply the demand, and a fourth will shortly start night and day work. Though the delivery of wheat to the Peterborough market still keeps up in volume, the supply, owing to the large increase in the demands of the millers, is far short this season. All of the millers have been bringing in wheat from various points in the district—Millbrook, Cavanville, Omemee, Lakefield, Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford, Lindsay, Port Hope, and other points. One miller says that this fall he has brought in 10,000 bushels of wheat from Hastings alone. The result is quite plain—the farmer who markets his wheat in Peterborough gets just the amount received in commission by buyers at outside points, and the cost of bringing the wheat to the Peterborough mills. This amounts to from 4 to 5 cents per bushel. The millers must have the wheat. If they can't get it in Peterborough they must bring it from other places.

Saved Army Barracks Burned.

KINGSTON, Nov. 1.—During the last week the barracks of the Saved Army at Robin and at Davis Corners, Kennox County, were burned dawn. The Captain of the corps has recently had trouble with ruffians and had them before the Court, and it is said that some parties out of revenge fired the buildings. Both buildings were burned about the same time. No insurance.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY. — The November number of Harper has for its frontispiece a group, "At the Authors' Club, New York," one of many illustrations of Mr. G. P. Lathrop's article on "The Literary Movement in New York." Mde Edmond Adam gives a lively account of a very different assemblage of literary and political celebrities in "How I Formed My Salon." W. Sharp has a timely paper, "Halloween; a Threefold Chronicle," giving details of its ceremonies as they still linger in various localities. W. H. Gibson in "A Plea for the Grassy Road," gives a pleasing picture of rural beauty, calling his pencil as well as his pen to his aid. The description of "The American Cowboy" and his work, by J. Nimmo, has special interest for Canadians in view of Northwest developments. Lieut. Ross' account of "Our Coast Guard," besides being interesting in itself, has also a bearing on recent Canadian events. A. H. D. Ackland, in his description of "Co-operation Among English Workingmen," will surprise many readers as they learn what a great advance has already been made in this line. Col. Higginson gives some "Hints on Speech-making," which will be found useful by many after dinner orators. Mr. Warner brings his very interesting serial, "Their Pilgrimage," to a satisfactory conclusion, though the reader will be sorry to part with him and the children of his brain. Mr. Blackmore's novel, "Springhaven," grows more engrossing as it progresses. Some lively tales, pleasing poems, and the editorial miscellanies, complete a most attractive table of contents.

GOSPEL ARMY AND SAVED BAND.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to Mr. Lindsay's proposed reorganization of the Saved Army, that six syllabled word is a high sounding and imposing one, but it is the same kind of reorganization which Absalom proposed in the Kingdom of Israel and Jefferson Davis in the United States and Riel in the Dominion of Canada. Some might be so unkind and indiscriminating as to call it rebellion rather than reorganization.

Some years ago Mr. Ward Hunt, First Lord of the Admiralty, proposed reorganization of the British navy, which he declared was a phantom navy. Sir Wilfred Lawson retorted that it was no more a phantom than the first Lord himself, who weighed about seventeen stone. His measures did not succeed as he expected. A similar lack of success may be expected to attend the plans of Mr. Lindsay, who professes to reorganize not a navy, but an army.

I parted with him recently on an agreement to give him as a settlement $300, and he agreed in the same document not to hurt or injure my stations. But I subsequently find him installed as general of some four of these stations, which have seceded from me, and three young men officers and several young lady officers have altogether seceded out of these and other stations. I do not see how this accords with his written promise not to hurt my stations when he left my employment.

I found the Saved Army last autumn owing nearly $1,000, and I promised to pay this if they would transfer their 25 stations to my Gospel Army. I have now paid $750 of that $1,000 debt, and I have spent in addition $4,250 over this combined Gospel and Saved Army in the Dominion of Canada during the past ten months.

Mr. Lindsay's salary has been $7 each week, with his board, during the eight months he has been with me. There is one thing which will militate against this redoubtable newly fledged, or rather re-elected, General and his fair captains establishing permanently their Saved Band, and that is want of the sinews of war, without which no army, either political or religious, can carry on operations. There is, however, the recourse of floating a loan on the stock exchange or issuing bonds of the Saved Band redeemable at par at the beginning of the next century.

The secession of several young lady officers is explainable as being not from a dislike of the Army they have hitherto been connected with, but from a natural preference to be under the presidency of a former comrade gifted with a persuasive tongue, and who, like Absalom, has "stolen the hearts of the people."

Yours, etc.,
M. BAXTER.

Why Didn't They Look for it.

"Did anyone drop a half-sovereign?" enquired a man on a tramcar last evening, as he rose to alight. Like chain lightning several men felt their pockets and replied in chorus: "Yes, I did." Then the man stood so that he could jump off and run, if necessary, and said: "Then why in thunder don't you get down and look for it before someone picks it up?" And he skipped off the car, the man who said they dropped the half-sovereign kept well screened behind their evening papers.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES

A VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY IN THE HAMMILL COUNTERFEIT CASE.

Joseph Whiteman Sentenced to Six Months in gaol—The Imprisonment to be computed from the time of his first Incarceration.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jury made their presentment at four o'clock as follows:—

The Grand Jurors for our Soverign Lady the Queen for the County of Peterborough beg to present to your Lordship as follows:—

(1) We have carefully examined the Court House and gaol, both of which we have found very clean and in good order.

(2) We regret, however, to see that five lunatics are confined in our county prison and that they are naturally without that care and treatment which they would receive if placed in the asylums of the country intended for such unfortunate persons. This is a matter we would like to see brought to the notice of the proper authorities so that an effort may be made to restore the health and reason of these unhappy persons.

(3) We have to thank your Lordship for your very interesting and instructive address, and particularly with reference to prison labor and the Scott Act.

(4) As regards the question of prison labor to which your Lordship has referred we are of the opinion that no criminal should be permitted to be idle and that although no profit whatever may be obtained from his labor, provision should be made for his constant employment, which we believe should be of as severe a character as he is capable of performing. As your Lordship pointed out this would have a most salutary effect in keeping tramps and many others from being a burden on our county. We sincerely trust that this matter may receive attention from the Government

In reference to the working of the Scott Act in this county, we feel that we are not justified in expressing an opinion as to its merits, as it has only been a short time in operation.

We, however, are of opinion that it would be in the interests of the country that a prohibitory measure should replace it on the statute books.

We feel that great difficulty will continue to be found in enforcing the present law, for as long as strong drink is permitted to be made, secret means of selling it will always be found.

All of which we humbly present to your Lordship.

JAS. STEVENSON,
Foreman

The Whiteman bigamy case came before the court at half past four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. To the north part of the court room sat a group who had patiently waited since noon. There was the little pale No. 1 wife of the prisoner with a prattleing four year old girl and a bright looking boy beside her; the swarthy, well developed No 2 sat in the next seat behind, with the aged and infirm mother of the prisoner next to her; and near were several witnesses. When the prisoner entered the eyes of this group, as well as all the court, was fixed upon him. He bore the gaze of the crowded room with his usual calmness and stoicism. The jury on the former case was still impannelled when the prisoner entered. When this jury retired No. 2 wife came to the front of the prisoner's box. She shook hands with the prisoner, and each exchanged a smile. Mrs. Whiteman No. 2, however, appeared very much excited. She shifted uneasily in her seat, and frequently got up to whisper to her lawyer, Mr. Moore, who sat immediately in front of her.

The Clerk arraigned the prisoner, charging him with having committed the crime of bigamy, having on the 21st day of January, 1882, in the township of Camden, in the County of Addington, married Annie Yeomans, and having on the 16th March, 1881, married Isabella White, Annie Yeomans, the former wife being then alive.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty.

Mr. MOORE objected to this trial going on, as there was a similar indictment standing against the prisoner at the Quarter Session.

HIS LORDSHIP said that he would make such an endorsement on the present one as would free the prisoner from being tried twice for the same offence.

The jury was then impannelled, one juryman being objected to,

Mr. W. R. RIDDELL, Q. C., of Cobourg, who acted for the Crown, addressed the jury explaining the nature of the crime of bigamy.

BENJAMIN YEOMANS, the father of the first wife, was the first witness. He identified the prisoner as the man who married his daughter at his house in Camden in 1862. He saw the prisoner at Madoc 7 years ago. Mrs. Whitman then had five children. He knew he was the man who married his daughter.

To Mr. MOORE—I have seen him several times since he married my daughter. He lived around the neighborhood for several years and then went to the States for two years. He came back again and went to Madoc. It was there I last saw him before coming here. I took my daughter home at her request.

ELEANOR CLARK, who was at the wedding, recognised the prisoner as being the man on one side of his face who was married on that occasion. She did not recognize the other side of his face. He had two eyes then, but had only one now.

To Mr. MOORE—I would not swear positively that the prisoner is the man who married Annie Yeomans.

CAPT. COOPER testified as to taking the prisoner's first wife to the gaol when she recognized the prisoner to be her husband. He was at the police station when the prisoner was brought in from the country. The prisoner said: "You have the wrong man. I have been married only once. The woman with me is my wife."

ISABELLA WHITE, sworn, gave evidence as to being married to the prisoner in the town of Peterborough in 1881. She was married to the prisoner by the Rev. Mr. Harper.

ROBT. HALL, recognized the prisoner as being married to Isabella White in 1881. He was present at the wedding.

JOHN HARTLEY, sworn, said that he had issued a marriage license to Joseph Whiteman on 16th of April, 1881.

DR. BELL, sworn, said that this prisoner was the man who acted as marker at the rifle range in October 1882. His eye was put out at the range.

HENRY MINCE, identified the prisoner as the man he knew to live with Annie Yeomans as husband in Camden a good many years ago. He met the prisoner in Galway in 1885.

Mrs. WHITEMAN, an old lady of near seventy, was then called. She hobbled up toward the witness box till she came to where the prisoner stood, when she sank down on a seat. She grew very pale. She looked up appealingly to her son and gasped, "What will I say, Joseph?" "Say what you know," he returned. As she was unable to go to the witness box, the clerk came to administer the oath where she was "What do you want with me," she said, "I know nothing about it. All I know about him is that he were a good boy to me. I never seen him married, and I never knew that he were."

After some little time another attempt was made to administer the oath, but it so excited her that Mr. Moore was given permission to question her without its being administered. She stated that she came to this country from Bedfordshire, England, and brought Joseph, a little fellow, with her. They lived near Kingston for some time. Joseph grew up and went out to work. Occasionally he would come home, and if he had anything to give her she got it and if she had anything to give him she gave it. He was always a good son to her. He was neither a drunkard nor a blackguard, and everyone that knew him was sorry for him that he had got into trouble.

Neither counsel for the prisoner or the Queen's Counsel addressed the jury.

The Judge charged the jury, pointing out to them their duty and stating that they simply had to find whether the prisoner was guilty or not guilty. The responsibility of the penalty, if there were one to pronounce, rested upon him.

After retiring a short time the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty with a recommendation to merch."

His Lordship reserved pronouncing the sentence till the morning.

This forenoon at the Assize Court Joseph Whiteman was brought into court to receive sentence.

His HONOR—What have you to say why sentence of the Court should not be pronounced?

The prisoner replied that there had been considerable law in his case, but no justice. He was prepared to prove that the woman who had sworn against him was not his wife, and that her name was Brooks. He thought he should not be punished for crime of which he was not guilty.

His HONOR reminded the prisoner that he had the advantage of Counsel and the opportunity of giving evidence. He did not see that the jury could have come to any other conclusion. He would make the sentence lighter on account of the circumstances, as the Crown Counsel informed him that his first wife was living with another, and that his second wife did not complain. The sentence of the Court was that the prisoner be confined in the county gaol for six and a half months, to be computed from the time of his commitment.

QUEEN VS. HAMMILL.

The case against Alexander Hammill, for having in his possession devices for making counterfeit money, came next.

Mr. Riddell, Q.C., of Cobourg, and Mr. R. E. Wood, County Attorney, represented the Crown, and Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q.C., of Toronto, and Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q.C., appeared for the prisoner.

JAMES G. MACDONALD, acting Clerk of the Police Court, was sworn. He produced the negative, the bill, plan of the photograph gallery, stencil, box of type, bottle of red printer's ink, and rubber stamp, which were put in as evidence at the preliminary trial at the Police Court. In cross-examination he said the articles, except the ink, were in use in business offices.

JOHN BALL was sworn. He was learning the photographic business with Hammill. He saw Hammill printing, with the negative produced, in the month of March. It was made at the gallery by Mr. Hammill. Hammill told him that he had made it to make $5 bills. On the morning of the examination at the Police Court he went with Officer Thaxton, of Barrie, to the gallery and found the negative on the floor under a table. The stencil was not used in photography that he knew of. He (the witness) laid the negative where it was found, as Hammill told him it should be put away.

CROSS-EXAMINED—He said he had worked with Hammill a few weeks in Millbrook before they came to Peterborough. He had also worked at making ambrotypes in Minden for a month and a half or 2 months. His (the witnesses') father was a partner of Hammill's in Peterborough, and he looked after his father's interests. He did not draw wages. He took expeeures of views out of the town. Hammill developed the negatives from the exposures. He (the witness) had developed negatives. He stopped the business because he was arrested for passing counterfeit money. He had pleaded guilty and was to appear for sentence when required. Previous to his arrest he had a room in the gallery where he slept. After he had pleaded guilty before the Police Magistrate he told the officers about Hammill. He was advised to tell the truth. He had sometimes thought by telling all he might get off easier. He detailed the circumstances of finding the negative. He changed some underclothing in his bedroom before he got the negative and gave it to Thaxton. He had on a long loose overcoat. He had used the negative produced himself, used it for printing bills. He did not use the stamp for putting the numbers on the bills. The negative gave the numbers and they only needed coloring. He did not use any of the things produced for making the bills. He made two negatives produced of persons, but did not retouch them. The negative of the note was done on a dry plate. He could produce pictures easier from dry plate as he knew more about them. The negative was intensified.

The Court then adjourned for dinner.

GEO. THAXTON, constable, of Barrie, was sworn. He said that he came here with Ball. At first he asked to get shaved and then asked to change his shirt in the gallery. He looked in his vest pocket for the key of his trunk. After this he asked to go to another room. He did so, and, putting his hand under a shelf, pulled out the negative of a photograph of a $5 Toronto bank bill. It would be impossible for him to insert it there without his (the witness) seeing him.

CROSS-EXAMINED.—The room in which we were was not a very light one. The light is a borrowed one. Though it was arraigned for the Chief of Police, the detective and myself to go to the gallery together, I took him there myself.

CAPT. COOPER gave the same evidence as was given at the preliminary examination.

CROSS-EXAMINED—I thought when I searched the gallery I felt satisfied that the search was a thorough one. The place where Ball took the negative was searched. I don't see how it escaped our observation. If the negative was there at the time it must have been a long piece back. It surprised me that it was found in this place. Constables Pidgeon, Adams and myself made a thorough search. The negative was wrapped up in a WEEKLY REVIEW, which is a large sheet. It would make quite a parcel.

P. C. ADAMS, sworn, said—I assisted in the search alluded to. I found bottles, letters, and a rubber stamp. We searched the place as thoroughly as possible. I searched the bed and also the table in the lumber room referred to. I had a lamp with me. I looked in it but saw nothing.

CROSS-EXAMINED — I looked underneath the table from which Ball is said to have found the negative, but saw nothing.

GEO. SPROULE, sworn, said—I am a photographer of twenty years' experience. I have never used printer's ink. The plate in my hand is a negative of a $5 Toronto Bank bill. It is not the work of an expert. The corners are bad—all out of focus. I know Mr. Hammill to be a fair photographer and a good copyer. The plate before me would be very poor work for a man like Mr. Hammill. No one but the one who did it could tell whether the negative was intensified. The retouching done on this is not skilled retouching at all. It is clumsy work. All the copying he had seen of Hammill's work was done on wet plates. Fine work would be done on wet plates. He did not think that the bill produced was taken from the negative produced. It would not be out of the way to see red printer's ink in a photograph gallery.

This closed the case for the Crown.

Mr. KERR submitted that there was no case made out.

Mr. RIDDELL argued that the evidence supported the charge.

His LORDSHIP said he thought that if he were finding on this case he could not find on this evidence that the prisoner had this negative in his possession with intent. He laid stress on the evidence of Policeman Adams, who had searched the place where Ball found the negative. Mr. Sproule had said that the negative was not the work of an expert, and that no one but the man who made it could tell whether it was intensified, while Ball said it was intensified. He should also tell them the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice was not sufficient to convict. He directed to jury to find a verdict of not guilty.

A verdict of not guilty was accordingly entered.

The result was received with applause, which was immediately suppressed, and the Justice said that if the persons who did that were brought before him he would fine them.

NEW YORK MAYORALTY.

Hewitt Elected by an Overwhelming Majority—George Polls a Large Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Probably no election that ever took place in this city has equalled in interest that for Mayor today. Everywhere throughout the city the election was the one topic of interest. The newspaper bulletins were watched by large crowds until the result of the votes for Mayor were known. The figures, with one precinct missing were:—Roosevelt (Republican), 60,392: Hewett (Democrat), 90,296; George (labour), 61,699; Wardwell (prohibition), 574.

Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1886.

THE NORTHWEST INDIANS.

In order to excuse their friend Riel and the other rebels, and in order to pursue their policy of stirring up the Indians of the Northwest to rise against the authorities and the settlers, some Reform journals and speakers are exaggerating and inventing stories of harsh treatment and staryation of the Indians.

They complain of the amount of the vote asked for food for the Indians, telling the white electors they should not be called upon to pay for it, and then with wicked inconsistency they turn round and tell the Indians they are cruelly treated because the Government does not give them as much as they can eat while they live in idleness, and does not provide them with a diet choicer than that with which many of our hardy and careful farmers are content. A most striking specimen of this dishonest inconsistency may be found in Saturday's Globe. In the course of an account of an expedition in the Rainy River country, the "Own Reporter" of the Globe tells how they met an Indian in a canoe gathering wild rice and adds:—"We brought him around to the camp and gave him a hearty meal, for an Indian is always "buc-a-tie" (hungry.)" Yet on the very same page the Globe reports with approbation some abuse by Mr. Blake of Sir John Macdonald for saying that these Northwest Indians were hungry for fresh beefsteak and other luxuries. In this speech, delivered at Galt, Mr. Blake joins in the unholy work of exciting the vindictiveness of these Indians because they are not pampered, and the sympathy of white men by false accusations against the Government of cruelty.

Now it would be absurd to pretend that there have not been any cases of hardship. Such cases occur even in our civilized cities, so it would be surprising if they were altogether absent in an enormous extent of freshly settled country, where communication is difficult, provisions have to be imported, and the improvident destruction of game by themselves has destroyed the chief means of support upon which the Indians recently relied. But even in the unfair extracts given by Mr. Blake it may be seen that the distress is not due to cruelty or wilful neglect. We read of suffering through failure of hunting, want of ammunition, the catch of fish failing, early frost ruining the crops, scrofula and other diseases, and so forth. No one with any feeling would wish to deny assistance in such distress, but in cases of this nature it may well be difficult to supply a remedy immediately in such a country. In other cases we are told that the suffering was caused by the neglect of friends and relatives, though they were well provided with food, and of a less rapid recovery from sickness through the want of fresh meat, tea and sugar. Insufficient and careless nursing, and want of luxuries for the sick, are not unknown in more favored communities, and people with good hearts do their best to relieve such deprivations by self-sacrificing efforts, not by stirring up the sufferers and their friends to revolt. Then again we read of Indians being kept on "starvation allowance" because they persisted in hanging round a post instead of going to their reserves, where food awaited them. To encourage the Indians to hang around the towns and posts instead of settling down on their reserves, would certainly be prejudicial to their own future, as well as to that of the country, and the evil undoubtedly calls for a severe remedy, if no other will have effect.

It is a terrible thing that there should be so much suffering among the red men, and every possible means should be taken of abating it. But in view of the failure of buffalo hunting and other circumstances of the case, it is very difficult to devise efficient means of relief without pauperising the Indians and rendering them averse to settled industry. It is the duty of the people of Canada not to be niggardly in the matter, but at the same time not to be so injudiciously profuse as as to encourage improvidence and idleness. It must also be remembered that there is another side to the question; the authorities have no right to pamper red men in idleness at the cost of the hard-working white inhabitants of Canada.

It is a difficult problem to solve; one that has never yet been solved in a perfectly satisfactory manner by any civilized race coming in contact with savage tribes, and as to its treatment of which Canada certainly does not take a second place to any other community, whatever prejudiced and interested detractors may say. Still there is room for improvement, and efforts should be made in that direction. Mr. Blake, as leader of the Opposition, might assist in this national duty by supporting appropriations to be generously but not lavishly used, by discountenancing preposterous claims, by criticising any particular cases of neglect or inefficiency of officials, and by fair and judicious advice He cannot assist in this duty by howling at every additional thousand dollars voted for food clothing or implements for the Indians as a profligately extravagant increase of expenditure over that of his own administration when there was no Indian question, by slandering indiscriminately the whole body of Indian officials the great majority of whom are probably as honest as himself, by asking for fresh beef steaks for the Indians at the cost of white men who do not turn up their noses at salt pork, or by encouraging them to adhere to the demoralizing life of hangers-on around a post or bush town instead of settling down industriously on their reserves like so many of their brethren in old Canada. Finally Mr. Blake can do no good either to the red or white races in Canada by making sensational and inflammatory speeches of pretended wrongs to be used by his partisans in the Northwest to excite trouble, as was done by them with such terrible results before the rising of last year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A Regular Meeting and a Somewhat Short One.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening. There were present: Mr. Jas. Stevenson in the chair, and Messrs. Henry, Weir, Kendry, Denne, Errett, McWilliams and Rutherford.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

ENQUIRIES.

Mr. DENNE enquired if, per motion of the Board, teachers paid for loss of time. His children were sent home frequently.

The CHAIRMAN replied that they had not.

Mr. ERRETT said that it was not right for teachers to pick up and go off without notice.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Deseronto Chemical Works, representing the value of their cedar oil as a preventative of scaling of iron boilers.—Referred to the Property Committee.

From the Boiler Inspection Company, stating that the boiler was in a sound condition, except that some of the tubes leaked.—Property Committee with instructions to act on it at once.

From the lady teachers in St. John's Church Sunday school, thanking the Board for the use of the public school room during the last few winters. Through the kindness of Miss Chamberlen they were now provided with a suitable room.—Received.

Fram H. C. T. Haultain, laying claim to the Governor General's medal, which had been awarded to Mr. Armstrong, and giving reasons why it should be conferred upon him.—Received.

From Miss Eliza Johnston, tendering her resignation as teacher in the public school, and asking for release within a month.—Accepted and the request to be acquiesced in.

From Misses D. J. Hall, Ada Graham and Lizzie Keele, applying for appointment to the position until now held by Miss Johnston.—Committee on Appointments.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Mr. STRATTON, Public School Inspector, made his monthly report, stating that the work was fairly progressive throughout, and with the exception of but trifling defects everything was satisfactory. He stated that the teachers were now thinking of holding monthly conventions with the object of conferring as to the best modes of teaching, especially primary. He asked the Board to allow the teachers to dismiss half an hour earlier once every month on Friday afternoon, and that a room be set apart in the Central School building for the purpose of holding the meeting.

The report was adopted.

THE INSPECTOR.

Dr. TASSIE announced that Mr. Seath, High School Inspector, was in town to-day, and that he acquiesced in the recent changes which had been made in the Collegiate Institute building.

THE MEDAL.

Mr. MCWILLIAMS moved, seconded by Mr. KENDRY,—That the Secretary of this Board be requested to write to the Registrar of the Toronto University, asking him to give the name of the candidate from this Institute ranking highest in general proficiency at the last junior matriculation examination in arts.

After a hot discussion lasting about half an hour the motion was carried.

The Board then adjourned.

Varna.

Varna, which is frequently mentioned in the cable despatches, is a fortified seaport town of Bulgaria, situated on the southwest shore of the Black Sea, at the mouth of the Pravadi, and about fifty miles from Shumla. It is surrounded by a stone wall ten feet high, loopholed and defended by batteries and outworks on the system of Vauban. The population of the town is about 20,000. A railway, chiefly owned in England connects Varna with Rustchuk on the Danube, about one hundred and forty miles distant. The town is dirty and poorely constructed, but strategically it is one of the most important of the Bulgarian fortified places. During the Russo-Turkish war the seaport was defended by three large batteries, and there were then about two hundred and fifty guns on the works, of large calibre and modern construction. The garrison necessary for the defence of Verna against offensive operations is estimated at fifteen thousand men.

End of an Elopement.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 28—Last Autumn a sensation was caused in society circles by the elopement of Mertie J. Norton, a handsome and fashionable blonde, with Clarence Barber, a negro, and Barber by trade. The couple went to Painesville and lived together for a short time, but the young lady soon returned to her parents. She brought a suit for divorce, and yesterday testified that Barber had deceived her by making her believe thatde was a Spanish Creole. She said she soon discovered he was a negro and left him.

Both.

Rev. Dr. Henson, of Chicago, lectured at Chautauqua, his subject being "Fools." Rev. Dr. Vincent, who is somewhat of a wag, introduced him as follows: "We are now to have a lecture on Fools, by one (long pause and loud laughter)—of the wisest men of the country. The lecturer advanced to the desk and responded as follows: "I am not half so big a fool as Dr. Vincent (long pause and loud laughter) would have you suppose."

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

Grief and fatigue are by no means such conditions as beauty covets for their physical gifts; yet it was a question if Jenny's loveliness was impaired by the whiteness of her face and the languid droop of her eyelids, and the mournful set and curve into which sorrow had twitched the sweetness of her mouth. Her hands were folded wearily on her lap and her wedding ring glistened.

"How kind and good you are to me, Mrs. Mead!" she said. "If ever my darling comes back to me, how will he love and bless you for your goodness to his wife! If I could get a little rest first, I could eat some breakfast; but, indeed, I do not think I could swallow food now."

"Well, perhaps ye are right," replied Mrs. Mead, thoughtfully.

"Anyways, they'll fit thee, Mrs. Mead," exclaimed Sally, with her merry laugh, dropping the slippers on the floor; "and a slipper's a poor job if it don't fit loose."

"Now, see here, Sally," continued Mrs. Mead, rising off her knees with one of those involuntary groans which old folks like her will send up over any harsh exercise of their bones; "this lady wants some sleep, and I'll thank ye, my dear, for the loan of a quiet room for her, where the drawn blinds'll make her poor eyes think it night."

"If ye'll come with me, ma'am, I'll lead you straight to such a room as Mrs. Mead asks for," said Sally, with a courtesy, giving Jenny the "ma'am" on account of her wedding ring, which the quick eye of the woman spied instantly.

With a feeble smile of thanks, Jenny slipped her feet into her shoes, and, taking up her hat and shawl, followed Mrs. Walker out of the room, and Mrs. Mead went creaking after them.

Now, though Mrs. Mead had represented Mrs. Walker as hardened into incuriosity by her calling as hostess, the truth was Mrs. Walker was still, and was ever likely to remain, a thorough woman in respect of inquisitiveness when any real object of curiosity came under her attention. To this quality, which after all is harmless enough when it prompts honest and kindly hearts, Jenny was indebted for the promptness with which she was conducted to a bedroom and made comfortable in it; for Mrs. Walker was very anxious to have Mrs. Mead alone, that she might hear all that was to be told about this beautiful young girl with the wedding ring on her finger, and what part in the mysterious little play Judith herself was taking.

"There," said the old woman, when Jenny had stretched her length upon the bed and her hot forehead pressed the snow of the pillow—"there," said she, pinning the curtains together, so as to effectually darken the room, "now ye'll think its night; and a good wo hours you've got, and every inch of it must be sleep wi' ye."

"Give me a kiss before you go," whispered Jenny, putting up her lips.

The old woman bent her furrowed face over the girl, and as she turned away the notion struck Sally that all three of them were in a very fit state to cry.

Gently they quitted the room and closed the door upon the girl.

"Niver was creature born more sweetly lovable than that dear heart," exclaimed the old woman as she hobbled downstairs, holding on to the banister. "Do ye know, Sally, that she is Mike Strangfield's darter, the Baptist deacon—him as talks o' hellfire as coolly as thee talkest of thy big gooseberries!"

"Ye dunno say so! Well, now, thought I whin I see her, 'Missy, I know thy face.' What, in the name o' goodness and mussy, brings her to Winston this time o' morn!—and she a wife, as any creature might see with one eye by her ring, not to speak of her pale face, poor thing."

"Is this the room I came out of? Yes, there's my bonnet. Now, Sally, no word dost thee get from me till my breakfast is gotten," said Mrs. Mead, sitting herself down; "and then, maybe I'll make your eyes big, and give ye a secret worth all that iver you did hear sin' ye left your mammy's breast.

Such a promise was sufficient to put alacrity into a doll. Off went Sally, and in ten minutes' time a good repast was smoking under Mrs. Mead's appreciative nose. Yet, though the old woman did good justice to the sweet country food, there was a contemplative manner about her, a thoughtful hesitancy, an absent glaring at nothing in particular, the while her old jaws kept her temples leaping, that indicated a mind in labor.

Mrs. Walker, who breakfasted with her for company's sake—for her husband had gone to Marples and was there stopping—watched her anxiously and spoke seldom, until breakfast was done; and then Mrs. Mead, with a little thanksgiving to the Lord for her meal, folded her hands and told Sally all about the cause that had brought Jenny to Winston.

Her story took an hour to relate by the clock; and when she had made an end, what had been hot on the table was cold; the sun had come round into the window to look at the prater, and the cool breeze of the dawn had been smothered in the sultry arms of a burning morning.

"Now, my dear," said she, "I want you to go upstairs and look at the girl to see if she sleeps—for how it may be with the wenches of this age I know not, but whenever I was troubled, as a young un, I niver could sleep. Don't come back now and tell me she's awake. If ye do ye'll spoil a good scheme."

Mrs. Walker went away softly, and, after an absence of five minutes, returned with the information that Jenny was in a deep slumber.

"But law, dear heart alive! what a beauty she is! More lovely than a picture! And there she lies, with her left hand ag'in her chin, just as if she had fallen asleep kissin' her weddin' ring. Poor dearie! I never liked the look o' that Strangfield somehow. Wood's all very well to build ships with, but when I see a man's face made of it, it don't seem to take my fancy much."

"Sally," exclaimed Mrs. Mead, clasping her hands in her lap, and frowning portentously on her, "can 'ee keep a secret?"

"Why, as niver you could b'lieve of a married woman."

"What's the true hour for the coach to come to thy door?"

"Eight o'clock; true as a hair, if there bain't no accident."

"Sally, I'll tell 'ee what it is: Mistress upstairs mustn't go to Marples. I argeyed wi' her last night when she come to me. It's only her fear o' the neighbors as makes shame of her business yet; but if she room away and come back no more, what'n the town think!"

"Well, now you speak it, Mrs. Mead, I'll be plain. If I did not hear thee say she be married, I'd niver believe it for her having home."

"There," shouted the old woman, "have I lived all these years i' the world to be taught wisdom by a wench. With might and main I argeyed, and, like her father, she looked at me, and that was the good I did. I told her I didn't like the business, and would have no hand in it. Yet, see what good natur' is, and what long journeys it putteth old people upon. But to Marples she'll not go with my leave; and if the coach don't wake her, she shall lie till it's gone."

"And what then will ye do, Mrs. Mead?"

"What then will I do? Ah, an' ye would like me to speak quicker nor I can think. Oh, Sally! thou art a cormorant r news! Sitch gluttony! Well, well!"

Sally laughed, and looking at the clock, exclaimed:

"If she sleep for another half hour, she'll not get to Marples this day."

There was a pretty long silence, while Mrs. Mead reflected.

"I se- what I mun do!" she cried out at last, with great vehemence. "Her mother must know where she is—for here she'll be all day if she don't wake for the coach; and that'll be my dooty. Let folks speak ill ot me, then! Is there iver a cart goin' to Greystone? Thee must find out. not walk it."

"Tut, tut! Johnny shall drive ye in the van. It's big enough to hold thee!" replied Mrs. Walker.

To be Continued.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FIRE.—On Friday afternoon last the sleeping house occupied by the men working in the Port Nogie mills was seen in a blaze. The fire had gained such headway that nothing could be saved from the building. The strong southwest wind carried the flames to the stable and the dwelling house, which were destroyed in turn. Nearly all the furniture was saved through timely aid from the numerous helpers. Mr. Davis, the proprietor's loss is not yet ascertained, but the workingmen lost their clothing, leaving them with nothing but what was on them. Mr. Davis has contracted with builders and another house will soon rise on the ruins of the old.

MCELWAIN VS. HUMPHREY.—Wm. Irwin, J.P., and Reeve Hicks met at the Township Clerk's office on Wednesday last to decide a dispute between John McElwain and Robt. Humphrey. Robt. Humphrey had taken hay from a lot in Galway which Mr. McElwain claims as his. Judgment was given in favor of Mr. McElwain, and a fine of $4 and costs was imposed on Humphrey.

RECOVERING.—Mr. Finlay Davis, who was injured some twelve weeks ago by a small circular saw in Port Nogey mills, is recovering slowly but surely under the able treatment of Dr. McCamus, of Bobcaygeon.

SOIREE.—On Thursday, 21st ult., a tea was given in the Orange Hall, Lakehurst, under the auspices of the Presbyterian congregation of South Harvey. The viands were so tastefully and delicately prepared as to tempt any modern epicure, and bring down on the heads of the fair sex merit and praise due to them only. After tea the gathering resorted to the church, where addresses were given by the Rev. Mr. McEwan, of Lakefield, and the Rev. Mr. Adams, Methodist pastor of the Hall's Bridge circuit; readings by the Misses Chase, Bowman and Young, and singing by several young ladies of the section. Mr. William Graham, of Lakefield, contributed largely to the pleasures of the evening by rendering several excellent pieces of music.

NEW CHURCH.—The Methodist congregation of South Harvey purpose erecting a church in the neighborhood of Lakehurst. Already the sum of $300 has been subscribed and three sites have been offered gratuitously. The spirit shown by the people is praiseworthy and we wish them "God speed" in their enterprise.

NEW INDUSTRY.—During the season that has passed Mr. William Fawcett has been busily employed raising the many stumps found on the farms in this part of the township. It is an amusing sight to watch this machine raise the last remains of the old monarchs of the forest taking them out root and all. Under the large pine stumps the cavities left measure from 3 to 5 feet in depth, by from 20 to 25 feet in circumference. The machine is manufactured by John Whitfield, Toronto.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leaves the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

Great German Hair Magic!

It is the only preparation in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

☞ Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

ADMITTED.

It is admitted on all hands that we are passing through a very peculiar season's trade.

Even the most sanguine have been disappointed in their estimate of the volume of business to be done. Various reasons have been assigned for the cause, but whether they are right or wrong none will question that the next two months must give us our Fall business.

We have decided to clear out our stock of

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Mr. Hoover's Concert.

We are glad to announce that Mr. Hoover has secured Herr Jacobsen, the well-known German violinist from Toronto, and Mrs. Caldwell, the favorite suprano, for his concert on Nov. 23rd.

Successful Hunters.

Mr. Robert Walton, of "Willow Springs," Smith, and party (five in all) have returned home from a very successful hunt up north. The party brought down with their trusty rifles and good marksmanship fourteen fine deer. Mr. Walton reports an abundance of game this season, and says that the weather was all that could be wished for.

Journalistic.

We are glad to see that the Ottawa Evening Journal has met with a success sufficient to warrant an enlargement that improves its appearance and gives it more space. Though we often differ from the views of the Journal we always find it fair in its independence, and not a mere trimmer to catch transient popularity, as is the case with some professedly independent newspapers.

Sudden and Important!

Every gentleman in Peterborough who wishes to be comfortably well dressed during the coming winter should immediately call at Habiliment Hall and inspect the immense stock of fabrics that have been imported for this season's trade. If you want decidedly pretty and becoming material for a new overcoat or handsome suit, cut in the latest city fashions, you cannot do better than leave your order with the above reliable house. The gents furnishing and haberdashery department is, as usual, replete with thousands of articles usually found in a first-class establishment. Don't delay, but come at once and inspect the large stock of new goods for the winter season of 1886-87.

Vocal Society.

A meeting was held on Tuesday night in the rooms over China Hall to organize a Vocal Society. There was a good attendance and much interest was evinced. Fifty-seven names were placed on the roll, and many others who were unable to be present at the meeting have expressed their intention of joining. The following committee was selected: Miss Dennistoun, Miss Cox, Miss Mercer, Miss Errett, Miss Teresa Hurley and Miss Wells; Mr. A. L. Davis, Mr. W. H. Budden, Mr. Henderson, Mr. T. Dunn, Mr. Bell and Mr. W. H. Manning. This committee is empowered to frame a constitution and rules for the society, and they will be submitted to the next meeting, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9th. A piano club is to be connected with the organization. This society starts under the best auspices and is worthy of the support of all lovers of music.

A Flying Lunch.

One of the innovations introduced by the Canadian Pacific Railway is worthy of imitation on other roads. As we were on the road from Ottawa to Montreal, an energetic acrobat in a white apron came through the cars with lunches. The lunch consisted of sandwiches, cakes and such, together with tea or coffee. When he got an order he spread before the hungry traveller a neat little table covered with a snowy cloth. He carried the coffee and things like a balancer at a circus through the swaying cars. The coffee was in neat little silver pots, and the cups and saucers were of the prettiest China. Each pot held about two cups of coffee, and the charge for a pot of hot coffee was ten cents. Sandwiches were also ten cents each. It was worth the price of admission to see the waiter carry the trays without spilling or upsetting anything. The coffee was simply superb, and I hope when the C. P. R. gets through with the fellow who makes it, that he will take a tour around the country and teach hotel folks how to get up good coffee.—Luke Sharp in Detroit Free Press.

THE JAPANESE COLONY

THE OPENING NIGHT IN BRADBURN'S OPERA HOUSE.

The Skill of the Oriental People—A Lecture on the Work Performed, by the Interpreter, Mr. Takahashi.

The Japanese Colony, of which the American and Canadian newspapers have said so much of late, came to town on Tuesday and gave their first exhibition in Bradburn's Opera House in the evening. The Japanese Colony is neither an opera company nor a theatrical troupe; it consists of a number of Japanese people, who show what their countrymen are capable of doing. Each goes on with his work oblivious of the crowd eagerly watching him.

The Opera House was decked out in a new dress and in style so different from the usual, that it was hardly possible to recognize the old place. Huge variegated paper lanterns, strings of smaller ones, and artistic decorations of different kinds hung overhead. The seats were all removed, excepting those in front, which were separated by a curtain. Next the wall ran a raised platform, on which the Japanese busily plied their work. On passing through the main entrance the first oddity which fascinates is the blowing of glass into all sorts of symmetrical or fantastic shapes. It needs only a glance at Mr. Leavers to know that he does not belong to the Japanese Colony.

SO PRETTILY DESIGNED

Mr. Yakaya comes next. He is busy cutting, framing and joining the wonderful eastern wood, the bamboo, into all sorts of shapes. Tables, desks, cabinets, and a hundred and one things are made of it. On Tuesday evening he showed some very pretty easels. Mr. Fushiki had a dreadful struggle to get his tongue around some of our consonents in spelling his name. He gave it up at last, took his brush and adroitly wrote it in well shaped characters on a piece of paper. Mr. Fushiki is the portrait and scenic artist. Some work screens is all he had to exhibit on Tuesday evening nearly all of his pieces having been disposes of.

MISS UTAYAM,

the pretty Japanese lady is the first of her nation to visit Canada. She was engaged at the dexterous use of the needle at some fine silk embroidry work. She went on fashioning out the figures of it with a deftness and accuracy which was very interesting. It must have been especially so to ladies. Mr. Ishugro is the man who like a magician calls up images out of clay. A crowd was continually around him as with his hands only he moulded the pliable clay into smothe, even pottery. Mr. Maybera is another silk embroiderer. He went at his work in a similar manner as his fair competitor. The embroidery shown by him was artistic

TO A HIGH DEGREE.

The silk weaving was done by Mr. Ogemura. The process must be seen to be understood. Mr. Otana's porcelain painting was much admired but none the less his manner of doing it. The last but not least came the panel and screen making presided over by Mr. Ogawa.

In the other part of the hall, which was partitioned off, an entertainment was given. Cornet solos and singing of a superior character was given. A farce sketch presented was well received. At the conclusion Mr. Takahashi gave an address, having for his subject "The works of art of Japan." He laid claim to Japan's being the leading civilizing power in Asia. Though China was greatly larger in territory and population she did not wield an equal civilizing influence with Japan. The civilized part of China belonged to the upper classes only, the masses being ignorant, and unable to be reached by education. In Japan, through excellent government and educational institutions whatever civilizing power reached the centre was wafted to the circumference. It made the audience smile when he told them that the Japanese were highly piqued if taken for Chinamen. They would as soon be taken for men without honor or intelligence as to be taken for Chinamen. He then described the works of art going on in the next room, going into details as to how they were acquired.

The colony give exhibitions every afternoon and evening of this week.

Foot Race.

The hundred yards race between Robson and Elliott came off on the P. A. A. A. grounds on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. J. J. Daly acted as starter, and Dr. Brennan as judge. Elliott won all three heats. The first heat was done in 10½; the second, in 10⅝, and the third in 10¾. In the second heat Robson in spurting at the finish fell and hurt his knee considerably. Robson had the pluck, however, to challenge Elliott to a similar race to be run next Tuesday at the same place.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

CHOLERA IN VIENNA.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A death from what was undoubtedly Asiatic cholera has occured in Vienna. Some anxiety is felt there in consequence, although the sanitary condition of the city is excellent. Dr. Kock, Berlin, declares that a case of cholera, which has been discovered near Mavence, is of the Asiatic type.

ATTACKED BY CHINESE.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—A despatch from Tonquin says a force of Chinese, armed with repeating rifles, attacked from an ambush a body of Tonquinese riflemen at Phuni, in the Province of Kamdiuh, killing 30 of them. At the same time 1,200 Chinese attacked the posts at Dong Song, but were repulsed after a desperate fight.

A RUSSIAN AGENT ARRESTED.

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—A Russian agent who had seditious documents in his possession has been arrested at Varna

AN INSOLENT REPLY.

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—General Kaulbars informed M. Karoveloff by letter and the other regents by telegraph, that if the landing of Russians at Varna was opposed the town would be bombarded. M. Karaveloff asked how many Russians would be landed. Gen. Kaulbars replied: "As many as the Czar pleases."

AN UNWILLING CANDIDATE.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Standard has advices from Tirnova, which it claims are reliable, stating that the Czar is willing to accept Prince Waldemar as ruler of Bulgaria, but that the latter is not inclined to accept the post.

LONDON SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Socialists have definitely decided to hold a procession on the Lord Mayor's day, Police Commissioner Fraser not having replied to their letter.

ODESSA, Nov. 2.—Three patients who were dismissed as cured by Dr. Gamalea, late assistant of M. Pasteur, have since died with the usual hydrophobic paroxysms.

WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Bishops of London, Rochester and Bedford, and Cardinal Manning, the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon and the Rev. Mr. Reany have issued a joint letter, urging that public works be started wherever possible to provide work for the unemployed laborers, at wages somewhat below the ordinary pay.

THE CZAR'S PROGRAMME.

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—The Czar has sent the following despatch to General Kaulbars: "Leave at the first case occurring of a Russian subject being molested. A consul, unarmed, is to witness the ceremony of lowering of the flag, for which the Bulgarian Government will be asked to give the signal by a gunfire. If they refuse, let the ca, vasses fire a volley of musketry, then let the flag be lowered three times. At the last time let it be folded and handed to General Kaulbars by his secretary, when all will enter carriages and go to Varna, wearing medals. When General Kaulbars and all the Russian consuls leave Varna, Russia will occupy Bulgaria with two divisions, and order new elections, the troops remaining until a new prince has been chosen."

THE NIHILISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A press representative at Berne had an interview with a Russian refugee, a servant, who declined to allow his name to be used because he still maintains relations with plotters against Russia. The statements which have appeared in the papers regarding the condition of Nihilism he declared misleading and inaccurate. "Nihilism," he said, "is at present depressed and unity in the direction of effective work is lost. Recent attempts to remove our enemies were due to isolated workers, and not by order of the society. The hardiest and cleverest workers and organizers are in Siberia. If anything occurs now Nihilism, as an organization, is not responsible. I received advices from St. Petersburg which say the recent sensation caused by the reported murder of the Count is simply the revival of one of the old tales about the Czar. Count Reutern lives, my informant tells me, and M. DeGiers is urging the Czar to prove this by sending him on a mission to one of the European capitals. The precautions taken to protect the Czar have, however, been redoubled and have now reached a stage that is simply astounding.

THE OTHER SIDE.

VIENNA, Nov. 2.—The Russian Government has reassured Austria that Russia will not occupy Bulgaria.

MEN-OF-WAR FOR VARNA.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Republique Francaise has a despatch from Vienna stating that twelve Russian men-of-war have left Sebastopol for Varna.

LYDDON'S FUTILE FLIGHT.

Crosses the Atlantic to Defraud His Creditors—Arrested in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2.—Chief Sherwood, of the Dominion police, succeeded in arresting an Englishman named Lyddon, who is wanted on the other side of the Atlantic, and who was a passenger from Liverpool by the last mail steamer. The prisoner is accused of attempting to defraud his creditors by selling his property in England and leaving for Canada with the proceeds. Lyddon had taken passage on board the steamer under the name of King and was accompanied by his wife and two children. It was principally this latter fact that enabled the police officers to identify him. Lyddon takes his arrest quite calmly, and says that he is guilty of no offence for which he can be held in this country. The prisoner's person and effects were searched for money, but only £9 sterling was found on him. In his baggage, however, was found a quantity of dutiable goods which had not been entered at the customs, and which were therefore seized by the customs officers. The prisoner was lodged in the Quebec gaol.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

Burned to Death.

LOGOSTEE, Ind., Nov. 3.—The Cipher House was burned last night. The newly elected Auditor and Treasurer were burned to death.

Immigration.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—The Dominion Government returns, just issued, place the immigration into the Canadian North-West, so far this season, at ten thousand.

General Strike Threatened.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 3.—The members of the executive committee of the Knights of Labor assert that unless the packers come to terms speedily a general strike will be ordered.

The President's Right to Vote.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3.—The President, it is said, is still a property owner and tax payer at Buffalo, and retaining his right to vote there so long as he does not vote elsewhere.

Battleford on Fire.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 3.—A despatch from Battleford reports the town on fire, but now under control. The Mounted Police barracks, the town hall, Agnew, McDonald & Baker's stores have been burned. The Hudson Bay store was saved.

A Costly Thrashing.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Charles Stern, wholesale fancy goods dealer, and Max Stern, his nephew, were each sent to gaol by the Police Magistrate yesterday for ten days for assaulting W. F. McLean, of the World, on Saturday week with a raw hide and stick. The Magistrate said such conduct could not be tolerated, and he would not give the prisoners the option of a fine. They were considerably crestfallen, as they are prevented from appealing, having pleaded guilty when arraigned last Monday. The decision has created considerable surprise.

In a Bad Plight.

NORTH SYDNEY, C.B., Nov. 3.—Only seven American seiners are now on the Cape Breton coast. Mackerel seem very plenty, but they are wild and hard to get. The weather has been boisterous, so that fishing is very difficult. The American seiner Herman Babson has been in North Bay and on this coast eight weeks, and has only taken three barrels of mackeral. The captain says he saw some good shoals, but they were inside the limits, and he was afraid to venture there. There are several others in just as bad a plight as the Herman Babson.

The Sudbury Mines.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—C. A. Herchfelder, a scientist, of this city, has returned from examining the copper mines in Sudbury. He says:—"The deposit is not nearly so rich as was claimed for it. There is one vein, the extent of which it is impossible to tell at present, in which the ore contains 30 per cent. or more of copper. The average percentage of copper in the region, except in the rich vein, will not, I think, exceed from ten to twelve or fourteen per cent. The reports that the percentage of copper in the ore was 25 per cent. were largely exaggerated." Mr. Herchfelder says that large numbers of Americans are arriving there daily, and that there is much excitement about the mines. He thinks those interested in the mines should bore for coal. If coal be found it would then pay to take out the ore and ship the pure copper. The copper deposit extends over that part of the country for eight miles.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

THE POPE AND ENGLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Lord Denbigh, in a speech at Rugby yesterday, said that in a recent interview he had with the Pope the latter expressed his appreciation of the justice and toleration of the English Government, and said he would be glad to help England in Ireland or wherever his influence extended, but he was unable to act because England had no representative at the Vatican to tell him her desires. Lord Denbigh said he thought the Government would do well to imitate Prince Bismarck in sending an agent to Rome, as the Pope could give material help in Ireland.

THE CZAR APPROVES.

SOFIA, Nov. 3.—Gen. Kaulbars states that the Czar has approved his advice in favor of a military occupation of Bulgaria.

ADDRESS TO ALEXANDER.

TIRNOVA, Nov. 3.—An Address to Prince Alexander, deploring that the Sobronje is forbidden to re-elect him to the throne, is being largely signed by members of the Sobranje in spite of Goverement efforts to disuade them.

RUSSIAN SAILORS LANDED.

VARNA, Nov. 3.—One hundred Russian sailors landed yesterday, and headed by the Russian cavass, visited the prison, where they shouted to the inmates that they would be released in three days.

HARD TIMES AHEAD.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The prospects for laborers during the coming winter are gloomy. Dismissals of workingmen and reductions of wages are announced in various quarters of the capital.

GREAT BRITAIN AND TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 3.—Sir William White, upon presenting his credentials to the Sultan, said he hoped there would be an increase in the traditional friendship and entente cordiale between the two nations. The Sultan made a formal response. The Sultan in a subsequent interview with the British Embassador yesterday, told the latter that he and his ministers would devote all their efforts to strengthen the good relations between England and Turkey.

BRIGANDS AT WORK.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A band of one hundred brigands is ravaging Salonica. The band entered a Turkish village, murdered seven women and pillaged and set fire to the houses.

REVOLUTIONISTS SENTENCED.

MADRID, Nov. 3.—Twenty-seven persons who were implicated in the recent revolt in Madrid, have been sentenced to various terms of imprisonment at hard labour.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE IN LONDON.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—On Sunday a census of attendance at the churches of London was taken. It showed that 460,000 persons attended services in the morning and 410,000 at night. The largest established church, St. Paul's, had an evening attendance of 3,403. Mr. Spurgeon's church was at the head of the dissenting churches, having a morning attendance of 4519 and an evening attendance of 6070.

LIBERAL FEDERATION.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The meeting of the Liberal Federation was held at Leeds today. The president read a report showing that despite the secession of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and his followers, the association has increased by one hundred branches. A resolution declaring the confidence of the meeting in Mr. Gladstone was carried amid enthusiasm by acclamation.

FRANCE'S FISCAL POLICY.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—President Grevy and Premier de Freycinet to-day received a delegation of farmers, who came to urge the necessity of a duty of five frances on imported corn. The President expressed an earnest desire to assist French agriculture to hold its own against foreign competition. M. de Freycinet made a similar response. The Budget Committee recommends that heavy duties be imposed on foreign goods imported into Tonquin, but that French products be admitted free.

A TOWN BURNED.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The town of Minhla, in Burmah, has been attacked and burned by nine hundred rebels under Bohshway. The loss of property is large.

TURKISH INTERVENTION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 3.—The Porte has acceded to the request of M. Bercoff, to endeavour to improve the relations between Bulgaria and Russia through the intervention of the Ottoman Embassy at St Petersburg.

HEAVY STORMS.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Heavy stormy have prevailed throughout Scotland. In Edinburgh the gable of a new building was overthrown and three workmen were killed and five injured.

ALL MURDERED.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Commissioner of Police Gleisson and twenty policemen were surprised at midnight on the Kyendween river, in Burmah, by the rebels, and were all murdered.

PASTEUR'S SUCCESS.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—M. Pasteur has informed the French Academy of Science that he has treated during the past year 2,490 persons who had been bitten by animals, and that out of this number only ten had died. Of these 1,726 were French.

MR. BRIGHT'S OPINION.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Mr. John Bright has written a letter on the foreign affairs of England, in which he derides English fears and jealousy of Russia. He says:—"England seizes Burmah, yet she menaces Russia if she approaches Afghanistan. England has denied Russia's rights to enter the Mediterranean from the Black Sea, and has treated her always as an enemy. It is not unnatural then that Russia should retaliate. No country in Europe would more readily respond than she to offers of friendship from England." Mr. Bright expresses the hope that no Minister will again be able to drag England into another war.

A FACTION FIGHT.

BELFAST, Nov. 3.—Mr. Sexton, Nationalist M. P. for West Belfast, whose seat was contested on the ground of bribery, was yesterday declared to have been duly elected. The charges against him were not sustained. The court's decision in favor of Mr. Sexton was received with enthusiasm in the court-room. On the result being made known to the crowd outside, they immediately began to stone the building. Rioting began on Carrick hill during the night. No police were near when the outbreak occurred, but they appeared later and dispersed the opposing mobs. Many of the rioters were struck by stones and badly hurt. The greatest excitement was caused by the disturbance, and the feeling has not abated.

BAD FEELING IN MONCTON

Over the Scott Act Prosecutions—Excitement in the Town.

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 3.—Great excitement prevails hear over the Scott Act prosecutions. Several people have already been committed for trial for perjury, and a suit for $10,000 damages has been brought against Rev. Mr. Crisp, Methodist minister, for alleged slander of Magistrate Rand. Twenty convictions hang over the heads of the liquor dealers. These have been confirmed by the Supreme Court, but the liquor men openly defy the law, and threaten to carry the cases to the Privy Council in England. Silas Rand, a liquor dealer, was recently appointed a magistrate, his magisterial office being in a building adjoining his barroom. The liquor dealers try their cases before Rand, while the prosecutions are carried on before the Stipendiary Magistrate. Yesterday Justice Rand committed for trial a man named Crossman for alleged perjury in testimony given by him in a Scott Act case, convicting a liquor seller named Hogan. Crossman gave $2,000 bail. As Crossman was leaving Justice Rand's court, in which the examination had taken place, he was assaulted by George P. Thomas, a barrister, who was counsel for Hogan. Thomas went back to Rand's court, admitted the offence and was fined $3. This was done apparently without the knowledge or consent of Crossman, who, in the meantime, had laid a complaint against Thomas before Magistrate Smith. It was proved that Thomas had kicked and struck Crossman, leaving marks on his face. Thomas went on the stand and swore that he had been tried for the offence in Justice Rand's court, and had Rand's certificate, but Justice Smith refused to admit Rond's certificate and fined Thomas ten dollars or twenty days gaol. The decision of the Supreme Court having been against the liquor sellers, the police marshal to-day proceeded to collect the fines. He got a horse from one party and a pool table from another. Their intention is to replevin the goods and carry the cases to Privy Council. Four warrants for committment to gaol have been issued against parties who failed to produce property. None of these parties can be found, and are supposed to be hiding. Crossman had to be escorted to his home by the police. There is a very bad feeling in the town, and serious trouble is feared.

Cold-Blooded Murder.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—News has been received here of the cold-blooded murder of W. C. Thompson, of St. John, second mate of the Nova Scotia barque Strathay, at Colombo, Ceylon, on September 11, by a seaman named Smith. Early in the morning Thompson ordered Smith to work. The latter replied that he was sick. "Oh you are humbugging," said the mate, "you can do your work fast enough." This angered Smith greatly, and an altercation ensued between the two. On the mate turning away Smith lifted a handspike which lay handy, and struck him a terific blow on the back of the head, which split his skull open and dashed his brains out. Smith was placed in irons and subsequently handed over to the police. The murderer is a Canadian, a powerful man, six feet high, and bore a bad character on the ship.

Lone Man Captured.

EDMONTON, N. W. T., Nov. 2.—Supt. Gresbach, the officer in command of the Mounted Police here, has succeeded in capturing Lone Man, who is more than suspected of being deeply implicated in the massacre at Frog Lake last year. Lone Man, replying probably on the lapse of time since the rebellion, came into the post to lay a complaint about some stolen horses, when he was immediately recognized by Supt Gresbach, and after a short examination placed in the guard room. He will be kept in prison pending the arrival of instructions from Ottawa.

The Church of England Army.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—The Church of England Army has opened fire at Halifax. The first attack was made last night, when addresses were delivered by local Episcopal clergy. Rev. F. R. Murray, who distinguished himself at the Halifax poor house holocaust four years ago, and rector of St. Luke's Cathedral, the most fashionable church here, bitterly ridiculed "fashionable religion" in Halifax.

Revolution in Ecuador.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Panama advices report a revolutionary movement in Esmeraldos, Ecuador, headed by Eloy Alfaro, whose name is closly associated with revolutions in the Republic. He has imprisoned the Government soldiers and police and established a Government of his own, which seems to be popular. Alfaro is the recognized leader of the Liberal party, which is opposed to the Church.

WIT AND WISDOM.

THE fly is not much of an astronomer, but if there is a cream jug within his orbit he'll find out all about the milky way.

"THE honeymoon is all well enough," said a prudent belle, 'but I want to see beyond that is the promise of a fine harvest."

GOOD-NATURE is more agreeable in conversation than wit, and gives a certain air to the countenance which is more amiable than beauty.

A LITTLE child once asked his mother the question:—"Mother, what part of heaven do people go to who are good but not agreeable"

Mothers! Mothers!

MRS. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1886.

THE RIELITE CONSPIRACY.

Unable to face the taunts of those who disbelieved Mr. Mercier's boasts of having a document pledging support to him signed by a majority of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, the Rielites have published a declaration embodying the 35 names. This certificate shows how well founded were the doubts of those who disputed the accuracy of the verbal claims so loudly made hitherto. The name of Mr. Cameron, falsely claimed and even forged on one bogus list given to the press, does not appear among the signers—he would not endorse appeals for vengeance for the punishment of murder and rebellion. It also appears that there is no pledge to support Mr. Mercier, but only an impudent demand for the overthrow of the Ross Administration, that these hungry malcontents may scramble for the prizes. It even seems that there are at least two documents, not one, as was claimed. This tallies with the assertions of Conservative-Rielites, that they had refused to sign the document pledging support to Mr. Mercier, and would only consent to sign another denouncing Mr. Ross and his colleagues. A glance at the names shows that while the majority are Liberals, a very large proportion are strong Conservatives. One section of this boasted opposition consists of men who attack the Administration for not being Liberal enough, and the other section of men who attack it for being too Liberal. It is far from being a Liberal or Reform victory.

Yet the very grave fact undoubtedly remains that it is a Rielite victory. A large measure of success has attended the conspiracy to avenge the death at the hands of justice of a French Canadian halfbreed, guilty of murder and rebellion. The claim that criminals patronized by the Province of Quebec must be above the laws of the Dominion has had at least a temporary success.

The assault upon the Provincial Government was solely upon the ground that it would not condemn the Dominion Administration as to their execution of Riel, though not a matter within Provincial jurisdiction. And now these assailants boastfully aver that they will renew their onslaught upon the Dominion Administration for daring to do justice. Thus the matter is one immediately effecting us as part of the Dominion. The Province of Quebec by a majority of its representatives claims the right to make or unmake Canadian Premiers and Administrations according as they may befriend or punish French criminals. And to this conspiracy against the Dominion and its laws Mr. Blake is a party. It could have no hope of success without him—he could have no hope of success without it. It was adopted on his part by his personal representative and plenipotentiary, Mr. Edgar, and by his brother leader Mr. Laurier. It was ratified by him when in defiance of his promise at London not to make a scaffold his political platform, not to cement his party with the blood of a criminal, he stood up in the House and traded his vote for the support of the advocates of murder and rebellion.

The next few months will see an important crisis in the history of our young Dominion. It is to be seen whether Canada is to be ruled by its laws or by its criminals and their friends. Loyal Reformers will know what course to adopt in this crisis, following in the footsteps of the loyal Reformers of the Eastern Townships of the Province of Quebec.

BULLS AND BEARS.

By Mr. Claxton.

Bulls have horns and toss up. Bears have paws and press down. A bull in the market is an operator who buys stocks, wheat, corn, pork, or lard, when the price is low, raises the market and sells out, and goes on his way bellowing with delight. A bear depresses the price or lowers it. Bulls and bears deal in "futures" or "options." They buy and sell what they never see, and what they never intend to receive or deliver. It is simply betting what the price will be at some future date.

I will take wheat in Chicago as an illustration. An operator buys 10,000 or a 1,000,000 bushels December wheat, or any future month. He "puts up" with his broker a margin of 5 cents per bushel, say $500 or $50,000. The broker charges a quarter of a cent per bushel every time he buys or sells the wheat. If the price goes down 4 cents he is called on for a further margin, and if he fails in keeping his margin good the broker sells the wheat and he is said to be "cleaned out." A bear sells "futures" in the same way, depositing with his broker 5 cents per bushel margin. A buyer is said to be "long" on wheat and a seller "short" on wheat.

I have taken 10,000 or a 1,000,000 bushels as an illustration, but large operators often exceed a million bushels in one day. A buyer or seller who secures a profit of ten cents per bushel on a million of bushels, and this is exceeded sometimes, makes $100,000 in one day. One class have wheat to sell. They resort to every means to advance the price. They are called

BULLS.

Another class of brokers have wheat to buy. They resort to all sorts of schemes to send the price down. These are called

BEARS.

In these conflicts the slain and wounded are many. Of the thousands of speculators who engage in this business from year to year the great mass are ruined. Speculators in stocks, wheat, corn, pork and lard are generally outsiders, scattered over the country, who operate direct through brokers, or what might be called in any other business commission houses, or through bucket shops, which may now be found in every town or city. These bucket shops have private telegraphic wires to Chicago, New York and other cities. The principal place of this kind in Montreal pays $40,000 a year for this service, having two private wires to New York. They have large blackboards on the walls on which the fluctuations are chalked every few minutes. These figures are watched with intense interest by the crowds of speculators who frequent these places. When the markets are steady with small fluctuations all is quiet, but in cases of panics or heavy fluctuations they talk in a tongue not spoken at Pentecost. These bucket shops have caused sad havoc. Means have been tried to suppress them, but without avail.

Brokers do not usually make money out of each other. The operators are too sharp for that. It is like Cheap Jack trading with Cheap Jack—a sharp horse dealer trading with a dealer as sharp as himself. It is a contest between equals, out of which but little is made. Money is made from outsiders, from green horns, and speculators who send orders from afar. There are forty stock brokers in Montreal, and, I suppose, a thousand on the Produce Exchange in Chicago. These live well, some in princely style, and many have made fortunes, keep their own elegant turnouts and live in palatial residences. These are maintained, not by trading with each other, but are kept up by outsiders. The bears for the last few years have had the best of it. It is said the bulls have had to live on plain fare, while the bears could have champaign dinners every day.

The bears have hammered wheat down in Chicago and New York by throwing large quantities on the market. Margins have been "wiped out," and thus more wheat was thrown on the market, enabling the bears to cover their "short" sales at a profit. They then waited until the market reacted, repeated the same operation over and over again, until wheat is selling for less than its value. The price is lowered on this side, and it is reflected in England; lower quotations came back from England, and these affect the price on this side, and the ruinous work for the producer goes on. Of course the bears have been assisted in their work by the abundant crops of wheat for the last few years in the Western States, California, Oregon, Chili, Australia and India: It looks as if India would revolutionize the wheat trade of the world. It costs but a trifle to raise wheat in India. The laborer lives on a handful of rice, and the more clothing he has on the worse he is off. Or, as Mr. Smiff, the gentleman who writes the leading articles for the Bobcaygeon Independent in Goulais' back parlor, tersely and humorously puts it, "5 yards of 6 cent cotton will clothe a family for a year."

Then the wonderful inventions in labor saving farm implements also cheapen wheat. I remember when wheat was cut by a sickle, the sheaves tied by hand, and the wheat thrashed on the barn floor with a flail. Now machines cut the grain, tie the sheaves, and throw them on the field ready for the waggons to take them to the barns, where they are thrashed either by horse or steam power.

For many years a dollar a bushel was considered as the value of wheat in this country. When it was over that price it was considered dear, and when under a dollar it was considered cheap. I have seen $1.75 and as high as $2.00 a bushel paid for it in Peterborough.

The Canadian Pacific authorities have made a shipment of choice cattle to Liverpool from Winnipeg as an experiment towards opening up trade in that direction.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

BLAKE'S MACHINE CANDIDATE.

Now that Mr. Edgar has accepted the nomination, as the party canditate, tendered him by the unanimous vote of the convention, what are the "kickers" going to do about it? Although an admitted "machine candidate," Mr. Edgar has got the inside track. "Bought his seat," says one: yes, but the leaders of the party have condoned that offence by his first election. "He belongs to the Rielite gang," says another: yes, but the party organ has set the example, why should not the rank and file follow? Mr. Edgar understands his vantage position and is not likely to be crowded off the track very easily.—Newmarket Era (Reform.)

RICHLY DESERVES DEATH.

The question of executing or reprieving Riel will be entirely in the hands of Sir John Macdonald. The whole responsibility will be his, and he cannot shirk one jot of it. No one who has read the evidence can doubt that Riel richly deserves death. As to the prisoner's guilt of the highest crimes that can be laid to a man's charge there has been no shadow of doubt since his letter to Poundmaker was produced.—Toronto Globe (Reform, 1885).

OLD ISSUES ONLY.

Mr Blake has been delivering numerous speeches on the political situation, but hitherto he has had nothing to say about the railway question. A politician with ordinary foresight would have seen his chance in the growing dissatisfaction of the public with railway misrule—would have taken the question up and made it his own. But Mr. Blake, unfortunately for himself and his party, has not shown this foresight. He looks at the past instead of at the future and fights over old issues which the people are sick and tired of hearing discussed. Toronto News (Indep.)

CRIED FOR RIEL'S BLOOD.

It is all very well for those who place party before country to hedge on this question; but, nevertheless, it is a fact that it is owing to the disaffection in Quebec that the opponents of Sir John Macdonald hope to defeat him and his Government. They hope this after denouncing the French-Canadians for years, after having gone to battle in 1882 with "Bleu domination" as their rallying cry, and after having cried for Riel's blood up to the day of his execution. That the people of Canada will fall in with such a programme we cannot believe.—Ridgetown Standard (Reform).

A DISLOYAL ATTITUDE.

To an outside observer it would seem that the Canadian Liberals had benefited themselves very little by their treatment of the Riel question. The experience of this, as of all other nations, goes to show that parties which assume an attitude which is even to a slight degree disloyal, or which has the appearance of it, are only forging weapons for their own destruction.—Brooklyn N. Y. Eagle.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

CHAPTER XXII.

ALONE.

Upstairs lay Jenny, in the deep slumber which profound weariness in youth begets; the solemn sleep that, like death, smooths the countenance into an expression for which human knowledge has no definition. Without a stir in her she lay, and the mysterious sweetness of her face was a sight for love to look upon with fear.

Suddenly she started, and awoke with one of those quick leapings from sleep which the sleepless soul will force the body into, and sat erect, with a frown of bewilderment, and her beautiful eyes alarmed and eager. She had no watch to tell the hour, but upon the carpet lay a streak of sunshine, and the mellow glory of it was a hint to draw her quickly to the window.

The sun was high, and a splendor as of noontide upon the land. In sure belief that she had overslept the hour for the passing of the coach, she took her hat in her hand and went downstairs. The first thing she beheld was the big Dutch clock just beside the door; the hands of it pointed to the quarter past ten, so that Marples was not to be reached that day without posting.

With her eyes fixed upon the clock, she stood on the last step of the staircase, and her baffled intentions plainly showed in the wonder and embarrassment of her face—until Mrs. Walker threw open the glass door of the bulkhead dividing the passage from what would now be termed the bar, and, dropping her a little courtesy, hoped that she was the better for her rest.

"But I have missed the coach, I fear," said Jenny, "if that clock be right."

"It is right enough, ma'am. But Mrs. Mead is in the parlor, and will tell thee how this happ'd, if she be not sleeping," replied Mrs. Walker, with something like a look of contrition on her face, if it were not nervousness.

Without further words Jenny pushed open the parlor door, and there, sure enough, at full length upon the sofa, was Mrs. Mead asleep.

But Jenny was in straits which would not permit of tender thoughtfulness. She wanted to know why she had been allowed to miss the coach, and what she was now to do. And so gave Mrs. Mead a push, which set the old woman talking in her sleep. "Ay, ay, thee need'st not bother—the Lord love 'ee—an' it's as true as this hand—yaw!"

"Mrs. Mead! Mrs. Mead!"

The old woman opened her eyes, stared at Jenny, lifted her head, gave a terrific yawn, and, planting her loose knuckles into the network about her eyes, exclaimed in a smothering voice, "I've bin asleep, I do believe!"

"Mrs. Mead, it's a quarter past ten, and the coach has been gone this long while. Oh, why was I allowed to sleep! I shall not get away this day; and here must I stop, for I have not money enough to hire a post chaise!" cried Jenny.

"Sit down, mistress, and think a bit before ye quarrel. For maybe I'll be showing ye that it's no fault o' mine ye've missed the coach, and then how sorrowful would your heart be for being angry with Mother Mead, who loves you," said the old woman, continuing to rub her eyes until all the sleep was squeezed out of them. "Sally, Sally!" she squeaked; and on Mrs. Walker running in, Mrs. Mead exhorted her to procure breakfast at once for Jenny, and to look in upon them again presently, which was as good saying, "Don't listen now, at all events."

"You must not think I could be angry with you," said the girl, mournfully, "but it is a sad thing for me to lose the coach; for I hoped to be with Bridget this day, and in a quiet place, where I could think how I am to act in the future."

"And what's to stop you thinking here?" exclaimed Mrs. Mead. "Isn't it quiet enough?—for hours together ye shall hear no sound but the hens talking and scraping in the road. Besides, it's nearer thy home nor Marples. And Jenny, Mrs. Jenny! I'll own to thee it's my fault ye missed t' coach; and it were my wish ye should. What did I say to 'ee last night? Dreadful scandal will follow you when folks hear you have roon away, and I will not help thee to be foolish."

Jenny looked at her with astonishment and fear. Whatever force the objection might still possess, she thought that Mrs. Mead had put it aside for good and all when she offered to walk with her to Winston.

"Give yourself time to think," continued the old woman. "If ye should have a mind to return to your mother, 'tis an easy walk from here; if you will still go forward, then the coach will be at this door to-morrow morn. But ye be taking a mighty step in quitting home without iver letting a cratur' but me know where you've gone. It's because I love you that I've let you miss the coach, and given you a whole day for reflection wi' thy home close at hand."

"My mind is quite made up," said Jenny, moving restlessly about the room. "I will not return home."

"Well, that you say now, but by and by you will be thinking another way."

"I am grieved to have missed the coach, but I am not angry," she went on, in a subdued but firm tone. "It will be dull work for me here all day; for I suppose you will return to Greystone?"

The old woman nodded. Jenny looked at her hard.

"Mrs. Mead, be frank with me. What do you mean to do? Shall you tell mother where I am?"

"I'll not answer ye," replied the old woman rather sulkily, not liking Jenny's sharpness.

"You have sworn to keep my secret," said the girl reproachfully.

"Suppose the first man I met in the street should be Mr. Shawl" cried the old woman, in a shrill voice.

Jenny turned to the window and looked through it in silence.

"See now, my dearie," said Mrs. Mead mildly; "will ye let me judge how to act for you? If you were my child I could not wish you better than I do; and thy fame, which must be the dearest thing a woman hath, is my reason for hindering your journey this day. Neither you nor me knows what is being said i' Greystone, and things may hap to-day to make 'ee thankful you had not all the way from Marples to come. Bide here while I go to Greystone. I'll find out about thy mother, and how she bears thy going, and what is said of thee, and all that should be known. And to-night will I return with what news there is; and it shall either be that you return to thy home again, or go straight on into the world, as shall seem best on what report I bring you."

If Mrs. Mead had said this at first, Jenny would have understood her motives. But, says an ancient adage: "When you hear an old woman talk straight, you shall see your cow walk on its hind legs."

"There may be good sense in what you say," replied Jenny, who had turned from the window and stood with her fine eyes fixed on Mrs. Mead; "and here will I stop till you come back. But truly I do not know that any news you could bring should take me home again. For when father misses me his anger will be terrible, and not to save my life would I face him without proof that I am an honest girl."

At this moment Mrs. Walker came in with Jenny's breakfast. She chose to prepare the table herself, that she might have a good sight of the young wife; for Jenny was a wonderful heroine in the hostess' eyes, and created a chance for imagination to chew upon that deserved to be made much of.

"Your papa is known to me, ma'am," said she, courtesying, in token that the breakfast was ready. "I heern him preacn a sermon once—nay, it weer a lecture, as I remember—in St. Martin's hall, down Beach street, in your town. He hath a strong voice, and is a fine man, as I think. Is he quite well?"

With a sad smile Jenny answered her; and as she seated herself at the table, Mrs. Mead asked Sally about the wagon that was to carry her to Greystone.

"Johnny shall put the horse to when it pleases ye," replied Sally.

"The sooner the better," said the old woman.

The so-called wagon was a small metamorphosed cart, with a canvas hood, and wheels stout enough to support a horse. In ten minutes' time it was at the door, and on the near shaft of it sat, with his hobnail boots within a foot of the road, a sour-faced man, who sucked an inverted pipe, and doggedly combed horsellies off the rough hide of the horse with a whip. Sally came into the parlor to announce it, and Mrs. Mead at once got up and put on her old bonnet and shawl.

"I shall find ye here when I come back?" said she, interrogatively, holding Jenny's hand.

"Yes, I will wait for you," replied the girl, wearily, with the now familiar absent look in her eyes.

The old woman hobbled out of the room after her friend, and, with a hard expression of misery on her face, Jenny went to the sofa and leaned her head upon it.

SALVATIONISTS IN QUEBEC.

Disgraceful Attacks by Rowdies—Protection for Female Soldiers.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2.—A disgraceful scene occurred at the Jeffrey hall schoolhouse last evening during the Salvation Army meeting. An immense crowd of rowdies surrounded the building, hooting and yelling and throwing stones. A strong force of police was on hand, but no arrests were made. The mayor was present, and addressed the crowd in the interests of order, but notwithstanding, a number of panes in the schoolroom windows were smashed.

At a meeting of the members of the Evangelical Alliance, a deputation was appointed to wait upon the mayor and represent to him the necessity which existed for proper protection for female soldiers of the Salvation Army, and he said he would be on hand himself at night. Another display of rowdyism took place to-night during the meeting of the Salvation Army. A crowd, or rather a mob, yelled and hooted and kicked up such a row by kicking the door of the hall and hammering the adjoining fences with stones and clubs and emitting most terrible oaths that the police were ordered to clear the mob as as a nuisance. They made a charge on them and drove them from the vicinity. The police becoming somewhat excited, one of their number, mistaking ex-Councillor Moloney, who was at the time wending his way homeward, struck him on the head with his baton and inflicted severe injuries to that gentleman's head. The Salvationists are, however, well protected, and the number of police is to be increased. It is said that several young men, sons of well-to-do merchants, have been spotted, and will answer before the tribunal if they again assist in the disturbances. The public sympathy of both Catholics and Protestants is with the Army in their good work.

Breaking Down Monopoly.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 2.—A morning paper says: "A well defined movement is on foot by the International Range Association to establish a large cattle yard in this city. Its object is to overcome the alleged monopoly resulting from the combinations between the stockyards and the dressed beef men in Chicago by which the ranger men say they are cheated out of $10 to $15 on each head of their cattle that goes to that city."

Tragic end of an Elopement.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Near Statesville, N. C., yesterday, Henry Lakey, while eloping with Miss Cooley, shot and killed her father, James Cooley, who had overtaken the fugitives on the road. Lakey then fled leaving the girl beside her dead father.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proven that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents and removes dandruff, cools and sooothes the scalp, and stimulates the hair to renewed growth.

Though numerous causes may operate to turn the hair gray, all that is needed to restore the natural color is Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer. For more than twenty years its sales have been enormous, but we have yet to learn of its first falure.

The statement of traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for September shows net profits for the month of $375,189, an increase of $18,325 over the profits for September, 1885. For the nine months ended September 30th the net profits were $2,507,675, an increase of $217,675 compared with the corresponding period last year.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large bottles. d90

Some Miraculous Results

Have followed the use of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic." It has saved many from becoming bald, and has produced good heads of hair on bald heads where the roots are not all gone. It has relieved hundreds of per son, from dandruff, and restored crops of gray and faded hair to their original color. A. Dorenwend, sole manufacturer. For sale everywhere. J. D. Tully, agent for Peterboough.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

The value of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in the protection it affords from the dangers of pulmonary disorders, cannot be overestimated. Mr. C. K. Philips, Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "About three years ago I had severe Laryngitis, which resulted in chronic hoarseness. By the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral I have since entirely regained my health." Mr. Henry Russell, Excelsior Printing Co., New York, writes: "Influenza became epidemic in my neighborhood. Several members of my family suffered severely with it, all of whom took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and were cured by it in a few days. It is a wonderful medicine for Influenza. Too much cannot be said in its favor."

E. M. Sargent, 41 Andover st., Lowell, Mass., says: "I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral about the year 1842, as a family medicine, for Coughs and Colds, and have always kept it in my house since that time. I consider it the best remedy that can be had for these complaints." Dr. J. B. Robertson, Clayton, N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in my family and practice, for a number of years, and have no hesitation in recommending it. It is an admirable preparation, and well-qualified to do all that is claimed for it." E. J. Styers, Germanton, N. C., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best Cough preparation I ever saw. It gives instant relief."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

has cured a Cough in a few doses. It always relieves irritation of the lungs or throat, and arrests the tendency to inflammation. It strikes at the foundation of all Pulmonary diseases, is without a rival as an expectorant, and is a sure cure for the most obstinate Coughs and Colds. L. Garrett, Texana, Texas, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twenty years. For throat and lung diseases, I consider it a wonderful remedy."

It is Near Us Now.

With what eager expectancy many in Peterborough are watching for the advent of winter—the stern ruler of the inverted year. The members of the Curling Club are already on the qui vive, to say nothing of those who are intending to join and learn the art of curlin'. The ladies and gentlemen who year after year chase the fleeting hours with flying feet as they glide over the glassy surface of the frozen ice are all eagerness for the "cold dip." True, there are others who are not so well pleased to see Dame Autumn, with her red falling leaves and warm sunshine, fleeing away on the wings of Time, for the cold weather means an extra expenditure of money—people must keep warm. "Willing to meet you half way, that is in all such matters as warm clothing!" So says A. McNeil, Habilliment Hall. "All winter clothing selling at very reasonable figures."

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES

FERGUSON VS SANDERSON, ET AL.

This action was brought by Wm. Ferguson, against Edward and Joseph Sanderson, for $400. In 1884 the plaintiff, who lives in the township of Cartwright, wishing to get nearer the town of Peterborough, entered into an arrangement with his brother-in-law, Edward Sanderson, of Cavan, for the sale of his farm and the parchase of Edward's. The latter not wishing to do so sent the plaintiff to his brother, Joseph Sanderson, who wanted to get a larger farm. It was agreed that one hundred acres be exchanged and that the 60 remaining acres of the plaintiff's farm be purchased for $4,000. These terms were accepted. Ferguson then stated that if he effected a trade with Joseph, Edward was prepared to take Joseph's farm at $7,000. This statement Edward denied and said that instead of for $7,000 it was $6,600 he closed the contract. The plaintiff, however, effected the transfer of Joseph's Cavan farm direct to Edward for the sum of $7,000. When Edward returned from the west he repudiated this deed. He had said over and over again he would give no more than $6,600 for it. He was prevailed upon by Joseph to accept the deed by Joseph's saying that it made no difference so long as the deed was receipted. The plaintiff then brought an action to recover the remaining $400 from either Edward or Joseph. In charging the jury His lordship emphasized the importance of their being strict business transactions between friends and relations. On account of loose dealing lifelong friendships had been frequently broken. He would have thought that respectable citizens like these would have preferred rather to contribute equally to the paltry $400 than to enter into litigation. That was a matter of taste, however. They had every right to the law and the jury and himself were bound to give them the benefit of it. The jury brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. Kerr, Q. C., Toronto, for the plaintiff; Dumble, Peterborough, and Paterson, Q. C., Port Perry, for the defendants.

PHELAN VS. BRADBURN.

An action brought by Richard Phelan to recover $3,000 damages from Thomas Bradburn. In opening a billiard room in Bradburn's Opera House block in 1885, the defendant advanced the plaintiff a sum of money, to be paid back, with the rent of the room, in regular instalments. The defendant claimed that he never received any return for his money whatever, and for that reason seized what was on the premises. The plaintiff claimed that there was no agreement made as to when the money advanced should be repaid. He was paying for his tables in monthly instalments, his light and rent, and it being the dull season it took nearly all he made to keep things running. When the busy season set in he was seized upon, and deprived of his business.

Stone, Peterborough, for the plaintiff; Blackstock, Toronto, and Dumble, Peterborough, for the defendant.

ROSS VS. HULL.

This was the last case on the docket. It was an action of replevin, brought by the Hon. J. G. Ross, of Quebec, against John Hull, of Lakefield, and Jas. Wynn, of Burleigh, for timber and cordwood cut on the plaintiff's lands in the township of Burleigh. The defence was that the land belonged to one of the defendants and that the timber and cordwood replevined had not come off the land in question. It appeared that the cordwood which was taken off the land in question was mixed with other cordwood taken off his own lands by one of the defendants, and that the particular pile which had come of the land in question happened to be one of the piles not replevined. The case was tried before His Lordship without a jury.

Judgment reserved.

Pousette, Q. C., for the plaintiff; Dumble, for the defendant.

Stuart Rogers.

The Opera House is engaged for Stuart Rogers to-morrow night, and the public may rely on his appearance, the seating arrangements of the hall to be as usual. Reserved seats can be had at A. L. Davis & Co.'s.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Mr. Ball's Position.

The position Mr. Ball, of the Hammill & Ball counterfeit case, stands in at present is this: At the recent Barrie assizes he pleaded guilty to the indictiment brought against him. He was allowed to go on his own recognisance to appear when called on to receive sentence.

Week of Prayer.

The annual week of prayer for young men begins on Sunday, November 14. This appointment is made by the World's Conference and the American International Convention of Young Men's Christian Association. This will be the twenty-first observance of this season, and the indications are that it will be more widely observed by the associations, in America particularly, than in any previous year.

A Christmas Festival.

Mr. L. Seward's enterprise in training the public school children in vocal music has turned out to be a complete success. The little ones every Saturday afternoon crowd the hall in the market block, over China Hall, to its outside capacity. There must have been at least two hundred and fifty children present on Saturday afternoon last. This action on Mr. Seward's part is highly commendable and no doubt parents thank him warmly for it. The success is so encouraging that Mr. Seward is now making arrangement to hold a grand Christmas festival at which a chorus of 500 children will sing the pretty new carols which Mr. Seward has selected. Rehearsals will be held twice a week in the Parlor roller rink. He will commence with the girls and will then take up the training of the boys. On Christmas day a huge Christmas tree will be laden in the Opera House with gifts from everybody interested, and each child shall receive a gift. Such an enterprise on such a scale is worthy of encouragement and support.

REVIEWS.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—The current number of Godey will in no way detract from its deserved popularity with the ladies. The frontispiece is a gem, a beautiful steel plate engraving of "Marguerite" in Goethe's "Faust." Following this are colored and other fashion plates, and a colored work design. The explanations of these plates, hints on dressmaking and fancy work, household information, &c., will be as acceptable as ever to the fair readers. A new serial novel, "Why Did He Do It?" by a favorite author, is commenced in a very pleasing manner, and Mrs. Wilson's novel "A Legal Fetter," opens with equal promise. Mrs. Reeves' "A Wave of the Sea," is well sustained, its interest culminating as it approaches its catastrophe. The short stories are very readable and there are some charming poems.

CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE.—This Magazine for November contains an admirable and scholarly paper, illustrated, on John Milton and his works, by the Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D., pastor of the Charlotte street Church, Peterborough. Other illustrated articles in the number are:—A graphic account of "Jamaica and its people," by the Rev. John Manley: "Through the Carolinas," "Pictures in Brazil," and an historic sketch of the late revolt in the North-West. The engravings are numerous, excellent, and well-printed. The powerfully-written story of Jan Vedder's wife is brought to a close. Another story by the same author is promised for the next volume. A very eloquent paper by the late Dr. Guard on "John Wesley and his helpers" will attract much attention. A discussion by Bishop Hurst on the success of the Gospel and the Failure of the New Theology will also repay carefully reading. The Editor gives his impressions of a recent visit to the Pacific coast, and discusses briefly the Educational outlook, missionary superintendence in the North West, Sam Jones and his work, etc.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The young folk's own favourite magazine begins its new volume in a most attractive manner. The opening chapter of "Juan and Juanita," by Frances C. Bayler, promises to be as great a favourite as previous serials. A capital story of a college football match and its consequences is told by R. H. Davis in a style that will please the boys and their sisters, too. Victor Hugo, who is admirably portrayed, is recalled to tell the tales with which he used to delight his grandchildren. "Boring for Oil" is an entertaining and instructive account of some of the wonders of that industry. Another biscorje girl, "Edith of Scotland or Maud of England," is introduced under most startling circumstances. The visit of the queer little Brownies is this month paid to a gymnasium. "The Blind Lark" is a graceful tale by Louisa M. Alcott. Dog stories, an account of a flamingo rookery, and a variety of other contributions in prose and verse should content the most exacting. Throughout the number the illustrations are profuse and admirable.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

NORWOOD.

BRAKESMAN KILLED.—On Saturday morning a brakesman on the C. P. R., whose name we have been unable to ascertain, fell off a freight train at a station east of Havelock and was instantly killed.

DROPPED DEAD.—As we go to press we learn that Mr. John White, a native of Surrey, England, dropped dead while working in a field on the farm of Mr. Wm. Mathison at Havelock, on Tuesday evening. Death is attributed to either heart disease or apoplectic seizure.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—A story is current around the village of the mysterious disappearance of the wife of a resident of Havelock. Her husband says she left the house about one o'clock Sunday morning. One thing is certain, she has not been seen or heard from since Sunday. There are some ugly rumours afloat relative to the matter, which, together with the names, we withold for the present.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—A woman named McMullen, who resides about three miles east of this village in the township of Belmont, on Saturday morning attempted to commit suicide. She went down to the C.P. R. track, and on seeing a train approaching laid her head across a rail. She was noticed by the engineer, however, and the train stopped just in time. She said she was tired living and was bound to end her life, and started off down the line.

A CASE OF FORGERY.—A young man lately in the employ of Mr. Thos. Robinson, of Belmont, passed a bogus $15 order in the store of Messrs. R. W. Waters & Co. on Tuesday evening last. It appears that the the young follow had tried to borrow $15 from his employer and on being refused, requested an order on the above firm. This was also refused him. He then went to the house of a friend near this villiage and stated that Mr. Robinson had given him an order for $15, but thas he had lost it and as he was going away on the morning train and wished to make some purchases that evening they would oblige him if they would write a new order. This request was very foolishly acceded to and the order successfully passed. Mr. Waters, however, had his suspicions that the order was not bona fide, and seeing Mr. Robinson in the village a few hours later, ascertained that the paper was a forgery and that the young man had drawn his wages in full. He was immediately placed under arrest by Constable Hill. The friend who had so foolishly drawn out the order was also communicated with. The result was that the order was paid, and Mr. Waters not wishing to prosecute, the parties indicted were released.—Register.

GARDEN HILL.

FIRE.—During the noon hour on Wednesday last the woolen mills of Mr. James Dyer, Garden Hill, caught fire on the upper part of the premises. The mill hands were at their dinners and the devouring element had gained considerable headway before it was discovered. There being no appliances about the place to extinguish the flames the fire had its own way. There was a large quantity of finished and unfinished cloth on hand, only a small portion of which was saved; some ten or twelve thousand pounds of wool in stock was also burned. The fire spread to the store and post office, which, with three dwellings and a barn of Mr. Eldad Dyer, Deputy Reeve of Hope, containing several hundred bushels of grain and a lot of agricultural implements, on which we are sorry to learn there was no insurance, were destroyed. Mr. James Dyer had only $6 000 insurance on the mill and store; not one-quarter the amount he ought to have had. One of the dwellings was owned by Mr. R. Beer, the other two dwellings belonging to Mr. Dyer. The whole loss will reach upwards of twenty-five thousand dollars.—Guide.

ECHOES OF THE ELECTION.

Contradictory Statements Regarding Congress—New York's Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The World, referring to the results of Tuesday's election, says: "The Democratic control of the House is seriously imperilled, if not altogether lost."

Returns from all the counties in the State show a plurality for Peckham, the head of the Democratic State ticket, of 9,635. Outside of New York and Brooklyn the Republicans gain several thousand over last year, but there is a Democratic gain of 5,299 in these two cities. As compared with last year the prohibition vote shows losses in some counties and small gains in others, leaving the total about the same as last year.

The Herald says: "The House of Representatives will have 166 Democrats, 153 Republicans and 5 labor men. The Democrats will have, therefore, a clear majority over all of 8."

DENVER, Col., Nov. 4.—The state will, without doubt, give Adams, Democrat, for governor, a majority of 1,500. This indicates that the Democrats have carried the Assembly and possibly the Senate, a large Democratic gain.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—The Commercial Gazette says: "The surprisingly large vote for George in the city of New York and the wonderful run of the workingman's candidate for congress in south Cincinnati (our Kentucky district) are political incidents of the utmost significance, and the presumption is reasonable that they will have far reaching consequences. The gain in the southern Republican members of Congress and the result across the river show that there is a pressure at which the solid south must give way. We do not see how they (the Democrats) can rid themselves of Cleveland, but their defeat with him is plainly forshadowed. The positive decline and fall of the Democratic party may be dated from the November elections of 1886."

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Standard, in an article expressing surprise at the number of votes cast for Henry George in the election for Mayor of New York, asks New York what she will do in the face of the fact that one in every three backs his opinion that the French revolution is about to be repeated in America. Such polling looks as though the great American nation were playing with edged tools.

The Times says: "The result of the elections show that the opponents of anarchy and spoilation have not awakened a an instant too soon to the perils of the situation. Both parties suffered numerously in the building up of George's party. The danger now is that these losses will tempt machine politicians to traffic with the promoters of George's candidature, and to advance to meet their predatory socialism. Industrious Americans must see to it lest the appeals of demagogues to half instructed artizans in great cities inflict danger upon the public and credit and paralyze the productive resources of the country."

DOCTORS BAFFLED.

The Joints of a Man's Body Turn Into Solid Bone.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 3.—A physician of this city recently visited Jonathan Bass, of Cambria, Niagara county, whose case is believed to be without a parallel in medical records. Mr. Bass is 56 years of age. In the summer of 1848 he was seized with a sharp pain in the bottom of his right foot. No cause for it could be discovered. The foot and leg became greatly swollen, and during the next nine years all the joints in his body became slowly anchylosed, or grown into solid bone. In 1857 he was placed on an invalid's bed and has never been removed from it. So completely consolidated are all his joints, including the spine, that he may be lifted by the placing of a hand under his head and one under his heels, his weight being but 75 pounds. The bones of the fingers of the right hand, of the entire left hand, and of the toes of both feet have been absorbed, and the flesh of the fingers and toes hang down like fringe. Mr. Bass's jaws are tightly locked, but he manages to eat the heartiest meals without mastication and without suffering inconvenience. Pork and other meat is cut in thin strips, which he draws into his mouth by sucking through the narrow opening between his upper and lower teeth. He eats the fattest meat. Since 1869 he has been totally blind. His heart is five inches lower than the usual position of that organ, but is perfectly sound, as are all of the invalid's vital parts. The nails on his fingers have grown to nearly a foot in length. Mr. Bass is a man of more than average intelligence, and he keeps himself posted on all questions of the day. He converses with ease, and is lively and cheerful. His constitutional health is so good that physicians agree that he will live beyond the allotted time of the most active men.

STARTLING DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Citizen of Lausanne Discovered Guilty of Villianous Crimes.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The town of Lausanne, in the Canton of Vaud, Switzerland, is in a state of great excitement over the discovery of the villianous character of one of its hitherto prominent and respected citizens. For several months past serious fires have frequently occurred in Yverdun and other places in the vicinity of Lousanne, on which occasion M. Schaffter, a high and popular officer of the Lousanne fire brigade, invariably rushed to the scene with wonderful alacrity, in most cases reaching the the fire in advance of his fellow members. Last night watchers discovered M. Schaffter in the act of placing combutibles, saturated with petroleum, beneath the staircase of his own house. He was arrested, and protested his innocence; but, shortly after being placed in a cell, attempted to commit suicide. Schaffter's residence, from cellar to garret, was found to be a perfect arsenal and well-stored depository of stolen goods. Weapons of all kinds were found in profusion, together with ammunition in large quantities, while combustibles of all kinds, false keys and stolen property from the burning houses were everywhere to be seen. Schaffter is now strongly suspected of having murdered his closest friend, Mr. Mathode, whose mutilated corpse was found a few years ago near Yverdun, minus a wallet containing 1,000 francs.

A popular writer laments the fact that poets are declining. It is different with poets themselves. They lament the fact that the editors of magazines and newspapers are declining.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

GLADSTONE'S POLICY REAFFIRMED.

LEEDS, Nov. 4.—At the meeting of the Liberal Federation yesterday Mr. John Morley, speaking on the resolution to reaffirm Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule policy, said that the party were on the eve of a great battle. The Liberals remained staunch. Something had been said about the conciliation of the dissentients. All he could say was that it would be better for the present to leave them alone. The Liberals could stand by their old policy and their old leader. (Cheers.) They felt now more than ever that the views of the Irish electors must be met, or the Irish question would never be settled.

JUMPED FROM A WINDOW.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—E. W. Cope, first secretary of the British legation, jumped from a fourth story window yesterday while insane and was badly injured.

A FRENCHMAN'S WISE VIEWS.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—John Lemoine, the political writer and life senator, writes to the Matin that France would be foolish to summon England to evacuate Egypt, and it would be an error to attempt to make the Egyptian question an European one. The European concert, he says, no longer exists except against France.

ZANKOFF'S ULTIMATUM.

SOFIA, Nov. 4.—M. Muturoff and M. Stambuloff have asked M. Zankoff if he would be willing to enter the cabinet. He replied that he was willing to serve his country, but the present Government must first resign.

GOVERNMENT MEASURES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—At the beginning of the coming season of Parliament the Government will be ready to submit three bills, the first of which has been prepared by Mr. Long, secretary of the Local Government board, and will deal with allotments. The second is in charge of Mr. Ritchie, and will deal with the extention of Local Government. The third, bearing on the payment of tithes, will probably be introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Salisbury.

WIDENING THE BREACH.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Mr. Morley's emphatic declaration at Leeds that there would be no surrender of the leading principles of Mr. Gladstone's Irish bill, has sufficed to suppress the threatened meeting by a small minority in favor of conciliating the Unionists, and the conference results in widening the breach between the Liberals and the Unionists. The policy of the Gladstonian leaders is largely influenced by the [illegible] of a close alliance between Lord Salisbury and Lord Hartington, considering all overtures for the conciliation of the latter futile. Since the Cabinet Councils were resumed Lord Salisbury, Lord Hartington and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach have daily had long interviews at Devonshire House on the Irish policy. Yesterday Lord Hartington called a meeting of the Unionist leaders to confer with the executive committee of the Liberal-Unionist Association. It was decided to hold a general conference at London of all branches in the provinces to demonstrate that true Liberalism continues opposed to Gladstonian Home Rule.

RETURN OF LOYALIST DELEGATES.

ARMAGH, Nov. 4.—Rev. Dr. Kane and Mr. Smith, barrister, who have just returned from a trip to America in behalf of the Irish Loyalist cause, arrived yesterday. They were welcomed by large crowds accompanied by bands. Mr. Smith, in a speech, said he was sure, judging from their meetings in America, that if money were wanted for the loyalist cause in Ireland large sums would be sent across the Atlantic.

SOLDIERS KILLED.

VIENNA, Nov. 4.—It is reported that the transport train has been wrecked between Nic olaieff and Odessa, and that forty soldiers have been killed.

WARLIKE TALK.

VIENNA, Nov. 4.—In the Austrian and Hungarian delegations to-day Prime Minister Von Tisza and Herr Smolka declared that the interest of Eastern Europe should be defended with the sword. In the Hungarian Delegation, Prime Minister Tisza said the members had a double duty to perform: First, they must endavor to obtain a clear idea of the country's foreign relations, whether the policy of the Government was a policy befitting the monarchy, and whether everything was being done to make its policy felt. Secondly, they must make sure that the national forces were equal to those of other powers not only in patriotism and devotion but in strength and equipment. The peoples of the monarchy, especially the Hungarian citizens in the East, must not be abandoned even to avoid in armed collision. In conclusion he expressed the hope that the Government would succeed in guarding the interests of the Monarchy and maintaining peace.

BULLER'S SYSTEM A SUCCESS.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—There has been a marked decrease of crime in Kerry, owing partly to landlords reducing rents and partly to Gen. Buller's system of closely watching suspects instead of guarding persons liable to attack. The new system has been so effective that the demolition of the police protection huts has been commenced.

A VILLAGE BURNED.

Fifty Buildings Destroyed and Thirty Families Homeless.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. Nov. 4.—About 3.45 this morning a fire broke out in the Rossin Block, occupied by James Kelly. In a few minutes the whole block was one mass of flames on account of the strong south-west wind blowing. The fire soon spread to an adjoining house, and from there to the Busby House, which was soon a mass of flames. The villagers worked hard to stop the flames, but having no fire engine the flames spread to the adjoining buildings, and in less than four hours' time the whole street was swept for two and one-half blocks from street to street. The scene as the flames were raging and the people were getting out goods and furniture beggars description. This is the greatest conflagration that has ever occurred in this district. There were over fifty buildings burnt, and thirty families are rendered homeless, some being entirely destitute. The total loss is about $50,000, the insurance on which amounts to only $12,000. The heaviest losers are: E. S. Busby, $6,000; Alex. Spence, $2,000; Irwin Rusk, $3,000; Jno. Woods, $2,500; B. A. Belyea, $2,000; D. Teahan, $3,000; W. Gilbert, $3,500; Episcopal Church, $2,000; T. Lee, $1,500 and R. Buckley, $1,000.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1886.

THE EDITORIAL RESPONSIBILITY.

The Rev. Mr. Inglis appeals to his Church Courts to discipline the Rev. Messrs. Macleod and Cameron as editors of the Presbyterian Review, because it was stated in that journal that the editorial writers for the party press gained their daily bread by lying. Mr. Inglis avers that as one of the editorial writers of the Globe he is included in this grave charge.

Now we have no intention of joining in the controversy of these reverend editors, who have both the ability and the opportunity for carrying on their discussion. We will content ourselves with remarking that it is rather strange that Mr. Inglis, who is so thin skinned as to be the only editor putting on the cap and to be aroused to such fierce indignation, should at the same time maintain his connection with his brother editors on the Globe staff, who have been proved over and over again guilty of the offence in question, not even stopping short of forgery to perpetrate it. Mr. Inglis by his continued association with them is certainly encouraging a crime which he considers so grave, and as his editorials cannot be distinguished from those of his wicked associates he exposes himself to being suspected of individual responsibility for their particular sins.

But the point on which we wish to touch is this. The Globe editorial staff has persistently represented that the Presbyterian Review is only a Conservative organ in disguise and that it is under the editorial control of a professional Conservative journalist. Hence when anything has been said in the Presbyterian Review that is awkward for the Globe and its party the rejoinder has been constantly used that it was only the partizan attack of a party organ and therefore of no weight. Yet it now appears on the very authoritive and deliberate testimony of an editorial writer for the Globe that the Globe editorial staff had in the person of Mr. Inglis full knowledge that the Presbyterian Review is not under the editorial control of a hack Conservative journalist, but that it is really under the editorial control of respected ministers of the Presbyterian Church.

It is therefore to be hoped that there will no longer be found in the Globe editorial columns assertions that the utterances of the Presbyterian Review are only those of a prejudiced political organ, especially while Mr. Inglis with his stern hatred of falsehoods remains on the Globe editorial staff.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review thinks we are wong because we do not like rebellion and perjury in the person of Mr. Laurier. In justification of Mr. Laurier we are told that his friends the rebels were justified in taking up arms against our country and shooting down our people because they had wrongs. Well, if they were wronged as to their lands so infamously as to warrant them in warring against the authorities and murdering missionaries and settlers, there must undoubtedly have been many cases of wrong doing. Will the Sentinel-Review oblige us with the name of any rebel, or, indeed, of any halfbreed, who was disturbed in his possession of one inch of land he had settled upon, or of any Indian who was deprived of any right under his treaty? We may say in advance that it will be no answer to our question to allege that certain Reformers or speculators told the halfbreeds that they would be disturbed. We want the actions, not words, that are held to excuse rebellion and murder.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

A Bond that Makes the Dominion a Great Nation.

Mr. Joel Cook, the Philadelphia correspondent of the London Times, who has been travelling over the Canadian Pacific, writes from Port Moody to the Times of October 21 as follows:—

"The manner of construction of the Canadian Pacific line is admirable, and exceeds in stability and completeness most of the newer American railways. The best materials have been employed, and, having had command of unlimited supplies of the finest timber and stone, all portions have been made substantial and strong. The numerous bridges and trestles are built in the strongest possible manner of the largest timbers and most ponderous trusses and beams. The tunnels have been excavated both wide and high. The ballasting is good, except where work still proceeds on portions of the mountain section, which, however is expected to be finished before winter. The passenger equipment for all classes is comfortable, and in the sleeping and feeding arrangements as complete as is possible to obtain on any American railway. Taken altogether, the building of the Canadian Pacific railway, in the face of all the difficulties and obstacles that have for years confronted the work, was a stupendous enterprise most successfuly performed. The investment of British capital mainly, with some from Canada and New York, made the enterwrise possible. The Canadian Government gave princely gifts, but in return has got something that makes the Dominion a great nation within herself, by linking together her widely separated provinces; and also gives the Mother Country a durable bond of Empire. How vastly important does this route become when British interests on the Pacific are considered. The manager of the line tells me that he will undertake, with the present equipment of the railroad, to transport eight thousand armed men a day, with their luggage and appurtenances, from the Atlantic to the Pacific; that he can continue this for a week, and that in no case will the transit occupy more than a week. What an aid is thus given to her Majesty's Government in any Oriental complication. Fifty thousand men, with their artillery and baggage of all kinds, can be started from England, and within two weeks the advance guard will have arrived on the Pacific coast, and in three weeks from the time of departure all will be there. Such an advantage is inestimable, and it shows the benefit of this great enterprise from the national standpoint. During a few years past some portions of the British Empire may have been making more noise, and thus attracting greater attention, but it is quite probable that wise statesmen hereafter will concede that the Dominion of Canada, by her quiet, resolute work of completing this railway, has accomplished one of the best achievements of the time. Within Canada, while Sir John Macdonald's Government and Parliament have done everything to forward the enterprise, yet the labor itself has been mainly performed by a combination of shrewd business men, known familiarly as the 'Syndicate.' This has at different time included various persons, and there are five men whose names throughout the history of the railway construction stand out prominently—Sir Geo. Stephen, Sir Donald A. Smith, R. B. Angus, W. C. VanHorne and Duncan McIntyre. Considering the pluck and engergy with which the work has been pushed in spite of every obstacle, I need hardly add that four of these men are of the Scotch race that has done so much for the development of Canada. The fifth, Mr. Van Horne (the vice-president and general manager of the line), was the practical railway man, and comes of a race that is also used to conquering difficulties—the American. It is no wonder such a combination has been invincible."

SERVING TWO MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Under the caption of "Serving Two Masters," the Examiner in a calm, "judicial" way attempts to solve a settled question in metaphysics, in its own peculiar style. Does the end justify the means? All but Jesuits say "no." If the Jesuits are right, no specific limit can be established to such a broad principle, and murder would be a proper weapon to exterminate heresy. Truth must be inculcated in order to save, and from an economical standard by at once cutting out the root the danger is averted, and, what is more, the end attained. If, then, assuming the correct way is to heed morality as we go along, why do we set upon the track detectives who lie, cheat, etc., ad libitum. Here we behold the extraordinary spectacle of the sacrifice of morality to win it. They are like the old time professional perjurers. As we premised, morality depends upon the present intention. If a man, deliberately cheat, is he not immoral, even if it be to save a starving family? Can anyone then, with reason, argue that deliberate vice should be set to entrap the vicious. Like superficial reasoners, in general, the Examiner says that "this doctrine accepted, the detection of thousands of crimes would be impossible"; also it speaks of "the justifiable duplicity" of detectives. Supposing the first true, what does that prove? As to the second, though it is, and always has been, the motto of the Examiner, to which it has consistently clung, what does that prove? Moreover, the converse of this latter proposition ought to be true, viz.: "Unjustifiable integrity." The farmer who deliberately puts a scarecrow in the field is "on principle," as the Examiner says, "a liar." But where man, as in this instance, overlooks the deception as being too gentle and advantageous to offend morality, unbending principle decrees it wrong, only differing in degree. The Examiner openly advocates the extreme course. The frank honesty of sound principle is certainly lacking in the ready champion of such views.

Yours truly,
TRUTH.

THOMAS CONVICTED.

DR. JOHN HALL'S NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson VI of the International Series for Sunday, Nov. 7—Golden Text, "And Thomas Said unto Him, My Lord and My God"—Lesson, John xx, 19-31.

Our lesson to-day has an interest peculiar to itself. Peter, John and Judas only, of the twelve, have as much notice of them in the gospels as Thomas. He had a character peculiarly his own, like which there are many among men, and this doubtless is the reason for his being so outstanding a figure in the Gospel of John. There are two parts of the lesson, but connected together, for we should not understand the features of the second interview if we had not the details of the first—very important in themselves.

It was the Jewish Monday, the first Christian Sabbath (called the first day, etc., as in Acts xx, 7), and evening. The disciples knew the light in which the Jews regarded them, and had the doors of the room in which they met closed, probably as we would say "barred" or "locked." "Disciples" may include others beside the twelve apostles. (See Luke xxiv, 33.)

The words "came Jesus," along with the account of "the doors shut," give the impression that there was no opening of the doors needful. The glorified body of Jesus was not bound by ordinary natural laws, nor probably will those of saints be. The "iron gate" of Peter's prison opened to the angel and him of its "own accord." What power we shall have when we become equal with the angels, who can tell? We shall see through questions about matter that baffle us now. Jesus "stood in the midst" and gave his salutation, "Peace be unto you!" How timely! They were in "fear of the Jews." How much they needed it! How often he has come into chambers where timid and perplexed disciples were gathered, and spoken in effect the same thing! Timid in view of Jewish malice, but glad over the news of our Lord's resurrection, they had secretly come together, and lo! he is there, without any need to open the door. He is all he ever was. He is the same in feeling, as they feel when the words fall on their ears, Peace be unto you!

V. 20. He knows human dullness; he knows them. How good it is for us that the disciples were not model men, not perfect, but like ourselves! If they had been well nigh perfect we should have desponded. But their need of help and of repeated lessons concerning truth encourages us, for our Master knows us as he knows them. So he shows them his hands and his side. They have many infallible proofs (Acts i, 3) of his rising. He is the same in body. He is not a spirit, as they thought him on the Sea of Galilee. He has suffered. He is the "Lamb slain." John remembered this—"handled"—in I John i, 1, long years afterward. How much all this meant they did not then know or stop to ask. Their hearts overflowed with joy. "Then were the disciples glad," etc. And when we are cast down and things seem to go against us, here is the most gladdening thing in the world—the sight by faith of Jesus. (See Rom. v, 2.)

V. 21. Again the "peace" is given, and the truth which they failed to understand before is repeated: "As my father sent me—not to do my will but his—so I send you, not to do your own but mine; and as I preached the gospel, so are you to do in my name."

V. 22. This living man breathes—breathes on them, and with the power of God says, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." He had promised this gift in John xvi, 7, and elsewhere. It is true a fuller blessing of this sort is to be theirs; but even now they need special help. He had told them that the Comforter would bear witness to him. This they need now, as they are to wait for the Pentecostal power. He is to them a Spirit of prayer (Acts i, 13, 14). Then he foreshadows the commission in

V. 23. "Whosoever," etc. Whatever power was given Peter is here given to all. All stand on the same level. The apostles did not give forgiveness in their name or in virtue of their office; they proclaimed it. See Jer. i, 10. "See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant." Did the weeping prophet do all that? No; but he proclaimed the terms, in God's name, on which God would do it, and as it was with prophets so it is with apostles. See the same principle in Isa. vi, 10, in Ezek. xxxii, 18, also in Ezek. xliii, 3, Hosea vi, 5, Rev. xi, 5. It is important to make the pupils understand this. Words like these are constantly quoted in favor of a priesthood and of Rome, and the rising generation of Americans will need to understand the case. What the apostles did explains the sense and meaning of this commission. They did not hear confessions, prescribe penances and pronounce absolutions. They preached Christ and remission of sins in his name.

We now come to the second section, which gave a name to our lesson. "Thomas" means a "twin." The word resembles "Tom" in Hebrew (comp. Song vii, 3), and Didymus is the Septuagint (Greek) rendering of it.

It is usually a loss to be absent from a meeting of disciples. It was so with Thomas (v. 24). Probably it was not an accident, but his despondent nature that kept him away. But of course the disciples told him what they had seen (v. 25). Then came the words which have been taken by some to show a skeptical, ill-conditioned mind, "Except," etc. But they did not. To learn their meaning we must know what manner of man Thomas was. When Jesus intimated that he was leaving his safe retreat from Jewish malice and going to Bethany (John xi, 7, 8, 16), Thomas, dispirited, taking the gloomiest view of the case, said to his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him," i. e., Jesus. He loved him tenderly. But he thought his a "lost cause." He will be seized and killed. We may as well go and die with him. He took the gloomiest view of things. So when at the last supper Jesus spoke of going away and of their coming along, the same spirit breaks out. But it is not bad; it is only sad. Jesus treats it kindly. "Lord, thou art going, we know not whither; how can we go after or with thee? We know nothing of what is meant." He deems the departure of Jesus the end of all of them. He was not an unbeliever, eager to get reasons for unbelief. He was right in aim, in heart, in affection. But his nature was slow; his mind was dependent; he was easily cast down. He took the gloomy view of things. There is a long succession to this apostle among men from mental nature, from sad experiences, from physical weakness or what is called temperament. Some are over-sanguine, like Peter; some are too slow to believe and downhearted. This was the character of Thomas. Jesus never treats him as a man bent on disbelief, or willingly blinding his eyes to evidence, or bad at heart. So when

(V. 26), after eight days, the disciples being just as before, door shut and all together, including Thomas, Jesus came and spake "peace" as before.

V. 27. But he did more. Why, he has heard Thomas' words! He knows the nature of his mind. (So God knoweth our fame, Ps. ciii, 14.) He offers him the very evidence he craved in his depression. That was enough. There is no hint that Thomas went through the mechanical process. The Master is there and knows him well. He shows that by his word, "be not faithless" ("do not become faithless," it might be) "but believing." He makes a confession of his faith

(V. 28) brief in words but fuller and clearer in meaning than any yet made, owning Jesus not only as his "Lord," but his God. He is the Messiah; he is divine in nature. He is "my" God. This, the divine nature of Jesus, was the point with which John set out (John i, 1), and here his book as good as ends, for chapter xxi is supplementary.

V. 29. Our Lord shows him that his way, of slow faith, depression, despondency, is not the best way. There is a better. He has believed, for he has seen; but blessed are they, and there will be a countless multitude of them, who not seeing will yet believe. Heb. xi, 1, 27; II Cor. v, 7; I Peter i, 8 may well be studied in this connection. They have ample evidence, but not of the kind Thomas' nature craved. Let us seek this blessing.

Vs. 30, 31 require little explanation. John is not exhausting the subject, but supplementing other writers, and his aim is, now that the nature of Jesus is being discussed by Greeks, etc., to shew that he is the son of God, and that, believing him, his readers "might have life through his name." What an instrument God made him!

The teacher may well point out the ample evidence of Christ's rising; the fact that he is revealed as divine Redeemer; that his disciples, sent as he was, are to serve through suffering and death if need be; the gentleness of Jesus, going after the one wandering sheep and bringing him back; the fitness of his dealing with slow, doubting Thomas in this way, and the fullness of confession not only of Christ's rising, but of his divine nature; and the nature of believing, which includes all that is implied in faith.—Sunday School World.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

☞Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Premier's Visit.

Information has been received that Sir John Macdonald will deliver an address in Peterborough, probably about the first of December.

Still Another.

Mr. Geo. Bolton shipped another set of radiators to Mr. S. B. Burdette, LL.D., of Belleville, this morning. First-class work is appreciated.

Sepdrate School Board.

Thursday evening was the regular meeting night of the Seperate School Board, but owing to no quorum being present no session was held.

Mikado.

Mrs. Beck wishes to acknowledge the receipt of $58 from Mrs. Dunsford and Miss Addie Errett, the net proceeds of the Mikado social lately held in St. John's Church school room.

No. 5 Company.

Capt. Burke says that there is room for a few good recruits in his company. Those wishing to join the company may call at the armory on Monday or Tuesday evenings.

Vocal Music Class.

A class in vocal music for young men is intended to be organized by the Young Men's Christian Association. Any who would like to join such a class are invited to attend a preliminary meeting at the young men's rooms to-night (Friday) at 8.30 o'clock.

Farewell Jubilee.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Nov. 13th, 14th and 15th, Staff Capt. Eadie and wife, and Special Capt. Philipot will say farewell to the Peterborough corps of the Salvation Army. The three days will be spent in conventions and meetings of different kinds. Torchlight processions are to be held every evening.

The Opera House.

A good business will be done by Bradburn's Opera House during the fall and winter season. After the Japanese engagement comes a two week's engagement with the popular Tavernier Company, commencing on next Monday night. Half of the next week is taken up with local engagements, and from the 14th of December to the 1st of January only the night of the 17th is left unbooked.

The Japs.

There was a crowded house again last night to see the Japanese Colony and much interest was taken in their work and modes of manufacture. The specialty in the performance was the singing of Mr. Winans. He is a fine baritone. The engagement closes to-morrow night. If the people wish to see something really worth seeing they should not fail to go to-morrow. The price has been put down so that it is within the reach of all.

Whiteman Liberated.

Though Joseph Whiteman, who was convicted of bigamy, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, the sentence meant nothing more than that he should be liberated when the court was over and His Lordship was fairly out of town, and considering the circumstances of the case the judgment was a very fair one. This morning the turnkey, in accordance with the ruling of the court, opened the door in Whiteman's cell and the prisoner was made free. He walked out of the cell, and away from the building without saying a word to anyone.

The 57th.

The City Battalion turned out for regular drill on Thursday evening. There was a fairly good attendance of Numbers 1, 2, 4 and 5 companies. The battalion was put through evolutions by Major Grover, and were performed in a highly creditable manner, showing that the men are improving in drill. From this date until the day of inspection, which will take place on November 24th, the battalion will drill on every Monday and Thursday evenings. To keep up the good reputation of the 57th it is to be hoped that the men will turn out well and put in active drill till inspection day.

BURGLARY AT MILLBROOK.

Armstrong and McIntosh's Dry Goods Store Entered—A Safe Blown Open.

By Telephone to the Review.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 5.—Last night Messrs Armstrong and McIntosh's dry goods store was entered by burglars. The entrance was gained through the back door. A hole was bored through it large enough to admit a man's arm, by means of which the bar securing the door was removed and an entrance made. A safe belonging to Mr. J. C. Collins, a retired merchant, who has an office there, was blown open, and between $75 and $100 taken out. Messrs. Armstrong and McIntosh's safe was next attacked. The circular key was knocked off and the lock was battered up considerably, but no entrance was effected to it. Among other things missed from the store is a number of silk handkerchiefs.

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

Corner of Market Square and George Streets, is now open. Meals served at all hours. Oysters in all shapes a speciality. Also Fish, Steak, Canned Lobsters, etc., etc Everything in Season furnished at a minutes notice. Charges moderate.

Scott Act.

The case of Queen vs. Chamberlain for an infraction of the Scott Act was called at the Court this morning. Mr. Geo. Edmison appeared for the defendant and produced a physician's certificate that the defendant was unable to appear. The Magistrate commented on the defendant's complaint, finishing up with enlarging the case till Monday next. The case of Queen vs. O'Brian was adjourned till to-morrow on account of the absence of witnesses.

A Big Sale.

The most extensive sale of farm stock and implements that has taken place in the county of Peterborough for years was held on the late Wm. Millar's premises, Otonabee, on Tuesday. The attendance was very large, farmers and others interested coming from nearly every part of the county. The total amount realized was over $4,000. A good idea of what a crowd was there can be had from the fact that one hundred and thirty-seven loaves of bread helped to supply lunch. Mr. Charles Stapleton and Mr. Harry Stapleton conducted the sale.

Is it Not Amusing?

Ever since the Scott Act came in force in Peterborough there has been no end of fun. Citizens who hitherto walked the streets with heads uplifted, the mind at ease, and apparently at peace with all the world, seem to be troubled more or less at times now, and their countenance betokens signs of anxiety, while the eyes have a far-away-dreamy-look, as if the policeman who is a block away is making straight for them with a little document which means that their presence is required to give important testimony in some case or other at police headquarters. This may be the result of an over-imaginative brain, and easily explained. If you fancy that a policeman who is two or three blocks away, and who is seen to stop frequently and converse with passers by, is on the look out for you, it will invariably prove a mistake, as he will only be answering civil enquiries asked by law-abiding and peaceable citizens, and directing them to A. McNEIL's Habiliment Hall for clothing.

Oriental Improvements.

Mr. Takahashi, the Japanese interpreter, has spoken of the unparalleled progressive strides which has been made in the land of the rising sun during the past few years. While he has been speaking of Oriental progress from his own standpoint it cannot be out of place to speak of Oriental progress viewed in another light. He says that it is during the past few months that the progress of which he speaks has been made; the improvement now to be spoken of has taken place during the past few months. The Oriental Hotel, like Japan, is not the same place it was a short time ago. For months the carpenter, the painter, the calciminers, etc., have been busy renovating. Among the many improvements are the rich wall decoration of the dining room, the office and the bar. A new beech and maple floor has been laid in the office and the woodwork has been all painted and grained. A cosy nook, used as a private office, has been opened from the clerk's office. It is a convenient place for flight on the clerk's part when a page of registered guests come up and demand front rooms. In addition to this the bedrooms which needed it have been freshly decorated. Mr. T. McGrath, who has had charge of the painting and decoration, has done his work with his wonted care and good taste.

Still on Strike.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The beef men at Swift's and Morris's are still out and their chances for returning are lessening. Both concerns are shipping cattle east to be slaughtered. Swift commenced operating to-day with new men, who are coming from all quarters.

The Short Line.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—The short line of railroad from Smith's Falls to Montueal is well advanced towards completion. Trains are running from Smith's Falls to Merrickville, and from Bell's Corners to Kemptville. The St Anne's, Oxford Mills and Kemptville bridges are nearing completion, by which time straight connections with Montreal will be made.

Robber Arrested.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—The missing President of the Bank of Peoria, Ill., who decamped about a year ago with $200,000 of the bank's funds, has been arrested here by one of Pinkerton's men. The police authorities, for some unknown reason, are keeping the matter quiet. The prisoner will be kept in prison until extradition payers are obtained.

BARGAINS in Carpets and Oilcloths at the Golden Lion. R. FAIR.

OMEMEE.

STOREHOUSE BURNED.—On Saturday morning at about one o'clock the large grain store house on Sturgeon street, owned by Messrs. Laidlaw & Waugh, was destroyed by fire. When it was first discovered the whole building along the roof was one mass of roaring flames, and nothing could possibly be done to stay their progress, although the fire engine, hose and buckets were speedily brought to the scene of the fire. Mr. Hart Williams' residence south of the burning building had a narrow escape. A Grand Trunk box car standing on the siding was also burned. On Friday evening the scales, barrows and scoops were brought down from the upper storehouse about six o'clock that evening when there was no sign of fire around the place. Those who saw the fire first, say that they are sure that the inside of the building must have been well saturated with coal oil, for they never saw a fire spread so rapidly and burn with such fury. Fortunately for our town rain had been falling that night, and even while the fire was raging it was still raining, which no doubt prevented the destruction of a large portion of the village. Mr. Laidley informs us that there were between twelve and thirteen thousand bus. of grain in the storehouse, the loss on which was covered by insurance. The building was erected in 1883 at a cost of $1,500 and was insured for $750, while the scales, barrels, barrows, &c., were insured for a $100. The fire was no doubt the work of an incendiary. Mr. McDonald, as representative of the owners of the grain, said he would give a thousand dollars for the apprehension and conviction of the person who set the fire Mr. Laidley is undecided as to whether he will rebuild. We can assure Mr. Laidley that he has the sympathy of his fellow citizens in heavy loss.—Herald.

Stock Speculation Illegal.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Chancellor Runyan has just rendered a decision that speculation in stocks and securities upon margins are wagers within the act to prevent gambling and are therefore illegal and that a gift of securities to a broker to secure him against losses in such speculation is void. The chancellor, therefore, orders that certain securities taken by a broker to recoup losses on marginal transactions be returned to the customer.

An Interesting Case.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 4.—William T. Stewart, the absconding telegraph manager of Wichita, Kansas, is being tried at the present assizes here under the Canadian statute providing that a person bringing stolen money into Canada is liable to the same punishments here as are provided by the statutes of the place where the offence was committed. A large crowd of American witnesses are here, and great interest is taken, as, if successful, it will supply American corporations with a chance to punish their absconders.

Clean Bedding
The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

WHY

WILL people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. COME and inspect our work and SEE FOR YOURSELVES HOW WE CONSTRUCT OUR HOUSES. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine inch walls strapped and lathed, two story, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives A 1 satisfaction. And I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony of honest building. JNO. CARLISLE, Donegal street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church.

A meeting of the committee of the Vocal Society appointed last Tuesday evening to to prepare by-laws &c., will be held in Mr. Manning's dental rooms over Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's drugstore on Monday evening Nov. 8th at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested. The following is the committee:—Misses Dennistown, Cox, Mercer, Errett, Hurley and Wells, and Messrs. Davis, Budden, Henderson (C.P.R.), Dunn, Alex. Bell and Manning.

The Brown Memorial.

The bronze fittings for the drinking fountain placed in the Central Park in memory of Capt. E. Brown, who fell at Batoche, which delayed the completion of the memorial, have arrived. The principal part remaining to be arranged is the water supply, and it is expected that the fountain will be completed and ready to be unveiled by November 24th. Gen. Sir F. Middleton will be in Peterborough to inspect the 57th Battalion on that date, and it is hoped that the General will unveil the memorial, the volunteers taking part in the ceremony.

Scott Act.

Mrs. O Brien, of Indian River, was charged this morning by Inspector Darling with an infraction against the Scott Act. She pleaded not guilty. The charge was proved by a witness who swore that he got old rye in the cellar. J. B. Dunn was charged with having committed a second infraction against the Scott Act. He pleaded not guilty. Several witnesses were called who stated that they got liquor there. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $100 and costs and in the absence of anything to distrain on, committed him to gaol for two months.

Is it Not Amusing?

Ever since the Scott Act came in force in Peterborough there has been no end of fun. Citizens who hitherto walked the streets with heads uplifted, the mind at ease, and apparently at peace with all the world, seem to be troubled more or less at times now, and their countenance betokens signs of anxiety, while the eyes have a far-away-dreamy-look, as if the policeman who is a block away is making straight for them with a little document which means that their presence is required to give important testimony in some case or other at police headquarters. This may be the result of an over-imaginative brain, and easily explained. If you fancy that a policeman who is two or three blocks away, and who is seen to stop frequently and converse with passers by, is on the look out for you, it will invariably prove a mistake, as he will only be answering civil enquiries asked by law-abiding and peaceable citizens, and directing them to A. McNEIL's Habiliment Hall for clothing.

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

West Virginia, Indiana and Montana Democratic—Speaker Carlisle's Majority.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 2.—From the most reliable information received here the State Legislature will be Democratic on a joint ballot of 9 votes. This will elect a Democratic successor to Senator Camden (Dem.)

INDIANAPONIS, Nov. 5.—The Democrats have the Legislature by two majority on a joint ballot, according to the latest advices.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5.—The official count in the Sixth Kentucky district shows the following majorities:—Carlisle, 2,401; Thoebe, 1,633; Carlisle's majority, 768.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 5.—Three days have passed since the polls were closed, and it is not yet certainly known who is to be the next Governor of Minnesota. Both parties still claim the election of their respective candidates, and charges of fraud and prospects of a protracted contest and possible litigation are looming up unpleasantly.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 5.—The Democrats claim every county in Montana except Yellowstone, and control both Houses of the Legislature.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Complete returns of the city and almost complete returns of the State give Bartlett (Dem.) for Governor 302 pluralty over Swift (Rep.)

BOBCAYGEON.

FOR THE NORTH.—Several of Mr. Ullyott's shanty teams have passed through for the north, giving quiet a flavor of old times.

HERRINGS.—Herrings are again running and are being netted in considerable quantities, in the shallow water below the dam. They are selling now at eight cents a dozen and the boys are making loads of pocket money. They are a delicious little fish, and are supposed to be the land-locked herring of the sea, which through the course of time have adapted themselves to their changed environment.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. John Simpson, of Harvey, was in his usual health on Wednesday evening, and after taking his customary smoke, and making the shavings for the fire in the morning, he retired for the night. About mindight Mrs. Simpson heard him moaning, and supposing he was dreaming shook him to awake him. As he did not answer, she lit a lamp, and found that Mr. Simpson was black in the face. A slight tremor passed through his shoulder, and he died without speaking. He was about sixty years of age.—Independent.

CAMPBELLFORD.

A FULL NEST.—A few days ago, a son of Mr. George Dunk found on their farm in Seymour east, a nest containing 70 hen's eggs. They were all fresh, and probably the first deposit of a stock which the fowls were "packing down" for winter.

ACCIDENT AT THE MILL.—On Friday afternoon Mr. S. Stephens was the victim of an accident which totally disabled him for several days. He was working the "bolter," and was struck in the side with a piece of slab which was thrown with great violence from the saw, knocking him breathless for several moments. He was taken to a physician for aid, and afterwards to his home. Since the injury a large lump protrudes from his side whenever he stands erect.—Herald.

Fatal Accident.

QUEBEC, Nov. 4.—A melancholy and fatal accident occurred on board the SS. Vancouver here this morning. While a party of ship laborers were busily engaged in completing the loading of her cargo, and lowering a box of bacon weighing a couple of hundred pounds into the hold, the tackle gave way and the box was sent flying to the bottom. In the descent it struck two laborers named John Savage and John Kaine, of Champlain street, the former receiving such a severe gash in the head that he died while being carried to his home on a stretcher. Kaine's injuries are not so serious.

Hamilton's Railway Connection.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 5.—General Manager Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, addressed the Board of Trade to-day on railway Connection between Hamilton and his system. He said it was not wise to unfold all the plans of the company at present, but that a line between Detroit and the Niagara Rivers would, before long, be part of the Ontario system. This is expected to run through Hamilton. A committee will be appointed by the Board of Trade to confer with the company.

John Jacob Astor Ill.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—John Jacob Astor is ill of rheumatic gout. His physicians fear a complication of this trouble, with apoplexy, which is threatened, and the result of which would be serious. Mr. Astor, four years ago, secured the family succession of the bulk of the Astor estate, and avoided possible testamentary litigation by transferring the enormous property inherited from his father, Wm. B. Astor, with all its increase, to his son, Wm. W. Astor, ex-Minister to Italy.

A New Industry for St. John.

ST. JOHNS, Que., Nov. 5.—Mr. Chas. Arpin has received a letter from a New York firm, asking the price of land in this town, near the Canadian Pacific railway, with the intention of building and operating a large pulp utensils factory to employ at least 250 hands. With cheap labor, good railroad facilities, exemption of municipal taxes and cheap land, no doubt the town should increase. The passing of the C. P. R. here will soon be felt, and it has popularized immensely the Mayor and those Councillors who worked so energetically to that effect.

The New Province.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 5.—After one week's bitter discussion in private sittings, the Northwest Council has come to an agreement on the new redistribution of seats for the Territories. Assiniboia will have 13 members, Saskatchewan four and Alberta eight. Assiniboia held out for seventeen, then fell to sixteen, then to thirteen before the dogged resistence of the Saskatchewan members. The Dominion Government will be petitioned immediately to recognize the Territories as a Province and admit it into Confederation.

TIRNOVA, Nov. 5.—At a private sitting of deputies to-day it was resolved to maintain the strongest opposition to concessions to the Russian party.

RUSSIAN AGENTS AND BRIGANDS.

SOFIA, Nov. 5.—A state of siege has been proclaimed at Philippopolis for the purpose of suppressing the brigands who are infesting the evirons of the city and who are incited by Russian agents to deeds of violence.

THE LONDON SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Henry M. Hyndman, the Socialist Democratic leader, telegraphed yesterday that he was unable to say what the Council of Social Democratic Federation would finally decide to do in regard to the proposed workingmen's procession on Lord Mayor's day. He thought, however, the virtual victory secured by the tremendous vote given to Henry George in New York would greatly encourage the council to disregard the prohibitory notices of General Warren and Colonel Fraser, and adhere to the original programme.

ZANKOFF'S TERMS REPUDIATED.

TIRNOVA, Nov. 5.—A meeting of deputies was called to hear the Government's explanation of its negotiations with M. Zankoff. M. Stambuloff made a statement which elicited a violent protest, all sections, even the Zankoffites, repudiating the conditions imposed by M. Zankoff.

PROPOSED IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Prince of Wales has requested a number of the most prominent public men to form a committee to frame a scheme for the proposed Imperial Institute.

A SECOND SUEZ CANAL.

LONDON, Nov 5.—A Hamburg correspondent hears that a scheme is far advanced for a second Suez canal, to be exclusively English, and that there is an enormous amount of capital at the disposal of the projectors.

ENGLISH INTRIGUE.

TIRNOVA, Nov. 5.—One of the Bulgarian conspirators against Prince Alexander, who escaped to Russia, has returned. He says the Czar received him, and openly declared his intention to put an end to English intrigue in Bulgaria.

THE SPANISH REPUBLICANS.

MADRID, Nov. 5.—Three-fourths of the sergeants recently dismissed from the army were members of secret republican societies. The Zorillists admit that the dismissal of the sergeants was a serious blow, but they boast that there are still 10,000 men in the army in their confidence and that they could at any moment cause one important garrison to declare for a republic.

STILL INSOLENT.

SOFIA, Nov. 5.—General Kaulbars has demanded the dismissal from office of the Prefect who expelled M. Nebolsin, a Russian subject, from the Sofia Council Chamber. The Prefect has offered to resign in order to relieve the Government of the difficulty, but Gen. Kaulbars insists that he be dismissed.

FINED FOR BOYCOTTING.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—The Magistrates of Ballymeno, County Antrim, have convicted two women of boycotting a sheriff's sale. One was sentenced to pay a fine of £3 10s. or be imprisoned for two months, and the other to pay 10 shillings or serve a week in prison.

EGYPT'S POSITION.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The Republique Francais refutes the arguments of John Lemoine as as contained in his letter in yesterday's Matin. It declares that it is not a question of Russia and Germany dragging France into an adventure in Egypt, but of reminding England that she promised to withdraw from Egypt. "The present Egyptian regime," the Republique Francais says, "is worse than that of the worst of Khedive's, and tends to injure the interest of Europeans in the country."

Knights of Labor Candidates.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5.—The Knights of Labor here are preparing for a fight all along the election line. They last night put William Scarrow, a harness-maker, in the field for Mayor, and will nominate a full aldermanic ticket next week. Scarrow was beaten by about 200 in a three cornered fight last year, but will probably go in by acclamation this year. The Knights of Labor are also preparing to put candidates in the field for the Legislature and Dominion Parliament.

Desperate Attempt to Escape.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 5.—A special from Pueblo says: Mangus Colorow, an Apache chief, in charge of a detachment of colored troops, on his way to Florida, attempted to escape yesterday morning when the train was near Pueblo. When the train backed up Mangus was found lying beside the track unconscious and badly cut. Three of his ribs were broken. When he returned to consciousness he made a desperate fight.

Tenants and Landlords.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—The Limerick League will prevent hunting unless evicted tenants are reinstated and evictions cease. The Earl of Dunraven granted his tenants an abatement of from 15 to 25 per cent. The tenantry on the Tully estate at Glenry, Mitchellstown, yesterday decided not to pay their rents unless granted a reduction of 30 per cent. Lord Massy has offered his tenants 20 per cent. reuction.

The C. P. R. to Enter Boston.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Canadian Pacific officials are reported as saying that their road will be running into Boston before May 1st, 1877. The road will use the bridge now building over the Lachine rapids and enter Boston via the Boston and Lowell. Railroad cars are being built and other equipment provided for.

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1886.

WHAT IS LYING?

HAD the Toronto Presbytery complied with the request of the Rev. Mr. Inglis—a member of the Globe staff—and undertaken to deal with his complaint against the Presbyterian Review, because a correspondent had made a sweeping assertion about the lying proclivities of Canadian newspaper writers generally, we imagine it would have had a pretty large contract on hand. To begin with, they would have had to begin by defining where the line between truth and falsehood was to be drawn. For instance, is it, or is it not lying for a writer to suppress one fact and give prominence to another, so as to create a false impression in the mind of the reader? Or is it lying or not lying for political purposes for a writer to denounce an opponent for doing the very same thing that a supporter has done, while quietly ignoring the deed of the latter? Or, to take an actual occurrence in the political history of this Province, was Mr. Mowat lying or was he not when he performed the part which he did during the last twenty-four hours of the first session of the present Parliament of Ontario. The circumstances to which we refer are as follows:—

The House was in committee on Dr. Widdifield's bill for the relief of "certain Returning Officers" when Mr. Meredith suggested that if such a bill were to be passed the Government should assume full responsibility for it and incorporate it in the election bill of Mr. Mowat then standing on the orders for a third reading, but Mr. Mowat refused to do so BECAUSE "he did not wish ex post facto legislation to be part of his bill."

Immediately after Dr. Widdifield's bill was disposed of, Mr. Mowat moved the third reading of his election bill, whereupon up jumps Mr. Harcourt (a Government supporter) and moves an amendment thereto, containing the most infamous piece of ex post facto legislation ever attempted in a Canadian legislature—namely that of relieving the notorious Dr. Dowling and some other of his fellow members and supporters of Mr. Mowat from the consequence of their illegal acts in their respective contests.

The Opposition were naturally astounded at having such a proposition sprung upon them at the very last moment, and in view of the declaration just made by Mr. Mowat, the leader of the House, they appealed to him to put his foot down upon such a disgraceful transaction. But, alas! they appealed in vain. For some time Mr. Mowat sat in his seat as if he himself were completely taken aback by Mr. Harcourt's proposition, but at last, it becoming impossible for him to remain silent longer, he opened his mouth, oh, how unwillingly, and said: "He did not profess to like this expost facto legislation, but there were many precedents for it both here and in England!"

So far, taking the matter in the light of what we have just stated and that only, one would be inclined to conclude that Mr. Mowats sudden conversion to premiting ex port facto legislation to form part of "his bill" was the result of the manœuvering of the artful trio—Messrs. Fraser, Pardee and Hardy—and that Mr. Mowat knew nothing of Hartcourt 's motion until it were moved That was the conclusion of many who were eye witnesses of this memorable scene in the Legislature.

But alas, for Mr. Mowat's credit for fair and upright dealing, there was, as there is so much that is done by the Mowat Government, a hidden history of the transaction—rendering it anything but what it seems to be on the face of it, and which proves Mr. Mowat to be an adept at—well, we would rather not say what.

But, during the sitting of the Bribery Commission, new light was let in upon this white washing clause of the Attorney-General's election bill, and it came out then, upon oath, that instead of the wicked partners being responsible therefor, it was the Hon. Mr. Mowat himself who had drawn the motion moved by Mr. Harcourt after its subject matter had been discussed at the Council Board more than once by himself and his colleagues! So that instead of being the innocent individual, his actions in the house indicated, and which his friends would no doubt have claimed him to be during the coming campaign, he was, and is, chiefly responsible for the whitewashing of Dowling & Co.—or we should say attempted whitewashing, because the courts when they came to consider this clause of Mr. Mowat's bill, declared that it did not meet the cases in point, and that the person who drew it did not understand the election law.

Now, was or was not Mr. Mowat guilty of "lying" to the House, when he refused to allow a bill to be incorporated with one of his own because it was ex post facto in character, while at that very moment he intended that an ex post facto amendment prepared by himself should be added to this same bill?

Perhaps the Rev. W. Inglis, writer of articles for that most truthful (?) of all Canadian papers, the Globe, and who no doubt values Mr. Mowat's reputation as his own, will kindly inform us when he draws the line between, well, say hypocrisy and lying, and under which of these two headings he places Mr. Mowat's conduct.

THE Globe has an editorial maintaining the correctness of its practice of abusing the judges on every convenient opportunity. It has been observed before now that criminals and their friends are not very fond of judges.

A RACE OF PIGMIES.

Wonderful Discovery Made by an Adventurer in Arizona.

The adventurous narrator had been wandering for some time in the Arizona mountains, hunting, fishing and exploring. He come at last to that portion of the terrific chasm of the Colorado now known as the Marble Canyon. Here, seduced by the wild and grand beauty of the surroundings, he pitched his adventurous camp for some time. One day while on the trail of a deer he noticed some singular indentations in a lofty cliff of marble that overhung the chasm. These indentations presented such a curious appearance to the naked eye that he ceased the pursuit of his game to examine them through his field glasses. What was his astonishment when the glasses revealed regular paths, cut deep in the face of the solid marble. These paths, though deep, were very narrow, having more the look of trenches. All thought of his deer now forgotten, the hunter turned his eager attention to the investigation of his singular discovery.

He had noticed that the paths or branches all tended toward a deep recess situated high up on the face of the cliff. Accordingly he began the ascent of the cliff from the land side, and after an hour's severe toil stood upon the summit of the dizzy eminence. He had marked well the position of the recess in the face of the cliff, and was delighted to find that the descent from the summit was less perpendicular in the direction of the locality he sought than elsewhere. He could even discern a species of platform which seemed to be situated exactly at the mouth of the recess. Scrambling back by the way he had ascended he proceeded to his camp and returned with a long stout rope. Fastening this to the trunk of a storm-beaten pine which stood upon the summit of the cliff, he carefully knotted it a distance of twelve to 15 inches, lowered it over the edge of the precipice and trusted himself to its strength. Hand under hand down he went, swinging over the dizzy and perilous depths of the terrific Marble Canyon. At last his foot touched the rocky platform in front of the recess and he found himself at his goal. And now indeed a singular sight presented itself. In front of him was a miniature dwelling imbedded in the recess. This dwelling was perfect in all its appointments, though those appointments were of the rudest kind. It had certainly been fashioned by human hands, and those hands, though small, had evidently been industrious and guided by intelligence. The marble dwelling boasted doors scarcely fifteen inches in height, and the tiny windows which lighted up the front were scarcely the span of a baby hand. These doors and windows were nothing more than holes in the walls of the dwelling, and through them the various apartments could be seen. There were accommodations, apparently, for some 8 or 10 little persons, and scattered about were many utensils of use and ornament. These things were fashioned from the clear-veined marble, and bore the look of children's toys rather than the household goods of grown folk. The paths which converged to the entrance of the dwelling from all parts of the cliff face were some ten or twelve inches in depth, and must have been cut with enormous labor by men whose stature could not have exceeded a foot.

Our adventurer, after concluding his observations, grasped his rope, and after a perilous ascent again stood upon the summit of the mighty cliff, in whose face the pigmy race of old had hollowed and hewn their dwelling place. Who these little folk were, how they lived and how they died, are secrets buried forever in the mighty tombs of the past. They may have died one by one in the course of nature, or the race, like their prototypes of old, may have been raided and devoured collectively by cranes, a great number of which birds frequent the locality.—San Francisco Call.

THE SALVATIONISTS IN QUEBEC

At Last Permitted to Worship in Peace —Precautions of the Police.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5.—Whether due to the precautions taken by the authorities, the counter attraction offered by the great political meeting in Quebec East, or the prevalnce of a better feeling, the Salvationists got their first patient and successful house here last night, and the city consequently breathes much freer to-day. The service in the Salvation Hall was very largely attended. The street in front was kept clear by police, who were materially helped by the light from the electric lamp put up in the day. Service was conducted by Capt. Simcoe and all the members of the detachment took part in the proceedings, which were wholly in the French language, the audience being also almost wholly French. The Rev. Mr. Matthews and the Rev. Mr. Stobo occupied seats on the platform with the Salvationists. A slight attempt was at one time made by some of the audience to create a disturbance, but it was promptly checked when it was announced that detectives were present to deal with the offenders. As to the meeting all present dispersed quietly and without molestation to their houses. The Police Board held another meeting yesterday afternoon when it was decided to continue every protection possible to the Salvationists during their stay.

A Fortune in the Water.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 5.—Donnelly Bros. have been engaged to raise the sunken propeller Myles. It will take five weeks to do the work. The cost of repairs will be $15,000. The steamer and cargo are worth about $100,000. The cargo was insured for $37,000 in the Phœnix and Continental Companies. Before the accident the boat had been chartered to carry 800 tons of coal from Oswego to Port Arthur. Freight, $150 per ton. She was also booked to load a dangerous cargo at Cleveland for Port Arthur. It would have consisted of 200 barrels of coal oil, powder and a lot of merchandize.

Committed for Trial.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—The inquest on the late Mrs. Ward was concluded this evening. The coroner's jury were divided on the verdict, eight of them being for wilful murder against Dr. Crevier and the other seven being for an open verdict. The French members of the jury voted with the minority. Dr. Crevier was committed to stand his trial at the present term of the Court of Queen's Bench.

NEW CHURCH.—The Baptists of the Scotch Line, Dummer, have purchased a site on Front street, where they intend erecting a church. The corner stone was laid on Tuesday afternoon. It will be framed and veneered with brick, size 30x40, and to cost $1,150. It will be finished in less than two months. Mr. A. Hendren, Lakefield, is the contractor.

THE FLOUR MILL.—The Warsaw flour mill is doing a large business this fall. It turns out a fine quality of flour. The proprietors were very fortunate in the services of so good a miller as Mr. H. Mane.

SUICIDE.—Mrs. Richard Gallagher, Dummer, committed suicide on Monday afternoon by hanging herself in the stable. Deceased was about 32 years of age and leaves a husband and several small children to mourn her loss.

A little child every night used to say in her prayers, "O Lord, give me a new heart." One night her mother noticed that she did not say this and asked why she had omitted it. The little child replied, "Becos, mamma I dot it."

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

Use the Old and Reliable.

Catarrh destroys the senses of smell, taste and hearing, rapidly becomes offensive, and often culminates in consumption and insanity. No matter what stage the disease has advanced to, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will certainly cure it. This preparation is the only sure cure for this malady in the market; yet has many imitators. Others may fail; it never does. Your druggist.

Some Miraculous Results

Have followed the use of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic." It has saved many from becoming bald, and has produced good heads of hair on bald heads where the roots are not all gone. Mothers! Mothers!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

CHAPTER XXIII.

MRS. MEAD RETURNS TO GREYSTONE.

"I know I'm doin' right. Niver could I hold up my head if they got saying it were Judith Mead as helped Michael's girl to roon away and leave her character behind her," said Mrs. Mead to herself as the wagon drove off; and upon a loosened truss of hay she sat, right in the center of the vehicle, staring out of the shadow at the pretty little inn that was dropping behind.

It was eleven o'clock when they arrived at the top of the High street of Greystone.

"This'll do, mister," exclaimed Mrs. Mead, who had no opinion of Johnny as a driver, and was weary of the jolting inflicted on her, and the miserably slow way they made; "ye needn't go no further."

Johnny, however, refused to take any notice of her request. There was an ale house some distance down the street, and not until the wagon was abreast of it did he cry, "Whoa!" Then dropping from his perch, with a trifle of briskness in the action, he came round to the back of the cart, and said, "Ye can get down here if ye loike."

The old woman scramb'ed down as best she could, and Johnny looked on with a grin at her boots. Then correcting his smile as she faced round upon him, he said:

"This here's the Wheatsheaf, and the flavey in the liquor is as foine as though 'twar all roon stoof."

"Ye're welcome to drink as much as iver they'll trust ye with," replied Mrs. Mead tartly.

"Aren't ye goin' to stand summat?" cried the man.

"Yes, half a pint o' vinegar, if ye're good to drink it," answered the old woman.

"Go along, or I'll get ye drownt for a witch," shouted the disappointed Johnny; and off he went, chuckling audibly.

Not ten yards, however, could she go without meeting an acquaintance. Who should this be but old Mrs. Bruff, going to her snuff shop in George street, with her dinner in a paper parcel.

"Good mornin', Mrs. Mead. How are you? 'Tis an age sin I seen ye my way."

"I'm middlin' well, thank 'ee, Mrs. Bruff. As to comin' your way, what hath snuff to say to a lone old cratur' that counts her valley in fardens? The flies, they do tickle, truly. Them and the dogs knows what's good," exclaimed Mrs. Mead, with a glance at the paper parcel. "And doth not the parson say that prosperity draws strange things to it?"

"Ye're allers quizzing, Mrs. Mead. Prosperity, indeed! Five and fourpence was my sivvings last week; scarce three loaves in it—thanks to them wagabone French, as d'e a mussy for them I ain't a man."

"Well, and ye give me no news! That two gossips should roast i' this heat with nothing to say! But they're wonderful liars i' Greystone," said Mrs. Mead.

"News—to thee!" cried Mrs. Bruff, with a ludicrous toss of the head. "Why, here I stand for truth; for, as you say, they're dreadful liars i' Greystone."

"The truth o' what?"

"But you know!" exclaimed Mrs. Bruff, looking at her old companion with absurd incredulity in her face.

"I do not know," replied Mrs. Mead, with the eagerness of a born gossip. "I am this minute arrived from Winston, and if anything hath happ'd I'm as strange to it as a unborn infant."

"Why, then," said Mrs. Bruff, speaking slowly, and with evident sense of superiority, "it's everywheres towd that Mike Strangfield's wench hath run away for shame o' the wrong done her by Dr. Shaw's son. But that's not it, neither. Not twenty minutes since, I met Deacon Skelton, who says to me, 'Is it true, Mrs. Bruff, that my brother Strangfield is dead?' 'The Lord forbid,' I says. 'I hope not, Mr. Skelton.' 'I'm afeard he is, then,' he says. 'Jim Mason,' he says, him as keeps the Blue Posteses, had the news from Tom Raffles, as is cousin to the Strangfields' servint; Polly her name is. She was sent for the doctor, but came fust in fright to her mother—who's kept her bed sin' April, poor wretch—an' says that Strangfield's fell down in a fit, and's a dead man.' 'Lord bless me, sir!' says I."

"That's news indeed!" exclaimed Mrs. Mead, very pale, and catching up her dress. "If it's true, it's as strange a wisitation as any that iver I read of in Holy Writ. Good-by to ye. You've put me in a hurry, Mrs. Bruff. Lord save us! what wonderful things happen in this life!"

She was limping rapidly away before Mrs. Bruff could return her farewell.

She was too experienced a gossip herself to believe in the accuracy of any story related; but then, likewise, she well knew that almost never does any story get abroad without foundation. They may say there's a flame where there is only a spark; but be sure there is fire of some kind.

Hastily down the street she went. Arrived at her home, she washed her face, brushed her hair, dusted her bonnet and shoes, and, glancing at the cupboard, to make sure of a bit of dinner to be cooked on her return, she sallied forth once more, and walked direct to Strangfield's house.

No outward and visible sign there was of anything being amiss.

Mrs. Mead knocked softly, and, with uneasiness bred in her by the dislike bore her by the Strangfields, kept herself close, that she might not be spied by any sideways glance from the window. No one responding, she knocked again loudly, and presently the door was opened by Mrs. Strangfield herself.

The desolate white and grief of the poor woman's face was indeed something heart moving to behold. The utter forlornness of the eyes, the piteous droop of the mouth, the dishevelment of hair and attire, which into grief throws a violent dramatic element, were beyond expression. She looked at Mrs. Mead, while the old lady bobbed a courtesy, as a person to whom everything that offers has a meaning cruelly hard to master.

"God forbid, mistress," said Mrs. Mead, "ye should think I am come out of evil curiosity. They say the deacon hath been stricken ill, and positively would I know this from one who hath the truth."

"Why do you come here for news? This is a house of mourning now. I am a desolate, lonely woman. Heaven help me," replied Mrs. Strangfield in a broken voice.

"So, indeed, ye be, if it is only for your daughter' leavin' ye," said Mrs. Mead, with deep compassion. "But what hath happ'd to the deacon? For the Lord's sake let me hear a of you, ma'am!"

"He hath been struck with paralysis, and lies dying and calling for his daughter. That is the truth. And now must I go to him, for your knock has brought me from his bed, and the maid is away on an errand, and I am alone in the house."

She spoke with stolidity of exhausted grief, and was stepping back to close the door.

"Stay!" cried Mrs. Mead, "I bring thee news of thy child."

The mother wheeled round with a shriek, and with both hands seized her arm.

"What of her? Is she living?"

"Living and well. Not an hour ago I left her."

Mrs. Strangfield had no words. The sudden dispersion of the fears that had torn her heart was a moral convulsion that deprived her of speech. She stood with her fingers clutching hard the old woman's arm. Then incoherently she spoke.

"Sweet girl! How hath she been wronged! My pretty one! Alive, indeed, and I have been praying for thee. Oh, what a sorrow to befall the pure in heart! God forgive us!"

She drooped and leaned toward Mrs. Mead, and brought up the old hand to her mouth and kissed it, weeping the while such tears as only mothers weep.

"Alive and well!" she burst out again. "Dear heart, to bring me such good tidings! Come in, come in! God is good to send thee! Dear heart, what joy you give me!"

With drops trickling down her furrowed cheek, Mrs. Mead suffered herself to be drawn into the house by the passionate mother.

"Quick, now, dear friend," cried Mrs. Strangfield, feverishly. "Tell me where my girl is! Is she in Greystone?— Oh, my poor heart!"

"She is at Winston, at the Greyhound there, and you mun go and fetch her, and tell her what blow hath fallen on thee, or she will not retoorn. Oh, she is bitter—and rightly so!" quavered the old woman, in a voice strangely composed of indignation and sympathy. "Niver, she swears, will she come to her home again, to be despised and thought vilely of. For her dying father she may come—but you must fetch her, mistress."

ACCIDENT.—W. Carley, a young blacksmith employed in Sinclair's blacksmith shop, met with an accident Tuesday morning which caused him considerable alarm but which has resulted less serious than at first anticipated. In shoeing Richard Sutton's stallion he was struck lightly on the back by the horse in raising his foot. The blow although slight had the effect of paralyzing the lower part of the body. He was removed to Mr. Sinclair's house and medical aid summoned. An examination show the blow had been received close to the spine, and although slight was sufficient to produce a state of semi-paralysis. The young man has so far recovered as to able to move around on crutches.—Post.

Execution in Mexico.

Mr. John Bright claims the right of individual judgment against the political club doctrine that wherever the leader of a party goes the whole party is bound to follow.

A decree nisi has been granted in the suit of Lady Anna Aylmer against Sir Arthur Aylmer, 28 years of age, who deserted his wife and ran off to America with a pretty flower girl known by the pseudonym of "Rocky."

Railway construction is going ahead rapidly in Manitoba. The Manitoba and South-Western branch of the C. P. R. was opened on Thursday to Deloraine, and track-laying was begun on the Hudson's Bay Railway. Rails are being laid on the Manitoba and North-Western at the rate of a mile a day.

The North-West Council has completed the redistribution of seats in the Territories, Assiniboia being allotted thirteen members, Saskatchewan four, and Alberta eight. The Dominion Government will be petitioned immediately to recognize the territory as a Province and admit it into Confederation.

WIT AND WISDOM.

AN enthusiastis Indiana editor wrote:—"The battle is now opened." But, alas! the intelligent compositor spelt "battle" with "o," and his readers say they have suspected it all along.

"Mr. Miller," said a parsimonious housewife to a visitor, "will ye tak' an egg to your breakfast this morning?" "Ou, ay Mrs. Tamson," replied Mr. Millar, "I'm aye glad o' ane when I canna get twa."

Boots:—"If you plaze, are ye the gentleman that wanted calling to catch the five o'clock train?" Sleepy Traveller:—"All right, will be down directly." Boots:—"Don't be hurr'in yerself. I thought I'd just knock yer up to tell yer—it's too late!"

A little girl lately brought back a book to a librarian, with the following message:—"John sent me wi' this book, and he wants the next yin." "And who is John?" questioned the man of books, to which the girl readily replied," Oh, he's a wee better the day, thenks."

A witty Glasgow man was dining at a Highland hotel during the period when the table was not so bountiful as it might have been. A friend remarked:—"Is not this a magnificent hotel." "Yes," was the dry rejoinder," but I would like to see less gilding and more carving."

Beggar:—"Will you please give me sixpence, sir? I'm on my way home to die." Gentleman (handing him the money):—"I don't mind giving you sixpence for so worthy a purpose as that, but your breath smells horrible of whisky." "I know it does, sir. Whisky's what's killing me."

A newspaper is like a pretty woman in many a respect. To be perfect it must be the embodiment of many types; its form is made up, it is always chaste, although sometimes inclined to be giddy. It enjoys a good press, the more rapid the better. It has a weakness for gossip, talks a good deal, can stand some praise, and is awfully proud of an new dress.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1886.

JAPAN AND ITS PEOPLE.

THE ORIENTAL NATION WITH WESTERN INSTITUTIONS.

The New Era of Progressiveness in Japan—Its Arts, Educational Establishments, and Religions—Mr. Takahashi's Opinions.

Mr. Takahashi, the interpreter now with the Japanese Colony, is a young man of about 25 years of age and of medium size. He was educated at the Imperial College, Tokio, where among other branches of education he acquired the use of the English language. He speaks it with correctness, has a very good vocabulary, but like everyone else, he is sometimes at a loss to express his ideas in the way he would wish. It is just about fourteen months since he came to America, during which time he has visited nearly all of the great cities.

On Friday evening he was interviewed at the Grand Central Hotel by the REVIEW reporter, when he willingly gave the following information regarding his own country.

REPORTER—In one of your lectures, Mr. Takahashi, you said something of the progress made by your countrymen in arts and civilization during the past few years. To what do you attribute this sudden awakening?

MR. TAKAHASHI — Well, to commence with, there was a system of feudalism existing in Japan for about 300 previous to 1868. This system of tenure became obnoxious to the people all over the land; especially to the people in the south. Pamplets were written and diffused among the people till he by force of popular sentiment the system was overthrown. Until 1868, too, for three hundred years before it, the Mikado reigned simply as a figurehead, the centering in the Shogun, or Military ruler. When the agitation arose against the feudal lords, the Imperialists took advantage of it to restore the real power to the Mikado. There was thus then these two parties opposing each other. At this juncture a third question came up; that of opening the empire for trade with outside nations. The Feudalists supported it and though the Imperialists really shrank from it, the people so strongly favored it that the Imperialists rom a fear of being defeated were compelled to support the commercial platform. At last the Imperialists prevailed, and the Shogun handed over his power to the Mikado. This transfer was not made, however, without several commotions in different parts of the Empire. It took five years to quell these commotions and risings as they cropped up, and it took five years more to establish the Government on different lines. The Samurai, or middle class, supply the chief element in the new Government. While this was going on the foundations of new institutions were being laid; new theories were brought into practice, and the empire was opened to foreign commerce. As you will see, the real point of our advancement was the year 1877-8, as it took from 1868 to settle down to a new state of things. The Government, as now composed, is the concentration of the intellectuality and culture of the Empire. Since 1868 a large number of students and travellers have left Japan, to bring back with them descriptions of the social conditions of western nations. The students were educated in foreign universities, and thus learned arts, sciences and customs unknown to our people. What these people narrated was eagerly listened to, and those who gave most information were held in the highest esteem by the Government. Modern were introduced—railways and telegraphs, the telephone, the postal system, street cars, and an educational system was established. At present we have fifteen lines of railway, with a total length of 600 miles. You see our island is long and narrow and most of the lines are built across the island. The Government built and controls most of the railway system. The telegraph, as will the postal system, is under the control of the Government. These have been of great utility and the way they are managed is highly satisfactory. The electric light is not yet brought into general use throughout Japen. They are used only on the Government docks, in large commercial establishments, etc. Telephones, too, are not yet fully installed.

THE ARMY AND NAVY.

Our standing army numbers 60,000 men and our navy thirty-six vessels including a number of ironclads. Our commercial navy is increasing with marvelous rapidity. The old junks are going out of use and new steam vessels are now used altogether.

THE REPORTER—Your soldiers have a good reputation.

MR. TAKAHASHI—Yes; we take pride in saying that we were never conquered, though China tried it several times. At one time she sent an army against us which was repelled by our army. Again she sent a great fleet with thousands of soldiers, but it met a similar fate as the Armada which was sent against England.

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

I was going to tell you something about our educational system. It is taken from the German method. The lowest grade is the common school and all children are obliged to attend at the age of six. After about three years training they enter the Grammer school. Spending three years more entrance is generally gained to the High or Middle school. The next graduation is to the colleges and the highest educational establishment is the University. Here students are trained for the professions, law and medics, and the languages and sciences are taught. The law student has to pass an examination in English, French and German, as well as in legal learning. The medical student is obliged to pass his examination in German and either Greek or Latin only.

The REPORTER—Which is the largest university in Japan?

Mr. TAKAHASI—The Imperial University, Tokio, is the largest. The students attending it number 1,500.

JAPANESE RELIGIONS.

REPORTER—Is Christianity keeping pace with the civil progress in Japan?

Mr. TAKAHASHI—Christianity is well received now; but it was looked upon with suspicion for a long time. About 300 years ago the Portugese introduced Christianity, the Jesuits being the agents. It made rapid progress for some time. Churches by hundreds could be counted over the land. But a plot to overthrow the Government was discovered among the Christians. The Jesuits were driven out, and the greater part of the 280,000 Christians were massacred. The Dutch, by their antipathy to the Jesuits, were received into favor, and they and the Chinese were the only peoples permitted to trade with Japan until of late years. The English, French and Russians applied for admission, but it was not till Commodore Perry, of the United States of America, came that commercial treaties were negociated. Since 1868 all nationalities are received and all Christian missionaries are kindly treated. The Christian rebellion, though, for a long time, caused the native people to mistrust them. They had an idea that these Christian missioneries were sent to survey the country and lay out plans for conquering the island. The Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Congregationalists, Church of England, and Baptist bodies are making good progress and are all working hard. When I say that these religious bodies are making good progress, I will ask you to remember that this progress is chiefly among the lower classes. They are easily won and easily won back to the old form of worship. They appear to believe anything. The cultured people look down with disdain upon their credulity and don't appear inclined to believe anything. The German philosophies are received by them. All students who wish to call themselves smart fellows read the works of Herbert Spencer. Huxley and Darwin are also favorite authors among them. Bain is also widely read.

REPORTER—Is Shintoism on the wane?

Mr. TAKAHASHI—Among the lower classes only is this ancestral worship indulged in. Buddhism is also in about the same condition.

DRESS.

In reply to an enquiry as to dress, Mr. Takahashi said that the Japanese were misrepresented. The dresses used in the opera Mikado was an old style, used in the time of the Shogunate. The Mikado, nobles, and the cultured class, all wore European dress. The common people wore skirts still, however.

ONE OF THE CUSTOMS.

REPORTER—What about Japanese weddings?

Mr. TAKAHASHI (with a smile)—I can't give you an accurate description, as I haven't had experience in that direction yet. As civil authority, the Nakote goes from the house of the groom to the house of the bridegroom, makes all the arrangements, and on the wedding day takes the bride to the grooms house. The chief ceremony, then, is the drinking of wine out of a glass having three bowls. The bride drinks first, then the groom, and then the bride. This is repeated three times, each drinking three thnes three. The marriage is then registered at the Kugasho office.

MUSIC.

Our music, Mr. Takahashi said, is said to be discordant at first to Europeans. One of our professors at the University, however, has told me that it was formed on a correct theoretical basis. He illustrated it in this way. He said: "You go into a Japanese room. The place has a gloomy and confused appearance, owing to the manner of decoration. A table will be here and another there, while at first there will appear no uniformity at all. After a while, however, some agreements will be discovered, and on looking closer everything is observed to be arranged in what might be called subdued taste. It is so with your music. It appears to lack harmony and euphony, but when acquainted with it it possesses a peculiar charm."

PAINTING.

The REPORTER—Has the recent changes effected your painting?

Mr. TAKAHASHI—It has. There is now what is called the Western school. Formerly our artists aim was to collect all the beauties of natural flowers, rejecting what they considered ungainly. These they would combine into a beautiful flower, though such a one would never be seen in the natural state. It was a mixture of the natural and the ideal. The new school has now introduced perspective and shading, what was unknown in Japan before.

In conclusion Mr. Takahashi looked forward to a bright future for his native land. The population has increased 1,000,000 since the last census 5 years ago and everything else seems to show like advancement.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christain Temperance Union will be held on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Stewart Rogers.

Mr. Stuart Rogers, the well known impersonator and elocutionist, gave one of his highly interesting entertainments in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday night. the hall was well filled The programme presented though being almost the same as that given last year, possessed unflagging interest to all. The first part of the programme consisted of dramatic and humoureus recitations. One in particular, "Over the Hills to the Poor House" was excellently given. The audience was moved to laughter and sadness in succession. Mr. Rogers was peculiarly happy in his facial representations of various characters. For instance in his recitation of "Darius Green and his flying machine," after a new version he by the mere play of his features aided by the changes of voice brought before his audience not only Darius, but his brothers, all different but all boys. Miss Amarithia in relating her experience about the Centennial kept the people in a continous agitation of pleasure, while but one of her calm looks while making a pause was sufficient to participate the pent up merriment into roars of laughter. Gus Fitzfoodle was another character well portrayed. In fact all of these characters sketches were very true. Mr. Rogers concluded, after an interval for preparation, with a presentation of Mr. Gladstone while delivering a speech in the House of Commons. His voice, delivery and attitude were given to the life. The make-up to represent the G. O. M. was perfect, and as he walked off the stage when seen in profile it might have been imagined that Gladstone was there in person.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

THE REMEDY:

The Peterborough Mattrass Company

CANDIDATES SELECTED

BY THE CONSERVATIVES FOR THE COMMONS AND LEGISLATURE.

Mr. James Stevenson for the Commons and Mr. John Carnegie for the Legislature—Resolution of Regret that Mr. Hilliard Retires.

A convention of the Liberal Conservatives of West Peterborough was held in the market building on Saturday afternoon. It was largely attended by representative men from all parts of the riding. Among those present were Messrs. James Stevenson, W. H. Moore, A. P. Poussette, Q. C., Thomas Kelly, John McClelland, Dr. Kincaid, Andrew McNeil, James Kendry, John Sawers, John Corkery, Dr. Geo. Burnham, Joseph Walton, W. H. Robertson, John Green, E. J. Toker, H. LeBrun, J. H. Burnham, A. L. Davis, Charles Porter, Thos. McGrath, M. McFadden, W. H. Hill, Wm. Snyder, Wm. Langford, C. McGrath, R. W. Muncaster, Wm. Croft, T. M. D. Croly, Geo. W. Hall, H. Owens, Thos. Rutherford, T. Armstrong, H. A. Hammond, R. Rowe, W. H. Wrighton, John O'Meara, Geo. Webber, C. Crevier, Jas. Stewart, John Doherty, John Bell, T. Fitzgerald, John Lynch, Daniel Cushing, Angus Williams, Solomon Borette, Peter Goyette, Fred. Poulette, Clem Guerin, Jos. Picard, Ben. Green, John J. Bennett, J. Bennett, sr., R. A. Morrow, Matthew Johnston, Geo. W. Hatton, Joseph Forster, C. Wallis, George Scott, William Collins, Wm. Graham, E. Fitzgerald, John Carnegie, Thos. E. Bell, Thos. Telford, R. C. trickland, W. McKee, Leon Dion, T. M. Willan, R. S. Cook, and many others.

Mr. James Stevenson (Mayor of Peterborough), President of the Association, took the chair, and Mr. Geo. W. Hatton, Secretary, occupied a seat on the platform.

The CHAIRMAN said that after a consultation it had been deemed advisable to call a meeting of the Conservatives of West Peterborough to select candidates for the coming contests. In the ordinary course of events the elections must take place before long, and people throughout the country were preparing for them, as it was always well to be prepared. The prospects for the success of the Conservative party were favorable, as the Government had carefully administered the affairs of the country. If they looked back eight years they would see what the Administration had done for the country. They had constructed a railway across the continent on Canadian soil, and there was not a man present but could say that the prospects were better. The Government had given them protection and they could not allow it to be taken away. They had been told that the duties were too heavy. That was a mistake. They could go to the other side of the lines and they would pay as much for a machine as they would here, and as much for a ton of coal with the freight added. The price of articles principally used by farmers were as high or higher on the other side than they were in Canada. The lock works was an instance of the benefits of protection. When that factory was started here there was none of the kind in Canada, and as soon as it was started the Americans put down prices 20 per cent. to try to drive them out. There was no danger of them being driven out. Protection was a benefit in every way. They did not pay a cent more for sugar or tea, and with the trans-continental railway tea could be brought in cheaper. On coal the Americans gave Canadians a rebate on account of the duty, and it was the same with other things. The manufacturers on the other side paid the duty. If the duty were taken of coal they would have to pay the same price for it and sell it for the same. As soon as they began to manufacture in Canada down came United States prices to overcome the duty and to try to compete with the Canadians. This was a very important matter for the country. Their opponents, especially Sir Richard Cartwright, still protested against protection, but they must uphold that policy. They could not buy in the cheapest in the dearest market because the United States put a duty on articles that Canada exported. As soon as Canadian manufacturers got fairly established they could make everything needed here. They should protect Canadian industries and build up their own town. He had for years seen the greater part of manufactured articles used here brought from the States, and had bought stoves there when in that business. Now they were made at their doors. One factory had brought from the United States to Peterborough eighteen families and 75 hands. Such increases were important to Peterborough. He was glad to see that some leading Reformers in Peterborough approved of protection, although opposed to it four years ago, and he hoped that more Reformers would come to be of the same opinion. He then said that the election of officers for the next year would be in order, as the present year was nearly closed.

Mr. CARNEGIE moved, seconded by Mr. MORROW,—That, as the constitution provided for the election of officers at the annual meeting in January, the election be deferred till then.—Carried

The CHAIRMAN read the notice issued calling the meeting for the selection of candidates.

Mr. W. H. MOORE said that if they accepted Grit authority the elections would take place soon. At any rate it would be advisable to nominate candidates. For various reasons it would not be wise to defer the selection and he hoped that the convention would be unanimous. They owed much to Mr. Carnegie, their representative in the Ontario Legislature, for the part he had taken in that House. He had met unscrupulous opponents, and had represented them well. They should place on record their appreciation of his services, as he richly deserved a mark of their regard and appreciation. He moved, seconded by Mr. Kelly, the following resolution:—

"That this gathering of Liberal Conservatives of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough wishes to express to John Carnegie, Esq., their appreciation of the course pursued by him during the period of his representation of the West Riding in the Local House.

"To express also their continued confidence in his ability to take as formerly a leading and active part in all matters pretaining to the good and just government of the Province."

Mr POUSSETTE said that he had no doubt that there would not be a disentient voice in regard to this resolution. All Liberal Conservatives had watched with much pleasure the manner in which Mr. Carnegie had regarded their interests. He had done all that could be done in opposing the bad measures of the Mowat Government, which, unfortunately, were numerous. He looked confidently forward to that Government being replaced after the next election.

The motion was carried unamlously amid applause.

Mr. CARNEGIE returned thanks. They did not need to be told that he appreciated the motion most highly. Next to having his own approval, he desired that of his friends who had sent him to the Legislature, and he was pleased to receive this expression of approval.

Mr. POUSSETTE moved the following resolution, seconded by Mr. JOHN GREEN:—

"That this meeting of Liberal Conservatives hereby tenders to Mr. George Hilliard their warmest thanks for the manner in which he has discharged the duties devolving upon him, as the representative of the West Riding of Peterborough in the House of Commons, during the past and present Parliaments; and that it further desires to express its sincere regret, that Mr. Hilliard's repeatedly expressed determination to withdraw from the representation of the Riding at the close of the present Parliament leaves us no alternative but to proceed to the selection of another candidate, to represent us in the coming contest."

It was needless for him, he said, to go over the whole of Mr. Hilliard's career. It would be generally admitted on all hands that he had represented them satisfactorily, and all would agree in expressing regret that he had decided to withdraw from the representation of the riding.

Mr. GEO. W. HATTON, Secretary, said that Mr. Hilliard, when leaving for Montreal on the previous evening, had told him that he did not desire to a candidate again, and that he was not a candidate for the nomination.

Mr. KENDRY hoped that Mr. Hilliard would be persuaded to reconsider his determination.

Mr. CARNEGIE said that Mr. Hilliard had on the previous evening given him to understand that he did not wish to be a candidate again.

The motion was adopted.

Dr. KINCAID wished the nomination deferred until Mr. Hilliard was seen again. He had upheld their interests well in the past. He was a man of unsullied honor and spotless reputation, and he did not wish another chosen until he had the most positive assurance that Mr. Hilliard would not again be a candidate.

Mr. WALTON and others said that Mr. Hilliard had informed them of his desire not to be brought before the Convention as a candidate.

Mr. WM. COLLINS moved that Mr. James Stevenson, Mayor of Peterborough, be selected as the Conservative candidate for the coming election as a representative of West Peterborough in the House of Commons.

Mr. JOHN CORKERY seconded the motion.

Mr. MOORE saw no chance of getting Mr. Hilliard to be a candidate, on account of the fact that he had declared to the officers of the Association his intention of withdrawing. He had the highest respect for Mr. Hilliard, but knowing Mr. Hilliard's feelings as he did, he thought it would be inadvisable to delay the nomination for the purpose of hearing again from him. Mr. Stevenson was a strong candidate, would be a good representative, and if selected and accepted would undoubtedly be elected.

Mr. WILLAN and Mr. KENDRY suggested the appointment of a deputation to ascertain whether Mr. Hilliard could not be induced to accept the nomination.

Dr. KINCAID moved, seconded by Mr. KENDRY, that a deputation be appointed for that purpose.

After further discussion Mr. Kendry withdrew his name as seconder of Dr Kincaid's amendment, and Mr. Wm. Graham substituted his.

Mr. CARNEGIE moved in amendent, seconded by Mr. T. E. BELL, that a committee consisting of representatives from each part of the riding, be appointed to select a candidate.

Mr. TOKER argued the withdrawal of the amendments, as Mr. Hilliard had stated positively that he would not be a candidate, and it was not advisable to defer the selection of a candidate.

Mr. GRAHAM withdrew his name from the amendment, and Mr. Carnegie withdrew his amendment.

Mr. COLLINS' motion, that Mr. Stevenson be selected as the candidate for the Commons, was carried unaminously.

A deputation was appointed to acquaint Mr. Stevenson of the fact that he was selected as the candidate.

Mr. A. MCNEIL moved that Mr. John Carnegie, the present representative, be the Conservative candidate at the next election for the representation of West Peterborough in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. T. RUTHERFORD seconded the motion.

The motion was unanimously adopted with cheers.

Mr. CARNEGIE said that he was obliged to the meeting for re-nominating him. Some of his friends were very sanguine of success at the next election, but he believed it was always well to put in all the votes obtainable. He was glad to have the approval of his course that this resolution implied.

The deputation at this point arrived accompanied by Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. POUSSETTE tendered Mr. Stevenson the unanimous nomination of the convention for the next election for the House of Commons, and hoped he would accept.

Mr. STEVENSON thanked them for the honor, but did not see how he could accept, on account of his business interests. It was not his wish to be a candidate. If they had chosen someone else he would have been glad and would have done all he could to elect him. It would be a sacrifice for him to leave his business, and if he did accept the nomination and was elected he would feel bound to give due attention to Parliamentary duties. He had hoped that Mr. Hilliard would have been induced to stand, and he regretted that he had not consented to do so. He would not say no to the nomination, but he could not at present consent to say yes. (Voices—Accept, accept.) He would say this, that he would not allow the election to go by default, but did not desire to say more now. (Renewed cries of "Accept.") Well, it is difficult to refuse.

This was taken by the meeting as an acceptance of the nomination.

The Convention adjourned with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Carnegie, and Sir John Macdonald.

"Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight, Make me a child again, just for to-night;"

is the exclamation, in thought, of many a man who has suffered through a long life from some distressing disease that he might have cured with a few bottles of medicine like Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which cures all blood and skin diseases, as well as consumption or scrofula of the lungs. If he were "a child again," he would know enough to have a bottle of the Discovery "to-night," and in old age would not implore Father Time to "fly backward" for his special benefit. Hence, "Be wise to-day, 'tis madness to defer." Get a bottle of the nearest druggist,

WEST PETERBOROUGH.

THE choice of Conservative candidates for the representation of West Peterborough in the House of Commons and the Provincial Legislature will give general satisfaction to the friends of "Union and Progress." Both are so well known that every elector is acquainted with their qualifications. Mr. Carnegie's course in the House is on record, and that it has given satisfaction is shown by his re-nomination. Mr. Stevenson, if yet untried as a legislator, has given proof of his fitness for such duties by the able manner in which he has filled the important and onerous positions of Chairman of the Board of Education Chairman of the Town Trust Commissioners and Mayor of Peterborough.

The appreciation of the services of Mr. Hilliard was conclusively shown by the vote expressing approbation of his parliamentary course, and by the general regret that he would no longer allow himself to be put in nomination. It was cordially recognized that in serving the constituency for two terms at the cost of much personal inconvenience and considerable sacrifice, he had already established a strong claim to the gratitude of the people of West Peterborough, and that his withdrawal was from no lack of public spirit.

MR. BLAKE AND HIS FORGERIES.

WE have turned over some hundred pages of the official reports of the Indian officers in the Northwest, so that we might ascertain for ourselves the extent of the disgraceful falsifications recently uttered by Mr. Blake. As, however, Mr. Blake has since with brazen effrontery excused himself in a public speech by pleading innocence because he obtained the bulk of these vile forgeries from Mr. Cameron, of Huron, we need not trouble our readers with all the details. We will only give one or two characteristic specimens.

Messrs. Blake and Cameron, par nobile fratrum, fraudulently strike out, from the middle of a sentence they quote, the words that show that some Indians, who were in distress for want of provisions, were on an unsuccessful hunting expedition, and they also omit the next sentence stating that immediate relief was given. This forged alteration of a public document was perpetrated with the view of conveying the false idea that Indians on their reserve were left to starve.

Again Messrs. Blake and Cameron quote a report that some flour supplied to Indians was only 98 lbs. to the bag, and of inferior quality, omitting the following words, showing that the agent's supply having become exhausted, he had been obliged to procure the best flour he could from the local dealers. Thus by fraudulently doctoring the report they endeavor to make an outrage of the fact that for want of choicer food the poor Indians were forced to be contented with that which was provided for and used by the white settlers.

Again they speak of sickness for want of fresh meat, stopping in the very middle of the sentence which ends "as they seldom hunt now." In the place of this they substitute a forgery about salt pork being death to the Indian.

Again in an account of some deaths of Indians, they omit the statement that consumption was the disease, and forge the lying addition that starvation was the cause.

And so their villainous work goes on, each of their pretended quotations being thus fraudulently manipulated, by dishonest mutilations, forged additions, or omissions of material statements, so as to give a meaning the very opposite to that conveyed in the documents themselves.

And the diabolical object of these vile crimes is to rob honest, zealous officials of their good name, to slander our country, which has treated the Indians with a generosity never before in the history of the world shown to aborigines by any civilized people, and to excite discontent and hatred through these falsehoods.

And Mr. Blake thinks he can shuffle out of this black disgrace by laying the blame on Mr. Cameron of Huron. As if he did not know that Mr. Cameron was an habitual liar, who had been exposed over and over again. Mr. Blake assumes to leave the defence of their joint iniquity to Mr. Cameron, and says:—

"I have neither the time, nor the right, nor the means, nor the inclination, to enter into that controversy."

What, not the "right" to verify such startling statements taken from such a worse than doubtful channel. Not his "inclination" to turn over a few leaves to see whether he was telling the truth when, with the cold blooded object of luring a few votes, he was villifying his country and better men than himself. Not the "time" or "means" to look into the evidence on which he he had uttered such foul slanders as these:—

"Now, Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, the Indian question is a large one, with several branches. It includes the questions of bad appointments, of official neglect, incompetency, and tyranny, of wanton extravagance, of fraud, of unfit and inadequate supplies, of breach of agreement, of gross immorality on the part of Government officers and of starvation."

Mr. Blake, when uttering these atrocious calumnies, knew that he was speaking falsely. If he could have pointed out one case of a treaty or other agreement violated in the smallest particular would he not have laid all the facts before the House? If he could find one dishonest or immoral Indian agent would he not make stump after stump ring with his name? He cannot do so, he knows there is no foundation for his false charges, and he dare not particularize them, but makes them vaguely general that he may avoid exposure and individual resentment.

It is not a case of straining the meaning of a few sentences or misrepresenting a few official acts for the sake of making political capital, but it is a systematic attempt to disgrace Canada, its people and its officials by deliberately holding us up to the eyes of the world as adopting a policy of outrage and cruelty to the Indians when in truth they have been treated, if anything, too generously.

In turning over the official reports (as Mr. Blake would have done if he had possessed one spark of honesty) we are filled with admiration at the liberal treatment of the Indians; the wisdom, zeal and perserverence with which the officials have looked after their best interests and encouraged their improvement, and happily the astonishing success with which the good work has been rewarded. In report after report we learn how the distress of tribes, suffering from the destruction of game, had been alleviated without any strict regard to treaty rights thus enormously exceeded. We read how patiently and kindly they have been induced to settle down, have been taught and encouraged to farm, and aided in every possible way, till in spite of some temporary failures, many bands are now self-supporting and prosperous. We note too how they are guarded with all possible care against disturbing influences, against the white men who would sell whisky to them, against immoral traffic, against the evil effects upon them of hanging round the towns and posts. Indeed the few unsatisfactory cases (except the transient leading away of some bands by the incitements of Riel and other allies of Mr. Blake) are almost wholly those of bands within easy reach of towns, and therefore more exposed to the temptations which, unfortunately, are never wholly wanting when the fringe of the wave of civilization first comes in contact with the savage. But, on the whole, report after report shows steady improvement, and, under all the circumstances, a most extraordinarily rapid advance.

Those who have spent themselves in carrying out this work, those among them who have even died at the post of duty, deserve something better than to be basely assailed by such vile weapons as falsification, misrepresentation and forgery, wielded by one whose boasted serenity of soul makes him utterly indifferent to their unmerited wrongs, if by traducing them he can only succeed in securing a few votes to aid him in his depraved ambition.

REVIEWS.

CENTURY.—The current number of the Century Magazine has the opening chapters of a work which will render this magazine indispensible to all who wish to be thoroughly informed on the history of this continent. It is "The Life of Lincoln," by J. C. Nicolay and Col. Hay, the private secretaries of the great President. They have spent years in acquiring and arranging their information, and this instalment, dealing with the early history of the Lincoln family, shows how thoroughly they have done their work. Among the numerous illustrations is an excellent portrait of Lincoln, with a fac simile of part of the MS. of Lowell's Commemoration Ode endorsed on it. "Machine politics in New York City" is replete with interesting information, and there is a lesson in it for Canada. Col. Anchmuty in "The need of Trade Schools," deals intelligently with a subject which is of growing importance to all civilized communities, but more particularly to the younger ones. In "Old Chelsea" Dr. Morin takes us back to the past in a very pleasing gossiping paper. Dr. C. Waldstein has a very interesting article tracing the strange connection of works of art in Ephesus, the city of Diana, and in the North of Gaul, a curious link of ancient history, sacred and profane. The civil war articles, so marked a feature of the Century, are continued, referring particularly to Gettysburg. "Topics of the Time" and "Open Letters" deal with many subjects of the day with much freshness and vigor. Howell's novel, "The Minister's Charge," is developing naturally, but with startling situations vividly described. A new serial by Stockton, "The Hundredth Man," has all the flavour of that eccentric writer. Some very lively tales and excellent verses complete an unexceptionable number.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

REFORM MERCY.

The Globe says of Sir John Macdonald that he "gratified Mr. Bowell's leiges by giving them the blood of an insane political prisoner, who not only the Regina jury, but the press of the whole civilized world, had strongly recommended to mercy." From which we are irresistibly led to conclude either that the Globe does not belong to the press, or that Canada is outside the civilized world. There were few presses in Ontario which recommended Riel to mercy, and the Globe was not of the number. From the first to the last of the Northwest business the Globe never published a single line of editorial asking mercy for Riel, while it had many the effect that he ought to be hanged. It must think that its readers have no memories.—Toronto News (Indef.)

MANCHESTER ALWAYS PROTECTIONIST.

The English Liberals will be startled much more than the Canadian Liberals by hearing that at Manchester, the cradle of the Free Trade movement, the Chamber of Commerce has voted down a resolution looking toward protection by a majority of only one. In this, however, Manchester is not the country. When there was a question of a tax on breadstuffs Manchester, a consumer of these, naturally went for free trade. Now that the question is one of protecting manufactures, Manchester may possibly go for protection, but those who favored protection of breadstuffs, namely, the rural votes, will hardly, unless caught by some cheap sop like the American wool tax, support this measure.—Montreal Witness (Reform Free Trader).

THE FIJI ISLANDS.

Their People Dying Out With Unabated Rapidity.

The student of problem of races can, perhaps, find few spots more worthy of careful consideration than the Fiji Islands, for the reason that here, as nowhere else in its Empire, the conduct of the British Government is regulated by the highest regard for the moral and material welfare of the natives. The laws made for them are conformed as closely as possible to the customs and traditions of their old isolated life; grievous wrongs under which they suffered from their chiefs and early white settlers have been righted, and the European planters and merchants have been greatly hampered in their race for wealth by the care exercised by the Government to prevent abuses of the islanders. It is doubly melancholy, then, to hear that, despite this solicitous care, the natives of Fiji are gradually becoming extinguished. Out of a population of 110,000 in 1884, it is said that there were 4,052 more deaths than births, and the ratio of mortality last year was even greater. The truth of the statement is apparently not denied, though it is made with the explicit purpose of proving the Government's policy to be at fault, in that it subjects the people to virtual slavery under tyrannical and luxury loving chiefs. This theory, however, takes no notice of the notorious fact, proven by experience, that the only alternative is a virtual slavery to the planters that has been still more deadly in its consequences. The experience of Fiji is unhappily the experience of savagery everywhere when it touches Christian civilization, and it is only conspicuous here because of the exceptional treatment it has received Must it be confessed, then, that not even a strong Government, doing its best to protect the weak from vicious influences, and setting humanity above gain, can save the savage? Must Christianity and death go hand in hand to him in spite of the most earnest efforts in his behalf? Or are we, after all, approaching him in the wrong direction and in blind ignorance of his real needs and capabilities?—Providence Journal.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from proprietary medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the ourden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and the German Syrup for cough and lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size. d84

VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM.

THE MANUFACTURING AND OTHER INDUSTRIES WITHIN ITS BORDERS.

The Churches, Schools and Municipal Buildings—Park and Places for Recreation—Railway and Steamboat Communication.

In giving notices, historical and descriptive, of the villages of the county, the REVIEW now comes to our nearest neighbor, the village of Ashburnham. Lying side by side, with only the river Otonabee between them, and bridges stretching from one corporation to the other, Ashburnham and Peterborough are commercially and socially one, but municipally they are two distinctly—as much separate in that regard as are the town and any other village in the county. The headline prophet does not call Ashburnham a "future town," as in the case of the other villages noticed, as many believe that, with interests so nearly identical, it and the town will in the future be a city.

HISTORICAL.

The earlier history of Ashburnham is closely interwoven with that of the town in regard to its business and growth, while it was for years municipally part of the township of Otonabee.

On the 9th of October, 1821, lot 30 in the 13th concession of Otonabee by Richard Ferguson. This lot covered where Elizabeth street now is and the principal portion of the village It was soon after transferred to the Hon. Zacheus Burnham, the consideration named in the transfer papers being £100.

WAS PATENTED

A bridge was built across the Otonabee in 1826 or 1827 by Mr. Horace Perry, principally through Government aid, and the same builder was the contractor for Mr. John Hall's mill in Peterborough, built by the Government in 1826-27.

Ten years after, the lot was patented there was a small village on the east side of the river, long known as "The Scotch Village," the houses forming a street running east from the bridge as far as the hill and up the side of the hill. The houses presented a neat appearance, as they were new and the most of them, being clapboarded, were newly painted and looked bright. The hamlet was not inappropriately called as is shown by the names of some of those who lived in it at that time, such as Robinson, Gow, Craigie, and Wallace. There were two hotels in the village, one kept by A. B. Downer, about where the Maple Leaf hotel now is, and the other by Bonner & Mercer about opposite where Mr. J. C. Sullivan's present store is. Mr. Wark had a store on the corner of Elizabeth and Brown streets, and Frederick Ferguson had a good general store on the corner of Mark and Elizabeth streets, in the building afterwards used as a market building and town hall, and which is still standing. Mr. Jackson had a saw mill near where the Auburn mills are, and A. B. Downer had a blacksmith shop in a log building on Elizabeth street. Marcell Mowry worked in the blacksmith shop for a time, and then commenced business near the bridge on the south side of the street, soon after crossing the street and making edged tools on the lot now covered with the buildings of Mowry's Agricultural Works. This was the first manufactory in Ashburnham that used power. Mr. Chisholm about the same time made waggons on the right side of the street. The ground now occupied by the factories along the race was then a flat covered with water. The road to Douro angled to the north over the hill from the bridge. People from "the country" were seen to bring in grain on a crotch, without wheels, drawn by oxen, and one ingenious farmer made a cart for himself by cutting wheels off a round log and running a stick between them for axels and axeltrees. It made music as it moved. The river then was a sportsman's paradise, being alive with fish, and a "deer park" was at one time built in Peterborough, about where the Morgan House stands, in which deer were kept. Mr. Hartwell owned where Mr. Calcutt's brewery is, and burned lime, occupying the property before the year of the cholera, 1832. He lived in a house still standing. Downer purchased the property from Hartwell, the Otonabee and the Pymadash, ran on the Otonabee and Rice Lake, and there was a warehouse near the site of the present Ashburnham wharfs. The Sir Francis Bond Head was also run on this route by Mr. Cleghorn, and was succeeded by George May's Royal George, which had two engines and four smokestacks. The Forester, built by Mr. Weller, of Cobourg, occupied the route for a few years, and was purchased by Mr. Fowlds, of Hastings. The Otonabee ran for a while, and after a vacancy had existed for a time, Mr. H. Calcutt constructed and put on his steamers. Before the locks were built the boats were pulled through the rapids by means of a windlass an end of the rope fastened to a large stone.

TWO STEAMBOATS

An hotel was built on the site where Mr. J. J. Lundy's residence now stands, by Capt. Thompson. It was a large building, well adapted for the purpose for which it was intended, but there were not so many people in the country who wished to "go north" for a holiday, and the hotel was not a success. The building was used as a barracks in the troublous times of 1837, when the Scotch Village sent its quota of men to assist in maintaining authority, and afterwards served as a dwelling, being occupied by the Rev. Mr. Dunsford and the Rev. Mr. Taylor. An extensive distillery was erected by F. Ferguson, who carried it on for ten or twelve years, and in the autumn of 1847 it was rented by Mr. A. H. Peck, who occupied it for three years and then built his brewery. Mr. H. Calcutt rented Mr. Peck's brewery in 1855, and ten years later built his present brewery.

The old bridge was carried away by the timber being run down the river, and for a time the river was crossed by means of a scow, kept in its course by a rope stretched to the shore. The scow was so turned by the stearing apparatus that the current carried it across. One of its passages was accompanied by a little over forty years ago. The rope of the windlass gave away on the shore, when the scow was crossing with a load, and the rude vessel went down the stream. The front part sunk into the water, and all on it were washed into the river except one man on the stern. Assistance was rendered as quickly as possible, but one woman, Mrs O'Brien, and two men named Patrick Cuff and Shanklin, were drowned. Afterwards another bridge was built, in 1486-47.

During the rebellion troubles of 1837 money was scarce, and one Scotch Village merchant made copper money out of sheet copper, which passed current was known as "Wark's gold."

As showing the comparatively low value placed on land in the early years of settlement, it is said that the land in Burnham's Point was once offered for 50 cents an acre, and that the Hon. E. Burnham, and Mr. Boulton, of Cobourg, each of whom had lands through the country, agreed to trade lands so as to bring the property of each one together as much as possible, the one who received the most by the arrangement agreeing to pay for the overplus the enormous price of 12½ cents an acre!

PROGRESS.

In 1842 the late Robert D. Rogers, who had been residing in Otonabee for eight years, came into the village and commenced business in a frame building on the site now occupied by Mr. W. Collins' grocery—a brick building erected by Mr. Rogers in 1856. In May, 1843, a plan of the village was made by Mr. Burnham. Mr. R. D. Rogers built his house and Mr. Peck built the saw mill was completed in the same year, the dam (Rogers' dam) being constructed about the same time. Other factories were built on the race formed by the dam, and the village grew. The first brick house, the residence of the Rev. Mark Burnham, was erected in 1853-54.

INCORPORATION.

The Scotch Village was incorporated as a separate municipality, with the name of Ashburnham, in 1859. Its acre is 960⅝ acres. The first Village Council was elected in 1859 and composed of Messrs. R. D. Rogers, Donald Sutherland, Samuel Dickson, Lewis Glover and Henry Bennett. Mr. Rogers was elected Reeve by the Council. The office of Reeve has since been filled by the following gentlemen:—1860, F. H. Armstrong; 1861, R. D. Rogers; 1862, F. H. Armstrong; 1863, '64 and '65, R. D. Rogers; 1866 and 1867, A. C. Dunlop; 1868, '69, '70 and '71, R. D. Rogers; 1872 and '73, Henry Calcutt; 1874, R. D. Rogers; 1875, John Burnham, who has held the position each year since and at the present time fills the office. Two Reeves of the village have filled the Warden's chair, Messrs. R. D. Rogers and John Burnham. Mr. Thomas Menzies was the first Clerk of the municipality. He was succeeded in 1860 by Mr. T. McDougall, and Mr. James Stratton was appointed to the position in 1862. Mr. John Wood, the present Clerk, succeeded Mr. Stratton in 1873. Ashburnham is the

LARGEST VILLAGE

in the county. The area, as has been said, is 960⅝ acres, 6¾ of which are non-resident. The population, according to the assessors returns for 1886, is 1,406, and the total assessment of property this year was $390,150. The main street is lighted by electric light, which gives it a city appearance at night.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEATHER NOTES.—The pendulum of time, with its steady and unswerving tick, tick, has cast another October into oblivion, the falling leaf and golden fruit being emblematical of our transitory abode on earth and of our ripening and never returning days. On looking back on October we find its record full of delightful weather. Although rain fell on 10 days, we only had 1 65-100ths inches, being considerably below the average for October. Snow fell on three days, but only one inch. The frost has been light, and very little for the tenth month of the year, only once coming as low as 28 deg., on the morning of the 16th, and the hottest at sundown was 68 degrees on the evening of the 12th, fine weather prevailing largely throughout the month, with an average temperature of 47 16-31°. We had snow on 3 mornings, all of which cleared off before noon. A fearful gale swept over us on the evening of the 14th and part of the 15th, doing considerable damage. Only one flock of wild geese has yet gone south and that on the morning of the 19th. I have heard of a large number going north again, although as yet I have seen none. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing during the month at sunrise, respectively, namely:—North, 3 days; west, 7 days; south-west, 9 days; east, 5 days; south-west 2 days; north-east, 3 days; and north-west, 2 days.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," Etc.

"Come! Oh, she will come when she sees my face, and hears that her father lies moaning for her. Besides, hath not Dr. Shaw proved her a married woman! Ay, this very morning, Mrs. Mead, he came to bring us written proof of my Jenny's marriage with Cuthbert Shaw! But how can I leave my husband!" she cried, distractedly. "The doctor says he must be watched. And how can I fetch my Jenny and be with my poor Michael?"

"Well, well! truly proved married! And she hath told no lies, then!" gasped Mrs. Mead. "The Lord forgive ye for all the pain you have given her. What didst thee say!—thy husband wants nursing? While ye're gone I'll watch by him. I've nursed a many i' my time. Hath he his mind?"

"Yes; he lies still—he has no power in one arm—and he groans sadly. He calls for Jenny, and— Oh, Mrs. Mead! if I am not quick he may never see her again in this world. Dear Mrs. Mead, since you will stop, run up to him now, dear heart, while I get my bonnet. I will be very quick. Do you mind, I have courage to be quick since she is living. Straight up, Mrs. Mead, to the right. Stay, I will show thee. Oh, God grant him a little life!"

She ran upstairs swiftly, yet with light feet, and Mrs. Mead went laboriously, quivering and stumbling after her. Outside the door quite clearly was the groaning of the man heard. He lay on his back looking toward the wall, and in the gloom of the room his face was scarcely distinguishable from the pillow for the whiteness of it.

With finger on her lip Mrs. Strangfield motioned to Mrs. Mead to take the chair by the bedside; and, nimbly apparelling herself, she came to the old woman's ear and breathlessly delivered instructions. They were simple enough, and to Mrs. Mead's discretion was left the explanation of her presence if Strangfield should observe her. But, truly, there seemed little chance of this; never once, since lifted from the parlor floor and laid upon the bed, had he stirred, and that should be over three hours. At regular intervals he groaned, and as his wife glided out of the room he called for Jenny.

CHAPTER XXIV.

JENNY AND HER MOTHER.

Just out of High street, not a stone's throw from the church, lived Mr. Franklin, who owned the Swiftsure coach that plied between Greystone and the old city on the road to London.

He was a pudding-faced man, and shaped like a ball in that part of his body which the band of his breeches circled; and he stood, with his legs wide apart, sucking a straw at the gateway of his yard, wherein, under sheds, stood his rolling stock, when Mrs. Strangfield breathlessly came to him, and besought him, with clasped, entreating hands, instantly to order out one of his coaches, that she might be driven to Winston.

Now, fortunately for her, Franklin was a prompt man; and reading urgency in the poor woman's desperate face, he gave a shrill whistle, and out from a little office tumbled a knock-kneed hostler.

"Number Two, Jeremy, and Sarah's your gal. Let Thomas scrape hisself, and tell him the leddy's waiting," said Mr. Franklin; and with dispatch that would pleasure this electric age to experience, a coach rattled up to the gate.

"To the Greyhound, at Winston, as quick as ever you can gallop," cried Mrs. Strangfield; and in a trice the heavy-wheeled vehicle was scattering loungers in the roadway on to the pavements, and making the shop windows clink to the thunder of its progress.

Still, it was a half-hour's drive, and a terribly hustling one.

At last the village hove in sight; a little row of cottages swept by, and the coach came to a stand in front of the glass door of the Greyhound inn. The man descended from the box of the coach, though already she was spraining her wrist in desperate efforts to open the door for herself; and no sooner was she liberated than she flew into the arms of Sally, who, having caught sight of the coach from a window, was running to the door.

"Are you the mistress?" said Mrs. Strangfield, in a wild way.

"Yes, I be, ma'am," replied Sally, with a civil courtesy.

"Is there a lady here?"

"Ay; an' you be her mother, I reckon."

"I am her mother. Take me to her at once."

Though Sally had been fortified with a dozen scruples, they would have been helplessly swept away by the peremptoriness of this command.

"She's just where Mrs. Mead left her, ma'am. This way, please," and she went to the parlor door and threw it open, saying: "Here be thy mother, mistress."

Jenny was standing at the window overlooking the green space of garden at the back of the house. With a stupefied face on her she turned, and a cry left her lips, and she stepped back a pace when her mother rushed to her. Then, like a flash of night at the sight of the beloved face, an impulse of love and joy leaped up in her; and in close, sobbing embrace were they locked as Sally, looking away from the sacred sight, closed the door upon them.

"Oh, Jenny, why are you here? why didst thee leave me?" cried Mrs. Strangfield, relinquishing her daughter to gaze at her, with eyes in which rapture and sorrow were strangely blended. "Never was mother's heart wrung as mine was when this morning I beheld your bed untouched and you were not near to answer to my call."

"I could not stay. Father would have taken me to London to-day; and see what a mad journey it would have been, and how cruel my ignorance would make him!" the girl said, pushing back her hair, and standing in a half defiant, half drooping posture before her mother.

"Thy father! Oh, Jenny! not only is it my love for thee that has brought me here in mad haste—thy father is dying! Ay, he may be dead before we can return to him!"

"Dying!— Mother, what do you say?" said Jenny, taking, so to speak, a firmer hold of the floor with her feet, and frowning, while a sickly hue of pallor overspread her face.

"Oh, Jenny! for the sake of God who hath brought me to thee, put on your hat and come with me quickly. I tell you your father is dying—he fell to the ground when Dr. Shaw brought him proof of your marriage with Cuthbert. Dost not thee know that the doctor has proved thee his son's wife! Ah, my poor heart, how should she know!—and that the cause of thy husband's missing, as the doctor believes, is that he was seized by the press gang and carried away to sea! Down thy father fell, and we bore him to his room, and the surgeon fears for his life; and all the while he lies groaning and crying upon thy name. 'Bring Jenny to me! bring Jenny to me!' he moans. My pretty, come quickly, or you'll see him no more in this world."

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

By Mr. Clurton.

I may be permitted to intimate that in giving the state of the markets in these articles my remarks are made in reference to outside markets and do not apply to local except when they are specially mentioned. Of course, foreign prices affect local prices when not counteracted by abnormal local circumstances.

WHEAT.—Wheat quiet and steady, but gradually gaining strength, and getting into a healthy condition.

BARLEY.—Barley quiet and unchanged. A slight dulness prevails in the markets but all offered from Canada is absorbed by the malsters in the States, Toronto, 48 to 63, on the street. Oswego, steady at 75 for No. 1 bright barley.

BUTTER.—Butter in Peterborough, 15 for choice diary, and 16 for gilt edged. I see no chance for improvement on those figures. I think the outlook is in the other direction.

CHEESE.—Cheese is still strong with higher prices in England. Liverpool 58s. and London 62s. per 112 pounds. The factory men west of Toronto who have large stocks are holding for 12¼ to 12½ which buyers, who are numerous, refuse to pay. It is said that a large dealer in Western Ontario—a Mr. Grant—who bought heavily in the summer, has made over $100,000 in this article this season. I think the price is high and dangerous. In these counties all have been sold except part of the October make.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK.—Political events in Europe are in a critical state, arising out of the Eastern Question and the Bulgarian revolution. War may break out at any moment. But governments will try all the arts of diplomacy to prevent such a calamity. Russia adheres to her traditional policy of aggression and aggrandizement—hungering after more eastern territories, with longing eyes towards the goal—India. Europe is in a state of unrest and uncertainty. England with the unsatisfactory and inefficient condition of her naval armament, and with the unsettled state of the Irish Question, is not in a position to rush suddenly into war, and she will act a forbearing part as long as possible. If war should break out, which everyone would deplore, the price of produce would advance.

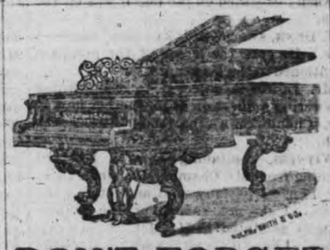
FACTS

Concerning Dr. Dorenwend's



Great German Hair Magic!

It is the only prepration in the world that will do what is claimed for it. It has produced luxuriant growths of hair on bald heads where baldness has existed for years. It has restored the color and vigor to numerous crops of gray and faded hair. It has relieved hundreds of persons of disagreeable Dandruff and has saved many when hair was falling, from becoming bald.

Remember these facts and if your hair is falling out and becoming thin, get a bottle at once and save the growth, or you may lose it for ever. Ask your druggist for HAIR MAGIC and take nothing else.

Clean Bedding

The public are beginning to have a very unfavorable opinion of the ordinary wool and mixed mattrass now in common use. Many have made the startling discovery that they have been sleeping on beds filled with filthy old rags, torn into shreds, with no pretention to cleaning them. At the present time there is scarcely any other filling material used as wool for this class of mattrass.

THE REMEDY:

The Peterborough Mattrass Company

Have commenced the manufacture of all kinds of Mattrasses, Bolsters, Pillows, etc. All the material used by this Company is guaranteed new and clean and are sold at the same price as inferior makes. Ask your cabinet maker for the PETERBOROUGH MATTRASS CO'S. mattrass and pillows. If they have not got them call at the Factory and you can be supplied with anything of the kind you may require. If you consider your health you will act wisely. Factory on the Otonabee River, at the east end of Hunter Street Bridge, over Wm. Faint's Woollen Mill. The name of the Company will be stamped on every Mattrass. Take no other. d109w14

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

ADMITTED.

It is admitted on all hands that we are passing through a very peculiar season's trade.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Japs.

The Japanese colony left town on Saturday night for Ottawa, where they will stay for two weeks, going thence to Montreal for a season.

W. C. T. U.

A meeting of the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union is to be held this evening at half-past seven o'clock in Mr. P. H. Green's studio. All young ladies are requested to attend.

Dramatic.

The Tavernier Dramatic Company arrived in town at noon and registered at the Grand Central Hotel. To-night they will open a two week's engagement in Bradburn's Opera House in the popular play "Nobody's Daughter."

Big Bagging.

A hunting party consisting of Mr. Westlake and his three sons, of the Township of Smith, and Mr. Walton and Jas. Tindal, arrived home from the back country last week. During their seven days hunt they got fourteen deer besides small game.

Social Meeting.

The members of the Young Men's Christian Association will have their monthly social meeting at the rooms to night at 8 o'clock. A large number of members are expected to be present. Any young men who wish to join the Association are invited.

Dogs vs. Dishes.

On Friday afternoon a dog followed its owner into the China Hall. While the owner was making purchases the dog hurriedly inspected the window goods, coming out leaving three dollars and a half's worth of goods fit for the scavenger's cart. A little while after a gentleman entered with two Scotch terriers at his heels. Mr. Wilson suggested the idea of putting out the dogs, but the owner laughed while he stated that his were never known even to crack a dish. Then the proprietor and the customer went to another part of the hall, when suddenly they heard a great rattle, and, nearing the window, found that a pitched battle or something of the sort had been going on. Four dollars' worth of broken dishes was the result.

The Elections.

There is quite a little stir in political circles just at present on both sides. That the general elections will take place this year is almost a certainty, and that there will be hot work is also a certainty, as both sides are going to work to win. In Peterborough the political cannon is booming out volley after volley; old time politicians and the younger blood are working shoulder to shoulder, and as a consequence there is no end of fun ahead. Amidst the hurry and bustle of this political life, it would be well for every voter in the county to weigh well the qualifications and merits of the respective candidates. Don't be led away by any deceiving or adventurous political stumper, but listen carefully to what your candidates have to say, buy your clothing from A. McNEIL, and be happy.

They Miss Him.

The North Hastings Review has the following:—"Mr. James Dolan took his final departure from Madoc on Tuesday for Peterborough. A void has been noticeable in the community since he left, which can never be filled by any other. No one in our little village could be more missed—except, perhaps, the tax collector or the Town Council. He was the life and soul of a jolly circle, who have been wearing mourning on their countenances ever since. Come back, Jim, some time or other, and see the boys." In a note the same paper says:—"A private telegram from Peterborough announces the safe arrival in that town of a gentleman from Madoc, known to his friends by the name of "Mull," or Tom Borrosokane. He was minus overcoat, hat and baggage. An overcoat was found hanging on a lamp post in Madoc yesterday, but no trace of the missing hat or baggage can be found here."

SCOTT ACT.

Wm. H. Chamberlain Fined for an Infraction of the Scott Act.

At the Police Court this morning Wm. H. Chamberlain was charged by Henry Rossiter with having committed a second infraction against the Scott Act.

Mr. EDMISON, counsel for the defendant, pleaded not guilty. If any sale took place, which he might admit, Chamberlain had nothing to do with it, as it was made in a room known as the bar room, that part of the premises not belonging to Mr. Chamberlain, being leased to another.

Mr. EDWARDS said that if the lease was proved he might have to bring evidence in rebuttal.

The MAGISTRATE held that this admission made a prima-facie case, which put the defendant on his defence.

C. H. SHEFFIELD admitted obtaining beer from Dunn—not from Chamberlain. Chamberlain kept the bar formerly, but now Dunn. Chamberlain's name was on the windows. He noticed no change in appearances. Dunn had been acting as bar tender before Oct. 15th. The building belonged to the Edmund Chamberlain estate. W. H. Chamberlain occupied the premises.

E. J. TOKER swore that he had obtained no intoxicating liquor since April. He did not know who was keeping the place. He went in for lunch, for ginger ale, &c. Had not seen Chamberlain there lately.

H. DENNE said he had obtained nothing but Moxie, which was the same as he had tasted at a private house. He did not think it was intoxicating, but was not an expert. He sometimes went in for a sandwich. He did not know that there was any change of occupancy, and had not seen Chamberlain lately.

J. MCCLELLAND had obtained a glass of ale at Mr. Chamberlain's invitation to drink with him. He knew nothing about who ran the place. He supposed it was Mr. Chamberlain.

JOHN DOUGLASS swore that between the 20th and 30th October past he got no intoxicating liquor to drink at Chamberlain's. He was not inside of Chamberlain's place.

The MAGISTRATE held that a prima facie case was made. The sale of liquor had been proved. The ostensible proprietor he would regard as the proprietor till the opposite was proved.

Just before closing the case Capt. Cooper was called to give evidence as to searching the premises. He found no intoxicating liquor in the bar. The vault was locked and Mr. Chamberlain had the key. The cellar was also locked. Mr. Chamberlain was away.

WM. BRADBURN got nothing but Moxie at Chamberlain's.

Mr. EDMISON put in a lease which showed that Thomas Dunn was the lessee of the bar room.

JOHN O'MEARA swore that he executed the lease on or about the 15th October. If it wasn't executed on the 15th it was on the 16th.

T. DUNN, sworn, said: The lease was bona fide. He was the lessee of the premises mentioned in the lease.

Mr. EDMISON objected to the witness answering a question as to whether he was Mr. Chamberlain's bartender before the 15th.

WITNESS, continuing—I have received nothing from Mr. Chamberlain since October 15th. I pay my rent as stated in the lease. I do not remember the circumstances as stated in Mr. McClelland's evidence. I have done all the selling since the 15th of October. I have sold my own liquor.

Mr. EDMISON took the position that the lease not being disputed was evidence against anything, and that no one except Mr. Chamberlain or Mr. Dunn had any right to dispute. There was not a single tittle of evidence to show that Mr. Chamberlain sold any liquor since the 20th of October. Mr. Dunn had sworn he had managed the business on his own account since the lease was drawn out.

Mr. EDWARDS said that the sale of liquor there having been proved the lease was not sufficient to turn the responsibility from Mr. Chamberlain.

The MAGISTRATE held that a prima facie case having been made it lay with the defendant to break it down. The defendant did not appear and Mr. Dunn refused to answer any question tending to impeach the lease. He therefore found the defendant guilty of the offence. A former offence having been proved to the satisfaction of the Magistrate a fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

Junior Conservitative Club.

The annual meeting of the Junior Conservhtive Club will be held in the club room, over Mr. Stethem's store, to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. There should be a large attendance.

Ambiguous.

It was stated in Saturday evening's REVIEW that Mr. J. B. Dunn had been committed to gaol in default of the payment of a fine for an infraction against the Scott Act. Such was the literal fact, but Mr. Dunn was not incarcerated, some time being given for the payment of the fine.

Railway Extension.

Mr. Ranney, C. E., has been appointed to survey the twenty-five mile extention of the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa railway connecting at the north of Kinmount on the Victoria railway and going eastward. Himself and staff will commence work at once. Mr. Osbourne, formerly proprietor of the Peterborough Pulp Mill, has charge of the survey of the twenty-five mile section east of Mr. Ranney's section. Fifty miles of the road is all that will be built next year.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

A Light Docket—Mr. Justice Proudfoot the Presiding Judge.

The fall chancery sittings opened at the Court House this afternoon, Mr. Justice Proudfoot presiding.

There was a light docket, only four cases being on the list: Hatton vs. Bertram, Dobbin vs. Dobbin, Emily vs. Midland Railway and Gebbie vs. Gebbie.

The bar was represented by Chas. Moss Q. C., and Mr. Lash Q. C., Toronto; and E. H. D. Hall, R. E Wood, Geo. Edmison, D. W. Dumble and James Henry Peterborough.

POLICE COURT.

ASSAULT.

SATURDAY, Nov, 6.—J. Johnston was charged by E. Crow with having committed aa assault upon him. The defendant pleaded not guilty. The complainant not appearing the charged was dissmissed.

Mr. Johnston commenced to offer some remarks defending himself in the matter. He was silenced by the court, however, and without delay went downstairs.

Church Notes.

On Sunday evening Mr. Wallace preached a sermon to those who honestly doubted the divinity of Christ. A report of it will appear in to-morrow's REVIEW.

On Sunday, both morning and evening, the Rev. Dr. Porter, of the Talbot Street Church, London, preached in the Baptist Church, Murray Street.

Don't Fit.

At the Police Court this morning the Magistrate said: Will the REVIEW please take notice that there is a continual rattle and hub-bub going on here while the Court is in session. The doors don't fit—they will neither open or shut without noise and confusion.

Mr. EDWARDS—I saw a witness going away this morning. He said the Court wasn't open.

The MAGISTRATE—It's a nuisance. It seems there's too many officers around here to see about getting these doors fixed.

Gough's Pumpkin Competition.

Gough, the people's clothier, some time ago offered a fine, serviceable overcoat to the person bringing to his establishment the biggest pumpkin. On Saturday the stock of pumpkins were judged by Messrs. Walsh and McClelland, of Poterborough, and Daubuz, of Lakefield. Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle, of Mud Lake, carried off the palm with his 127 pounder and also bore off the overcoat. The pumpkins which took first prize in the East and West Peterborough exhibitions were among the tribe of competitors but the Smith pumpkin outdid them and all the rest. The 127 pounder measures six feet two inches in circumference.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

CHAPLIN ON CLOSURE.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Mr. Chaplin, Conservative, in a speech at Radcliffe last evening, said it had been stated that he was a Tory in revolt, but with the exception of the closure scheme he thought the party would endorse all of Lord Randolph Churchill's proposals. He hoped the Government would leave the closure scheme an open question. Nobody could be blamed for assuming from Lord Randolph Churchill's language that he intended closure by a bare majority, which was incompatible with that freedom of debate which had been a cherished principle in the British Parliament for six hundred years. Nothing had occurred since 1882 to warrant such a complete conversion. If closure by a bare majority was adopted the first thing the Liberals would do when they returned to power would be to force a Home Rule measure through Parliament.

IRISH HISTORY.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Mr. Gladstone, writing to the editor of Blackwood's Magazine, thanking him for advance proofs of Lord Brabourne's rejoinder to his (Mr. Gladstone's) reply to his lordship's article on "Facts and Fictions of Irish History," says: My advice to Lord Brabourne is that he become acquainted with the views and contention of his opponents. He seems to be unaware that Dean Swift asserted the historical dependence of the Crown, while the dependence of the English Parliamrnt he strongly denied. Mr. Gladstone challenges Lord Brabourne to confute Burke's assertion regarding the Grattan Parliament, and also to disprove the statements in the memoir of Daniel O'Connell, published in 1843, showing that the relations between England and Ireland had been and were still disgraced by more cruelty and fraud than those of any nation in Christendom.

THE CRISIS IN BULGARIA.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Standard's leader this morning begins with the words: "It is clear that matters in Bulgaria are rapidly nearing a crisis." This time, however, the Standard is probably right. The intervention of Russia can hardly be long delayed. The people of Burgas are the victims of another plot. This is what seems likely to happen. The regent will summon the revolted troops at Burgas to surrender. The troops in question will declare that they are under the protection of the Czar. Russian gunboats will be hurried up from Varna. If the regents attempt to compel the garrison to submit the latter will resist with the assistance of the shells of the Russian fleet, and when once a shell bursts on Bulgarian soil all hope of a pacific settlement may be abandoned. The population of Burgas may make short work of the men who have seized the town, and the regents may thus re-establish their authority without bloodshed.
